Mr. Locker-Lampson, in behalf of the government, replied that the effect of isolated British withdrawal would lead to no advantage in the present circumstances and that general evacuation could only be brought about by an arrangement between the Allied powers on the one side and the German government on the other, but that such an arrangement would be welcome to the government.

This statement was generally interpreted as meaning that the British government was still against isolated action.

CHILD SLAYER FOUND SANE BY JURY ON TWO CHARGES

Two Verdicts Returned Against Hickman On Kidnapping and Murder Counts.

OUT 45 MINUTES.

Presiding Justice Announces Will Pass Sentence on Saturday.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Eight men and four women, some elderly, some middle-aged, the jury holding the fate of William Edward Hickman, confessed slayer of Marian Parker, yesterday stripped his cloak of asserted insanity from him and branded him murderer.

Two verdicts were rendered in 45 minutes in the sanity trial,—one that Hickman was sane on the murder charge, and the other that he was sane on the kidnapping charge.

Judge J. J. Trabucco announced that he would pass sentence on the prisoner Saturday. Jerome Walsh, Hickman's chief attorney, said that he would give notice of appeal from the verdict at that time.

The trial was the first under the new California law on Hickman's plea, that he was not guilty on both charges "by reason of insanity."

Hickman, having confessed his crimes, and pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, and being found sane by the jury, the court assumed that the next step was to pass sentence, which will be done Saturday.

The convicted man sat bolt upright, looking straight ahead as the jury foreman read his findings. He seemed unperturbed. Maintaining his pose, Hickman, with his guard at his side, walked from the court room with a firm step back to his cell in the county jail.

Single Issue

The closing scenes of the trial, which started January 25, moved rapidly. Hickman heard the thunderous Phillipic of District Attorney Asa R. Keyes' denunciation and Judge Trabucco took less than twenty minutes to instruct the jurors. The keynote of the court's address was that the sole issue to be decided was whether or not the defendant was sane or insane at the time of the crime.

Judge Trabucco pointed out that the law refuses to recognize a plea of "uncontrollable impulse." Further, the jury was required to find Hickman sane if it had been shown that he had or has lucid movement.

To be adjudged insane, said Trabucco, his mind must have been affected to the extent that he did not know the difference between right and wrong.

Turning to defense evidence, the court instructed the jurors that a slight preponderance of evidence would be sufficient to warrant a verdict of insane.

Finally, the eight men and four women in the box were told that they should reach their verdict uninfluenced by pity or sympathy for Hickman and unswayed by prejudice against him.

District Attorney Keyes, a veteran in prosecution, heaped contempt and scorn on the prisoner, pictured him a calculating, cold-blooded killer actuated by greed for money, "rotten to the core, but sane."

The prosecuting attorney declared that "it was only owing to the fact that we are civilized that a mob did not take this man from the officers of the law, and if it were not that I was an officer of the law, I should have wanted to be in the front ranks of such a mob to help put a rope around this man's neck.

"This defendant has committed the most atrocious crime on record, so far as I can find out."

Defence Plea

In sharp contrast to the sonorous periods of the district attorney was the quiet, low voiced plea of Attorney Richard Cantillon in his last argument for the defense. He condemned the prisoner's confessed crime but urged the jury to consider him insane in its commission.

Cantillon recalled the evidence that he asserted tended to show the taint of insanity in the Hickman family and asked the jury to believe that the strain was continued in the son.

Under the law, either the death penalty by hanging, or life imprisonment for the condemned man may be imposed.

WORLD'S HEIGHT RECORD.

The world's official height record of 38,000 ft. was made on an Italian military aeroplane by Sig. Donati, using Wakefield Castrol Motor Oil. Not long before this, the world's air speed record was broken by Commander Mario di Bernardi, at a speed of 295.9 miles per hour. He, too, used Castrol. The land speed record of 203 miles per hour, made by Major Segrave, is yet another Castrol triumph. Are you using this world famous oil in your car?

French Fliers Plan Trans-Continent Hop

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Joseph Lebrix and Dieudonne Costes, French trans-Atlantic fliers, yesterday turned aside from a round of official and social activities long enough to complete plans for a trans-continental flight from New York to San Francisco and to discuss the possibilities of commercial air routes from Europe to South America.

The President received Costes and Lebrix in his executive offices and after a short talk with them posed for photographs on the White House lawn. They will be the guests of the President at luncheon to-day.

In making the announcement of their proposed flight from New York to San Francisco, the fliers said they probably would stop at Detroit, Chicago, Omaha and Salt Lake City. They hope to return to France by way of the Pacific.

DR. KARR TALKS ON LEADERSHIP

Gives Inspirational Address at Meeting of Kiwanis Club.

NECESSITY STRESSED.

"Leadership," a subject of many phases, was spoken of in its peculiar relation to the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce by Dr. Alexander Karr, Educational Director of the Peterborough Forward Movement, before the members and guests of the Kiwanis Club at the Empress Hotel today. Dr. Karr was the chief speaker of the luncheon and his address proved an inspirational treat in that it stirred the members to take a part in the present movement to make Peterborough bigger and better through the Chamber of Commerce.

Guests Present

Notable among the guests at today's luncheon were Jack Miner, the famous naturalist and lecturer, who wrote his address as "Canada"; his son, Ted Miner of Kingsville; H. B. Keslick of this city; V. E. Nunez, of Nashua, N.H.; F. F. Freeman of Montreal, and R. H. Harding of Peterborough.

President Joe John was in his place at the head table and he conducted everything from imposing fines and making announcements, to introducing the speaker.

He announced the booster as John Allen, of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, who gave a three-minute talk on insurance—its part in disposing of the underprivileged child problem, and concluded by announcing the winners of the bean-guessing contest as Charles Lapp and Harry Dickin.

The musical number of the day was contributed in vocal form by Vern. Morphet, accompanied by M. B. Chenhall and was heartily appreciated. President John briefly introduced the speaker, mentioning his part in the Peterborough Forward Movement.

Dr. Alexander Karr

Dr. Karr, himself a Kiwanian, expressed pleasure at meeting members of the Peterborough club. In announcing his subject, he stated that he believed in a properly manned, and properly financed Chamber of Commerce, and he always enjoyed talking about that in which he believed. However, today he would speak of the main essential of a successful chamber—"Leadership."

"He said: "A glance over the world's history reveals that no less than seven distinct civilizations preceded ours, and yet not one of them had fallen because of external causes. All had gone from the same cause and that was, internal decay. And for the same reason that they have gone, so shall our civilization go if we do not guard against decay of leadership. Such as are the leaders of the State, such is the State, and such as are the leaders of the Dominion, the province or Peterborough, such is that Dominion, Province or city.

"We in America have been fortunate in our leaders for only those fitted for leadership came as pioneers to this continent. In fact the very first organization, which was a Chamber of Commerce in all but name, was formed in the cabin of the Mayflower, crossing the Atlantic in 1620, by the one hundred and two people who are coming to form a community or nation where every man might worship God as he chose. From that organization developed the 'Mayflower compact' in which those venturesome souls laid down the principle: "We covenant and combine together for our better ordering and preservation and for the general good."

"But the people of the United States and Canada have not assumed and discharged their collective responsibilities. It is necessary for us to emphasize that the things men have in common are more important than the thing on which they differ. That thing which you

CONDEMN AUSTRALIAN TRADE PACT AT DAIRY CONVENTION

Claim Importation of Butter From Antipodes Hurting Their business.

FLOODED MARKET.

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—By unanimous standing vote the delegates to the Western Canada Dairy Convention meeting in Regina yesterday afternoon condemned the Australian trade agreement which permits the importation of butter into Canada from the Antipodes and is claimed by dairymen to be hurting their business.

The vote followed a denunciatory speech from J. A. Caulder, president of the National Dairy Council, who declared that the Dominion Government had made a bad blunder in bringing about the agreement, although it doubtless was actuated by the very best of motives when making it.

The resolution was introduced by E. C. Thomas, Lloydminster one of the represetnatives of Saskatchewan on the Dairy Council, and after it was read, J. A. Caulder outlined the contents of the Australian trade agreement which he said permitted the importation of raisins and butter into Canada under a preferential tariff while this Dominion was given a preference in the matter of wood pulp, paper and automobiles.

"Australia," he said, "would not grant Canada a preferential tariff on our two exports unless it got something in return. Therefore the government, though certainly well intentioned, made a grievous blunder because it lowered the tariff on Australian butter from four cents a pound to one cent, and raised the tariff on raisins from the United States from two-thirds of a cent a pound to three cents.

"This has hardly affected Canada's raisin trade," said Mr. Caulder, "but it most certainly affected the butter trade, for shortly after the agreement was made a scheme of bonusing export butter by a grant of six cents a pound came into being in Australia, and the Pacific Coast was promptly flooded with dumped butter.

Protested to Government.

"We protested to the government that this was merely dumping, and therefore against the law," declared Mr. Caulder. "We visited Ottawa as a deputation and got the flood stopped. But later our Australian friends also sent a deputation to Ottawa and persuaded the government to grant permission for Australian butter to be shipped by consignment."

"Now this is what happens," said the speaker. "The Australians may ship their butter as a consignment to Canada, keep it in storage for 24 hours, and then sell it, evading the anti-dumping regulations. As a result of this, butter prices have been tremendously depressed on the coast.

"The benefits of the trade treaty have been extended to New Zealand since the agreement was first made, and we haye the Canadian dairy farmer, working under difficulties and feeding his cattle all through the winter, competing directly with the farmer of Australasia who does not need to shelter his cattle and who has grass growing all the year round on his farm."

Mr. Caulder pointed out that the freight rate on a carload of butter from Regina to Vancouver amounted to two and a half cents a pound and that the freight rate plus the one-cent tax on butter in similar quantities from New Zealand came to exactly the same amount.

"As a result of this agreement we will eat 15,000,000 pounds of Australian butter in Canada this winter," said Mr. Caulder.

PROGRESS SHOWN IN CHURCH REPORTS

Annual Meeting Held of Springville United Church on Tuesday.

SPRINGVILLE, February 10. — In spite of rain and icy roads, a goodly company gathered in the basement of Springville United Church on Tuesday evening, February 7. for the annual meeting.

The pastor, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, presided and opened with the Scripture reading and prayer.

Reports showed the church to be in a prosperous way. The treasurer indicated a favorable balance of $566. The W.M.S. had more than raised its allocation. For the Maintenance and Extension Fund $320 was raised. The treasurer of the Basement Fund reported income from all sources amounting to nearly $2,000, and the hope was confidently expressed that all debt on the basement and vestry would be wiped out this year. Anonymous gifts to the Basement Fund were intimated amounting to $100. One of the ladies of the church offered to decorate and furnish the vestry as a gift.

On the motion of R. Armstrong, seconded by S. Fairbairn, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Rev. A. H. McConnachie for his untiring efforts and successful leadership in the improvement of the church property. A feeling of gratitude and hopefulness pervaded the meeting. It was a time to thank God and take courage. At the close, the ladies served a substantial lunch, and a time of goodly fellowship was enjoyed.

PLENTY TO EAT
but are they well fed?

MANY children get lots to eat and yet lack vitality. They are sluggish and dull—don't enjoy even their play. They don't grow as they should.

It's not the quantity of food that counts. The important thing is the kind—food that contains in correctly balanced proportions those elements which children need.

Seventy per cent. of the day's work and play comes in the forenoon. Breakfast therefore is the day's most important meal. Quick Quaker has the perfect balance of nutritious elements. Its 16% protein builds and rebuilds tissue and its 65% carbohydrates supplies abundant energy. Its minerals make sound bone and strong teeth. It has bulk enough for easy digestion. Necessary vitamines assist assimilation of other food.

Because of this correct balance, Quick Quaker makes children physically active and mentally alert. They grow strong and vigorous—successful and happy alike in school and at play. They love the nutlike flavour.

Be sure to ask your grocer for Quick Quaker. You will know it by the picture of the Quaker. Packages contain coupons with which you can secure silverware and other household and personal articles you need. Big, family package, and small 10-cent size, both wrapped and sealed. Cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes, according to your taste.

Get Dainty China

In each package of Quick Quaker marked "Chinaware" is a piece of fine china, prettily decorated in blue and gold. It's fun to open a package and find a cup, a saucer, a plate or bowl. All lovely things, beautifully designed.

Presence of Sandino In Metagalpa State Is Confirmed From Two Reliable Sources

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Confirmation of the presence of Augustino Sandino with his band of rebels in the state of Matagalpa came from two sources yesterday. Carleton Beals, representing The Nation, a weekly magazine published in New York, arrived here yesterday with the statement that he had spent five hours with Sandino yast Saturday in a camp at San Rael del Norte, a short distance northwest of Matagalpa.

Harold Patteson, British charge d'affaires, announced yesterday that he had been informed by telephone that Sandino had been seen in that general vicinity as late as Wednesday morning.

Beals said that Sandino had about 100 well armed and mounted followers and that the rebel leader claimed to have thirty machine guns. Sandino, he said, furnished him with a guard of thirty men on the last half of his journey to San Rafael. Beals, coming from Honduras, had crossed the state of Nueva, Segovia, which had been Sandino's stronghold until United States marines captured his headquarters recently. The journey was made on horseback under the guidance of Indian sympathizers with Sandino.

Sam W. Jacobs Introduces Bill in Respect to Return Tickets.

HOUSE IS NOISY.

Dunning Asked To Withdraw Remark That Quinn's Statement "False."

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 10. — The Ontario divorce bill which passed the Senate on Wednesday, was introduced into the House of Commons and received its first reading yesterday.

Sam W. Jacobs speaking of his bill to remove the necessity of holding ministerial by-elections outlined its purpose. The bill received its first reading.

Hon. Robert Forke laid on the table of the House a report showing the number of permits issued by the department during the preceding year.

F. P. Quinn Conservative, Halifax in resuming the debate on the address, protested against "the very discourteous retort made by the postmaster-general to me." Mr. Quinn said there had been more sense in his brief interjection than in the whole speech of the postmaster-general.

Mr. Quinn declared the government had equipped the Hudson Straits survey expedition with potatoes from North Carolina and coal from the United States.

"That is completely wrong — absolutely false," interjected Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of Railways.

"Withdraw," called out Hon. R. B. Bennett, and other Conservative members demanded a retraction. For a few minutes the House became quite noisy.

"If he doesn't, I'll make him," said Mr. Quinn.

"Must I withdaw the statement?" asked Mr. Dunning as the Speaker rose to call the House to order.

Mr. Speaker said the statement should be withdrawn as an example to the House

"Then I will say that the statement was not in accordance with the facts," said the minister of railways.

"And I'll ask to have a return tabled showing the supplies purchased for the Hudson Straits expedition," said Mr. Quinn.

"You'll get it," replied the minister and the scene quieted down.

ROYAL COMMISSION END INVESTIGATION

Fisheries Board Will Bring Their Inquiry to Close To-day.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—The Royal Commission, under the chairmanship of Hon. Mr. Justice A. K. MacLean, which, since last autumn, has been investigating the fisheries of the Maritime Provinces and the Magdalen Islands, will bring their enquiry to a close with a sitting in Toronto to-day, following which the preparation of a report to the Federal Government, will engage their attention.

The investigators are in Toronto chiefly to study transportation and marketing problems, the cost of fish here and the quality in best demand, and to look into the spread in prices between the shipper and the consumer. The evidence of representatives of both wholesale and retail houses will be taken.

The Commission is constituted as follows: Chairman, Hon. A. W. MacLean, president of the Exchequer Court of Canada; H. R. L. Dill, Lockport, N.B.; Cyrus MacMillan, Montreal; Hon. Jos. Monbourquette, of L'Ardoise, N.S.; and J. C. Robignaud of Shippegan, N.B. Chief counsel is C. Fred Pearson of Halifax. Opening at Campbellton, N.B., the Commission covered the coasts of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and has also held a couple of meetings in Quebec. For the first month it travelled on the Canadian Government steamer Acadia, but later the steamer was laid up and recently the Commission has been travelling by rail. At the various points in the Maritimes where sittings were held complaints were heard from fishermen of difficulties in marketing their fish, of lack of transportation facilities, and of the activities of steam trawlers in glutting the markets, etc. The Commission will report to the Governor-in-Council before the close of the present session and the report will probably be tabled in the House.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

OIL FINANCIER TO TAKE STAND BEFORE SENATE

John D .Rockefeller, Jr., Will Be Witness When Teapot Dome Investigation Re-opens.

ON SATURDAY.

Will Be Questioned As To His Knowledge Regarding Lost Liberty Bonds.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10. — Canadian Press. — The Senate inquiry into the operations of the ephemeral Continental Trading Co. of Canada, will be reopened on Saturday with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., recognized head of the Standard Oil interests as the chief witness.

Rockefeller accepted a telegraphic subpoena yesterday from the Teapot Dome committee, but at the same time advised Senator Walsh, of Montana, the prosecutor of the investigation, that he still was "without information which has not already been submitted to the committee."

The subpoena for Rockefeller was issued after the committee had made public correspondence between him and Senator Walsh with respect to the appearance of Robert V. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, before the investigating body.

The chairman of the board of trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation is to be questioned as to whether Stewart gave to him information which he withheld from the committee — what knowledge, if any, he had of persons who received Liberty bonds from the Continental and whether he had discussed disposition of those bonds with Harry F. Sinclair, central figure in the whole oil inquiry.

In his telegram to Senator Walsh Rockefeller said he had personally expressed his regret to Stewart that the latter had not answered all the question put to him, and had been informed that nothing could change the decision of the Standard of Indiana official against whom the Senate has asked District of Columbia Supreme court to start contempt proceedings.

Informing Senator Walsh that Stewart had stated that the stockholders of his company could have his resignation whenever they desired it, Rockefeller said "This is a question which the stockholders should of course, and will naturally consider as the matter develops."

CAMPBELLFORD HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT IS ENJOYED

Musical Comedy, "Tulip Time," Is Feature of the Program.

REPEATED TO-NIGHT.

Prizes Are Presented To Pupils Excelling at Work and Play.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10.—The dull, uninteresting affair that was once known to the general public as the High School commencement exercises has been superseded by not only one, but two evenings of the most enjoyable entertainment that it is possible to produce on the amateur stage. Last night, the pupils of Campbellford High School received the first installment of the applause which is their just due, and the members of the staff will rest easier with the knowledge that their efforts have been crowned with complete success. During the entire program, there were but two speeches, and these were not the long-winded affairs of a few years ago, but very concise, complete and to the point. The remainder of the entertainment consisted of the musical comedy, "Tulip Time," with the entire cast being selected from the pupils of the different forms.

The Campbellford High School is a modern building in every respect. In the report of the inspector for 1927, the entire school was graded as No. 1 with the exception of the cloak rooms, which were graded No. 2. This is merely because there are no doors on these rooms as required by department specifications. In the opinion of the local board, the rooms are better as they are. Erected three years ago at a cost exceeding $100,000.00, the building and grounds are complete to the last detail. The building contains, as well as the class room and chemistry laboratory, a gmynasium, domestic science room, auditorium to seat three hundred persons, rifle range, and offices for the staff. The grounds comprise a complete town block and are kept in such excellent condition as to win special mention in the report of the inspector. The staff consists of seven teachers, each a secialist in his or her subjects. The results of the departmental examinations last year showed an exceptionally high standing and percentage of applicants successful. In his report, the inspector also commented very favorably on the work of the staff.

The Comedy

Last night, the results of their efforts and the efforts of the pupils were displayed to good advantage. In less than five weeks, the cast has been selected and the entire comedy worked up to the stage of perfection. It must have been a case of reading between the lines. Unless the pupils in the cast had their lines written between the lines of their Virgils and Caesars, they could never have learned their parts so perfectly. To select anyone for a prominent place in the spotlight would be rank injustice to the others. They were all good, but their were times when some one character would, by virtue of his role, have a strong part, and these parts were invariably done well.

The comedy is a two-act affair, with the locale in Holland. The villagers are apparently enjoying a holiday, when a party of American tourists arrive. They are college students on a tour under the leadership of Professor McSpindle, a botanist of note, who has come to Holland to make an exhaustive study of the Tulip. Ned and Dick, two of the party, are much more interested in Christiana and her friend, Katinka, native girls of the village. It is impossible for them to escape the eagle eye of the professor till news reaches the village that the prize tulips have been stolen and the description of the thief corresponds very noticeably with that of Professor McSpindle when he is dressed in his very best clothes.

The two students plan to have the professor arrested and their plans are successful. The Burgomaster, who is also fire chief, chief of police, and many other civic officials combined, wishes to buy some stock from Christiana, who is urgently in need of money to obtain medical assistance for her mother. The stock is very valuable, and she does not know it. Her father purchased it years ago when he was in Canada, and was able to do so at a low figure. But Ned manages to see the stock certificates and recognizes it as Hollinger Gold and valued at approximately $100,000.00. Naturally, Christiana refuses to sell at the ridiculously low price offered by the Burgomaster. Professor McSpindle is liberated by Christiana's Aunt Anna when she sees the notice in the paper that the real culprit has been brought to justice. The curtain falls with the prospect of a triple wedding staring the Burgomaster in the face, and with him holding out for a double fee since the day is a legal holiday. The principals of the weddings are to be Christiana and Ned, Dick and Katinka, the Professor and Aunt Anna.

Musical numbers were:

Act I.

"Come Along"—The Villagers.

"All Hail the Burgomaster"—The Villagers.

"Many Years Ago"—Christiana and Katinka.

"Look, They Come"—Villagers and Students.

"Valse Tulip"—Chorus.

"Ship Ahoy!"—Ned and Dick and the Sailor Girls.

"Tulips That I Love"—Ned.

"Love Needs No Language"—Ned, Dick, Christiana, and Katinka.

"Botany" — McSpindle and ensemble.

Act II.

Opening Chorus—The Village Girls.

"The Dancing Lesson"—Hans and the Villagers.

"Valse Tulip"—Gretchen.

"Fight, Fight, Fight"—Dick and the Students.

"Maybe—and Maybe Not"—Anna and the Burgomaster.

"The Thief Is Caught at Last" — Ensemble.

"I'm in Love With a Lovely Lady" —Dick and Katinka.

"As Long as the Windmills Turn" —Christiana.

Finale—Ensemble.

Cast of Characters.

Hans, a young Dutch apprentice—Stuart Anderson.

Anna, Christiana's guardian—Irene Dunk.

Katinka, a village maiden—Irene Stephens.

Hendrick Van Ooster, Burgomaster—Percy Honey.

Christiana, a village maiden—Cherrie Turner.

Theophilus McSpindle, professor—Cecil Stephens.

Ned Baxter, a college student—Ted Blute.

Dick Warren, a college student—Jack Bygott.

Gretchen, a village maiden—Bella Lofchy.

The Dutch villagers—Marjorie Ackerman, Katherine Irwin, Mary Fowlds, Marjorie Farrell, Dorothy Henson, Helen Thomas, Enid Richardson, Rita Palliser, G. Coveney, E. Douglas, R. Sperry, M. Watson, D. Dawson, J. Boyd, G. Cochrane, and G. Sloggett.

The American Students — Roxy Wilson, Dorothy Barnum, Marie Crosson, Hilda Jones, Marion Comrie, Elsie Connor, Elsie Bertrand, Thelma Hall, B. Blute, T. Lazier, B. Linton, L. Henson, F. Linton, M. Donald, G. Smith, E. Richardson.

The Sailor Girls—Dorothy West, Myrtle Dodd, Jean Nelson, Dolmas Montgomery, Ivey Ray, Muriel Kingston, Kathleen Crosson, and Rosina Clarke.

The first two or three numbers of the first act were passed before the audience really began to warm up to the players and realize that they were being treated to something which was a long way above the average amateur presentation. Judging from the applause, the high light of this act was "Ship Ahoy," by Ned and Dick and the Sailor Girls. The applause was insistent, and thus the first encore of the evening was brought into being. "Love Needs No Language," a quartette by Christiana, Katinka, and Dick, was also encored, and with quite as much enthusiasm as the former number.

The second act was much more appreciated than the first. From the first number to the last, the applause was deafening. The opening chorus was really snappy and the second number, "The Dancing Lesson," was the high light of the entire program. Stuart Anderson as Hans, literally let himself go and the result was super perfection, with the chorus of villagers stepping their paces as freely and with all the abandon of professionals trained to a finish. The audience simply would not be satisfied. Back came the stage folk and in perfect rythm, went through it all again. Theatrical producers have torn their hair in attempts to obtain much less satisfactory results. Were Anderson one of the "Deadlier Sex" the flowers would most certainly have been presented to him.

"Valse Tulip," a solo stage waltz, was also encored. There is no doubt but that Bella Lofchy's dancing delighted her audience. "Maybe and Maybe Not" and "I'm in Love With a Lovely Lady" were also encored.

The orchestration for the entire comedy was played by a local five-piece orchestra, consisting of A. Hazel, piano; C. Searles, first violin; R. Hazell, second violin; E. C. Dolman, slide trombone, and George Frederick, traps. Their services are greatly appreciated by the staff and pupils of the High School.

Scholarships Presented.

Between the first and second acts, the scholarships given by the Board of Education and the High School Literary Society were presented by Dr. H. O. Richardson, and the field day trophies by J. C. Anderson. Of the five cups presented by Mr. Anderson, two are now the property of those who received them. Thornton Ibey has won the senior boys' cup for three consecutive years, and Marion Clapper has won the junior girls' cup for the same number of years.

In presenting the scholarships, Dr. Richardson remarked that this moment was one of the proudest of his life, since he not only held one but several scholarships in his hand at one time. Such an event had never come his way before. The popularity of the commencement, he said, had made it necessary for the program to be given on two separate nights. It was of an entirely different style from a few years previous, and he wished to congratulate the pupils and staff on the success of the function. He also wished to congratulate those pupils who had been successful at the last mid-summer examinations and the teachers who had maintained such a high standard of efficiency throughout the schools. In his opinion, the teachers were adored by all who were in any way connected with the institution. Then after relating a couple of humorous tales, the doctor proceeded with his commission. The Board of Education scholarships to the pupils who passed highest from the first to the second forms were awarded to Bella Lofchy and George Smith respectively. The awards for passing highest from the second to the third form went to Lawrence Marriot and Hyacinth Collinson. The High School literary scholarships, based on the departmental examination results, were awarded for English to Maynard Watson; for British history to Irene Stephens; for mathematics, to Irene Dunk; for the highest standing in any five papers, to Cherrie Turner.

In presenting the field day trophies, J. C. Anderson expressed his pleasure at being given the opportunity to perform such a pleasant duty. He also wished, on behalf of the School Board, to congratulate the winners of the cups, and particularly those who had won the cups for the three years necessary to retain possession. To Marion Clapper was presented the junior girls' cup after three years' success. Mary Phillips will retain the senior girls' cup for the present year. Thornton Ibey now owns the senior boys' cup, while George Sloggett will hold the intermediate cup and Eddie Bush the junior cup for this year.

The stage decorations for the commencement have been arranged and procured at considerable expense. A full size stage decoration has been painted especially for the occasion, and sveral hundred tulips have been made and arranged about the stage by the students themselves. The decorations and lighting effect together produce a very attractive effect for the comedy. Costumes for the troupe were procured mostly from Toronto, though some were specially made locally. Wind-mills and a flower booth afford the necessary touch to make the arrangement complete.

Nothing but the highest praise was to be heard immediately the final curtain was run down, and a full house is assured for to-night. It is understood that requests have been made to have the comedy repeated again Saturday night, but no definite arrangements have as yet been made.

KEATING GHOST

a vapour which rose to within a foot or so of the floor level and appeared to pass from one door to another and vanish through a crevice in the wall of a bedroom, through which a very distinct draft of air can be felt. It appeared on only two occasions, and one of these a small summer kitchen adjoining the main kitchen was blown away by the force of the winds. On this occasion also, their small son was very ill, and Mrs. Keating was inclined at first to imagine that the ghostly apparition was a warning of approaching danger to the child. Professor McKenna convinced her that purely natural causes, allied to an overwrought nervous condition on her own part, was the cause of the visitation.

The dark colour of the water still persists and the taste is most unpleasant, the liquid having a peculiar salty, brackish quality that makes it most unpalatable. There is also a disagreeable, heavy, dank odour in the cellar of the house, but this may be due to decaying vegetable matter.

The two gentlemen who are interested in oil and gas propositions were much impressed with the possibilities of natural gas and oil which they declared the neighborhood afforded. After enquiry, they found that, on other farms in the locality, wells had been dug which had later produced gas which, on ignition, had burned for the space of twenty-four hours or more, the supply of gas later petering out. This is often an indication of the presence of oil, but it is impossible to do more than suggest a possibility until further investigations are made.

Experts will be brought in shortly and more extensive enquiries and examinations made. In this locality is a sphere, about eight miles in length, of magnetic influence which has interfered seriously with surveyors' implements, to such an extent as to make it almost impossible to properly survey some of the farms and to cause legal difficulties over boundaries. This is taken as an indication, as it has been in other districts, of the presence of mineral deposits in the neighborhood. If such deposits, or oil or gas, were present in workable quantities, it would at once increase the value of all the farms in this locality.

The Dominion of Canada is practically without oil wells, outside of Petrolia, where, it is said, the second largest oil deposits on the Continent were discovered. There have been many rumours of oil deposits in the Peace River and Mackenzie River districts.

Mr. and Mrs. Keating were in receipt recently of an enquiry from a gentleman in Toronto, offering to make a contract or lease with them and offering specified terms over a certain period of time.

DOWNEYVILLE, Feb. 10.—A very successful auction sale was held by Charles Alger, west of the Village, on Thursday, when Mr. Marquis disposed of his farm stock and implements. A very large crowd was there and everything sold high; horses from $125 to $150, cows $80 to $100, calves $20 to $30, young pigs at $7.50 each and a brood sow for $32. The implements also sold high. Mr. Alger intends going to Lindsay and his farm was offered for sale in the evening.

SUNDAY'S SERVICE.

The service arranged by the Canadian Legion in memory of the late Field Marshal Earl Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British armies, will undoubtedly be participated in by a gathering that will fill All Saints' Church on Sunday afternoon.

An impressive service has been prepared for the occasion, and it is expected that Peterborough people who remember Earl Haig's great service on behalf of the Empire during the war and his constant endeavor to improve the condition of ex-service men since the signing of the Armistice will be anxious to participate.

The Canadian Legion in making it possible for this community to indicate its sorrow at the passing of one of the Empire's heroes is once more giving proof of its own usefulness not only to returned men but to the whole city and district.

TONIGHT'S MEETING.

Jack Miner, the Kingsville nature-lover, who gives an address at the Grand Opera House tonight on behalf of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association and its campaign for an awakening of the public to the need of conserving our resources of game and fish, is one of the most interesting speakers that has ever visited Peterborough, and those who hear him tonight are sure of an evening full of profit and enjoyment.

A large audience should welcome him both because of his own magnetic personality and the service he has rendered this Province in his fight for better conditions for our bird and animal life, and because of the fact that he is here primarily to interest Peterborough people in a problem, the solution of which means much to this city and district.

Our supply of game and fish is rapidly decreasing. A few more years at the rate we have been going and those citizens who like to wet a line or pull a trigger occasionally will have to travel far from home to indulge in their favorite pastime.

And many of the tourists who now visit this district and add to the general prosperity will also seek fields that offers them greater opportunities.

Mr. Miner's address is expected to deal with several phases of the subject, and he should be heard by all local sportsmen.

COMPETITORS—CO-OPERATORS.

It has not been so long ago since one merchant regarded his competitor as his enemy. In fact, some still do. Because of this, he feared or at least hesitated to work for the betterment of the community, thinking that his competitor might gain by his efforts. He suffered. His competitors suffered and the whole community stood still.

Conditions have changed. Merchants began to see that when he stood still and his competitor stood still, the community failed to advance. Finally, the competitors got together in a friendly way. The hatchet was buried and both began to find that when they put their shoulders to the wheel, community progress was certain. The sales both grew; both were satisfied because they were prosperous.

The extent of success to be attained by a Chamber of Commerce depends upon securing the support of all public-spirited, forward-looking men, no matter how employed or whether rich or poor, just as it depends on the people whether the town stands still or goes forward.

Every public-spirited man or woman in Peterborough should be behind the Chamber of Commerce, supporting it, advising, planning, working with the organization for an united community. Only in this way can things that are worth while come to this section of the Province. It is only where there is action that growth is found.

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce is progressive in proportion as its members are progressive. By the stranger a town is known by the degree of interest shown in the local Chamber of Commerce.

Are you working to make this impression a good one? The Chamber of Commerce is now offering you the opportunity. The membership teams will call on you. Do not hesitate. Invest. Other communities have. This one must or lag behind.

THE LEGISLATURE PROGRAMME.

The Speech from the Throne delivered at the opening of the Legislature yesterday was more notable perhaps as a review of Government activities during the past year than as a forecast of the legislation of the present session.

By far the most important legislation mentioned in the Speech was that intended to protect the investing public, to put high-pressure salesmen under control and to prevent the marketing of questionable securities.

This is a measure to which it is known the Attorney-General, Col. the Hon. W. H. Price, has been giving a great deal of attention for some time, and it is to be sincerely hoped that he has succeeded in drafting a bill that will be of some service in protecting the public against shaky stock schemes.

The passing of such "blue sky" acts by many of the States across the border has driven many of the "strong arm" type of stock salesmen to seek other hunting grounds, and there is reason to believe that Ontario in recent years has had more than its share of these operators.

If Mr. Price has been able to prepare a measure that will curb such salesmen and keep many doubtful stock propositions off the market, the present session of the Legislature will be decidedly worth while.

Outside of this particular piece of legislation there is nothing in the Speech to arouse excitement. Amendments to various acts are proposed, although none of these are of great general interest, and it is announced that steps will be taken for the establishment of a research foundation.

There was, of course, no promise of old age pensions, although the Speech said that a special survey was to be taken to ascertain the number of needy aged in the Province.

With an almost total absence of contentious subjects, there does not seem any reason why the present session should not be completed in record time.

A SENSIBLE PROPOSAL.

Under the Ontario Mothers' Allowances Act, the widow of a person who resided in some other Province before and at the time of his death may, on moving into Ontario, and residing here two years, obtain mother's allowance. The Act, in other words, does not distinguish between the widow or the wife of a non-resident who becomes disabled, and the widow or the wife of a person who at the time of his death or disability is a resident of Ontario. The consequence is a large influx of widows from other Provinces, women who move into the border cities of Ontario after the death or disability of their husbands for the express purpose of taking advantage of the Ontario Mothers' Allowances Act. As municipalities pay fifty per cent. of this allowance, Ottawa taxpayers are called upon to pay out a very considerable burden to meet the demands of such cases.

Fathered by Controller McElroy, the Ottawa Board of Control has asked the Ontario Government to amend the Act. It proposes that the law require that the widow seeking an allowance must have been resident in Ontario at the time of the death of her husband, and for two years prior to her application.

It is a reasonable and just request. The Province of Quebec—and it is from that Province that most of the cases that place a burden upon Ottawa come—is just as well able to look after its widows and its needy as the Province of Ontario. Its finances, if anything (it has just announced a surplus of over $2,000,000) are on a sounder basis than those of this Province.—Ottawa Journal.

WHAT IS BROADCASTED.

A correspondent of an English paper criticizes the matter sent from radio broadcasting stations in the United States because it is largely for advertising purposes. It is hard to see how this could be changed except by public subsidies or endowments by wealthy men. The entertainment is offered free of charge to radio users, but the singers and performers upon musical instruments must be paid. The advertiser does this, and expects a return in publicity for his wares. There is no other way but for Governments or wealthy men to come forward and provide funds for concerts.

Public speaking is on a somewhat different plane. The orators are usually not paid, but are actuated by the motive of advancing some cause, or possibly by personal ambition. There is undoubtedly room for improvement in the matter carried through the air by this wonderful invention. The message does not always measure up to the medium. There is some good music, and some that is not up to the level of the ordinary local concert. There is some educational matter, in regard to health, etc., but very much more might be done in this way.

"Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers." Physical science leaves its sisters far behind. We move at a rate of speed unknown to our ancestors, and modern means of communication would have seemed to them like feats of magic. But there has been no commensurate improvement in the thought communicated from soul to soul, in the character of human intercourse. To admit this is not to deny the reality of progress, but to show that the possibilities far exceed the reality.—London Advertiser.

MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS.

One of the outstanding reproaches on Canadian citizenship is that the people give too little consideration to municipal government. For two or three weeks prior to the annual elections they indulge in a mild spasm of interest in the selection of civic administrators, but after that they are too apt to let the matter pass out of their minds. Yet it is a very important matter from every point of view. Not only has this municipal government which the people elect enormous powers as to taxation and borrowing on the credit of the people at large, but it has everything to do with those civic services which mean so much to the comfort and well-being of the community.

It is too readily assumed that municipal government in American cities is hopelessly corrupt and inefficient. That is largely because people base their judgment on what happens in Chicago, Philadelphia or Cincinnati, where gang rule obtains. We miss the course of history in other large cities, where citizenship is alert and constructive. For example, there are 375 large communities which have adopted the city managership plan, and with abundant proofs of success. In fact, that system has had a most remarkable growth across the line. It has not always succeeded, because in some instances an unqualified manager has been chosen, but that has been the exception.

This plan is not undemocratic. It calls for a council elected by the voters, usually from the city as a whole rather than from wards, and empowered to appoint a city manager. In his turn the manager appoints the heads of most departments and supervises the work. Municipal courts and the department of education, however, are generally outside his jurisdiction. He is supposedly a non-political officer and responsible only to the council, which may dismiss him when it sees fit, but usually leaves him a free hand to make recommendations to it and to carry out the joint program. He is usually called on to prepare the budget and to act as virtual chief executive, a mayor being little more than ceremonial head of the city. It is the application of business methods to civic government and is usually accompanied by the budget system.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Stratford is to have a moving picture film taken illustrating the life of the city. It will be a slow motion picture, it is presumed.

It would be better to eliminate fishing through the ice than to eliminate fishing altogether.

There is no time limit on speeches in the Legislature, but let us hope the good sense of the members will produce the same effect.

It is prophesied that the session of the Legislature will be "short and snappy," and that prorogation may come before Easter. That sounds like business.

It looks as if the Senate wants to pass the buck to the Provinces in the matter of divorces. The Commons may refuse, however, to allow the Upper House to shift the burden.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—There were no further developments in the local cash grain market yesterday, prices for Argentine corn being firmly maintaind at the late advance noted owing to the further strength in the future market at Chicago. The demand was steady. The trade in oats was quiet and prices ruled steady. Some business was worked in oats for all-rail shipment from Fort William.

The condition of the flour trade was unchanged owing to the continued very limited demand from all sources for supplies of Spring wheat grades. The tone of the market was about steady. There was very little interest shown in the market for Winter wheat flour and business was dull, but prices were unchanged.

Owing to the continued good demand for all lines of millfeed for local and country account the undertone to the market remains strong, but there was no further change in prices. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was reported rather quiet, but the tone of the market was steady.

There was no change in the local hay market, prices being steady with a small trade passing.

A very unsettled feeling prevails in the local market for storage eggs owing to the liberal supplies available, jobbing prices Wednesday were 2c per dozen lower with extras selling at 38c, firsts at 32c, and seconds at 25c per dozen. The feeling being about steady under a fairly good demand.

A firm feeling prevails in the local dressed poultry situation and a fair trade was done yesterday.

There was no improvement in the demand for butter yesterday and the volume of business was small, but prices were unchanged.

The cheese market was without any new feature to note.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices developed independent strength yesterday and scored a sharp advance based largely on broader domestic milling demand. Corn likewise ran up in value as a result of aggressive new buying on the part of speculators.

Closing quotations for wheat were firm, ⅜c to 1⅜c net higher, with corn showing ⅝ to 1⅛c advance. Oats unchanged to ⅛c off and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 22 cents.

In addition to big purchases of wheat yesterday for United States mills, a late upturn in wheat values at Liverpool did much to bring about a reversal of bearish wheat market conditions that have formed the rule of late. Earlier in the day, wheat and corn in Chicago each showed a tendency to sag. Subsequently, however, sharp notice was taken of relative firmness in the Chicago price of March delivery of wheat, March going to a premium over May on account of rumored hedges against sales of cash wheat to mills.

Corn prices yesterday rose to a new high point as compared with any yet touched since early in December. Rural offerings of corn to Chicago yesterday proved to be light and consignment advices showed a falling-off.

Oats were bearishly affected by the fact that oats seeding is under way as far north as Oglahoma and is expected to begin shortly in Southern Kansas.

Provisions tended upward, sympathizing with the advance of hog values and of corn.

A Thought

THIS HOSPITAL FOR KNOCKERS

The Chancellor of the Exchequer of Great Britain, Honorable Winsted Churchill, recently delivered an address before the London bankers and his vivid comparison of the United States and Russia is one of the unforgetable and undoubtedly the most effective line of reasoning that has been spoken or written for a long time. He said:

> What a contrast is presented by comparing the conditions of these two countries! Here are two vast communities, each numbering more than a hundred million—each in possession of a mighty continent containing every form of national wealth and inexhaustible resources, the one sinking back into the hideous self-torture of the Communist delusion, and the other striding forward year after year into a prosperity for all classes of people without parallel or precedent.

If anybody has any doubts about the advantages that America has to offer. re-read the Chancellor's "contrast" and then try to knock the United States.

But better: If you hear one of these ingrates knocking this country, knock him for a goal—knock him until he is a candidate for the hospital for incurables.

AN INVITATION.

Peterborough, Feb. 9, 1928.
To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I would like to say a few words through your columns, to the Christian people of this city and vicinity, telling them of the rich opportunity for blessing they are missing by not being present at the prayer and bible conference now being held in Bethany Tabernacle, George Street. The three p.m. service is for a conference on prayer, and is a remarkable season of refreshing and strengthening to all who attend. The evening meetings are devoted to lessons from Paul's writings and experiences.

The leader, Rev. A. W. Roffe, has been a great blessing to many believers as he travels over the United States and Canada.

The conference closes Sunday evening. Do not miss the remaining sessions.

A. J. JOHNSTON.

AN OBJECTION.

The Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—"Tolerance in religious matters" has been stressed of late at various service club banquets, but the following extract, which appeared in Wednesday's Examiner, proved the seed to have fallen on stoney ground:

"You have access to the steps of the throne where sits the greatest monarch in the world wherein are displayed most beneficial and more extended powers than those of any other Sovereign to whom men could bow."

Many a critic has been jailed for a less seditious utterance than above. Church leaders ought to know better.

Yours, for TOLERANCE.

J. E. PATTE HEADS ONTARIO FOX MEN

Chosen President at Annual Meeting—Praise Given Government.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Judging by the interest and attendance at the annual meeting of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Asociation on Thursday, that branch of the live stock industry is certainly one of the most prosperous. A very good season was reported by all delegates, and all friction between the ranchers and the Ontario Government seems to have been removed. At the meeting a year ago and in 1926 there was a lot of criticism of the Department of Game and Fisheries, but good feeling seems to prevail now and a resolution of thanks for the work done during the past year was passed with much enthusiasm and handed on to Hon. Charles McCrea, head of the department under which fox breeding comes in this Province.

Talks on Feeding

Superintendent E. Smith of the Dominion Government Experimental Fox Farm on Prince Edward Island and Dr. R. G. Law of the Ontario Government Fur Farm at Kirkfield were the principal speakers. Mr. Smith's address was based mainly on feeding. In this he advised the rancher to imitate nature as closely as possible. In the wild state he pointed out the fox got much green vegetation in the spring, either direct or through freshly killed rabbits and similar animals, while in the fall he receive ripe vegetation.

On this account he found that greens such as spinach agreed with the fox in the spring and summer and toward fall he began feeling cornmeal, rolled oats and whole wheat flour, properly cooked. He urged extreme care in feeding milk, starting that more trouble was traced to this source than any other feed. The fox, in his opinion, was not built like a calf, and therefore could not handle calves' food unless it was modified. Feeding tripe with the milk was excellent and when tripe was being fed the addition of milk to the menu was advised.

Disease is Prevalent

Dr. Law agreed with Mr. Smith in the matter of milk, stating that he had had a lot of trouble with young pups who got too much milk or bread and milk. Dr. Law's talk was mainly along the line of diseases, which, he stated, were very prevalent both among ranch foxes and those found in the wild state. He strongly urged isolation pens on the ranch where the sick foxes could be watched and kept from contaminating the rest of the ranch. These quarters should be arranged without seeing the observe as it had been found at Kirkfield that the animal will not show the usual symptoms of disease if he knows he is being watched. Dr. Law advised against indiscriminate use of powerful drugs when an animal became ill and said that there was no need to get into a panic over one meal missed. He urged the best sanitation around the ranch, careful inspection of all food, especially dead horses or cows which may have died of disease, and added that the best appetizer for a sick fox was a freshly killed rabbit.

Police Want Co-operation

Chief Inspector John Miller of the Provincial Police, asked the fox breeders for co-operation in tracing the foxes recently stolen from a ranch near Hamilton. He stated that if this sort of thing was not stamped out quickly there would likely be a lot more of it in the near future.

New Officers

Following the regular rules of the association, W. H. C. Ruthven of Alliston, who has been President for the past two years, stepped down and Vice-President J. E. Patte of Peterborough moved up. Sim Coll of Ridgetown was made the new Vice-President. New directors elected were E. C. H. Tisdale, Beaverton; Lloyd E. Pollock, Keswick, and Major Cousins, Georgetown.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL.

"The righteousness of God, which is by faith of Jesus Christ," Rom. 3, 22, was the text chosen by Rev. W. S. Edgar in the Gilmour Memorial Church on Sunday morning. Mr. Edgar said: "The great topic of this chapter is righteousness, and Paul is proving that the way was just as destitute of true righteousness as was the Gentile. Both were equally under sin, and exposed to condemnation. The Jew was inclined to pride himself on being righteous before God because he made feeble attempts to keep the law and because of his fasting and tithe-paying, but Paul shows that no outward observance of the law can make a man truly righteous, no mere mechanical routine of rites and ceremonies can purify the heart or impart beauty and nobility to character.

"In our text He shows that true righteousness is of God and comes to us through faith in Jesus Christ, in other words this means that only those who are genuinely converted can be truly righteous. Apart from the grace and spirit of God no man can have a character that will please God or that will satisfy the Divine tribunal at the judgment day. We have to be careful to distinguish righteousness from mere morality. Without the grace of God a man may be a moral man, upright and honorable, honest and true, and yet not be a truly righteous man. His morality is merely the culture of his natural graces. There is nothing more than can be brought about by education and refinement. But true righteousness is something deeper, and is brought about by the Divine spirit working in the inner recesses of our being, changing our heart and transforming our whole life and character. The difference between morality and righteousness is the difference between a wormy apple beautifully painted, and a fresh and rosy apple sound to the core. The beauty of the one is outward and superficial, whereas that of the other is inward and fundamental. The one is of the heart, while the other is only skin deep. The righteousness of God, which is by faith of Jesus Christ. For the sake of simplicity we will divide our text into three parts:

"The nature of true righteousness divine. The righteousness of God. There are different kinds of righteousness. There is self-righteousness. We may be righteous in our own estimation, without being really so. The way in which we sometimes deceive ourselves is altogether pitiable. You will hear people say, 'I never did anyone any harm, and I always tried to do all the good I could. I have a good heart and I am free from the great vices that mar other lives.' These people in their own eyes are faultless, and sometimes I wonder why God allows such perfect human beings to remain in such a wicked world as this.

"Then there is social righteousness. We may be righteous in the estimation of our fellows without being really so. Society cannot read the heart, having to judge us by the outward appearance. In this sense society is easily imposed upon. There are many whom we revere and honor to-day whom we would scorn if we only knew the truth about them.

"Again there is ecclesiastical righteousness. We may be accepted as righteous by the church, without being really so. The church is not an infallible judge of character, and is often deceived in admitting to its fellowship those who are total strangers to the righteousness of God. Recently a literary critic pointed out the extreme difficulty of deciding whether an author is a mere versifier or an inspired poet. The results of education on a mind with a turn for poetry may be deceptive. The trained ear catches lovely sounds, the tutored intellect is familiar with lovely thoughts; the sensitive mind is filled with images of beauty, and when to these gifts the accomplishment of verse is added, the writer has at least the semblance of a poet. If it is not easy to distinguish a mere rhymer from a true poet. It is harder still to distinguish a mere formalist from a genuine saint. So difficult is this that even the church is deceived.

"The diamond fields of South Africa produce large numbers of diamonds whose yellow color lessens considerably the value of the gems, and rogues have hit upon an ingenious criminal method for the falsification of these jewels. They put them into a chemical solution for a while. After the bath the yellow diamond appears perfectly white, deceiving even trained experts. Character also is capable of falsification. We may appear to ourselves and to others to be holier, brighter, and better than we really are.

"The source of true righteousness is Jesus Christ. He is the Lord of our righteousness. True righteousness is that which he inspires and maintains in our heart and life by His holy spirit. No righteousness avails before God except that which is stimulated in our hearts by the dying love of Jesus Christ. In a word, the essence of true righteousness is Christlikeness, and where Christlikeness is lacking, there is no righteousness in the deep scriptural sense of the word.

"The instrument for securing true righteousness is faith. Faith links us to Christ and Christ links us to God, and this true and divine righteousness becomes our glad and happy possession. It is wonderful what a large place the New Testament gives to faith. It seems to be the cardinal virtue without which no other virtue is possible. The connection between faith and true righteousness is very close and intimate. Without faith it is impossible to please God, and if we are not pleasing God then we cannot possibly be righteous in His sight. Faith in Christ is the only foundation on which a righteous character or a holy life can be built, and a man who has no such faith, however good and true and honorable he may appear to be, yet cannot be regarded as a righteous or holy man. Any native goodness or personal morality he may have will be rejected by God, because it lacks the main element of true righteousness, faith in Jesus Christ.

"Get this righteousness, my brother, for God giveth to the man who has it wisdom and knowledge and joy, but to the sinner He giveth travail, to gather and to heap up that he may give to him that is good before God. True righteousness is the way to universal possession and to unbounded gladness. To those who are divinely righteous all good things belong, and they shall have them in divine fulness. The blessing of God that maketh rich and addeth no sorrow shall be the portion of all such in this world, and in the world to come, life everlasting."

DOCTORS SHOW QUICK WAY TO STOP A COUGH

Many People Try Hospital Method in Own Homes—Get Quick, Lasting Relief

Colds and acute coughs are ended almost overnight—and even chronic coughs, caused by bronchial troubles, are being relieved successfully — by a method now recommended for home use by doctors at the hospital And druggists say that numbers of Peterborough people have gotten the same quick and lasting relief experienced by Mrs. Margaret Evans.

Mrs. Evans was suffering from acute bronchitis when she caught fresh cold while motoring to her mother's country home, on Route 3. The next day her tongue was coated, throat was inflamed and chest became sore from violent coughing. Then the doctors advised Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of ingredients which hospitals have found to be the quickest, safest and most dependable to end colds, coughs and bronchitis.

The first two or three doses brought quick relief from coughing spells. In a day or so all irritation had been cleared away and she was as well as ever.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by the physician who treated the case.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It is absorbed by the whole system. This quickly checks phlegm, heals irritation, and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a different person tomorrow.

BOY INJURED SLEIGH-RIDING

ingsley Whyte ,of Millbrook, Crashes Into Tree On Hill.

BADLY SHAKEN UP.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 10. — While sleigh riding on Allen' hill, on Wednesday evening Kingsley Whyte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whyte, Anne street, met with a rather serious accident. The icy condition of the roadway made the pastime a very unsafe one control of the sleigh being practically impossible, so that in coming down the hill it swerved sharply to one side and collided with considerable force with one of the trees in front of C. G. Garside's residence.

Kingsley was badly bruised and in a semi-conscious condition from the shock. He was taken to Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital for treatment and was sufficiently recovered to be able to return to his home the next morning. He is about fifteen years old. The accident occurred around ten o'clock in the evening.

LADIES' AID MEETS AT GEORGE STREET

Report of Past Year's Work Presented—Police Matron Speaks.

The February meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of George Street United Church was held in the board room of the Sunday School hall on Tuesday afternoon with an attendance of about one hundred. The room looked very attractive and Spring-like with a pretty basket of yellow and white daffodils on the library table and vases of the same flowers on the piano.

The president, Mrs. C. E. Smith, occupied the chair, and Mrs. E. E. Harvey was in charge of the devotional exercises. After singing a hymn, the Scripture was read by Mrs. W. H. Cunningham. Mrs. A. I. Brown led in prayer.

Mrs. Smith, in a few opening remarks, said it was a great inspiration to her to see so many members and friends present. The secretary and treasurer's reports were read by Mrs. G. Staples and Mrs. S. Oke, approved and adopted.

Reports of standing committees were given by Miss M. Elliot, corresponding secretary, who read a number of letters from members, to whom flowers had been sent.

Mrs. Stubbs for the sick and visiting committee reported 52 visits made during the month.

Miss Higgins reported for the Lookout Committee.

Mrs. P. Hetherington, Social Committee, announcing that the social committee had been divided into groups, each group to be responsible for a month.

Mrs. L. M. Richardson reported for the Parsonage Committee, making recommendations that were adopted.

Mrs. Shortly reported for Cupboard Committee.

Miss Morrow reported for Flower Committee.

Mrs. L. M. Richardson gave the report of the committee to consider the nature of the Christmas Fair. It was decided to have booths representing the months of the year. The name to be decided on later.

On motion, it was also decided to banquet the choir, orchestra and musical committee in the immediate future.

The Police Matron, Adjutant Amy Wood, then gave a very interesting talk on the number of cases of wrong-doing that are kept out of court, about 1,100 being dealt with in the past year.

To arrest the offenders would be the easiest method but often if they are talked to, great results can be obtained. The greatest difficulty is get the offenders to trust her and to tell the truth. She spoke of a Bible quotation: "He that ruleth over men must be just," and said: "I don't believe in so-called kindness that is not going to help the individual. There is great lack of parental control. Parents should give children a good foundation if they wish them to be good citizens.

"'Train a child in the way he shall go and when he is old he will not depart from it.'

"Parental control should be begun at a very early stage in the child's life. A wise mother, if she say No, sticks to it. Unwise mothers allow their daughters out on the street too much without proper supervision and do not see that they are at home in proper time. If boys and girls would confide in mother from infancy up, so much trouble would not occur."

She condemned public dance halls, not under police protection, and buying clothes on time as the cause of ruination of many young girls.

"These girls are not daughters who will make good comfortable home and good wives," she declared.

The annual report for the nine months ending Dec. 1, 1927, was presented as follows:

"I beg to present the following report of the activities of our society for the nine months ending Dec. 31, 1927:

"Although the report necessarily covers a period of considerably less than a year, yet much has been accomplished in that time. There has been strenuous work, but we feel that work is not a detriment to our society. It draws the members closer together in friendship and in our love for our church and what it stands for, and instills that spirit of unanimity which the society cannot do without. The raising of money is only one factor in our society, the social side being emphasized as well as the financial.

"During the year, he have had seven meetings with an average attendance of sixty-four. Our membership is over one hundred and fifty, several of these not active members. We regret to report the loss by death of four of our members during the year. Mrs. Lush, Mrs. Switzer, Mrs. Roseborough and Mrs. Snelgrove.

"Interest in the society and sympathy with its work have increased. There is naturally considerable business to discuss, but there is always time taken for the devotional period and a short program.

"During the year we had an address by Rev. Dr. Brown, Rev. J. H. Sutliffe, Rev. J. E. Todd, Mrs. Brown and Miss Leta Brownscombe as well as much-appreciated solos by various artists.

Financially the year has been a success. Our principal source as usual was our Xmas Fair in November which increased our funds by one thousand dollars above our expenses. A rummage sale in May netted the society $71.45, and a supper in October to the joint boards of the United Churches realized $45.00. Fees paid amounted to $115.00 and interest brought over $35.00. In addition to this and several other minor receipts a donation was received from the Welcome Bible Class for $100.00 towards furnishing of their class room, adjoining the board room and a cheque for $50.00 from the Onward Bible Class towards the furnishing of the board room in which room they meet.

"In the matter of disbursements we have to record first this year the payment of $1,550.00 on last year's unpaid bills in connection with the Sunday School auditorium, which had had been passed before the annual meeting in March. Following this the furnishing of the board room, class room adjoining, and kitchen was undertaken. These furnishings included hangings, ninety-four Windsor chairs, eighteen reed chairs and two divans, two rugs, three light fixtures, grate for fireplace, electric plate for kitchenette etc., amounting in all to $1,100.00. Besides this a rug was bought for the vesty costing $8.00, and dishes and supplies for the kitchen amounting to over $30.00. The carpet on the pulpit platform was used to cover the spaces where the registers had had been and new carpet was purchased for the platform at a cost including laying of about $78.00. An electric grate was in stalled in the pastor's study in the parsonage.

"In addition to this the society gave a cheque for $1,200.00 to the building fund in December. These form the greater part of the disbursements. In summing up the society's work I might say the total funds raised from all sources amunted to over $1,500.00.

"These net receipts for the nine months show an increase over the full year preceding. In addition to this, we had at the beginning of the year $668.18 cash on hand and also two one thousand dollar bonds which have since been sold realizing $2,110.00. Consequently we had considerably over $4,000.00 to carry on our work for the nine months. With this we have paid all bills, given $1,200.00 to the building fund and have still $369.32 to start this new year.

"Just here I would like to mention several donations to the furnishings: C. Thorpe, 1 pair of silver candlesticks; Miller and Powell, light fixture for vestry; McBride and Franks, 2 pictures for vestry, also a standard light for board room; Mr. Walter Belleghem, floor lamp for board room; Mrs. Kavanagh, set of dishes for kitchenette; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Yelland, library table for board room, 2 runners and a rug for the parsonage; Mrs. E. E. Harvey, piano and bench for board room; Mrs. Lindsay, Bible for board room; Mrs. Stubbs, arm chair for board room; Mrs. Carruthers, 5 pictures for board room; Mrs. Oke, silver offering plate; Mrs. Ridpath, Moorcrraft vase; Mrs. Matschke, several pieces of glassware.

"In November the society had a telephone installed which they hope will be found of great convenience to the various organizations.

Christmas cheer was again distributed due to the very liberal contributions of the congregation; over $119.00 being given in the special collections the Sunday previous. This with $10.00 on hand, balance from last year, amounted to about $130.00. Out of this, $85.00 was spent for supplies. Fifty-eight baskets were packed and distributed to twenty-nine homes. These contained groceries, fowl, roasts, fruit, vegetables and some toys. A balance of $44.00 was left over which the society gave to the secretary for the poor fund of the church.

"The flower committee placed flowers in the church each Sunday during the summer months and also at Easter, Mothers' Day, Anniversary Sunday, Thanksgiving and Christmas, these flowers being afterwards sent to the sick and shut in. In addition to these, sixty-one bouquets were sent out to the sick, thirty-four plans were sent to the older people of the congregation at Christmas The sick and visiting committee made 156 calls on the sick and shut in. This is a record for this committee, it being more than ever made before in the full year.

"In October a committee of ladies made 25 to 30 quarts of sacramental wine.

"In closing this report I would like to voice the thanks of the executive to the members of their unselfish work during the year; also to our pastor, church board, and the members of the congregation for their sympathy and support at all times. We all realize if we would have our church prosperous and better we must each do our share to make and keep it so. This can only be done by co-operation. United and sympathetic action is what makes a strong society, without which a society can never take its proper place in the ranks of our church, to which we are so proud to belong.

"All of which is respectfully submitted.

"Elizabeth M. Staples, Secretary."

Miss Diana Liddle sang a very fine solo, accompanied by Mrs. G Liddle, and the meeting closed with prayer.

Doctor Separates Siamese Twins To Save One's Life—Other Born Dead

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Separation by surgery of Siamese twins, a week old, to save the life of one of them after other had died, has been reported from the Ryburn Memorial Hospital at Ottawa, Illinois. The twins were born near Marseilles, February 1, to Mrs. Frank Keller. They were joined in the lower part of the abdomen in such a manner that the same blood coursed through both bodies. One of the twins, Meta Marie, cried lustily at birth, while the other, also a girl, showed no signs of life save the circulation of the blood, pumped through the heart of Meta Marie. Efforts to start life in the body of the other infant failed and they were taken to the hospital. An anesthetic was used, after which the operation separating Meta Marie from her lifeless sister was performed. Within two days, Meta Marie was returned to her mother, normal and sturdy, the physicians said.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; make a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

BIGGEST MOTOR SHOW IN EASTERN ONTARIO TO BE HELD IN PETERBORO

J. J. Duffus Limited Now Arranging All Details—Over 30,000 People Expected to Attend—Show Will Open Next Saturday, Feb. 11.

The biggest motor show ever staged in Eastern Ontario will open in Peterborough next Saturday, Feb. 11, at the showrooms of J. J. Duffus Limited and will continue throughout the following week.

In an interview with Mr. Duffus today, he stated no expense will be spared in making this show one to long be remembered.

Plans for the Show are being completed and it is fully anticipated over 30,000 people will visit the show during the week of Feb. 11th to 18th.

Decorators are now busy at work converting the showrooms into a place of beauty and gorgeous color in readiness for the gala event.

The show will take up two complete floors of the Duffus Building which is situated in the centre of the town, opposite the Market Square, corner of Charlotte and Water Streets.

During Motor Show Week a Whippet Sedan will be given away absolutely Free to some one visitor. All who attend the show will be given registration cards which are numbered. These will be placed in a sealed box. On Saturday, Feb. 18th these cards will be drawn from the box by the Mayor of Peterborough and the person who holds the lucky number will get the car. Besides the car, there are many other attractive prizes to be drawn for.

All the latest 1928 Whippet and Willys Knight models will be on display including the new Willys Knight Standard Six, the lowest priced Willys Knight ever built. This is the car that is creating a sensation at all the National Motor Shows.

The new models are now being roaded to Peterborough from the Toronto factory and all will be there and on display for the opening day.

MANY PICKEREL BEING KILLED

Fish and Game Association Fears That Fish Will Soon Be Scarce.

PROTECTION URGED

Officers of the Peterborough County Fish and Game Protective Association are the authority for the statement that the pickerel in the Otonabee and Trent River and Rice Lake are being slaughtered at such a rate that in a very short time they will be extinct in these waters.

Fishing through the ice is being carried on on such an extensive scale that hundreds of pounds of these fish are being taken out of the above named waters daily. One member of the Association states that he personally saw over a ton of these fish offered for sale in Peterborough in a single day. Recently 60 men were counted on Rice Lake alone fishing through the ice, within a radius of a very few miles. The same conditions exist at Hastings and the Trent River where hundreds of pounds are being taken out daily, and being shipped to Toronto.

While these fish (pickerel) are being caught legally, there is very little doubt in the mind of any man who understands the situation that other fish, such as 'lunge and bass, are being taken illegally. The Association is doing everything in its power to arouse public opinion to the point where it will demand that fishing through the ice be absolutely illegal.

The whole fabric of the tourish traffic to this district last year, amounting to $50,700, is built up on the basis of our fish. Good hotels—good roads and beautiful scenery are essential, but good fishing is absolutely necessary. This district has been advertised extensively for years as the "Fisherman's Paradise," and a very few years ago this statement was correct. There is no species of fish, however, which exist in these waters which will stand the intensive legal fishing during the open season, being caught through the ice in the winter, and the illicit spearing and netting and shooting in the spring.

The matter is one which, in the opinion of the Fish and Game Association, demands serious consideration of every sportsman and every business man in this district.

CITIZENS HONOR AGED RESIDENT

Miss Jane Gordon, of Lakefield, Given Presentation by Neighbors.

98TH BIRTHDAY

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 10.—On Saturday, February 4th, a delegation of Miss Jane Gordon's neighbors called on her, and as representatives of the neighborhood, presented her with a handsome tea-pot and a large size box of sweets. Miss Gordon's birthday is a gala day in the north-west end of the village, where she has been a resident for many years, and this, her ninety-eighth birthday, was no exception Miss Gordon is the oldest inhabitant of the village, and also holds the same rang among the exhibitors of the Lakefield Agricultural Society. Beloved and honored, she is reaping the just reward of a life spent in service to God and man. In retrospect there is a life which has been a beautiful walk with God, in anticipation there is the voice of our Lord calling her home, saying, "Well done."

On Friday evening, February 3rd, a number of members and friends of the Baptist Church gathered at the home of the Misses Gordon, the occasion being the 98th birthday of Miss Jane, who is the oldest and honored member of the Lakefield Baptist Church. They found her hale and hearty and quite smart, still able to read and attend to the duties of the henhouse in which she takes a great pride.

After congratulations by all present and a presentation of numerous birth day gifts, her pastor, Rev. J. B. McCormack, conducted a short service, in which hymns appropriate for the occasion were sung. He also read a portion of the 71st Psalm, and gave a brief address on the value of age in its relation to time, mind and God. He then, by request, sang a solo, "God will take care of you."

Afterwards lunch was served and a social time was spent, enjoyed by all, including Miss Jane. The singing of "Oh God our help in ages past" and prayer by Rev. J. B. McCormack brought to a close a very happy hour.

Annual Meeting.

The annual business meeting of Knox United Church was held on the evening of Monday, January 30. The pastor presided, and Mr. F. J. Burgess acted as secretary.

All the reports disclosed a healthy financial condition. In the general fund there was a satisfying balance. The total amount raised by all organizations during the year was more than $4,000, of which about $900 was for missions. The Ladies' Guild raised more than $400.

A proposition was received from the Guild, offering to pay half of a debt of $500 which has been outstanding for some years, on condition that the congregation raise the remainder. So generous has been the response of the congregation to this offer that success has already been assured.

Dr. Renwick, Messrs. Hugh Kidd and G. Mullen retired as managers, and were re-elected.

At the close of the meeting a very happy hour was spent socially.

Badminton Club Dance.

The second dance of the Badminton Club series was held in the Memorial Hall on Friday evening of last week, with a fair crowd in attendance, and a pleasant evening was spent. A Peterboro orchestra supplied music, and the members of the club served refreshments. The number present was not as large as the first dance held before Christmas. It is expected that the Easter Monday dance of this series will be a fancy dress affair.

A very large crowd took advantage of the special train to the hockey match last week. The village has stood behind the hockey team as in bygone days, and each game sees even a larger crowd in attendance. Nearly six hundred attended the game in Lakefield on Tuesday evening last.

MINES.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Apparently the report circulated by one of Ontario's leading mining newspapers is considered partly responsible for the continued selling of shares of Wright-Hargreaves. This report predicted lower profits in the 1927 annual report in spite of increased production. A grade of ore is expected averaging much lower than during 1926. However, reports of $20 ore and $10 ore respectively being reached on lower levels in the north and south veins, do not seem to indicate that such a condition of comparatively low mill head values need necessarily be of a permanent nature. It must also be remembered that Wright Hargreaves undertook a large development and exploration campaign during 1927 and no doubt a lower grade ore has been taken from this work on account of a certain amount of waste rock which is usually unavoidable. The opinion is expressed that eventually Wright Hargreaves may prove a large tonnage proposition of lower grade ore than milled on Teck Hughes or Lake Shore, but that revenue and profits will show appreciable advances. At all events the bearish talk of the past few weeks seems to have culminated in the last few days, resulting probably in some smaller shareholders getting frightened and others because of seeing their profits melting away quickly.

Teck Hughes and Lake Shore reacted in sympathy.

There was little change in the rest of the market and seemingly little gossip on street.

Nevertheless the good news is storing up at the mines and we confidently expect will have an exceptionally bullish effect on prices when the market finishes its present course and commences on the long over-due upward trend.

Toronto List Steady; Oil Losses Feature

TORONTO, February 10 (Canadian Press). — Weakness developed in the oils on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, but the remainder of the list was generally steady. Canadian Oil was the weakest issue on the whole board, sagging to 53½. It was on the upturn at noon, selling at 56½ for a net loss of five points. British-American lost 1¼ at 35¼ and Petroleum eased a little at 37¼. Brazilian was the firmest of the regulars, gaining three at 208½, the new and the rights improving fractionally. Building Products at 39¼, Burt at 71, Page Hersey at 91, and Northern Bakeries at 47½ were all improved. Nickel eased slightly at 92, but Seagrams held steady at 25.

Wheat Prices Steady While Corn Declines

CHICAGO, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Activity and lower prices went together early in the corn market today, with favorable weather giving an advantage to the sellers. Wheat held steady, offerings being readily absorbed and Liverpool laying stress on the smallness of shipments from Australia. Opening ¼ to ⅝c off, corn rallied a little, but then dropped lower than before. Wheat started unchanged to ⅝c decline and kept near to the initial figures. Oats were easy. Opening prices were: Wheat, March 130⅝. May 130½. Corn, March 92⅛, May 94¾. Oats, March 54¾, May 55½.

Kirkland Lake Shares Again Lead Recession

TORONTO, Feb. 10.— (Canadian Press.) — The Kirkland Lake issues again led the market lower on the standard mining exchange to-day, only a very few issues moving upward against the general easier trend. Wright Hargreaves dropped to 4.50 for a loss of 35 and Teck Hughes followed it with a tumble to 8.25, a loss of 25 cents. Lake Shore, however, was the chief loser, slumping a dollar and a quarter at 22.40, the most spectacular loss on the exchange in days. Bidgood firmed a point at 69 while Tough Oakes eased more than one at 53½. The strongest of the few firm issues was Pend O'Reielle, advancing 35 at 11.25. Noranda recoverede to 18.75 compared with the recent low of 18.00. Conspicuously weak issues outside the Kirklnad Lakes were Sudbury Basin, down 30 at 14.00, Hudson Bay losing 75 at 18.25, and Sherritt Gordon dropping 40 at 7.50.

N. Y. Trend Downward; Brokers' Loans Are High

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press). — Price movements in today's stock market were rather indecisive, but the general trend appeared to be downward. Speculative uneasiness over the establishment of a new high record in the volume of brokers' loans appeared to be the chief selling influence, although week-end profit-taking also was a factor. Trading showed a marked falling off in volume. The increase of 303,073 tons in January unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, bringing the total to 4,275,947 tons, the largest since March, 1926, was about in line with Wall Street's expectations. Steel Common failed to make much response to the announcement, although it was well supported around the 145 level.

The rubbers and oils were under heavy selling pressure as a result of unfavorable trade news.

BAILIEBORO W.M.S. PLANS APRON SALE

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 10.—The monthly meeting of the United Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. W. Bateson, the new president, Mrs. H. W. Foley, presiding. The delegates were Mrs H. W. Foley, Mrs. W. H. Barnard, and Mrs. H. Dawson.

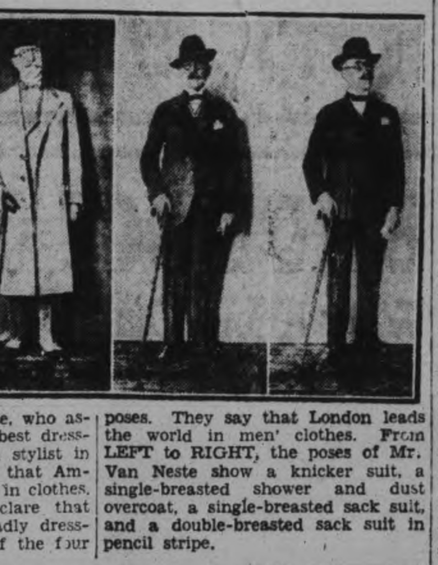
STYLIST'S CLAIM DISPUTED



Here is Victor Van Neste, who asserts himself as Boston's best dressed man, an "internatonal stylist in clothes," and who asserts that American men lead the world in clothes. Some Toronto tailors declare that Mr. Van Neste is very badly dressed in almost every one of the four poses. They say that London leads the world in men' clothes. From LEFT to RIGHT, the poses of Mr. Van Neste show a knicker suit, a single-breasted shower and dust overcoat, a single-breasted sack suit, and a double-breasted sack suit in pencil stripe.

The Senate did not sit.

have in common is the Chamber of Commece. You should remember that a city is now known by the Chamber of Commerce which it keeps and man power and money power is needed to make this Chamber a success. You cannot build a community without it.

"In the past twenty five years Canada has gone ahead with tremenous speed but in order to do things in the future you must have more vision—the kind that made the C. P.R. come true—and you must conserve your man power and money power rather than allowing Canadian citizens to go to the United States as they have at the rate of 274,000, in the past three years.

"Peterboro district has the climate which determines man power, and the soil and resources that mean money power. The great St. Lawrence Canal is bound to come, and I would not be surprised if in years to come ocean vessels will load or unload in this district. As Sir Joseph Flavelle has said, "The size, scale and measure of leadership are the main factors."

"The degree of responsibility which a man feels for his community determines his qualifications for leadership and what Peterborough Kiwanians feel they should do for the city of Peterborough will determine the success of the Peterborough Forward Movement."

Accordingly, a small pledge card bearing Pryor Irwin's declaration that "Individual prosperity is wrapped up in community prosperity—that's why the community's business is your business" was given to each member upon which to indicate time which he will give to assisting in the Peterborough Forward Movement.

The vote of thanks to the speaker was ably moved by Charles W. Lapp, after which "O, Canada" brought the meeting to a conclusion.

SACRED DRAMA IS PRESENTED

Pupils of St. Peter's High School Stage "The Shepherdess of Lourdes."

TO BE REPEATED.

On Thursday afternoon, at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, the pupils of St. Peter's High School presented "The Shepherd of Lourdes," a sacred drama in five acts. In the interpretation of the various parts exceptional ability and careful preparation were manifested. Bernadette Galvin, as the Shepherdess, was a typical, simple peasant maid of France. Hilda Sullivan excelled in the roll of the Blind Princess, her singing at the grotto proving to be one of the most touching incidents in the performance. Madeline Curtin, as Lydia, the gipsy maiden, was a great favorite with the audience. Outstanding also was the work of Mary Reynolds as Princess Elinora, and Noreen MacPherson as the castlekeeper's wife. The guileless peasant children of Lourdes and the Madonna and angels who appeared at the grotto, were very attractive features, while the artistic lighting effects and quaint costumes also contributed much to the success of the performance.

The closing tableau, in which the entire cast assembled at the grotto, called forth great applause from the audience. The members of the cast were:

Bernadette, the Shepherdess—Bernadette Galvin.

Louisa, her mother—Veronica Scollard.

Elinora, Princess of Valencia — Mary Reynolds.

Rosabella, her blind daughter — Hilda Sullivan.

Lucilla, her younger daughter — Olive O'Connell.

Laurinda, the governess—Harietta Thomas.

Ladies of the Palace — Madeline Henry, Geraldine Perdue.

Gertrude, castlekeeper's wife — Noreen MacPherson.

Her Daughters — Marie Dorris, Bernice Flynn, Agnes Masterson.

Mme. Massay, the governor's wife—Alice Hayes.

Mme. Dozons, the physician's wife —Jean Duffus.

Mlle. Vergez, niece of Mme. Massay—Marjorie McNulty.

Isabella, Gertrude's friend — Armere McCarthy.

Lydia, gipsy girl—Madeline Curtin

Marie, Bernadette's younger sister —Marjorie Hallihan.

Children of Lourdes — Florence O'Toole, Mary Ryan, Mary Deforge, and Marie O'Donell.

Guardian Angel—Mary Leahy.

Angels—Mary Sheehy, Nora Thomas, Marcelle O'Donell, Bibiana Morocco, and Mary Teresa Doran.

The interludes were ably provided by St. Peter's High School Orchestra and Schola. The memebrs of the orchestra were Harold Armstrong, Joseph Nolan, Eugene Snider, Edward Hiland, Charles Armstrong, John Burke, Frank Grant, Raymond Leonard, Claire Brooks, George Reynolds. The Schola was composed of Frank Grant, Roddy McKenzie, Jack Hallihan, Gilmore Kay, Wilfrid Lebarr, Frank Deforge, Max Glover, Herbert Masterson, Felix Scollard, John Carroll, James Collins, Gerald Duffus, Harold Snider, George Reynolds, and Eugene Snider.

This performance is being presented again on Friday evening at 8 in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum.

We Invite You As Partners

To the People of Peterborough:

The Peterborough Brewing Company is now in the process of rebuilding the Calcutt plant under the able supervision of George C. Wiedenmayer, one of the leading brewery experts of the United States. The Company has ordered its machinery and expects to be brewing its product within the next sixty days.

Our invested capital in most part has come from outside sources. It has been our effort to demonstrate to the investors in this vicinity our sincerity in trying to give to Peterborough a real industry, a needed enterprise. It has also been our effort to keep our expenditures down and to keep away from any unnecessary promotion.

The writer feels that money invested in the Peterborough Brewing Company is more than a speculation. We are certain of Mr. Wiedenmayer's ability to produce for this company ales and beers on a par or better than others brewed in the Dominion of Canada. This expression is based on our knowledge of the development and sale of "Wiedenmayer's Famous Cream Ale" of Newark, New Jersey.

Peterborough needs this industry. Peterborough should take pride in its development and success.

We do not care to sell any more shares than is necessary to carry the project to a definite success and a going concern.

We do, however, desire local partners in this enterprise who will share with us the fruits of a successful business.

People of Peterborough are familiar with Calcutt's Ale. It will be our effort to carry on the same trade name with a product meriting the patronage of the people of Peterborough and its environs.

Successful breweries have shown unusual profits. We are in possession of facts and figures warranting the assertion of startling financial successes in this particular industry, which, from our study of the situation, should, and unquestionably will, apply to the Peterborough Brewing Company.

Stockholders in this Company are enthusiastic over its prospects.

We invite you to share with us this confidence and opportunity.

At our office, 183 Charlotte Street, we will be glad to give you furter details, and inspect for yourself what we believe to be one of the best investments offered here.

MUSICAL NIGHT HELD BY A.Y.P.A.

Omemee Branch Enjoys Good Program—W. M. S. Meets.

PLANS DISCUSSED

OMEMEE, Feb. 10.—Monday evening, January 30, was a real musical evening in the A.Y.P.A. at Omemee. After a brief business session, the remainder of the evening was left in charge of Miss L. Jamieson, the convenor of the musical committee, which committee had arranged a program which proved to be very pleasing.

A few minutes of community singing by way of commencing, was followed by a paper on Beethoven by Miss Curry. Miss Jamieson then played a selection from the above composer in her usual excellent manner. The next item was Mr. J. Chatten in a violin number, accompanied by his sister, Miss Elsie on the auto harp. This was followed by an instrumental solo by Miss Audrey Weir. Misses Ethel Stephenson and Lenore Jamieson favored the company with a piano duet, while the closing number of the musical part was an instrumental by Miss Mabel Thorne.

A musical romance was given as a contest, which was won by Miss E. Stephenson and Mr. N. Burgomaster..

During the evening, the second issue of The Spotlight, the branch magazine, was read. It its pages many humoros allusions were to some of the members, which caused much amusement.

W.M.S. Meets

The January meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. William Earle on Thursday afternoon, with an attendance of about thirty ladies. Mrs. E. W. Rowland presided. Following the opening hymn and prayer, reports were heard from the Secretary and Treasurer. The latter report showed that the allocation for the society had been reached, which was very pleasing to all.

After the singing of a hymn, prayers were offered by Mrs. R. Poast and Mrs. W. Brandon. The devotional leaflet entitled "Sharing unsearchable riches," was read by Miss Eva Race.

The delegates, Mrs. J. Shield and Miss Lillian Race, to the 3rd annual convention of the Lindsay Presbyterial, held in St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, last month, then gave a thorough report of the convention. At the conclusion of their reports, a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the delegates and afterward endorsed by a clap of the hands.

A business session followed, in which correspondence was read and dealt with. A letter of thanks from Miss E. M. Fiske of Highland Grove, for the bale of quilts and clothing valued at $44.85 was read. The president then expressed the appreciation of those in charge of the bale for the generous contributions received from ladies who are not members of the society.

Mrs. M. D. Earle and Mrs. L. A. Mahood were appointed a program committee for the next three months.

At the conclusion of the report of the supply fund, given by Mrs. C. L. Morcombe, Mrs. Rowland laid much stress on "Systematic Giving."

Mrs. R. Wilson's resignation as organizer of the Baby Band was received with regret. No new appointment was made. The president hopes for a volunteer to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Rowland announced that the Mission Band intends holding an afternoon tea about Feb. 14 for the purpose of raising money, and asked the assistance of the members of the W.M.S.

Mrs. D. Weir kindly consented to be responsible for the missionary talk in Sunday School the first Sunday in March.

After some discussion it was decided as in past years, that each lady bring a quilt strip, one foot wide by seven feet long, to the next meeting, in order that some quilts may be gotten in readiness.

A committee of six ladies: Mesdames J. Bushnell, A. Rutherford, R. Williamson, H. Lamb, J. Shield, and L. A. Mahood were appointed to purchase material for the bazaar.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. William Earle and Mrs. M. D. Earle for the use of their home, after which the meeting was brought to a close with prayer.

A social half hour was then enjoyed with Mrs. W. Earle, Mrs. M. Earle, and Miss N. Rutherford as hostesses.

Louis Mathon, age 101, is reputed to be the oldest survivor of the Crimean campaign in France or England and the last Crimean veteran.

Women, Your Manifold Duties Require Strength

St. Catharines, Ont.—"During my early married life Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was very helpful to me as a tonic and nervine. I had become all rundown, my nerves were all upset, I could not sleep, and was weak and miserable. I was advised by my mother to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it relieved me of the nervousness and made me a well, strong woman. Since then I have always recommended it to weak women."—Mrs. M. F. Slack, 5 Francis St.

An enjoyable evening was spent this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Patterson, in North Monaghan, when a number of friends assembled in honor of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Patterson, whose marriage took place recently. The evening was spent in playing cards and in dancing, followed by the service of dainty refreshments. The rooms were prettily decorated in blue and white, and a waggonload of gifts, arranged in the same colors, was drawn in by little Jack Carpenter and Glendora Price.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas, Water Street, entertained the members of the Co-Workers' Bible Class of George Street United Church last evening, with their husbands. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess was moved by Mrs. A. I. Brown, seconded by Mrs. J. Spencer, and presented by Dr. A. I. Brown.

C. Blagrave, who was assisted by Mrs. C. H. Rogers. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. Denne at a table charmingly arranged with a profusion of lovely spring flowers and silver candelabra, the color scheme being carried out in Valentine colors of red and white. Assisting with the tea and sale of home-made cooking were Mesdames W. J. Hopwood, T. L. Edwards, J. Dishart, K. Wightman, W. M. Lang, E. Turner, W. Sangster, and Miss Mabel Collins.

A very successful Talent tea under the auspices of the members of Mrs. Stevenson's Bible Class of All Saints' Church was held yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Miss Muriel Wallace, Park street. The guests were received by Miss Wallace, Mrs. J. D. Paterson and Mrs. J. Elliott. The table was beautifully decorated with silver baskets of daffodils and narcissus, with drapings of tulle, and yellow candles in silver holders. Ladies in charge of the sale of work were Mesdames Spargo and Hillier, and a table of lovely candy boxes filled with delicious confections was in charge of Mesdames Watson and Williams. The sale of cooking was supervised by Mesdames Justin and Barrie. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. Stevenson and Mrs. C. Curtis, assisted by Mesdames E. LeBarr, Richardson, J. Price and Roy Price. The general convenor of arrangements was Mrs. Roy Price. A pleasing musical programme was in charge of Miss S. Wallace, and included vocal solos by Miss Helen Barrie, Miss Isabel Black and Miss Verna Huffman. Instrumental numbers were given by Miss Marguerite Rome, Miss Mildred Hetherington, Miss Jean Maconomy, Miss A. Williams and Tom Allen, and instrumental duets by Mr. B. G. Robinson and Tom Allen and the Misses Jean and Marion McCannon. Miss Verna Huffman recited and also gave a dance with Miss Jean Maconomy and Kenneth Gadd gave a violin solo. A reading was given by Mrs. G. H. Rowe. All the numbers on the programme were heartily encored. Accompanists were the Misses Marguerite Rome and Mildred Hetheringtotn.

The Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral held a bridge party at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Wednesday evening, with prizes won by Mrs. L. Meagher and Mr. Victor Rutherford. SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

A swift glance at the door into the sun parlor told Faith that Bob was about to close it completely, assuring Cherry privacy in her confession. Just behind Bob and towering over him, though Bob was a tall man, Faith saw Nils Jonson, his handsome face flushed to the roots of his sun-yellow hair, his blue eyes fixed yearningly upon Cherry. Raising her hand slightly, Faith signalled Bob not to close the door. If Nils loved Cherry and wanted to marry her, he might as well know the best or the worst about her, whichever her confession might reveal.

"I—I kept Bill from making love to me on the way out by chatting about the baby and the office and—and you," Cherry began in a sob-choked voice. "I'd almost made up my mind to take him, but somehow I couldn't bear the thought of his—kissing me. You know how it is!"

"Yes, I know how it is," Faith agreed softly.

"But—wait!" Cherry cried in a muffled, shamed voice. "Bill said Frances knew he was bringing me to the dance, and I thought it would be fun not to let anyone see Bill and me together just at first. I wanted to see if Frances or anyone else could recognize me. Bill hadn't told her what I was going to wear, for he didn't know himself. I made him wait on the porch while I ran in, with my cloak wrapped about me, and my helmet and goggles hiding my hair and face. There are several girls about my size and I thought it would be fun to fool everybody until time to unmask. I went right up to the dressing room and—and — oh, it was horrible, horrible!"

"What was horrible, Cherry?"

"There were three girls there—Selma Pruitt, Frances Warren and Maidee Hogan. They didn't have their masks on and they tried to get me to take mine off. I answered something silly in a low, throaty voice as different from mine as I could make it, and Maidee laughed and said, 'It's Justine Wright. I should recognize your voice in a thousand, old dear.' I thought it was funny and didn't deny it, and right away Selma said, 'For a minute I thought it might be our most famous—or infamous highway—Cherry Lane.' I—thought I'd faint, but I managed to chuckle like Justine does—you know, a little clucking sound deep in her throat, and Maidee said, 'Don't insult poor Justine, Selma.' It was ghastly! I can't tell you how horrible it was—oh!"

Faith's arms tightened about her sister and she bowed her head until her cheek rested against the green-leather helmet. "Don't think of it any more, darling. They probably didn't mean half they said."

"Oh, yes, they did!" Cherry protested bitterly. "Not even Frances stood up for me! And she's pretended to stay my friend, through the trial and everything. Oh, it's not fair! I was acquitted! But I might as well have been found guilty of murder, theft, adultery and every other crime that's ever been committed! Well——" she drew a deep, quivering breath and went on, "I got out of the dressing room somehow and by that time I was fighting mad. I was determined to make them kowtow to me, make them eat their words."

ADDRESS ON FAITH GIVEN AT BETHANY

Rev. A. W. Roffe Continues Sermons at the Tabernacle.

(Contributed).

"Christian 'Faith' is confidence in the love and power of God," was the definition that Rev. A. W. Roffe gave last night in his message on "Faith" at the Bible and prayer conference now being held in Bethany Tabernacle.

Mr. Roffe chose for his text for his address II. Thess. 1: 3, "We are bound to thank God always for you brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly." He laid strong emphasis upon the need of faith that is growing through confidence in God's love and power, and by continual exercise in a prayer life. The speaker pointed out that not only was the faith of these Thessalonian Christians growing, but that it was growing "exceedingly," for which he "thanked God."

He said: "We receive from God not according to our education, or our abilities, or our service, or even our religious connections, but 'according to your faith be it unto you,' is God's word."

By many personal experiences of himself and others, the speaker illustrated and emphasized his splendid address, closing by a very realistic analysis of Daniel's great faith, when, because of the conspiracy of the presidents and princes of the Medes and Persians against him, he was cast in a den of lions, because "he prayed and gave thanks before the Lord."

These meetings are proving a great help to the Christians who are attending. Mr. Roffe will close his services Sunday night.

The meeting at three on Saturday afternoon closes the prayer conference. Services will be held to-night at eight o'clock.

Hints on Etiquette

1. Where is a ball usuallygiven?
2. How are ballrooms usually arranged?
3. What other rooms are necessary?

The Answers.

1. At the best hotel or assembly hall. Large town houses used to provide ballrooms but few do nowadays.
2. With a balcony or platform at either end for two orchestras.
3. Room for a sit-down supper, two dressing rooms, smoking accommodations and a lounge room where guests may sit out a dance.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Yesterday afternoon the student body of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute attended a lecture as requested to do so in the Canadian Legion Hall and due to a misunderstanding, a large number did not return to school, as they understood they had been dismissed after the lecture.

On attending school this morning some of these students were expelled for three school days and while regretting the misunderstanding, feel that all those who were guilty should be treated in the same manner, if such a course was necessary, but which they claim is not the case. Yours truly,

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

If you were a queen don't you imagine that it would have been a little difficult to conduct yourself in a truly queenly manner in the recent period of very short skirts?

I have heard that some of the French dressmakers who make clothes for such royal women as Queen Marie of Roumania and the queen of Spain have sometimes been a little put to it to know how to make frocks that were truly queenly and still so scant of skirts. Not all queens would have the courage or desire to solve the problem as does Queen Mary of England, simply wearing long skirts when practically every one else in Christendom wears 'em short.

I am inclined to believe that the fashion of trains used in connection with very short skirts was first produced by some one of the French dressmakers who make clothes for the well-dressed queens.

On more than one occasion Mrs. Coolidge has appeared wearing one of these rather queenly new frocks—with draped skirt short enough in part to be quite smart and with drapery long enough to provide a really convincing train at the back. At the Embassy ball earlier in the season she wore a thin velvet gown of light blue—the V neckline widely outlined with pearl and crystal embroidery, a strass ornament on the hip and two draped panels at the back that lay two feet or so on the floor.

A most unusual example of the new trained gown comes from the house of Paul Carts in Paris—black georgette over black satin embroidered with black pailettes, silver and rhinestones. The skirt is quite short all around but an over drapery at the back and one side of the skirt, made of tulle, falls on the floor train fashion.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1928.

Benefic aspects rule this day, according to astrology, which reads fair promises in the stars.

This should be an auspicious rule under which to exploit one's political hopes and to seek favor from the public.

The rule is favorable for advertising and all forms of publicity and novel ideas may develop while it prevails.

Banks and bankers prosper under this direction of the stars which encourages the expansion of important institutions.

The seers foretell that supreme power is to be exercised by the financial forces of the nation in the progress of this century.

Business is to become so thoroughly organized and standardized that wealth will increase even more than in the past.

The seers foretell the acquisition of rare objects d'art by Americans who will in time make necessary visits to the United States by all who desire to be familiar with the world's masterpieces.

There is a good sign for all who start ocean journeys today, but unprecedented storms may be expected later in the month.

Floods will be even more serious in the spring than in the past, and it is well to safeguard against them as far as possible.

Nature is to manifest terrific power to destroy and the year will be noted for many disasters, the seers prophesy.

Cities will uncover much corruption in the use of public funds and they should be wise in directing municipal development.

Cleanliness should be demanded of all classes in seaports, for there is a prognostication that some sort of an epidemic will be imported from a foreign country.

Prosperity is to reign in the United States, but there will be sudden fluctuations of the stock market that cause uneasiness among speculators.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of success in financial matters. There may be small annoyances and large achievements.

Children born on this day probably will occupy the seats of the mighty. The subjects of this sign are usually concerned with the larger issues of life.

WHEN SPOTS FLASH before your eyes and your head aches just try Parke's Liver Tone, that valuable vegetable corrective of constipation and stomach trouble. You will be delighted with its quick results. The dose is small and it is the most inexpensive medicine you can take. 50c and $1.00.—Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter streets.

Welcome

We take this opportunity of extending a friendly welcome to The T. Eaton Company store, which this week takes the place of the Turnbull store, for the past few years our friendly contemporary, under the management of our esteemed friend, Mr. H. E. Hodgens.

With the wish that the same co-operative spirit directed to serving faithfully the public of Peterborough will prevail between ourselves and the new firm as existed with their predecessors, we tender this public expression of our good-will.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

THE PAPER RIVERS

My Mother said to Father, "Father,
I hate to worry, hate to bother,
I hate to spend the money, too,
But something you will have to do
About the children—" "Some new caper?"
"No, not the children, but the paper.
That paper in the children's room
Is cracking like the crack of doom."

Then all us children started yelling,
"Don't paper it!" "Well, there's no telling
Which way a youngster will jump next,"
My Mother said, a little vexed.
"It's cracking from the floor to ceiling,
I saw one place the paper's peeling."
"Well," Father said, "just wait a bit
And I'll go up and look at it."

But we took Father right up to it,
And said, "Please don't let Mother do it!"
"Why not?" he said. "It does look bad."
"No," Brother said, "it doesn't, Dad."
"Well, here's a crack to make you shiver."
"No, that's the Mississippi river,
And here's Missouri by this chair,
And that's Wisconsin 'way up there."

"I see," he laughed, "Oh, me, oh, my, oh!
By George, and this one's the Ohio!
Right down the register they go—
Why, that's the Gulf of Mexico!
That picture moulding's Minnesota,
And there are North and South Dakota,
And then he got a map of his
And showed us where St. Louis is.

When Mother got her dishes done
She came upstairs, and—well, we won.

Tired people . . .

SO MANY women, so many men, can't last through the day. Even mid-afternoon finds them listless and spent. Hopelessly tired.

What a difference it would mean if they but realized how constipation saps health and energy. How it steals youth. Mocks beauty. Kills ambition. How it leads in the end to untold diseases.

And it can be so easily relieved. So surely and safely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve it promptly and pleasantly. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

Why "all-bran" is necessary

To relieve constipation naturally, the system must have plenty of bulk. ALL-BRAN, because it is 100% bran, furnishes bulk in generous quantity. It carries moisture through the intestines—exercising them, gently sweeping out poisons and wastes. There is seldom enough bulk to properly do this work in a part-bran product. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN — the 100% bran.

Farewell, dangerous drugs

How much better is ALL-BRAN than habit-forming pills and laxatives — whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a pleasant, healthful cereal food. Don't you agree that it is far safer and far better to correct constipation in this natural way than to risk pills, drugs or part-bran products?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But insist on genuine Kellogg's. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Leafs Management To Operate Two Pro. Hockey Teams

KEEN INTEREST IN SATURDAY'S SOCCER GAMES

Everton Should Emerge Winners in Fixture With Hotspurs.

TO RETAIN LEAD

Rangers and Motherwell, Feature Tussle in Scottish First Division.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 10.—The waning lead of Everton, leaders in the first division of the English League, and the strong bid being made for promotion, first by Huddersfield Town and secondly by Leicester City, invest next Saturday's soccer fixtures with great interest. Huddersfield Town, only a point behind Everton, have played one less game than the leaders and Leicester City.

On Saturday Everton will be hosts to Tottenham Hotspurs and should garner a brace of points and stall off the challenge of the Yorkshire team, who must travel to Cardiff City, there to meet the English cup-holders. Leicester City play on the grounds of Manchester United and should win.

Hardly less exciting is the battle between Chelsea, holding a goal average advantage only at the top of the Second Division teams, and Manchester City, runners-up. Chelsea are at home to Bristol City, while Manchester City must travel to Oldham. The clubs with ground advantage should win.

In the Southern Section of the Third Division, the leader, Millwall, meetthe tailenders, Luton Town, while in the Northern Section Bradford may lose a couple of their marks at Stockport City, though the Yorkshire Club is safe in its leadership.

In the Scottish First Division fixtures will be one of those games the fans have been waiting for; the meeting between Rangers, league leaders, and Motherwell, runners-up. The match takes place on Rangers' grounds in Glasgow. Rangers have a good lead and if they lose, an unlikely eventuality, cannot be pushed out of first place.

DOG RACE SET FOR TODAY

Heavy Snowfall Comes to Rescue of New England Dog Derby.

NINE ENTRIES

NORTH CONWAY, N.H., Feb. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—A snow storm yesterday came to the rescue of the point to point race of the New England Sled Dog Club after the start had been postponed for 24 hours due to the bare condition of the roads. Last night, with more than an inch of snow on the countryside and the storm continuing, the start of the annual three-day grind was set for 9 o'clock this morning, rain which fell Wednesday night improved rather than impaired the roads according to the numbers who will take part in the race.

The thick ice which covered the roads was washed smooth, leaving a good surface for the snow top dressing.

In spite of the previous announcement that Leonhard Seppala, Alaskan veteran, and Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., of Poland Spring, Maine, the only woman driver entered, would withdraw in the event of a postponement, both will start to-day, they said last night. Nine dog teams and their drivers will make up the field. Other mushers are E. P. Clark of West Milan; Hi Mason of Tamworth; Shorty Russick, Emil St. Goddard and Earl Brydges, all of The Pas, Manitoba; Walter Channing of Boston, and Bob Davis of West Milan.

The first day's leg of 57 miles lies from North Conway to Centre Harbor, thence across the ice of Lake Winnipesaukee, a distance of 10 miles, to the Wiers, and thence to Laconia. The drivers will cover the stretch of 34 miles between Laconia and Wolfeboro on Saturday. There will be no racing on Sunday, but on Monday the final lap of 40 miles from Wolfeboro to North Conway will be covered.

LEAFS TAKE OVER RAVINA PRO FRANCHISE

Managers Smythe and Selke Announce Transfer of Canpro Club.

PLAY AT ARENA

Ravinas Received Poor Fan Support From District Where Rink Situated.

TORONTO, Feb. 10. — The Ravina Hockey Club of the Canadian Profesional Hockey League has played its last local home game at the west end Ravina Rink.

At a meeting of the Maple Leaf directors yesterday afternoon the local N.H.L. club took over bag and baggage the Ravina Club, its assets, liabilities and players.

This situation was brought about because of the non-support received from the West Toronto fans. The location of the Ravinas was a great handicap to the team.

While it was generally conceded that the Maple Leaf hockey club owners had a hand in the management of the Ravinas, considerable cash was involved in the deal yesterday afternoon which relieved Mr. Smith of the Ravina rink of his interests.

Windsor Game Off.

Immediately after the announcement of the transfer was given out, Manager Frank Selke of the Ravina team announced that the scheduled game between the Windsor Hornets and his club for Friday evening had been postponed with the sanction of President King of the Canadian Professional League till a later date.

Negotiations are under way between the Arena Gardens Co. and the Maple Leaf owners for the transferring of all future home games of the local Can-Pro club to the Arena ice.

The Maple Leaguers are going to hang on locally with their Can-Pro franchise for the remainder of the present season, but next winter the club will in all likelihood be transferred to either Galt or Oshawa who already have bids in for the team.

Patterson Deal.

Manager Conny Smith of the Leafs announced the official sale of George Patterson to the Canadiens in a deal which is to bring Gerald Carson here from Philadelphia. If Carson fails to report here before Saturday's game Manager Smythe announced he would exercise his option on Arthur Smith of the Ravinas and have him with the locals for the game here on Saturday with the Americans of New York City.

It is expected that the local Can. Pro. Club will change their name from Ravinas to Arenas for the present.

Manager Selke and Captain Bert Corbeau of the Ravina Club were in conference with Manager Smythe of the Maple Leafs late yesterday afternoon working out arrangements for the transfer.

BILL CARSON OUT FOR THREE WEEKS

Star Centre Player Has Fractured Skull—Pro. Hockey News.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Dr. Bill Carson, the leading scorer and star centre player of the Maple Leafs, is out of the game for at least three weeks. The injury that Carson received last Saturday was more serious than first expected and the X-rays have revealed a fractured skull. Dr. A. Smirle Lawson, the club surgeon, is looking after Carson, and while he is doing everything he can to get him back in the game, he will be out for longer than expected. That is a real tough break for Conny Smythe and the local club. Now they have got to go out and get a player to help bolster up the defense and the line. If anything happens to another of their performers they will be worse off than ever.

The Leafs made a gallant stand against Canadiens, one that will not be forgotten in a long time by the packed house that witnessed the game, and the majority of the fans should be back on Saturday night when they do battle with the New York Americans at the Arena. The Americans have suffered a bit from injuries, and they are just coming out of a slump. On Tuesday night they made the Maroons hustle to hold them to a three-all tie. It should be a wide open game and filled with plenty of excitement.

Three prominent Toronto athletes are with the Yankees now that Jakie Forbes has rejoined them. It will look like an old Aura Lee team, with Conacher Burch and Forbes on the line-up.

The Leafs received a well earned rest after Tuesday night's battle and they all went home. They report again today and should be in tip-top shape for Saturday's struggle.

Patterson Has Been Sold.

"Paddy" Patterson the right winger has been sold by the Maple Leafs to the Canadiens for a good price, though the officers of the local club would not divulge the amount. If the deal can be arranged Gerald Carson, of Philadelphia, who is the property of the Frenchmen, will come here in part payment for Patterson. Carson is a brother of Dr. Bill Carson, the centre player. If that deal does not go through, Art Smith may be drafted from the Ravinas.

Only a handful of spectators witnessed the contest.

O.B.A.A. BULLETIN.

The attention of all baseball league officers, as well as players, is drawn to the following important clause of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association constitution and by-laws: "If any player previously playing under the O.B.A.A. should change his place of residence after August 1st of the playing season, he must notify the secretary of the association before February 15th of the following year, and state his reason for doing so. A list of said players shall be sent out on or before March 15th by the association secretary to each association or league affiliated."

Although the responsibility in the above rests with the player, league officers are specially requested to see that all clubs and players in their leagles are advised in this manner.

TOSS OF COIN DECIDES GAME

Light Goes Out While the Final Games Are Being Curled.

AT KEENE BONSPIEL.

KEENE, Feb. 10.—The local bonspiel came to a sudden end here on Wednesday night, when the electric lights went "dead" while the final games were being played. Low water pressure was the trouble, and as there was no possibility of having the lights on again that night, the contending rinks decided to toss a coin to decide the winner of the Manley Cup and the Dr. Walsh Shield.

In the Manley Cup Robert Nelson won the toss over Earl Doris, while F. A. Eason won over Harold Roache for the Dr. Walsh Shield.

Previous to the final games a sumptuous banquet was provided for the curlers by their wives and lady friends. Toasts were proposed and responded to and these were interspersed by the singing of songs.

Following the last games was the dance in the Town Hall, which was crowded to capacity.

During an intermission the prizes were presented to the winning rinks by J. J. Moore, each making a suitable reply. A member of one of the rinks humorously remarked that a man's wife did not like his going out, so he had to get something out of the bonspiel to insure his getting out again.

The first prize for the Manley Cup were thermos bottles, the runner-up prizes being half a dozen teaspoons each.

In the Dr. Walsh Shield the winners received butter dishes, while the runners up were given driving gauntlets.

There were some very close games, one in particular being the Dr. Walsh semi-final when Roache and Nelson had to play an extra end. Three other games were decided by the last stone thrownu. The scores:

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

The "Old Dominion," as the Southern States have been affectionately termed, does not often figure in dramas of the moving picture type, but it makes a fine background for the feature running just now at the Capitol Theatre, and entitled "In Old Kentucky." A big race is one of the main episodes in this production, which also opens with a race. The hero, Jimmie Brierley (James Murray) belongs to the Brierleys of Queenston Manor, the home of some of the greatest race-horse breeders in Kentucky, and his horse wins. That night, he proposes to Nancy Holden (Helene Costello) and is accepted. In the midst of rejoicing, the newspapers announce the commencement of war. Jimmy, with Skippy, his jockey, both volunteer, but the latter is rejected. "Queen Bess," the pride of the stables, in training for the Kentucky Derby, is taken, along with other horses, for the war.

The second portion of the picture is filmed in the war zone, some interesting episodes of the great conflict are shown. Two years later, Jimmy comes home, a wreck, dissipated and drunken. He insults his sweetheart and is disowned by his father. Then he passes a worthless cheque and gets into trouble over this. When the day comes for the great annual race, Jimmy is present, but is still unfriendly with his family. When he hears that "Queen Bess" is not in the race, he pawns his belongings and pays the entry fee, which his father has been unable to meet. Then he prays for rain and repents of his waywardness. "Queen Bess," who is a "mud horse," gallops triumphantly to a thrilling finish of an exciting race. Jimmy comes back home, asking for forgiveness, and all is bright once more.

AT THE REGENT.

DOUG. MACLEAN STARRED IN COMEDY OF MARINE.

Douglas MacLean, the young man, who went AWOL in "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave," authored in "Seven Keys to Baldpate," fathered in "That's My Baby" and hunted cats in "Hold That Lion," now playing at the Regent Theatre, in a snappy story of the United States Marine Corps, "Let It Rain."

As "Let It Rain" Riley, Doug. shows what happens when a young man makes up his mind to accomplish something. A pretty young woman comes aboard-ship and the marine recognizes her as the girl of his heart. But when he sees an officer claim her undivided attention, he soon realizes that chevrons must be attention-getters. Then and there, he resolves to raise himself from the ranks.

How he does it and how she helps him by letting him know of a proposed mail robbery provide material for lots of laughs. In the course of the film, Doug. becomes embroiled with a gang of bandits—on a runaway mail coach. Does he get out alive? Well, you'll have to see the picture to find out.

Winsome Shirley Mason, heroine of "Desert Gold" and "Kosher Kitty Kelly," is the girl, Wade Boteler, who has appeared in MacLean's most recent comedies, enacts Doug's sworn enemy, Kelly, the gob. Frank Campeau, character actor and a man who needs no introduction, is the marine commander. James Mason, Lee Shumway, Lincoln Stedman and Jimmy Bradbury complete the cast. Eddie Cline, director of Mack Sennett's earliest bathing beauty comedies, and recently of Jackie Coogan and Buster Keaton features, was at the megaphone.

WESTERN M. P. TELLS ABOUT ICELANDERS

J. T. Thomson, M.P., Addresses Women's Canadian Club.

ON WESTERN PIONEERS.

Speaker Is Himself Descendant of Icelanders Who Settled On Prairies.

"The Pioneer Icelandic Settlers in Canada," proved the subject of a highly interesting and informative address delivered before the Women's Canadian Club of Peterborough on Thursday afternoon, in the Public Library Building. J. T. Thorson, LL.D., representative of Winnipeg in the Federal House, and himself of Icelandic descent, was the speaker on this occasion, and his story of how his forefathers had bought and paid for citizenship in this Dominion was one which held the rapt attention of his auditors for almost an hour that seemed but half that length of time.

Miss Tompkins, President of the club, introduced Mr. Thorson, mentioning his success as a scholar, statesman and speaker. She it was who voiced the appreciation of the club at the conclusion of the address.

Mr. Thorson.

Speaking in a quiet but remarkably clear voice, Mr. Thorson expressed his pleasure at visiting Peterborough for the first time and fearing that the subject of his address might be misleading, hastened to explain that it was not his intention to speak of the Norsemen of his early history, but of the Icelanders who played a part in the settlement of our Dominion.

Continuing, the speaker said in part:

Though many people in Canada are in favor of opening the door to all immigrants who belong to the white race, others feel that a selective policy should be adopted. In 1897 the former condition prevailed; man power was needed regardless of its source, but in the present day we should stop to consider whether or not the immigrants are becoming part of the new Canadian nation. It is in this connection that I speak of the immigrants who come to us from Iceland, in the Arctic Seas. Unlike some other nationalities who come to Canada, they are part and parcel of Canada, for they are the oldest pioneers of non-British stock, other than the French, who have come to our country.

The North American continent was discovered by Ericson four centuries before Columbus set out. The Icelanders have a particular attachment to Canada, and I shall endeavor to show how they have bought and paid for their citizenship on this continent.

As a result of the news which reached Iceland relative to the opportunity that the new continent offered, three Icelanders left their native homes and came to Wisconsin in 1871. In the following year, 1872, more of them came to the same district, finding work in the factories that paid well. Among this little group, there grew the conception of a new Iceland on the continent.

In 1873, having been side-tracked by a steamship company, through the instrumentality of the Ontario Government some one hundred and sixty-five persons came from Iceland and landed at Quebec. They later settled on the land in Muskoka, but as land was not particularly suited to agriculture, many found employment on the railroad building gangs.

Settled in Kinmount.

In 1874, some three hundred and sixty Icelanders came directly to Ontario, settling near the village of Kinmount, north of Lindsay. Though good wages were paid in this district, employment was intermittent, however, and many became dissatisfied. The same dissatisfaction prevailed in the United States, and a number of Icelanders went pioneering—some to the Maritimes and some to the West—all in search of a district in which to form the new Iceland.

The Canadian Government, anxious to render assistance, set aside a tract of land, fifty miles long and twelve miles wide, and assisted a small army of pioneers to reach Gimli, a village near Winnipeg. But though fishing was good in Lake Winnipeg, and the country quite valuable, the inexperienced settlers suffered great hardships. Altogether some two hundred and fifty went to this new area, from Ontario, and their numbers were augmented by small parties from Wisconsin—all in search of privileges and opportunities for their children.

Grasshopper Plague.

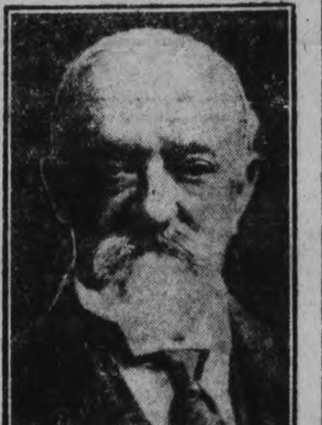
But the summer of 1875 brought the grasshopper plague, and the settlers faced a winter of privation and cold. Shacks were built and between two and three hundred Icelanders were there at the coming of winter. Scarcity of food, poor fishing, and disease caused a panic. One-third of the total number died of scurvy during the winter, but spring brought new hope, and that summer, 1876, some twelve hundred people came direct from Iceland to this district. Winter brought further suffering and hardship, and a smallpox plague took terrible toll.

A general exodus began and was encouraged by the heavy floods in the spring and fall of 1890 to other parts of the continent, but the idea of a new Iceland was never lost, and still exists. At present there are from two-thirds to three-quarters of the thirty or forty thousand Icelanders, settled in Canada.

The speaker went on to tell of how many of them have risen in the professional world, the world of arts and letters. In conclusion he declared that the Icelanders do not forget those descendants who made their present condition possible; they realize that where there is a right there is a duty and have endeavored to discharge their obligations as others have done. Over one thousand of them volunteered during the war, many of whom will never return. The new Iceland has grown and prospered, but the identity of the Icelanders and their traditions is gradually being lost, one-fifth of the total Icelandic population having become Canadian.

The address gave its auditors a sympathetic interest in the aims and aspirations of the newcomers, and at its conclusion, President Tompkins conveyed a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Thorson. The National Anthem followed.

C.P.R. OFFICIAL DIES.



Late Isaac G. Ogden, who died in Montreal on Saturday in his 84th year. He had been in the C.P.R. service 45 years, latterly being vice-president in charge of finance. President Beatty in paying tribute to the late Mr. Ogden gave him credit for establishing the present accounting system. Born in New York, Mr. Ogden first entered railway service in the Chicago and Pacific in 1871. Ten years later he went with the C.P.R.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. And this puzzles Vance when it is found near the strangled body of Margaret Odell. Finggr-prints lead to Skeel's arrest, after Cleaver and Dr. Lindquist have been questioned. Vance indicates he believes Skeel was hiding in the clothes closet when the murder was committed, and witnessed it. Markham, believing in Skeel's guilt, ridicules the theory. Mannix is brought in and questioned.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Markham ignored the question.

"Can you think of no one who might have borne Miss Odell a grudge, or had cause to fear her?"

Mannix was volubly emphatic on the subject of his complete ignorance of any such person; and after a few more questions, which elicited only denials, Markham let him go.

"Not bad at all, Markham old thing—eh, what?" Vance seemed pleased with the conference. "Wonder why he's so coy? Not a nice person, this Mannix. And he's so fearful lest he be informative. Again, I wonder why. He was so careful—oh, so careful."

"He was sufficiently careful, at any rate, not to tell us anything," declared Markham gloomily.

"I shouldn't say that, don't y' know." Vance lay back and smoked placidly. "A ray of light filtered through here and there. He denied he'd been blackmailed—which was obviously untrue—and tried to make us believe that he and the lovely Margaret cooed like turtle-doves at parting.—Tosh! . . . . And then, that mention of Cleaver. That wasn't spontaneous—dear me, no Brother Mannix and spontaneity are as the poles apart. He had a reason for bringing Cleaver in; and I fancy that if you knew what that reason was, you'd feel like flinging roses riotously, and that sort of thing.

"Why Cleaver? That explanation was a bit weak. The orbits of these two paramours cross somewhere. On that point, at least, Mannix inadvertently enlightened us. . . . Moreover, it's plain that he doesn't know our fashionable healer with the satyr ears. But, on the other hand, he's aware of the existence of Mr. Skeel, and would rather like to deny the acquaintance . . . . Plenty of information; but—my word!—what to do with it?"

"I give it up," acknowledged Markham hopelessly.

"I know: it's a sad, sad world," Vance commiserated him. "It's time for lunch, and a fillet of sole Marguery will cheer you no end."

Markham glanced at the clock, and permitted himself to be led to the Lawyers Club.

(Wednesday, September 12; evening)

Vance and I did not return to the district attorney's office after lunch, for Markham had a busy afternoon before him, and nothing further was likely to transpire in connection with the Odell case until Sergeant Heath had completed his investigations of Cleaver and Doctor Lindquiist.

Vance had seats for Giordano's "Madame Sans-Gene," and two o'clock found us at the Metropolitan. Though the performance was excellent, Vance was too distrait to enjoy it; and it was significant that, after the opera, he directed the chauffeur to the Stuyvesant Club.

I knew he had a tea appointment, and that he had planned to motor to Longue Vue for dinner; and the fact that he should have dismissed these social engagements from his mind in order to be with Markham showed how intensely the problem of the murder had absorbed his interest.

It was after six o'clock when Markham came in, looking harassed and tired. No mention of the case was made during dinner, with the exception of Markham's casual remark that Heath had turned in his reports on Cleaver and Doctor Lindquist and Mannix. (It seemed that immediately after lunch, he had telephoned to the sergeant to add Mannix's name to the two others as a subject for inquiry.)

It was not until we had retired to our favorite corner of the lounge-room that the topic of the murder was brought up for discussion.

And that discussion, brief and one-sided, was the beginning of an entirely new line of investigation—a line which, in the end, led to the guilty person.

Markham sank wearily into his chair. He had begun to show the strain of the last two days of fruitless worry. His eyes were a trifle heavy, and there was a grim tenacity in the lines of his mouth. Slowly and deliberately he lighted a cigar, and took several deep inhalations.

"Damn the newspapers!" he grumbled. "Why can't they let the district attorney's office handle its business in its own way? . . . Have you seen the afternoon papers? They're all clamoring for the murderer. You'd think I had him up my sleeve."

"You forget, my dear chap," grinned Vance, "that we are living under the benign and upliftin' reign of Democritus, which confers upon every ignoramus the privilege of promiscuously criticising his betters."

Markham snorted.

"I don't complain about criticism: it's the lurid imagination of these bright young reporters that galls me. They're trying to turn this sordid crime into a spectacular Borgia melodrama, with passion running rampant, and mysterious influences at work, and all the pomp and trappings of a mediaeval romance. . . . You'd think even a schoolboy could see that it was only an ordinary robbery and murder of the kind that's taking place regularly throughout the country."

Vance paused in the act of lighting a cigarette, and his eyebrows lifted. Turning, he regarded Markham with a look of mild incredulity.

"I say! Do you really mean to tell me that your statement for the press was given out in good faith?"

Markham looked up in surprise.

yo"Certainly it was. . . . What do u mean by 'good faith'?"

Vance smiled indolently.

"I rather thought, don't y' know, that your oration to the reporters was a bit of strategy to lull the real culprit into a state of false security, and to give you a clear field for investigation."

Markham contemplated him a moment.

"See here, Vance," he demanded irritably, "what are you driving at?"

"Nothing at all—really, old fellow," the other assured him affably. "I knew that Heath was deadly sincere about his belief in Skeel's guilt, but it never occurred to me, d' ye see, that you yourself actually regarded the crime as one committed by a professional burglar.

"I foolishly thought that you let Skeel go this morning in the hope that he would lead you somehow to the guilty person. I rather imagined you were spoofing the trusting sergeant by pretending to fall in with his silly notion."

"Ah, I see! Still clinging to your weird theory that a brace of villains were present, hiding in separate clothes-closets, or something of the kind." Markham made no attempt to temper his sarcasm. "A sapient idea—so much more intelligent than Heath's!"

"I know it's weird. But it happens not to be any weirder than your theory of a lone yeggman."

"And for what reason, pray," persisted Markham, with considerable warmth, "do you consider the yeggman theory weird?"

"For the simple reason that it was not the crime of a professional thief at all, but the wilfully deceptive act of a particularly clever man who doubtless spent weeks in its preparation."

Markham sank back in his chair and laughed heartily.

"Vance, you have contributed the one ray of sunshine to an otherwise gloomy and depressing case."

Vance bowed with mock humility.

"It gives me great pleasure," was his dulcet rejoinder, "to be able to bring even a wisp of light into so clouded a mental atmosphere."

A brief silence followed. Then Markham asked:

"Is this fascinating and picturesque conclusion of yours regarding the highly intellectual character of the Odell woman's murderer based on your new and original psychological methods of deduction?" There was no mistaking the ridicule in his voice.

"I arrived at it," explained Vance sweetly, "by the same processes of logic I used in determining the guilt of Alvin Benson's murderer."

Markham smiled.

"Touche! . . . Don't think I'm so ungrateful as to belittle the work you did in that case. But this time, I fear, you've permitted your theories to lead you hopelessly astray. The present case is what the police call an open-and-shut affair."

"Particularly shut," amended Vance dryly. "And both you and the police are in the distressin' situation of waiting inactively for your suspected victim to give the game away."

"I'll admit the situation is not all one could desire." Markham spoke morosely. "But even so, I can't see that there's any opportunity in this affair for your recondite psychological methods. The thing's too obvious—that's the trouble. What we need now is evidence, not theories. If it wasn't for the spacious and romantic imaginings of the newspaper men, public interest in the case would already have died out."

"Markham," said Vance quietly, but with unwonted seriousness, "if that's what you really believe, then you may as well drop the case now; for you're foredoomed to failure. You think it's an obvious crime. But let me tell you, it's a subtle crime, if ever there was one. And it's as clever as it is subtle. No common criminal committed it—believe me. It was done by a man of very superior intellect and astoundin' ingenuity."

Vance's assured, matter-of-fact tone had a curiously convincing quality; and Markham, restraining his impulse to scoff, assumed an air of indulgent irony.

"Tell me," he said, "by what cryptic mental process you arrived at so fantastic a conclusion."

"With pleasure." Vance took a few puffs on his cigarette, and lazily watched the smoke curl upward.*

*I sent a proof of the following paragraphs to Vance, and he edited and corrected them; so that, as they now stand, they represent his theories in practically his own words.

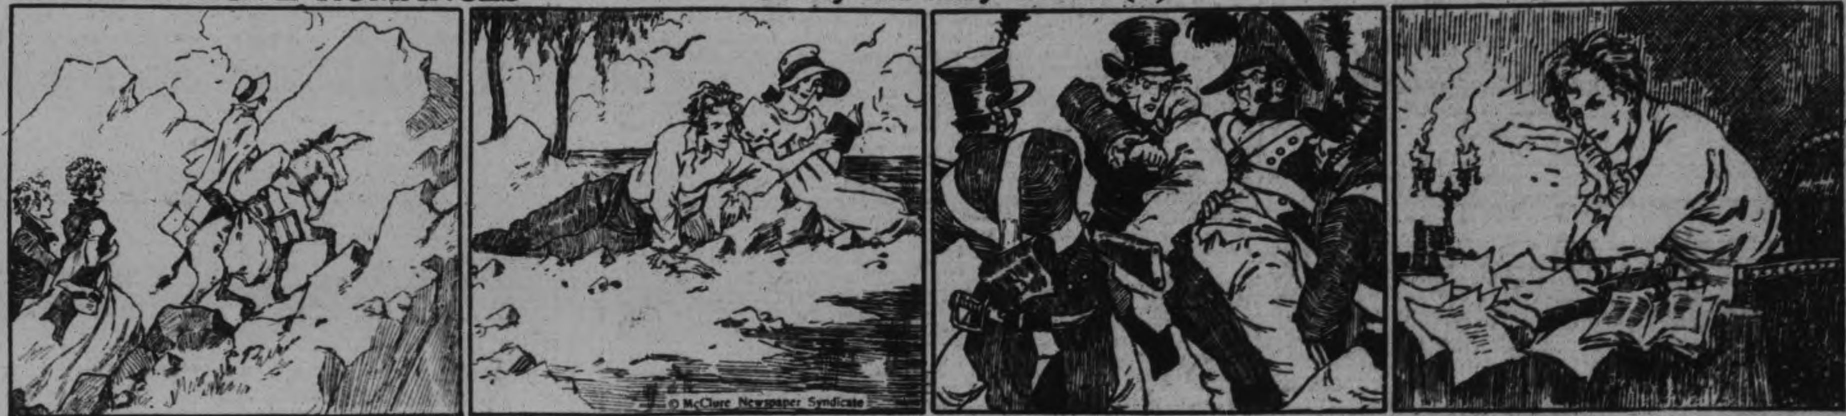
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES

Shelley and Mary Godwin (V)

By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

In Paris Shelley, Mary Godwin and her stepsister, Claire Clairmont, who later loved Lord Byron, obtained money and started to Switzerland. They bought a mule, and Claire rode it, because the rough roads blistered her feet. Mary and Shelley, hand in hand, laughing at life in the summer sunshine, walked happily beside Claire.

But they soon returned to England, and Shelley came into some of his fortune. A couple of years later Harriet killed herself, and Mary and Shelley were married. They were ideally happy, and Shelley settled down to work in earnest. He hated the cold, so they went again to Italy, where they were settled when tragedy came upon them.

Their two-year-old daughter, Claire, became desperately ill. They hurried with her to Venice. Shelley had forgotten the passports necessary to enter the city, but he pushed past the soldiers who tried to stop him. All to no end. For soon the child lay dead in Mary's arms. A few months later their three-year-old son died, too.

Shelley and Mary were prostrated by their sorrow. Shelley's health suffered. But they pulled themselves together. Mary was comforted by the birth of another son. She studied Greek and wrote and cared for her baby. Always she was ready with cheerful spirits for Shelley, who turned with vigorous energy to his work.

NURSING MOTHERS

Breast fed is best fed

NATURAL feeding means so much to a baby's health and happiness. Doctors the world over encourage mothers to breast-feed their children. It is nature's way and artificial feeding can never take its place.

But special and extra nourishment is needed to ensure adequate maternal milk. Take Ovaltine, the delicious tonic food beverage before and during the nursing period.

Ovaltine, prepared from ripe barley malt, fresh eggs and creamy milk, is just the type of concentrated nourishment needed. Easily digested, quickly absorbed, it furnishes a plentiful supply of rich milk in a perfectly natural way. Ask your doctor.

Drink Ovaltine for health—the year 'round. 60c, 90c, $1.50 and special family size, $5.25, at all druggists. It is economical to buy the larger sized tins.

The Dugout

(By J.R.H.)

Park your sidearms outside, but bring in your gas masks. This is the worst yet.

I don't know his name, but he calls himself "First Contingent." Old stuff! His name doesn't matter, anyhow; I've got his number. It's the line he shoots that worries me. Whatdoyouthinkofthis:

"I don't at all appreciate your levity in dealing with such a serious business as the war. It was a terrible time, and many of us have not yet forgotten all we would like to forget about it. Surely it is most harrowing to recall it even in your title—and your language is execrable. If you continue, I shall have to discontinue my subscription."

Stretcher bearers on the double!

Of all the dingbusted nerve, for a guy who pretends to have gone through the second battle of Ypres, yowling about the refined language us gang have been using!

Say, "First Contingent", I need the money bad enough, Currie knows, but but I'll give you the paper free for another letter like that. I'll put it in my safety deposit box and when my grandchildren read it they'll get a delicious thrill thinking what a villain their grand-daddy was.

Your remarks remind me of a wisecrack I heard at the Canadian Legion rooms the other night, where some of the boys were gassing. "I popped into a dugout at Maroc one day", a fellow related, "when a coal box tickled the soles of my feet, and the guy in there said, 'Mac, your name looks familiar; where do you hail from?' I told him 'Canada', and he said, 'I thought I'd seen you before."

Well, red patch, I've seen you before. You held a job with a D.A.C. or something over there, and now you're all swelled up because you can say to us duffers you were "First Contingent." Sure you want to forget. What I want to know is what you are doing in this dump with a bunch of fighting men.

What say gang? Sure- But don't hog it—let me get a boot in too.

CLASSES HAVE OUTING

Young People From Park Street Sunday School Go Tobogganing.

A very enjoyable evening was the outcome of "The Second Milers" Class and "The Gleaners" Class combining to hold a toboggan party on Friday evening last week. After a splendid time at the Prince of Wales Hill, the two classes went to the church, where a bounteous repast was set before them, Mrs. Booth, Mrs. Sedgewick and Mrs. Harton being responsible for the catering. Tea was poured by Mr Maurice Dunkley and Mr. Walter Jeffrey. A vote of thanks was given to the ladies for their services, and then the two classes took part in games, led by Mr. Geoffrey Graham. The evening was brought to a close by joining of hands and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

RATE OF SEVEN DOLLARS LIKELY TO BE ADOPTED

Conference On Alberta Coal Problem Now in Progress at Ottawa.

ASKED $6.50 RATE.

Under New Scheme Parliament Need Not Approve Measure.

OTTAWA, Ont., February 10. — A freight rate in the vicinity of $7.00 a ton for the movement of Alberta coal to the central markets of Ontario is the basis of negotiations which are now in progress between the interior department and the railway systems. President Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was here in connection with the matter yesterday, and it is said to be coming to a head.

Asked $6.50 Rate.

A few days ago an Alberta delegation urged upon the Government a statutory rate of $6.50 per ton, and this demand was supplemented by arguments in the House. Objections have been imposed, however, and obstacles encountered. The railways do not take kindly to a fixed rate, while members from Saskatchewan and Manitoba have made it clear that, if Ontario points are to receive such a rate, they will insist upon a proportionally low rate to points in their territory. There is unlikely to be any statutory fixed rate.

No Legislation Needed.

Instead, what is hoped for is a season movement for a term of years, the railway agreeing voluntarily to a rate of $7.00 or possibly less, and the Dominion Government protecting them from any loss. Any such scheme would require the sanction of the Railway Commission, but not legislation by Parliament. For such an arrangement in the near future the outlook is considered hopeful.

WARSAW CHURCH PROGRESSES IN YEAR

Annual Vestry Meeting Held By Congregations of St. Mark's.

WARSAW, February 10. —The annual vestry meeting of St. Mark's Church, Warsaw, held in the church, was well attended, and much enthusiasm was displayed. Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton, rector, was chairman of the meeting and H. G. E. Choate, vestry clerk.

The report of the people's warden, Albert Cooper, was read, and on motion adopted. This report showed a most satisfactory condition financially. Since the status of this congregation has been raised from that of a mission to an independent parish, much advancement has been made.

Miss Evelyn Hawthorne, secretary-treasurer of the Woman's Guild, read the report of that branch following a very active and successful year's business.

The report of the secretary-treasurer of the cemetery, H. G. E. Choate, was read, discussed, and, on motion, adopted. The report of the caretaker, James Tucker, contained among other items, a complaint that certain persons were doing cemetery work, such as cleaning and mowing lots for pay, thus depriving him of the income from that source. This being an undesirable condition, preventative measures were taken by passing a motion to the effect that no one be allowed to do this work, excepting the caretaking of his own lot.

Improvements continued from last year include a new main gateway and approach and other items to be completed this year. The election of officers was then held, with the following result:

Rector's Warden, H. G. E. Choate; People's Warden, Albert Cooper; Lay delegate to the Synod, Thomas Davis; Messrs. Gordon Cuffe, Carrol Cooper, and Donald Davis are sidesmen.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Mr. Fenton in slight recognition of his services, especially in the visitation of the sick, and to the members of the Guild, the organist, and the choir for their valuable services.

The meeting was adjourned to meet in reference to some other matters, after some church service soon.

IN MEMORIAM

GODDARD.—In loving memory of our dear mother and wife, Mrs. Goddard, who died February 10, 1923.

She did not fail to do her best,
Her heart was true and tender.
She worked hard for those she left;
That's something to remember.
She bade no one a last farewell;
She said good-bye to none.
The heavenly gates were opened wide.
A loving voice said "Come."
Forget her—No, we never will;
Although she's gone, we love her still.
Her memory is as fresh today
As on the day she passed away.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

NO PENSIONS ACT CHANGE THIS SESSION

Prime Minister Replies To Question Regarding Old Age Pensions Act.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Halifax Member Produces Letter in House on United States Potatoes.

OTTAWA, Feb 11. — During the question period in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, W. Irvine (Lab.) asked the government if it was their intention to bring down any amendment to the Old Age Pension Act this session. The prime minister replied that no change was contemplated this session.

F. P. Quinn (Halifax) rose to a question of privilege and sought to read a telegram from Halifax with respect to the purchase of American potatoes for the Hudson Bay expedition last year. He was ruled out of order.

Hon. R. B. Bennet Conservative leader interposed to call Mr. Speaker's attention to the fact that the member for Halifax was speaking to a question of privilege.

Mr. Quinn then told the house of the contents of the telegram to the effect that 450 bushels of American potatoes had been bought by the railway for the Hudson Bay expedition.

This brought the statement from Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of railways, that he was not responsible for the acts of the railway management but so far as his department was concerned no American potatoes had been bought for shipment north.

Precious Metals Act.

OTTAWA Ont., Feb. 11. Canadian Press. — Progress was reported in the Houes yesterday on a bill intoduced by Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, to amend the Gold and Silver Marking Act. Mr. Malcolm explained that the object of the bill was to change the name of the Gold and Silver Marking Act to the Precious Metals Marking Act, so as to include platinum as a precious metal. It is also proposed to give the governor-in-council authority to make regulations covering the quantity and the quality of material that may be used in plated articles and also provided for the trade mark on these goods.

New Amendment

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 11. — A resolution moved by Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of State, passed the House yesterday to amend the Public Printing and Stationery Act in relation to advances authorized and made to the King's Printer for the purchase of materials, to execute orders and requisitions, and payment of wages.

No Information.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11. — Canadian Press. — "I have no information about any possible retirement of Chief Justice McDonald," so stated Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice last night in respect to a report that Chief Justice McDonald intended to retire from the King's Bench Division of the Supreme court of Manitoba.

Mexican Leader Executed Twice

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press)—Ernesto Villa Real, Agrarian leader of the town of Atatlahuca, was executed, given the coup de grace, and lived to tell the tale. Learning of the failure of the first execution, soldiers dragged him from hospital and executed him a second time.

After being given the coup de grace, Villa Real crawled for several miles under a scorching sun to Ozumba. There he related his hair-raising experience and exhibited a bullet hole in his chest and a nasty gash in his forehead. The story of his adventure was duly printed by the papers and disclosed his whereabout to the soldiers. They broke into the hospital, marched Villa Real out of the town, and executed him again.

DR. KARR HERE TILL TUESDAY

Mass Meeting Will Be Held at Legion Hall That Evening.

PUBLIC INVITED.

An increasing demand on the part of Peterborough people to hear the practical addresses of Alexander Karr, who is the educational director of the "Forward Peterborough Movement" caused Secretary Frank Stinson to ask the American City Bureau to allow him to remain in the city at least a portion of next week.

Harry R. McKeen, director of the movement, received a telegram from the management consenting to Mr. Karr's remaining in Peterborough Monday and Tuesday of next week.

President G. A. Gillespie and General Chairman J. J. Turner immediately got busy on the job and planned for a mass meeting of Peterborough citizens to be held at Legion Hall Tuesday evening at 8 o'colck, to which every citizen is invited. There will be no admission fee and no pledges of any kind will be taken.

Dr. Karr will speak on the subject, "The Siamese Twins of Town Building." This is an address that created great interest in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. It is entirely different from any address thus far delivered in the city.

In addition Harry R. McKeen will deliver a short address. His subject will be "Your Community in Revolution." Both of these gentlemen are unusual speakers and deal with matters that come close home to every citizen of Peterborough.

The addresses Tuesday evening are said to be the masterpieces of their group. Both will be local in formation and practical in application.

"We have one purpose in our work," said Mr. McKeen this morning. "Just a presetnation of the assets and opportunities of your own town through study we make and experiences had elsewhere, so that local people can unitedly solve their own problems. We have found a strong Chamber of Commerce to be the logical way to accomplish these things. That's why we are so enthusiastic about our work."

Now You Tell One

The Klever Kleage strode to the rostrum and gazed out over the assembled kluxers.

"Gentlemen," he said as he banged the gavel, "please be sheeted."

HOLLINGER MINE WHERE FIRE RESULTS IN DEATH TO TRAPPED MINERS

Forty-five men were believed to be trapped by a fire which broke out in the old refill stope at the 550 foot level of the Hollinger mine at Timmins Friday morning. Many lost their lives. Spontaneous combustion is thought to have caused the fire. This is a surface view of the big Hollinger mine, which employs 2,000 men, 500 of whom were at work near the scene of the fire.

JACK MINER GIVES ADDRESS ON FISH AND GAME PRESERVATION

Tells Audience It Is Necessary If They Wish To Attract Tourists To This Country.

FILMS SHOWN.

Given Under Auspices of Peterborough County Fish and Game Association.

Jack Miner, bird lover and conversationalist, the man who originated the sanctuary idea for the protecting, feeding and conserving the wild fowl of this continent delivered an inspiring address to an audience in the Grand theatre last night under the auspices of the Peterborough County Fish and Game Protective Association.

"Uncle" Jack as he is known to many bird and game loving citizens on this continent has been coming to Peterborough for many years and his talk last night was as brim full and as interesting as ever on how he, the wild man, became to the water fowl.

Jack Miner was born in the United States but came to Canada with his parents when he was quite young and his father hewed out a homestead in the bush on the shores of Lake Erie. Times were hard and he and his older brother became great pals and hunted through the woods killing the animals and selling them on the ready market. The day came when they went with bands of sportsmen to hunt deer and moose in the more remote districts in Ontario and Quebec until one day his brother was accidentally shot and ever since he has become a friend of the wild fowl and game. When he first started he was laughed at by his neighbors, but today his name has spread far and wide over the continent and thousands of water fowl and birds seek refuge in his sanctuary every year.

Must Preserve Game.

"What is the value of our fish and game and all the wonderful out-of-door privileges that we have in this country?" asked the speaker. "We are millionaires to-day and we are going to be worth five times as much in ten years' time. We must preserve the fish and game. To-day in New Brunswick a bull moose is said to be worth $500, but here in Ontario where 23 years ago there could readily be seen 75 deer, not one now can be found, simply because the price of fur has gone up and men have quit killing the wolves and these are devouring the deer. If you take all the fish out of the waters where will we be and if we intelligent people go out and shoot all the deer what will we do next year? My advise to all hunters and sportsmen is to let the mother go, do not shoot her, for it is in her lies our future wealth."

"Birds are not wild, for any bird that is intelligent enough to fly across the continent and come back again for food and protection is far from being wild, but is looking for that protection and safeguarding that God gave man when he gave dominion over everything."

The speaker drew a word picture of how the water fowl come to his sanctuary and how they make friends with him and return every year in ever increasing numbers.

In the spring of 1912 Jack Miner caught four wild ducks and tagged them. The following spring three returned, the next year only two returned and the third year only one came; the others all were shot. This duck kept coming and raising a brood each year until 1918, and in six years she raised two hatches of [illegible] ducks, two of eight and one of twelve.

"Just think how they increase! The same is true of wild geese; they are not wild, they are intelligent, for I hunted them for 20 years and they outwitted me. I was 7 years trying to tag the geese and by 1905 to 1922 I had tagged 109 and 76 of those tags were sent back to me. The goose is the most godly and princely creature that I have ever become acquainted with."

"How did I manage it? In 1907 I got 7 wild Canadian geese and clipped their wings. In the spring of 1908 the honking of the old gander attracted 11 more, in 1909 there were 32 arrivals, in 1910 there were 400 and in 1911 they came in a flock."

Being a poor man financially, Jack Miner began to worry where the money would come from for the feeding of these large flocks of geese. He was asked to come to Toronto to speak, for his fame had became known, but having a very meagre education he did not want to go. Partly from the urgings of his wife and patly in answer to that desire to look after these, the most beautiful of water fowl, he went to Toronto and delivered his speech and since then he has been speaking all over the continent, for it requires every dollar he makes to buy corn for the geese and other fowl.

Films Shown.

At the close of his address he

W. A. GRIFFITHS APPEALS CASE

Files Notice Contesting Decision of Judge in Dismissing Suit.

ALLEGES ATTACK.

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—W. A. Griffith of Peterborough has filed notice of appeal from the decision of Judge Huycke and a jury dismissing his action for $500 damages against James Breckenridge, for alleged slander in connection with statements made by Breckenridge concerning the non-payement to the County of Peterborough of $1,000. In his notice Mr. Griffith declares the defendant virulently attacked him in court, and that a partisan feeling was induced in the jury; also that the case was not tried until its action could influence a municipal election in which both he and Breckenridge were candidates.

PUBLIC INVITED.

Concluding Lecture of Sales Series Will Be Given on Monday.

Due to St. Alphonsus' Lyceum Hall not being opened in time for Dr. Alexander Karr's lecture to the merchants and sales force on Friday morning, the fourth address of the series will be given on Monday morning at the same place at nine o'clock. At the suggestion of several of the merchants who have been attending the lectures the general public is invited to attend the Monday meeting. Dr. Karr has prepared an outline of the talks he has given. These will be available for distribution to the audience for later study.

EARL HAIG MEMORIAL SERVICE EXPECTED TO CROWD CHURCH

All Ex-Service Men Are Invited To Join in Parade at 2.30.

NO UNIFORMS.

Many Organizations Will Participate—Boy Scouts Form Guard of Honor.

Great interest is being taken in the Earl Haig Memorial Service to be held under Canadian Legion auspices in All Saints' Church tomorrow at three o'clock. All war veterans are invited to take part, and many fraternal organizations will participate.

The parade will muster at the Canadian Legion Hall at Murray street at 2.30 sharp. The exact hour has been set in order to avoid the necessity for those who come early to stand around in what will possibly be cold weather. Those taking part are invited to gather in the Legion Hall, and they will be called when the parade is about to form up.

The order of the parade will be: Standard bearer; Band of the Peterborough Rangers; the Mayor and Council with the City Officials; Canadian Legion and all ex-service men, falling in together; Militia units; other organizations. All except the band will parade in mufti, but all ex-service men are requested to wear their decorations.

The parade will march by Murray street to George; George to Charlotte; Charlotte to Rubidge, and Rubidge to the Church.

Organizations expected to unite in doing honor to the late Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies, are the Orange lodges; I.O.F., Canadian Order of Foresters; Sons of England, and Caledonian Society.

The Service.

Boy Scouts of All Saints' Church, will act as guard of honor at the church, where seating will be reserved for all organizations officially represented in the parade. The complete order of service is printed on pages five and six of to-day's Examiner, and those who intend being present are requested to clip this out for use to-morrow. The lessons will be read by His Honor Judge Huycke and Rev. J. W. Gordon, and the sermon will be preached by Rev. J. D. Paterson. It is by kind invitation of Rev. Mr. Paterson, and the churchwardens, of All Saints' Church, that the service is being held there.

Because of the great interest being taken in this Memorial Service an early attendance at the church is advisable.

DRAMA REPEATED.

St. Peter's School Pupils Again Present Sacred Play.

Last evening in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, "The Shepherdess of Lourdes" was again presented to a large and appreciative audience. The high standard of excellence shown in the first performance was easily maincast. Veronica Scollard, as Louisa, the aged mother of Bernadette, displayed great ability in interpreting a difficult part. The simple, easy manner of Olive O'Connell, as Princess Lucilla quite charmed the audience. The fashionable French ladies, Alice Hayes, Jean Duffus and Marjorie McNulty were also very popular with the audience, and by their sarcastic remarks introduced a touch of humor here and there. In the interludes, the singing of the Schola was exceptionally well received, as was also a violin solo by Joseph Nolan.

By request, this concert is being repeated in the Lyceum on Wednesday evening next, Feb. 15.

Rescuers Resume Work When Train Brings Supplies

Descend Into Hollinger Mine in Attempt to Save Lives of 46 Men Trapped in Big Pit— Check-up Shows 51 Had Been Caught By Blaze.

TRAIN BEARING RELIEF MATERIAL MAKES RECORD RUN TO TIMMINS

Department of Health Will Send Doctors and Nurses if Necessary—Report That 44 Bodies Had Been Recovered Is Denied.

TIMMINS, February 11 (Canadian Press). — Seven miners were taken alive from the gas-filled levels of the Hollinger Gold Mine to-day, and hopes have been aroused that the remaining workers, about 40 in number, who had been below ground since yesterday morning, may be safe. Mine rescue crews organized after a special train, carrying fire fighting and gas equipment, arrived here from Toronto after a record run for the route, have been exploring the mine, and other rescues may be effected.

The first rescue party properly equipped to fight the poisonous fumes which threaten 46 entrapped miners in the Hollinger Mine went down into the workings to-day after the arrival of the relief train from Toronto with gas masks and rescue experts. Shortly before noon mine officials and relatives and friends of the trapped men were anxiously awaiting word from the rescue party.

W. L. Hogarth, office manager of the mine, stated that 51 had been entrapped and five bodies had been recovered, leaving 46 still in the mine at that time. This was arrived at after a careful check-up, he stated.

Conflicting reports concerning the number of dead aroused uncertainty. While Mr. Hogarth stated that only two, Martin Stevens and Ira Graham, had been identified, and five bodies altogether had been recovered, other information was that six bodies had been recovered and that besides Stevens and Graham, the dead included C. Bastren, J. Aubrey, M. Gardiz and William Lindsay, of Timmins.

Train Makes Record.

Breaking all speed records from Toronto on route, the first of the two relief trains reached here at 10.10 a.m. to-day, bearing rescue equipment and experts to battle the fumes.

The distance from Toronto to Timmins is 452 miles. The train left Toronto shortly after eight p.m. yesterday. Immediately the train arrived its eagerly awaited consignment of gas masks and other equipment was speedily unloaded and mine officials and rescue experts made preparations immediately for making new efforts to reach the entrapped men. The rescue work had been stopped since nine o'clock last night, fumes from the fire proving too much for the eager but inadequately equipped workers.

The arrival of experts, who included Lieut. Moody of the Toronto fire department, and others skilled in the use of gas fighting apparatus, gave new hope to the anxious relatives and friends of the entrapped miners.

Little Hope Held.

John Knox, assistant general manager of the Hollinger Mine, is reported to have stated just before the relief equipment arrived that "it is difficult to predict just what our success will be, but personally I can hold out little hope for the men who are still in the mine."

The latest check-up, he stated, showed that there are five known dead, two bodies having been recovered and three others having been seen and identified at the five hundred foot level. "As far as we know there are 46 men still in the mine, probably divided evenly between the 550 and 675 foot levels." The chief difficulty, he pointed out, would be to locate the men in the huge underground workings.

Rumors Denied.

TORONTO, Feb. 11. — Thomas Gibson, deputy minister of mines, to-day at noon absolutely denied the report emanating from a brokerage office here, that 44 bodies had been taken from the Hollinger mine.

After communicating with officials of the mine Mr. Gibson said "There's nothing in that rumor."

Men Driven Back.

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 11. — Canadian Press. — Only scattered attempts had been made to penetrate the fume filled workings of the Hollinger mine before the special relief train arrived at 10 a.m. from Toronto with rescue experts and equipment.

Before its arrival parties of four men at a time made different attempts to descend but in all cases were driven back without getting far.

The locations where the trapped miners had been working were known to the officials but whether or not the miners had returned to their posts or had retreated to the far workings of the huge mine was not known, the dense pall of smoke preventing any attempts to sight them.

Air was blown into the mine and was circulating through the

Mrs. Madge Hunter Parker Will Sing in Trinity Church To-morrow.

Members of the Women's Music Club and others who heard Mrs. Madge Hunter Parker of Toronto give a number of songs at a recent meeting of the club, will be glad to take advantage of the opportunity afforded to hear her at Trinity church tomorrow, where she sings at both services. RESCUE WORKERS FORCED TO ABANDON ALL ATTEMPTS TO REACH ENTOMBED MINERS

Morning Reports From Scene of Disaster Were To Effect That It Was Feared All Imprisoned Men Were Dead From Carbon Monoxide Fumes.

MANY WORKERS SCRAMBLE TO SAFETY WHEN ALARM SOUNDS FIRST WARNING

Rescue Gangs Prepared To Enter Shaft As Soon As Gas Masks Arrive—Relatives Wait Anxiously at Head of Pit For News.

SUDBURY, Ont., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Little hope remains that 47 men trapped by a fire which broke out yesterday morning on the 500-foot level of the Hollinger Gold Mine at Timmins will be rescued alive. Word received by The Sudbury Star at six o'clock last evening in long distance communication with Timmins was to the effect that it was feared all off the imprisoned miners were dead. So strong were the carbon monoxide fumes which literally saturated the entire workings of the mine that a canary which was lowered in a cage lived for only two minutes.

Rescue work was abandoned at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as the most valiant attempts to reach the men had proved futile. There is only one first aid car on the continent, it is stated, which is sufficiently equipped to cope with the circumstances that yesterday claimed the lives of 47 men, and that has been in service at the mines of Pennsylvania. It is being rushed from Pittsburgh, and is scheduled to reach Timmins by noon today.

Risks Life

An hour before the frantic rescuers were ordered to discontinue the search, Charles Williams, mine superintendent, at the Hollinger, almost lost his life in a heroic attempt to locate the victims. With a party of men, he fought the stifling fumes as far as the 300 foot level, only 200 feet above the workings where the flames were eating into the treacherous mass of refuse, from which there issued the poisonous gases. At 300 feet it was considered unsafe to proceed, but courting the same fate as had befallen his workmen, Williams went alone to the 400-foot level He was overcome when they brought him to the surface and grave fears at first were entertained as to his recovery, but later he regained consciousness.

As the workings of the McIntyre mine break into those of the Hollinger at the 400 foot level, all employees at the McIntyre have been ordered to the surface and operations have been suspended.

While officially the origin of the fire is said to be unknown, it is understood that the blaze originated among rubbish on the 500 foot level. Two bodies have been recovered and brought to the surface.

Many Escape.

It was shortly before noon when evidence of smoke and gas was detected in the upper levels of the mine, and when an investigation disclosed fire smouldering in a refilled stope at the 550 foot level, men in the vicinity of the smouldering fire were hurried to the cage at No. 11 shaft and made their exit to the surface. Crews working at lower levels of this part of the mine were warned as quickly as possible but in some instances the warning was too late to permit easy exit. There were several hundred men working in the mine on the day shift. The gas and smoke attained such density that the regulation gas masks were not adequate to permit search parties to explore all the workings before the rescuers weer driven out. The missing men are believed to be trapped at the farther end of the workings.

Before the rescue work was stopped by the dense smoke many of the workers were brought up in the cage. There were heartrending scenes at the head of the shaft, when wives, sweethearts and children saw loved ones emerging in safety from the bowels of the earth into which they had gazed for hours as into a tomb. Relatives of the men who are still in the mine were last night haunting the shaft heads in the glare of the floodlights in earnest yearning for news of their friends .

Rescuers Ready

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—With sunrise and the expected arrival of additional gas masks, oxygen tanks, and other rescue equipment, gangs of men are preparing to make another attempt to bring out 47 men trapped yesterday by fire in workings of the Hollinger gold mine. Six bodies have been recovered, two of which were identified yesterday as Martin Stevens and Ira Graham, shift bosses.

Many relatives and friends remained around the workings all night awaiting news of their missing men and were still there on their heart-rending vigil this morning.

Company officials have not given up hope that the men in the mine are alive, or at least some of them. The smoke from the shaft has decreased but the stopes are still permeated with poisonous gases.

Mine Car Coming

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—The United States Bureau of Mines car arrived here today en route to the burning Hollinger gold mine at Timmins, Ont., where 47 men are believed trapped in the diggings. The personnel and equipment will be used in rescue work.

BIG WATCH DOG FOR FOX RANCH

J. L. Byam Prepares For Possible Visits From Fox Thieves.

PELT PRICES HIGHER.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11.—J. L. Byam had shipped to him from Toronto this week a watch dog, guaranteed to live up to requirements as genuine protection at the "Midnight" fox ranch, recent robberies at other ranches in the province, as reported in the daily press, making this precaution both wise and necessary.

"Wolfe" is a big animal that lopes along like his namesake, giving practical evidence of the fact that he was sired by a dog half husky and half wolf, the mother having been a police dog.

Callers arriving at the Byam homestead in the day time need have no fear because of a cross dog on the premises, as there will be proper protection for them at all hours, the idea being to have sufficient guard against possible unlawful maruaders at night.

Five pairs of foxes are being wintered this season at the "Midnight" ranch to be used for breeding purposes, and these are apparently in splendid condition. In the fall there were twenty-one foxes but a number were pelted with excellent results. Prices were improved during the past season, and Mr. Byam found the pelts of considerably better quality than any of the four pelted the previous year. The amount realized from wath he listed as the poorest was above the sum received for the one that topped the rest in 1926.

Lost Passenger Airplane Lands Safely After Three Hour Battle With Elements

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press). — After a nerve-wracking three-hour fight with the elements, a Stinson-Detroiter six-passenger airplane, piloted by Eddie Stinson and carrying five passengers including Miss Ruth Elder, trans-Atlantic aviatrix, landed on a farm one mile North of here early last night after finding it impossible to land at Detroit, the plane's destination. The plane made a safe landing, and no one was hurt.

Eddie Stinson, famous Detroit aviator, was piloting the plane which had gone to Chicago yesterday morning from Detroit with a party of Detroit men and women to take Miss Elder back to Detroit.

After a record flight of one hour and forty minutes on the trip back to Detroit, Stinson found it impossible to land at the Detroit flying field because of a heavy fog bank and because ice was rapidly forming on the wings of the plane, the pilot said, at a hotel here last night.

Driving his plane up into the air again in an effort to find a rift in the clouds and fog, Stinson said, he battled for several hours in an effort to keep the plane in the air while attempting to find a landing place. Stinson finally landed his plane north of here, many miles south of Detroit, where it will be left until morning, when the trip to Detroit will be resumed.

TEN KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Unit of Stills in Refining Plant of Everett Oil Company Explodes.

MANY INJURED.

EVERETT, Mass., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—With a concussion that rocked this city and was felt for many miles beyond, a unit of ten large stills in the refining plant of the Beacon Oil Company here exploded late yesterday, causing heavy loss of life. Early last night the known dead numbered ten, but it was believed that other bodies lay covered in the red-hot ruins of the still section. At least fifty were injured, many seriously.

Eight charred bodies had been taken to an Everett undertaking establishment, and another was in sight beneath the caved-in wall of one of the stills. Vite Raneso of Everett, one of thirty injured taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, died there of burns. Some of the bodies recovered were so charred that police officials said their identity might never become known until a check-up of missing employees had been made.

The plant of the oil company occupies a tract of about 50 acres on the bank of the Mystic River in East Everett, opposite Charlestown. The stills affected form one unit in a total of 25 in the plant. President R. B. Kahl of the company said that the explosion probably was caused by the failure of a low pressure still. In the refining process, the crude oil is first carried through coils and vaporized at low pressure. The gases are then cooled and re-distilled at higher pressure. Kahl said he did not think any high pressure still had let go.

Shatters Windows.

It was shortly after three o'clock that the explosion came, shaking Everett and the Charlestown section of Boston, and shattering windows for a wide area about the plant. The stills blew up singly or in pairs. Flames shot up at a height of 80 feet above the 100-foot structure, and a pall of dense smoke hung over the plant, hampering the work of rescue. Ambulances and fire apparatus were sent from Boston, Cheslea, Malden, Revere and other nearby points.

About 300 persons were employed in the entire plant, of whom 150 were in the section chiefly affected by the explosion. Most of those killed were at work about the stills, but in the machine shop nearby four men lost their lives. That building and the boilermakers' shop adjoining suffered severely from the explosion and fire. When the fire was brought under control about two hours after the first shock, six of the stills had fallen and the other four were badly damaged. President Kahl set the property loss at $75,000.

Woman Supposed to Be Russian Princess Guest At Heavily Guarded Long Island Home

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—A frail, 26-year-old woman, whom many claim to be the Grand Duchess Anastasia, youngest daughter of the slain Czar Nicholas Second of Russia, was resting under a heavy guard today at the Long Island estate of Mrs. Auguste Richard.

Whisked away in a closed automobile from the liner Berengaria, upon which she arrived from Europe, her whereabouts remained a mystery for many hours. Later, it was learned she had been taken to the Richards home, where it was said she would remain until the return to this country of Mrs. William Leeds, former Princes Xenia of Russia, who invited her to this country. The Richards estate, which is a large one, was heavily surrounded last night by guards, who refused to permit anyone to enter.

Chips & Shavings

Chips & Shavings
FROM THE WORKSHOP OF JOHN PLANE

JOHN PLANE WAS TELLING ME that he had just heard from our mutual friend, Will Houghton, about an interesting church situation. The church would be better left nameless for safety's sake. It might be located in any town or city throughout Canada. This church had a nice building and a nice minister who preached nice sermons to nice people. The preacher was considered broadminded, which is only another way of saying he was indefinite. Even the wisest members had not been able to discover just what he did believe. Everything was done quietly and in a dignified manner. In fact, the services were so peaceful that a few of the more substantial members—the pillars of the church—would catch a few winks of sleep. That church didn't need pillars half as badly as it needed pillows.

Hardworked or Sickly.

Some of the members were too hardworked, and others too sickly, to attend many of the services of the church. However, they all managed to rally where there was a supper or a strawberry festival. This church was famous for its strawberry festivals.

If you looked into the church on Monday night you might find a supper or festival with several hundred members in attendance. Come back on Wednesday night and as you entered the door, if you were very late, you might hear a dozen voices singing the opening hymn, "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

The Monday night entertainment began at seven o'clock and ran until ten. The Wednesday night prayer meeting began a teight, or was supposed to, and walked until nine.

The End Came.

After some years of this sort of thing the church found itself very deeply in debt and very much split up into societies for the raising of funds. The end came. Money was greatly needed. A chicken supper was the plan for getting it. All the societies joined in the effort, each watching the other to be sure it did its share and didn't do more than its share. In the midst of the celebration the discovery was made that Mrs. So-and-So had too much to say, and the thing end in a quarrel that meant the death of the church—or rather its burial, as it had died of sleeping sickness some time before. All this church had really needed was some sort of a funeral service. It would have been a pity to have had any subscription for a tombstone. No such memorial was needed. Its memory ought to be allowed to perish from the face of the earth. If it is thought of at all it ought to be with pity and shame!

Mostly True.

"Now," says honest John, "what do you think of that? Does that picture seem overdrawn to you? You have knocked about he world quite a bit, and you must have seen many different kinds of churches; have you ever met one quite like the one our good friend, Will Houghton, describes?"

To this line of questioning I said that I was quite sure that when some good folks had read what he had been telling me, they would, in all probability, lay it aside with disgust and brand it as impossible, exaggerated and hypercritical. Yet I believe the story is mostly true. And from my own experience, I know that the point of it is absolutely true.

Suppers and Supplications.

Paid suppers, strawberry festivals and other such devices for raising money to help the church militant in its fight against the world, the flesh, and the devil, are destructive to the spirituality of a church. You are yet to see or even hear of a successful supper one night followed by a successful prayer meeting the next night.

As a financial plan it is unscriptural. I cannot bring myself to believe that God thanks us for the money put into His work from such a source. Only the free-will offerings of the people of God will be used by God.

Pies or Tithes?

In no part of the word of God have I been able to find it said, "Bring ye all the pies into the storehouse." But I have it clearly commanded that we are to bring all the tithes into God's storehouse. It would seem that about the last thing the average church seems to be concerned with is to know the mind of God regarding the way in which the church's affairs should be conducted. Suggest such a course and see what sort of looks you'll get from the high and mighty within the fold. In all likelihood they'll put you down as being a crank and a fanatic!

The cooking squad has taken the place of the praying band. The early church prayed in the upper room; the twentieth century church cooks for and eats in the supper room. Surely no one will deny that in too many instances the supper room has taken the place of the upper room.

Full Stomachs.

Having expressed myself thus freely, I asked John Plane what his own thoughts were on the matter. I reminded him that he read a lot; that I had reason to know that he kept his eyes open as he moved about, and that there were times when he wasn't afraid to express himself freely.

"Well," he said, "I am sorry to see that in many churches, play has taken the place of prayer, and feasting the place of fasting. There are more full stomachs than there are bended knees and broken hearts. There is more fire in the range in the kitchen than there is in the pulpit. When you build a fire in the kitchen, it often, if not altogether, puts out the fire in the pulpit. Nothing seems to chill the fervor of the spiritual life more quickly than ice cream.

Detained by God.

"The early Christians were not cooking in the supper room the day the Holy Ghost came, they were praying in the upper room; they were not waiting on tables, they were waiting on God; they were not waiting for the fire from the stove, but for the fire from above.

"They were detained by the command of God, and not entertained by the cunning of men. They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, not stuffed with a stew or a roast.

"I am a plain man, I know! But my sort are in the majority in the world and in the church, and we are just about sick to death of all these foolish, carnal ways of trying to run an institution that can only be successfully run along spiritual lines.

"O, I would like the cooking squad put out; less gravy and more grace; less soup and more salvation; less ham and sham and more heaven; less pie and more piety; less use for the cook and more use for the Old Book. Put out the fire in the kitchen and build it on the altar

"More love and more life; fewer dinners and get after sinners. Let us have a church full of waiters on God, a church full of servers, serving God and waiting for His Son from heaven."

As I left the workshop of my good friend I felt that he had given me something to think about. And I went my way wondering if there was any good way by which I might press it home to the hearts and consciences of my own people.

—Allan Fairbairn.

TELL US A STORY

A quaint legend tells how, some years after the event, St. Thomas was again troubled with doubts as to our Lord's resurrection. He sought the apostles, and began to pour his troubles into their ears. But first one and then another looked at him in astonishment, and told Thomas that he was sorry for him, but really he had so much to do he had no time to listen to his tale. Then he was fain to impart his woes to some devout women. But they, as busy as Dorcas, soon made him understand that they had no leisure for such thoughts as these. At last it dawned upon him that perhaps it was because they were so busy that they were free from his torturing doubts. He took the hint; he went to Parthia, occupied himself in teaching the Gospel, and was never troubled with doubts any more.

A HARVEST FESTIVAL! So at least it appears to be though there is neither Church nor Temple visible; but thtre are crowds of worshippers, thousands of them, and there is one who leads them in the sacred rites with his officiating clergy around him. Church and State are there represented, for it is manifest that the princely man who stands in a prominent place is a political leader, with royal blood in his veins. I said it was a harvest festival, that is evident from the offerings of corn and grapes and such like fruits of the earth. An insense thankfulness appears to pervade this great throng, but with it there is another feeling, it is apprehension of nervous fear that makes one and another of that crowd of people, standing as they are upon a hill top, to glance around, now across the valley, now towards the other hills about them? There seems to be no real ground for fear, no enemies appear, and the joyous service has no interruption.

The key to the previous Pen picture of Bible History is to be found in Judges 20:38-48.

MORALITY

ALL things in Nature tend to excess. She is the exuberant producer, leaving to us the function to prune wisely, but not to extirpate or to stunt. That is morality.

A Healthy Interest In Everything

HAVE you ever noticed that the greatest writers were equal to doing many things besides putting little black scratches on paper? They were the people most alive to their time. That, no doubt, is one reason why they are so much alive today. They were so full of life that they had to express it for others. They were people who, like the author of "Don Quixote," could do fighting as well as writing. Being healthy, they took a healthy interest in everything and everybody in town and country, in the common things of life as well as the uncommon. Nothing is really common to the eye of genius.

I think we are well within the truth when we say that no one could have mistaken either Shakespeare or Sir Walter Scott for a mollycoddle. They were both intensely alive. They were both the finest company in the world. They were never superior persons. At any rate they never made anybody feel that they were superior, and that is more than can be said for some very ordinary people we have met in our travels.

A clever daughter of Scott's said of something that she could not abide it—it was vulgar!

"My love," said her father, "you speak like a very young lady. Do you know, after all, the meaning of this word vulgar? 'Tis only common. Nothing that is common, except wickedness, can deserve to be spoken of in a tone of contempt; and when you have lived to my years, you will be disposed to agree with me in thanking God that nothing really worth having or caring about in this world is uncommon."

Shakespeare and Scott, both geniuses, saw good in everything; and they did not keep their best talk and best manners for literary people. In their wonderful way they missed nothing. They heard a chance remark which most people would forget, and they made it into something beautiful for the everlasting joy of the world.

Whether we are guilty of putting little black scratches on paper or not, the trouble with many of us is that we have not sense enough to be natural. We are superficially artificial almost to the point of being hypocritical. We have eyes, but with all our learning we have not learned how to use them. Although some of us have lived where we have seen cows day after day, we might not be able to tell, if we were asked, whether the cow's horns are before or behind its ears. We hear only to forget. While it is a good thing to cultivate a blind eye and a deaf ear, it is foolish to carry the cultivation too far.

After-Dinner Variety

HOW dreadful and dismaying is the average after-dinner speech! I have heard several distinguished and brilliant men make such exhibitions of themselves in these speeches that I can never associate their names with success of any kind. This is generally due to the complete lack of taking pains.

Around today,
Fill the space with loving work
And therein stay.
Look not through the sheltering bars
Upon tomorrow,
God will help thee bear what comes

A Common Failing

WE are all inclinde to interfere too much in other people's business and to discuss in a censorious spirit their methods of conducting it. We sort out people with such righteous assurance and label them with such cynical certainty. Their accidental failures, their sorry mishaps, their sordid disasters, their pathetic weaknesses, their stumbling frailties—nothing escapes us; we judge, belittle and condemn. We indulge in gossip and conjecture, in plausible insinuations and easy assumptions. The careless, flippant levity with which we judge one another is enough to bruise the very heart of Jesus, Who understood humanity so perfectly and always saw the good in everybody.

—Frederick A. Atkins.

Hope For All

IT must be remembered that the man who can write one good sermon can write a thousand, and that the man who can write one good novel can generally write at least a dozen.

—W. Robertson Nicoll.

Church's Business

WHEN the church awakes to the fact that its mission is that of saving men, it is staggered by the stupendousness of the task on its hands. "Whom shall we save?" it asks, and the answer comes back, "The lost, for it is this class alone that Jesus came to reach." We are not likely to disagree upon this point. Our difficulty comes further on when we attempt to decide who the lost are. Yet, if we accept the plain teaching of the Word of God there should be little difficulty! The Bible tells us that "There is no righteous, no, not one; for all have sinned."

It is in one place as Jesus had said: "Be good bankers until I come."

This yellow stuff we call riches they use for paving stones up in the Homeland. Would that we might get it under our feet down here instead of being ruled by it.

A mind that is charmed by false oppearances refuses better things.—Horace.

UNNECESSARY BY-ELECTIONS.

Sam W. Jacobs, one of the Montreal members of the House of Commons, has again introduced his bill to make it unnecessary for a member of the House receiving a Cabinet appointment to contest a by-election.

This proposal is reasonable, and should be favorably considered by the House of Commons.

The present law, requiring a by-election in all such cases, was framed to meet conditions that do not exist today.

The danger against which it was intended as a safeguard no longer threatens the interests of the people, and the change advocated by Mr. Jacobs is one that for the sake of avoiding needless expense, delay and inconvenience might safely and profitably be made.

There is no real necessity in the case of elected members of the House who have been promoted to the Cabinet for a second endorsation at the hands of their constituents, and it would be a decided improvement over the present practice if members were elected on the understanding that they, without further appeal for the confidence of their constituents, may at any time be singled out for ministerial honors.

Mr. Jacobs is merely trying to get rid of some red tape, and should have enough support to enable him to succeed in his effort.

BUYING FROM UNCLE SAM.

Figures just issued in regard to Canada's trade in 1927 should provide thoughtful citizens of this country with something over which to ponder.

The statistics show us to be a customer of Uncle Sam's to an extent that, while it may indicate the prosperity of Canada and demonstrate the buying power of Canadian citizens, nevertheless prompts the question of how many of these purchases consisted of articles that are manufactured or could be manufactured in this country, and of how much better off we would have been in the long run had the money involved in such purchases been kept at home and thus provided employment for Canadian workers.

It is surprising to find that last year we spent $70 in the United States for every man, woman and child in Canada.

We not only spent a hundred million more there last year than in 1926, and nearly three hundred and thirty-three million more than the United States bought for us, but we actually bought more than twice as much goods from the United States as we did from the whole of the British Empire.

If we could eliminate, say, only fifty per cent. of the United States purchases that could be manufactured in this country, there would be little difficulty in securing the increased population that most people believe is necessary for the solution of Canada's problems.

THE COMING OF THE EATON COMPANY.

In its message of welcome to the T. Eaton Company, the management of the local branch of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited, has made a gracious gesture of friendliness to the new arrivals in Peterborough's business world.

The spirit displayed in this greeting with its hope for co-operation "directed to serving faithfully the public of Peterborough," is what was to be expected of the C.D.S.L. management.

The coming of the Eaton Company to this city is an event of outstanding importance and significance.

Undoubtedly the decision of the company to open a department store here is as emphatic an endorsation of Peterborough as a city of splendid business possibilities as could be given.

It may be taken for granted that the decision was not arrived at without a shrewd and careful sizing up of this city as a business and trading centre, and the fact that Peterborough has been chosen as a site for a Teco Store will stamp this community in the eyes of the commercial world as a live and progressive city.

The new enterprise added to our already large list of splendid stores will unquestionably have the effect of extending and widening our trading area, bring many more potential customers to Peterborough and pave the way for all our stores to make new customer contacts that will add to the general prosperity.

PLAYING THE GAME FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Peterborough needs this—Peterborough County needs that—Ontario needs the other thing. So runs the comment of the average man.

Peterborough, Peterborough County and Ontario have everything to make it the most attractive place for business in the nation. This cannot be done by mere wishing.

The outstanding need right now in Peterborough, Peterborough County and the Province is for a group of people to think in terms of the city, county and Province rather than their own selfishnesses, prejudices or preferences.

Individual and personal business problems there are, and they are serious, but they will only be solved as these larger issues are met.

Economically, Peterborough, Peterborough County and Ontario are still in process of development. Much has been done. The surface has not been scratched. Some mistakes, costly ones, too, have been made, but that is past.

The community of Peterborough does not fully realize the significance of its vast and varied resources. To cash in on them is going to take team-work. The team is more important than any individual in the team. The team must pull as a team to move the load. So must the town, county and Province. For selfish reasons the team called the community must function. The community has everything necessary for its own development except a consistent, persistent,, sustained teamwork policy through organized effort. Everybody wants this, but too few are willing to pull their share of the load.

The Chamber of Commerce is adopting a practical development policy—not for a week or year, but a permanent one. The community must back it, finance it and stick to it—with emphasis on the stick-to-it part.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

In January, the Workmen's Compensation Board awarded $569,775.50 in benefits, this being made up of $478,330.10 in payments for compensation and $91,445.40 for medical aid. These figures are higher than for January, 1927, when a total of $538,374.81 was awarded, which included $76,441.29 for medical aid. The accidents reported last month number 5,056, of which 58 were fatal. The figures for December, 1927, were 5,655 accidents, including 47 fatalities, and the reports in January, 1927, 5,293, including 29 fatal cases. The total number of fatalities reported in the past six months is 266, which is considerably above the average for any six-month period since 1926.

Commenting on these figures, R. B. Morley, General Manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, tells of several accidents that have recently been investigated by the field force of the Associations.

One of these involved the loss of the left hand of a seventeen-year-old operator, when his sleeve was caught in a revolving cylinder in a textile mill.

Mr. Morley states that in certain types of industry, close attention must be paid to the type of clothes worn.

Many accidents would be prevented if operators wore tight-fitting clothes and rolled the sleeves.

Another serious accident was in a laundry when the operator failed to replace the guard on the extractor before starting the machine, this resulting in a right arm being broken in four places.

A third preventable accident occurred at a plant when the ladder, on which the janitor was working, broke. This accident had serious results and is another instance of the necessity for reasonable inspection of all equipment being used.

A fatality involving a machinist's helper was caused by a large motor truck crushing the helper between casting and the rear of the truck.

Too many serious accidents have happened within the last several months and, according to the investigations made by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, many of these would have been prevented by the exercise of a little more care and caution.

INVESTIGATING SHAKESPEARE.

The transcendent greatness of Shakespeare is manifest not only in his works, but in what German scholars have not inaptly termed his "afterlife"—that strange force which [illegible] universal study of the man and his writings, and evokes interminable criticism and comment. To the incomparable legacy bequeathed to mankind by the Bard of Avon in his plays and sonnets, has to be added a literature, of vast and ever-growing dimensions, revolving unceasingly round his name and deriving inspiration from his genius.

The eternal quest for knowledge concerning the Elizabethan dramatist is not confined to research relating to his life and personality. The industry of his biographers has been remarkable. Birth and marriage registers, legal processes and writs, epitaphs and bequests, genealogies and family histories, old rental records and real estate transactions in London and Stratford, and every other available source of information likely to throw light on Shakespeare the man, have been ransacked and examined. Yet, as Bagehot pointed out, "no letter of his writing, no record of his conversation, no character of him drawn with any fulness by a contemporary," have been discovered by the antiquaries who, for the past two centuries, have engaged in the endeavor to reconstruct his life and character.

Of even vaster proportions than the archaeology piled up by the biographers of Shakespeare is the mass of critical dissertation heaped upon his writings as the result of study world-wide in its extent, and all-embracing in its range. The text of the plays, the question of authorship and authenticity, the sources of inspiration, the order of production, the identification of characters, together with almost every other conceivable phase of Shakespeare's art and influence, have been the subjects of scholarly investigation and comment without end. Not long ago a critic counted in the index of publications for one year no fewer than 600 items relating to Shakespeare.

To what extent all this erudition has been helpful to the ordinary reader's conception and appreciation of Shakespeare is a matter upon which the commentators themselves are not agreed. It was the view of that brilliant expositor, the late Sir Walter Raleigh, that in the search for the literary sources of the greatest of English poets, "the slow-footed and painstaking pursuit of him by the critics through ways that he trod so carelessly and lightly would furnish a happy theme for his own wit and irony;" and as for solving the difficulties of the Shakespearean text and canon, "the results attained by the most laborious scholars," he declared, "command no general assent, and depend, for the most part, on a chain of ingenious hypotheses."

Perhaps it is this lack of general assent on the part of the commentators that has led to the suggestion in England of an investigation of Shakespeare by a committee of experts. The precise nature of the proposed inquiry is not clearly discernible from the despatch which announces the emphatic refusal of George Bernard Shaw to act on the committee. If, as is indicated, the purpose is to determine the authorship of Shakespeare's plays by an "examination of evidence connecting the playwright with dramas bearing his name," the sarcastic comment of G. B. S., in which he disclaimed all pretensions to serve as a commissioner in lunacy, was quite in order. Perhaps he would have felt more favorably disposed if the proposal had been to appoint a commission to inquire into the sanity of those who support the Baconian theory.

But, apart from the question of authorship, there are problems connected with Shakespeare which do call for synthetic study and authoritative examination; and an investigation of these by a body of experts, capable of bringing some order out of the chaos of dissertation accumulated during the past two centuries, would be at least an interesting experiment. Whether Shaw could be relied upon to sit in judgment upon the dramatist, whom he evidently regards as his one and only rival is another story.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It can at least be said of the speeches of Henr Bourassa and Dr. J. W. Edwards that they are never dull.

Hon. Mr. Robb estimates it will take $373,796,856 to finance Canada's business for the next fiscal year. The tax burden is not going to be light, no matter what reductions Mr. Robb may introduce in his Budget.

The debate on the Address at Ottawa has collapsed, this time fortunately before the staff of Hansard did the same thing.

The proposed appointment of a Provincial weed supervisor has nothing, we are assured, to do with cigars.

"Film Fun" has been barred from Canada, thus taking away a certain amount of picturesqueness from the appearance of the news-stands.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, February 11. — With the light run of cattle this week, the market has regained its feet, after being in a general price decline for a week or more. Trade opened a little slowly in Monday's market of this, week, but with the light offering, it was felt that there was a halt to the decline and prices for the day held good and steady.

In Tuesday's market there was a distinctly better tone, and prices for top butcher cattle made a slight advance which was well maintained for the balance of the week. Offerings were still light for the week-end and a good clean-up was effected at steady prices all round. If the market next week is not rushed with too heavy a load of green and unfinished steers, prices should hold steady to firm at present levels.

Latest quotations are:

Choice heavy steers from $10.00 to $10.75, with a few fancy at $11.25. Choice light steers, $9.50 to $10.50; choice butcher heifers, $9.50 to $10.25; good steers and heifers, $9.00 to $9.75. MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—There was some demand from exporters for Manitoba No. 4 wheat here yesterday and sales were reported at 15½c per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Buffalo. The local market for Argentine corn was stronger and prices scored another advance of 1c per bushel under a good steady demand for car lots from country buyers and sales were made at $1.06 per bushel, ex-store. A moderate trade was done in oats but prices were unchanged.

There were no new developments in the local flour situation yesterday. The volume of new business was small and prices were unchanged. The movement of winter wheat flour continues slow and the market was quiet. The undertone was steady. The demand for white corn flour was limited.

There was no change in the condition of the market for millfeed, prices being firmly maintained. A fair amount of business was done in Manitoba bran. A steady business was reported in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were unchanged.

The export trade in baled hay continues quiet on account of the unfavorable condition of the English market at present. The local trade showed no improvement.

A fairly active business was reported in fresh eggs yesterday owing to an improved demand and prices showed no change. The unsettled feeling in the market for storage eggs was again in evidence, but at the late decline in prices there was some demand from jobbers and sales of odd fair sized lots of extras were made at 29c, firsts at 25c, and seconds at 19c per dozen re-graded.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for potatoes, but there was no actual change in prices to note.

There continues to be a good inquiry for imported beans, but as supplies on spot and to arrive were somewhat limited the volume of business was checked some. The tone of the market remained firm.

The market for honey was quiet.

A feature of the butter trade was the firmer feeling that developed in the market and prices scored an advance of ¼c per lb. A more active business was done than for some days past, including sales of some round lots of eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter at prices ranging from 35¼c to 35⅝c per lb., with holders in some cases asking as high as 36c per lb. at the close of the day.

There was no change in the condition of the local cheese market, trading being very slow and prices were nominally unchanged.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for dressed poultry, the undertone being firm, with a steady demand for supplies.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 11 (Canadian Press). — Grain prices went lower all around yesterday, carried downward by general profit taking sales on the part of recent speculative buyers.

Corn closed unsettled at ⅝c to 1¼c net decline, wheat ½c to ¾c to ⅞c down, oats ¼c to ⅜c off, and provisions showing 2c to 12c drop.

Throughout the day in the corn market, holders of future delivery contracts were active in efforts to realize profits, and were spurred on by the fact that corn belt weather conditions to facilitate the movement of corn had improved. Primary receipts of corn yesterday were 1,367,000 bushels against 416,000 bushels a year ago.

Wheat weakness was somewhat associated with the fact that Argentine wheat shipments were of greater volume than expected, more than offsetting the influence of smallness of shipments from Argentina. Little attention was given to the announcement that 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken for Europe.

Oats turned easier as a result of sympathy with corn and wheat.

Provisions owed their decline to selling ascribed to carriers and because of expected liberal arrivals of hogs next week.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

Dyspepsia Troubled Him for Many Years

Mr. J. Savoy, Loggieville, N.B., writes:—"I have suffered for many years from dyspepsia and could not seem to get any relief.

"One day I told my wife I thought I would try a bottle of and when I had half of it taken I felt a lot better, so I continued until I had taken two bottles, and now have no pains and no coated tongue, and feel that I am completely rid of my trouble."

A Thought

THEY TAKE TIME TO THINK.

There are those who are so conservative and cautious about their statements that, when they do say something of importance, you just naturally figure that it all amounts to the opinion of a pessimist, and you let it go at that.

Then there are the enthusiastic folks who when they talk about the most trivial things, thrill you with their enthusiasm and fill you with that pent-up elevation of fancy, and, almost before you know it, you spend hours of your valuable time thinking over what they have said.

Between these two extremes there is a class of people who are neither fanatics nor are they opposed to observation and study, and these are the people you can tie to with confidence.

Between those who say little and those who talk much, you will find a set of sensible and successful people. When these people talk, they say something, but before they say something, they take time to think.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

TO MR. BURNHAM.

Editor, Examiner:

It is unfortunate that following so closely upon Mr. Burnham's glowing account of the wonderful success of Government sale of booze in Montreal, comes a press dispatch which states that arrests for drunkenness in Montreal were 50 per cent greater in 1927 than in 1926. Also that young girls of good families have been found in dives, and that the evil arises from the "bling pig." (We were told that Government sale was to do away with such). The statements quoted above were made by Ald. A. A. Desroches of the city of Montreal, who should know conditions in his own city rather better than a casual visitor. The trouble is that people like Mr. Burnham and other obsessed with ideas similar to his own, see what they want to see.

Yours truly,
WAIT AND SEE.

OLD-AGE PENSONS.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Your editorial on the above in a recent Examiner certainly should cause a move to be made by the people of this province to demand action by the Ontario Government to adopt the scheme which the Federal Government passed at the last session.

Do the people of this province want old age pensions for their aged citizens?

I say yes.

But to me it seems the people of this province are very slow in expressing their opinion on this most important matter. I have waited in the hopes that someone with a more able pen than mine would have started a discussion through the columns of your paper. I am afraid we shall not get much in the way of old-age pensions from any Conservative Government (Mr. Editor, I am a working man conservative), unless we get after them, and also our Provincial member, and let him know we look for his support to help push the thing through.

I sincerely hope my few remarks will start some one, who is more able to tackle the question than I am.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain, yours, etc.,

BASKETRY CLASS FINALLY ARRANGED

Enough Names Handed In—Warsaw Church Societies Meet.

WARSAW, February 11 — Enough names have been given in to assure the class in basketry. As the Institute will bear the expense of heating, there will be a box for collection to defray that expense. The class will be held during the last week of February. Those who attended the nursing and public health class last winter, as well as many others, will be interested to know that Miss Alexander will hold a class in Lakefield during the first two weeks of March.

W. M. S. Meet.

The Warsaw United Woman's Missionary Society met at Mrs. O. B. McIlvena's home on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Sargent and Mrs. Ivy led in prayer, Mrs. Thomas Cooper led the Scripture lesson from Luke xxi., using the Gospel; donated by Mrs. Herrington. In the organist's absence, Mrs. Darling acted as the pianist. The treasurer reported $9.00 in the treasury. The president explained that flowers were not sent to Mrs. Eliza Edwards' funeral because she had expressed the wish that any money to be spent for flowers at her funeral be given to missionary fund. Mrs. Edwards had been an earnest missionary worker. The motion was made and carried that the collection for that day be paid into the fund in memory of Mrs. Eliza Edwards.

Mrs. McIlvena reported fourteen ladies having subscribed for the missionary monthly in 1927, and twenty have given in their names for 1928.

There were fourteen members and five visitors present.

Mrs. McIlvena gave a piano solo.

Miss Clara Payne gave the report of United Missionary Society convention of Lindsay Presbyterial held in Peterboro. In few words she told of the Home and Foreign mission work and pointed out that all auxiliaries are urged to send in their allocation during the first half of the year.

Mrs. George Taylor thanked Miss Payne for her report and considered they had the right one in the right place. Mrs. Herrington thanked all the delegates and especially Miss Payne, as she brought the essential thoughts of the convention.

Mrs. Arthur Edwards explained the expense fund and it was carried that this branch have such a fund.

There was a motion made, seconded and carried that there be a day of prayer in Warsaw and that the president of the W.M.S. see the presidents of the Anglican Ladies' Guild of the Presbyterian, the Baptist and the United Ladies' Aids, and invite them to join. Also that Miss Northcott be asked to be present the same day. Mesdames Taylor and Ivy sang "Then Touch Those Chords Again."

The president, Mrs. George Taylor, closed with prayer.

A delightful social half hour was spent while tea and refreshments were served.

Before the offering was taken on Sunday evening in the Warsaw United church, Rev. H. B. Herrington conducted a little ceremony in which new collection plates of nickle silver were presented to the church, to replace nondescript ones which had heretofore been in use.

Mrs. Taylor's organized class which has recently been divided into a girls' class which she still teaches and a boys' class in charge of Rufus Payne, gave the plates. The presentation was made in the name of the class by Miss Cora Drain and Master Sidney McCauley.

Maggie and Jiggs

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11.—The lady members of the A.Y.P.A. of Saint Thomas' Church carried through successfully a very unique "Maggie and Jiggs" evening at the last regular meeting, over sixty being in attendance.

It was the ladies night to entertain, and in keeping with the theme chosen gaily colored "Maggie and Jiggs" cutouts were used to decorate the Parish Hall, in festoon design along the walls and as runners centering the long tables at which the guests were seated shortly after 6.30 p.m. Each lady wore a formidable-looking rolling-pin attached to her girdle, and a number of these "weapons" with which Maggie so frequently belabors her husband were suspended among the cut-outs which adorned the walls.

Though the nature of the entertainment provided was to have been kept a profound secret, somehow the gentlemen gained knowledge of what was a-foot, and gathered at Rev. P. C. Howard's in a body, finally marching over to the Parish Hall, which they entered singing the following "ode" somebody had kindly composed for the occasion:

"Ladies, we have come for supper,
  And our tools we now have brought,
For we fear you'll make us suffer,
  But the battle must be fought.

Comrades, we are going to die,
  Seems to me the meat smells high,
Then the next will come the pie—
  O dear comrades, do not sigh."

Point was given to the song by the fact that each guest came armed with hatchet, hay fork, saw, etc., but as the reception committee used their rolling-pins quite freely by way of welcome (though the result was not very severe since the "stuffing" was of cotton batting), the song was rather rudely interrupted, and the hearty laughter which ensued was good "sauce" for the whetting of already healthy appetites.

The bill of fare was in true Jiggs style, corned beef and cabbage, followed by pie and whipped cream, with tea or coffee whichever might be preferred.

A very jolly time was spent about the supper tables, Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard taking the chair for the formal program which followed. Among those taking part were Miss Gladys Gray, who played selections on the ukelele; Miss Helen McCorry, whose readings were much enjoyed; Mrs. Howard and Miss Elizabeth Russell, who were compelled to respond to the demand for encores to their vocal solos; Miss Ada Attwooll, and the Misses Margaret and Marcella Lang, whose piano selections in solo and duet, were popular features, as was also the reading contributed by Miss E. Russell.

Community singing concluded this part of the evening, the vote of thanks to the ladies for the very enjoyable entertainment provided being moved by Mr. Howard, and seconded by Mr. J. J. Clarke. Mr. R. Stone, a past District A.Y.P.A. president, also spoke briefly.

No "smooth flow of rhetoric" was permitted while the speeches were in progress, the ladies deeming it their right to interject some impromptu poetry (?), and such other remarks, as the occasion suggested to their minds.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday, February 15, and will be a Valentine evening.

The A.Y.P.A. has grown from about twenty members to fifty-eight within the past year, and more new members are at present in prospect. Rev. P. C. and Mrs. Howard have taken a particular interest in the work among the young people of the parish since coming to the village to reside, and under their able leadership and initiative the increase in membership and activities of the A.Y.P.A. has been a notable feature.

ORANGE SIDE WINS Y.P.L. COMPETITION

Pontypool Young People Bring Attendance Contest to a Close.

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 11. — The Young People's League meeting held on Thursday evening was well attended. The meeting was under the leadership of the Devotional Vice-President, Rev. Mr. Boomhour.

The scripture reading was read by Miss Mabel Kellar and the opening hymn was the Epworth League hymn.

The program consisted of solos by Miss Iva Shaw and readings by Miss Audey Sloman, Miss M. Marvin and Mr. M. E. Hinton. It was decided to have a mock trial at the next citizenship meeting and a committee composed of Mrs. G. Wilder, Miss M. Kellar, Mr. M. E. Hinton and Rev. Mr. Boomhour were appointed to look after it. Mr. J. Payne was appointed to look after the current events for the next meeting and Miss M. Matchett was chosen to see about the games. The main interest in the meeting was the attendance contest which was to finish at this meeting. Both groups were out in large numbers and the White side under the leadership of Mr. Hinton were out strong to try to overcome the lead that the Orange group had rereceived in the three previous meetings. The result of the evening was Orange 31, White 35—the only time that the White group had been victorious during the contest. The result for the four meetings was 1st night 18 Orange, 12 White; 2nd night, 9 Orange, 9 White; 3rd night, 22 Orange and 17 White; 4th night 31 Orange 35 White; total 80 Orange 73 White. Orange majority 7. The losing side to put up a sleigh drive in the near future.

John Payne, leader of the Orange group, thanked his supporters very much for their hearty cooperation. He also congratulated Mr. Hinton and his group for the keen competition he had given, and also to the fairness in which the campaign was conducted. He stated that the contest had accomplished its purpose in increasing the attendance and showing the community that the league was on the map. Mr. Hinton also thanked his supporters and regretted that he had not been able to get more out. He also stated that he was handicapped by not knowing the people as well as his opposition.

Rev. Mr. Boomhour congratulated the leaders on the way they conducted the contest and on the friendly rivalry which existed during the entire contest. The remainder of the evening was spent in games, etc., and concluded by the benediction.

HYMN 383

Onward, Christian soldiers,
  Marching as to war,
With the Cross of JESUS
  Going on before.
Christ, the royal Master,
  Leads against the foe,
Forward into battle,
  See, His banners go.
Onward, Christian soldiers,
  Marching as to war,
With the Cross of JESUS
  Going on before.

At the sign of triumph
  Satan's host doth flee;
On then, Christian soldiers,
  On to victory!
Hell's foundation quiver
  At the shout of praise;
Brothers, lift your voices;
  Loud your anthems raise.
    Onward, Christian soldiers, &c.

Like a mighty army
  Moves the Church of God.
Brothers, we are treading
  Where the saints have trod.
We are not divided,
  All one body we—
One in hope and doctrine,
  One in charity.
    Onward, Christian soldiers, &c

Crowns and thrones may perish,
  Kingdoms rise and wane;
But the Church of JESUS
  Constant will remain;
Gates of hell can never
  'Gainst that Church prevail;
We have CHRIST'S own promise,
  And that cannot fail.
    Onward, Christian soldiers, &c.

Onward, then, ye people,
  Join our happy throng;
Blend with ours your voices
  In the triumph-song;
Glory, laud, and honour
  Unto CHRIST the King.
This through countless ages
  Men and angels sing.
Onward, Christian soldiers,
  Marching as to war,
With the Cross of JESUS
  Going on before. Amen.

HYMN 281

Hush! blessed are the dead
  In Jesus' arms who rest,
And lean their weary head
  For ever on His breast.

O beatific sight!
  No darkling veil between,
They see the Light of Light,
Whom here they loved unseen.

Them the Good Shepherd leads,
  Where storms are never rife,
In tranquil dewy meads
  Beside the Fount of Life.

O tender hearts and true,
  Our long last vigil kept,
We weep and mourn for you;
  Nor blame us: Jesus wept.

But soon at break of day
  His calm almighty voice,
Stronger than death, shall say,
  Awake,arise,—rejoice. Amen.

REPORTS TO BOARD OF EDUCATION

I herewith present a brief Report on the Public Schools of the city for the year 1927.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,
A. MOWATT, I.P.S.

1.—Attendance and Accommodation.

There has been practically no change in the enrolled attendance of pupils during the past three years. The total enrolled attendance for the year 1927 was 3327.

There has been no overcrowding in any of the schools during the year, and the number of pupils per teacher is satisfactory. The absence of overcrowding has enabled the teachers to give increasing attention to individual instruction of pupils.

The regularity of attendance of pupils has been excellent throughout the whole year. The average attendance for the year was 93%.

2.—The Teaching Staff.

During the year 1927, the teaching staff lost six of its members. One was removed by death and the other five left the teaching profession. Those who left the profession were Mrs. Goodwill and Misses Outram, Crookshanks, Ryley and Buckham. They were successful and experienced teachers and held in esteem by their pupils and fellow-teachers.

Thes taff suffered a severe loss in the death of Miss McRae. She had been Supervisor of Art in our schools for 19 years and by outstanding merit had won the devotion of the pupils and the esteem of the teachers and public in general.

The vacancies were filled by the appointment to the staff of the following teachers: Mr. Crawford; Misses Johnston, Chambers, Connolly, and Benson. These teachers all hold First-Class certificates or the equivalent thereof and are giving good service.

The position of Art Supervisor was filled by the appointment of Miss A Going, B.A., a teacher of experience and the holder of exceptional qualifications for this department.

The schools are now staffed by experienced and successful teachers.

3.—Progress of the Pupils.

The progress of the pupils during the year has been satisfactory. Retardation is being guarded against most carefully. By Retardation is meant keeping back pupils of average or better than average ability on account of absence from school because of sickness or other unavoidable causes

These pupils are given careful consideration and attention. The fact that over 50% of all enrolled pupils n our schools during 1927 were in Forms 3 and 4 shows that there is little retardation. Pupils master their school work through (a) Fear of punishment, (b) Spirit of rivalry, (c) Interest in their studies. All these means have, at times, to be used, but practically all enjoy their work. This is as it should be and this aim has been accomplished by the painstaking efforts of the teachers.

The Entrance Examination results were very satisfactory. Over 90% of all candidates were successful. In all 230 public school pupils passed the examination.

4.—Physical Education.

The provisions that the Board has made for the Physical welfare of the school children are proving beneficial.

The school buildings are comfortable and well kept.

The school Medical Officer and the School Nurse visit the schools regularly and safeguard the health of the pupils.

The school Dental Officer is able to make a survey of all the pupils during the year and give treatment to those unable to employ a family dentist.

Supervised games are conducted regularly in each school, and in addition there are inter-school leagues of baseball in Summer and hockey in Winter.

Each school also has a flourishing Cadet Corps for the older boys. Pupils who are weak physically are also receiving attention.

By these means much is being done for the physical welfare of the pupils.

5.—Special Departments.

The work in the Departments of Manual Training and Household Science has been reported upon to the Board by Inspector Leake.

He reported favorably on both Departments and commended the work of Miss Johnston as being outstanding in merit.

The study of vocal music in the schools is producing a love and taste for good music on the part of the pupils.

The success of this Department is due in large measure to the encouragment and guidance of the Supervisor, Miss Rannie.

During the Fall term the schools were without a Supervisor in Art but the teachers carried on the work. Now that a Supervisor has been appointed the work will continue as heretofore.

The regularity of attendance of pupils and the co-operation of the homes with the schools is due in large measure to the efficient services of the Attendance Officer and to the generosity and interest of the Home and School clubs. They have made it possible for all children to attend school.

The Attendance Officer is also doing much in the way of vocational guidance. He has found suitable employment for many pupils and ex-pupils.

The decision of the Board to introduce the Penny Bank into the schools has been carried out. Its initial success has been most marked.

The Children's Department of the Public Library has been of great service to the pupils of the schools during the year.

HYMN 18

Abide with me; fast falls the eventide:
The darkness deepens; Lord, with me abide;
When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, O abide with me.

Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day;
Earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away;
Change and decay in all around I see;
O Thou, Who changest not, abide with me.

I need Thy presence every passing hour;
What but Thy grace can foil the tempter's power?
Who like Thyself, my guide and stay can be?
Through cloud and sunshine, Lord, abide with me.

I fear no foe with Thee at hand to bless;
Ills have no weight and tears no bitterness;
Where is death's sting? Where, grave, thy victory?
I triumph still, if Thou abide with me.

Hold Thou Thy Cross before my closing eyes;
Shine through the gloom, and point me to the skies;
Heaven's morning breaks, and earth's vain shadows flee;
In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me. Amen.

Then, all kneeling, the Minister shall say:
Let us pray.

Lord have mercy upon us.
Christ, have mercy upon us.
Lord, have mercy upon us.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Minister. O Lord, deal not with us after our sins:
Answer. Neither reward us after our iniquities.
Minister. Enter not into judgment with thy servant, O Lord:
Answer. For in thy sight shall no man living be justified.
Minister. The souls of the righteous are in the hands of the Lord:
Answer. Who preserveth them that are true of heart.
Minister. Turn again then unto thy rest, O my soul:
Answer. For the Lord hath rewarded thee.
Minister. Thou, Lord, hast delivered my soul from death:
Answer. Mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.
Minister. I will walk before the Lord:
Answer. In the land of the living.

Almighty God, with whom do live the spirits of them that depart hence in the Lord, and with whom the souls of the faithful, after they are delivered from the burden of the flesh, are in joy and felicity: We praise and magnify thy holy Name for all thy servants who have finished their course and kept the faith; beseeching thee that it may please thee, of thy gracious goodness, shortly to accomplish the number of thine elect, and to hasten thy kingdom; that we, with all those that are departed in the true faith of thy holy Name, may have our perfect consummation and bliss, both in body and soul, in thy eternal and everlasting glory; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

O God, whose days are without end, and whose mercies cannot be numbered: Make us, we beseech thee, deeply sensible of the shortness and uncertainty of human life; and let thy Holy Spirit lead us in holiness and righteousness, all our days: that, when we shall have served thee in our generation, we may be gathered unto our fathers, having the testimony of a good conscience; in the communion of the Catholick Church; in the confidence of a certain faith; in the comfort of a reasonable, religious, and holy hope; in favour with thee our God, and in perfect charity with all men. Grant this we beseech Thee through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Grant, we beseech thee, merciful Lord, to thy faithful people pardon and peace; that they may be cleansed from all their sins, and serve Thee with a quiet mind; through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

The God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting convenant, make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

HYMN 455

'For ever with the Lord!'
Amen; so let it be;
Life from the dead is in that word
'Tis immortality.
Here in the body pent,
Absent from Him I roam,
Yet nightly pitch my moving tent
A day's march nearer home.

My Father's house on high,
Home of my soul, how near!
At times to faith's foreseeing eye
Thy golden gates appear!
Ah! then my spirit faints
To reach the land I love,
The bright inheritance of saints,
Jerusalem above.

'For ever with the Lord!'
FATHER, if 'tis Thy will,
The promise of that faithful word
Even here to me fulfil
Be Thou at my right hand,
Then I can never fail;
Uphold Thou me, and I shall stand
Fight, and I must prevail.

So when my latest breath
Shall rend the veil in twain,
By death I shall escape from death,
And life eternal gain.
Knowing as I am known,
How shall I love that word,
And oft repeat before the throne,
'For ever with the Lord! Amen.

For complete details concerning the Dominion Life achievement of 1927, write for a copy of our Annual Report.

IN the summary appearing above is to be found in brief the story of the Dominion Life's most successful year. Of interest not only to Dominion Life policyholders, but also to all those Canadians who appreciate the necessity of protection for home and family, each item represents a record of which the Dominion Life and its policyholders may well be proud.

To indicate the success achieved in 1927, as brought out at the Company's Annual Meeting held on February 10th, particular reference is made here to two significant features.

$107,364,499.00 of insurance in force at the end of 1927 represents a notable increase during the past year. Every year thousands of Canadians have been added to those sharing in the benefits of sound, economic protection as provided by Dominion Life policies—to such an extent that the amount of insurance in force at the present time is more than double that of six years ago.

$1,342,879.75 represents the total payments to policyholders and their beneficiaries throughout the past year. Told in figures this perhaps conveys little. It could be best told by those receiving the benefits—widows free from want, families provided with the necessities of life, elderly people living in independence, disabled wage-earners in receipt of incomes and policyholders sharing in Dominion Life profits.

Easier Tone Revealed On Stock Exchange

TORONTO, February 11 (Canadian Press). — The Toronto Stock Exchange was comparatively quiet today with trading fairly light. An easier tone was shown, though many issues were unchanged from yesterday. International Nickel, the regular leader, firmed a fraction at 94½, and Seagrams was steady at 25 in heavy trading. Page Hersey at 90, Dominion Stores at 117, Canadian Oil at 58¾, Brazilian at 207, and Shredded Wheat at 70 were easier features of regulars. In the unlisted section British-American Oil gained little at 36, and Imperial was steady at 59¾. Canadian Malting firmed a quarter at 36½, but Walker's at 59½ and Carlings at 33½ were both fractionally lower.

Price Tendency Is Upward; Packing Issues Are Strong

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. Canadian Press. — Further irregularity developed in to-day's stock market, but the main price tendency appeared to be upward. Strength of the packing issues, nearly all of which attained new high levels for the year, contrasted with the weakness of oils, five of which sank to the lowest prices in the year or more. Consistent strength of rail shares, more than one dozen of which advanced one to three points, was one of the day's features. There was little in the overnight news to influence the price movement. Yellow Truck common turned weak in the reflection of passing of the preferred dividend and some selling also come into the other motor shares. Selling pressure was also apparent against Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, and Vanadium steel.

Wheat Averages Higher; Export Business Not Effected

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press). Wheat values averaged higher early today, helped by word that no prices concessions on domestic wheat were being made to effect export business. Meanwhile the corn market was easy as a result of favorable weather for crop movement. Opening unchanged to ⅜c up wheat subsequently showed, some advance all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅜c off and later held near to initial figures. Oats were steady; provisions tended to sag.

Wheat, March 130⅝, May 129¾. Corn, March 91¼, May 94¼. Oats, March 54⅞, May 55¼.

Hollinger Makes Recovery, Damage Is Slight To Mine

TORONTO, February 11 (Canadian Press). — The stock of Hollinger Mines, after a slump of 75 cents on the mining market here yesterday afternoon, made good the recovery to-day when it became apparent that the fire would not do serious damage to the mine, even though it threatened the lives of upwards of 50 miners and had brought death to probably six. Starting at 17.00, where it left off yesterday, Hollinger sold steadily at that mark, with occasional bounces until near the close it firmed to 17.30. The close was around 17.40 bid. The whole board showed strength, and Kirkland Lake issues also recovered somewhat from the slump yesterday, Kirkland Lake Gold firmed four at 2.04.

HEAVY PRODUCTION COMING OF FORD CARS

Mr. Hood Returns From Visit To Ford and Toronto Plants—New Coupe Arrives on Monday.

Mr. Hood of Hood and Cumming has just returned from a visit to the Ford Motor Company plant at Ford, Ont., and the assembling plant at Toronto, and obtained an immense amount of information to enthuse over. Both plants are now in production, increasing rapidly day by day so that in April and May the company will have the largest production it ever attained in Canada.

A new coupe will arrive in Peterboro' Monday and this model is looked upon by many who saw it in Toronto as one of the finest coupes on the market. It has style, finish, plenty of room, in fact everything about it strikes the eye at once. As soon as delivery of cars is made, which is expected at not a distant date, they will be found to be the exact duplicate in every particular of the models shown by the Ford dealers.

Mr. Hood stated he found a great spirit of optimism prevailing in the Ford plants, both as to the quality of the car, the production that is already being obtained, resulting in the possibility of earlier and heavier deliveries than had been expected.

The only reliable news on Ford cars is to be obtained solely from or through Ford dealers, and Hood and Cumming will be glad to give everyone in this district, on inquiry, as full information at any time as they have in their possession.

THE MASCOT

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 10.—The Bailieboro Tuxis Boys presented their play entitled "The Mascot," on Friday evening, February 3rd, at Cavanville, under the auspices of the Cavanville Tuxis Square.

The crowd was not as large as was expected, but the people present showed by their hearty applause that the program was fully appreciated.

The program consisted of special numbers by the orchestra, composed of Miss Viola White, Messrs. James Wood, Clifford Emberson and Keith Barnard; comic duets by Clifford Emberson and James Wood; a special act entitled "Two Black-Jacks," by Archie Deyell and Roland Johnston, a recitation by Melville Wood, entitled "Casey's Downfall"; a vocal duet by Keith Barnard and Fred Barnard, and the three-act play, staged by ten college boys.

At the conclusion of the play the Cavanville Tuxis Boys served lunch to the visitors from Bailieboro.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness, and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods, and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

LOCAL SOCIETY WORK PRAISED

Speaker at Ontario Horticultural Convention Tells of Juvenile Branch.

EXTENSION ADVOCATED.

TORONTO, February 11 (Special to The Examiner). — The gardening work of Peterborough's young people was favorably commented on by Prof. R. R. Graham, of Guelph, one of the 600 delegates to the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association which held its concluding sessions yesterday.

Professor Graham, declaring that the progress made in interesting juveniles in horticulture was "truly remarkable," quoted this district as a case in point. In Peterborough, he said, there is a membership of 265 in juvenile horticultural associations, and in many cases through the interest of the children, the older people had been brought to betake themselves with greater enthusiasm to the work of beautifying the land around their houses.

Strong representations were made by Magistrate Fry of Dundas to induce the Association to establish branches for the juveniles in all the towns and cities of Ontario. Magistrate Fry backed up his request with a striking claim on behalf of the juvenile associations, which he declared were extremely potent factors in checking increase in the numbers of very young offenders. He made the assertion that immediately following the appearance of such a branch in Dundas, misdemeanors of the youngsters began to decline, and to-day with a flourishing branch of the Association in existence juvenile crime is quite unknown in the district.

Weeds Increasing.

Another speaker, J. Buchanan, of Guelph, declared that if weeds increase in Ontario in the proportion noted in the last fifteen years, the farmers of the Province will be driven off the land by the undesirable harvests of unwanted growths.

A suggestion was also put forward by a delegate that legislation should be sought which would require the planting of at least two trees for every one cut down. There were many varieties of native trees, he said, which could be planted and which would help to beautify the lawns and roadways of the Province.

NEW S. S. HALL IS PROPOSED

Young Men's Class Starts Subscription at St. Paul's.

LADIES CONTRIBUTE.

On the wall, above the platform of St. Paul's Church Sabbath School last evening, at the entertainment was displayed to view a placard with the significant words:

"How about a new Sunday School hall? The Young Men's Class has broken the ice and subscribed $5.00 to start the ball rolling. Who will fall in and make it $10.00?"

There was an explanation called for, and Mel. Turner stepped on the dais, and told the audience five of the class last Sabbath talked about a new building, as the present edifice is too small for the expansion going on. They subscribed the five dollars, "just to start something," and the idea was thrown out that other organizations might also add to this sum.

About half an hour after this intimation, Miss Lockie slipped up to Mr. Steer, the chairman, asked permission to speak, and announced that "the A.M.O.S. Class had decided to contribute $50.00 towards the new Sunday School."

These two intimations were heartily applauded, and it now remains to be seen what will follow this fine spirit.

MOOSE INITIATE MANY CANDIDATES

Valentine Dance Held After Ceremony—Order's Activities Discussed.

On Friday evening, February 10, the Loyal Order of Moose held an initiation with a class of thirty new candidates, in the Downeyflake Hall. Dictator J. C. Poolman opened the meeting, which was later taken over by the Belleville degree team, who motored to Peterborough for the occasion. Brother Austin, who so graciously gave his rooms for the evening, was master of the lighting effects.

After the initiation the local members and the degree team proceeded to the Moose Hall, where the Ladies' Chapter, of the Mooseheart Legion, held a Valentine Dance. A very enjoyable evening was enjoyed by all. Brother Donovan, Dictator of the Belleville Lodge, gave a talk on the activities of the Loyal Order of Moose during the supper time. Much fun was created for the visitors by Brother Poolman, who levied fines on the degree team for bringing with them such ravenous appetite and in retaliation Brother Poolman(himself wore off his smile with a double fine imposed on him, for short changing one of the other members.

The Ladies' Chapter was congratulated on the success of their dance. On the whole everyone had a very enjoyable evening.

workings while the fans also were kept going in an effort to provide pure air for the imprisoned men.

The rescue parties which already had ventured below carried canaries but some of the men engaged in the work were themselves overcome and in one instance one of them collapsed before he was able to tell his companions of his condition.

Major J. G. McMillan Temiskaming mining inspector, reached the scene late last night to investigate the disaster, in place of Resident Inspector George E. Cole, who is out of the district.

Major McMillan was without information regarding the disaster.

Timmins on Way.

COBALT, Feb. 11. Canadian Press. —Noah Timmins president of the Hollinger Mine and A. H. Brigham, manager, were en route to-day to Timmins, the scene of the disaster, which may exact a toll of between 40 and 50 lives. Mr. Timmins was without information respecting developments that may have arisen subsequent to those reported in the morning papers. Five men were definitely known to be dead and little hope was held out for 40 or more whose fate had not yet been ascertained. Mr. Timmins expressed the deepest concern for the dependents of the dead men. He declared that would have no comment to make until he had surveyed the situation. He is scheduled to reach Timmins at 8.40 to-night.

HELP AVAILABLE.

TORONTO, February 11 (Canadian Press). — "While it is holding itself in readiness, the Ontario Department of Health does not think it will be called upon to the Hollinger fire. I understand that they have sufficient equipment and medical service on the ground," stated Dr. J. W. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, this afternoon. "If there should be a call, we will be only too willing to assist, and could soon send additional medical and nursing service."

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.

TORONTO, February 11 (Canadian Press). — A message of sympathy from the Government of Ontario was despatched to-day to the officials at the Hollinger Mine, where 47 miners are entrapped. Hon. James Finlayson, Acting Minister of Mines, said in the message that T. J. Sutherland, Chief Inspector of Mines, and Resident Inspector G. E. Cole would co-operate in every possible way, and mine officials were told to call upon the Government for any aid necessary.

"We are doing everything possible, but have had no official word yet," said Thomas Gibson, Deputy Minister of Mines, to-day. He could not assign any reason for the fire, other than what newspaper reports indicated, that the fire broke out in rubbish in a disused slope.

The Department's inspector had made periodical inspections of the mine, Mr. Gibson said, and the Department had never received complaint of any irregularity in operations.

Mr. Gibson admitted that an investigation of some kind would be made, but he was not prepared at the moment to state what form it would take. Until more information is received from the inspectors, he cannot further comment.

It is understood, however, that a sweeping investigation will be authorized by the Ontario Government, and Premier Ferguson is expected to make a statement concerning this shortly. Officials of the Mines Department have not yet turned their attention to this phase of the situation, pointing out that the work of relief must receive primary attention.

A special commission to investigate the disaster may be appointed, consisting perhaps of a lawyer, practical mining men, and an independent engineer.

CARRY ON!

Field Marshal Earl Haig, who is mourned this week throughout the Empire, saw in the British Empire Service League the fulfilment of his greatest hope—the unity of ex-service men throughout the Empire.

To this organization he devoted his life after the guns had ceased to roll, and before his death he had seen branches organized everywhere the British flag flies.

Earl Haig has passed on—as so many men who fought for the Empire are daily passing—but his organization has been built on solid ground and it will heed his command to "Carry On."

Of the nine million people in Canada, only a few thousand are privileged to join this association of ex-service men. Are you one of the few—and are you going to help the Canadian Legion carry on in the spirit of the late Commander, Earl Haig?

Join on Sunday in the tribute which all returned men will pay to the late Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies, and then associate yourself with the work which he left to you to do.

ANCIENT ART IS DISCUSSED

Speaker Tells Art Association About Work of Peoples of Babylonia.

ARTIFICIAL MOUNTAINS.

Speaking on the "Art of Ancient Babylonia," W. A. Irwin, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., was the lecturer to the members of the Women's Art Association at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the studios at the Conservatory of Music. Dr. Irwin was introduced by the president, Mrs W. Blackwell, who also moved the vote of thanks at the conclusion of his interesting discourse, and brought with him a number of illustrative slides which were highly informative and gave a splendid insight into the ways and lives of dwellers in bygone ages. The picture machine was opened by Mr. V. R. Henry.

A review of the various epochs was given by the speaker, who referred to Babylon as the mother of civilization and of the arts and crafts. The Sumerian people who settled in Babylon about 4,000 B.C. were associated with all of the great achievements of Babylonia and were followed about two thousand years later by the Semites, who gradually came into undisputed possession of the land and dominated it until a short time of about a century in length, when the great King Nebuchadonozor once again assumed possession.

The slides were graphically descriptive of the life of these ancient peoples and opened with a representation of the long, low mound of Hugel Babil beneath which so many treasures were later discovered. Here was illustrated the principle of the arch, which the Babylonians used in architectural structures and in this place were found the foundations of the ancient city of Ur, with the wonderful temple whose reconstruction in miniature was shown in detail. The ornamentation of glazed tiles showed the distinctive tendency in Babylonian art, with the palmetto conventionalized and the sacred tree of life.

Something very interesting, with its parallel in modern times, was the reproduction of the artificial mountain which these people, coming down from their hills to dwell on the steamy, alluvial plains, built to propitiate their mountain gods. These temples with their several terraces winding upward by means of sloping ramps, were surmounted by circular or square shrines in which the god might dwell and fancy that he looked out at the world from his original mountain home. In them, the speaker found the origin of the ancient lighthouse at Pharos, of the Moslem minaret and even of the modern Church, with a curious similarity in the habit of placing the church tower apart from the main edifice.

The queer composite figures which marked the dadoes and freizes of ancient buildings of Babylon and Assyria were shown. The bull colossus, with the body of a bull, the wings of an eagle and the head of a man, was a notable example of this strange fancy which appears again and again in the architecture of that day. Another recurring idea was that of a mythological figure of the same type, holding fast to the hindquarters of bulls or deer. In the curiously outlined, naked muscles of the standing figures was an example, said the speaker, of the cruelty of the Assyrians, who knew so well the inner mechanism of the human body, by reason of the tortures practised upon it, in captivity.

The cuneiform inscriptions appear on many of these figures, written straight across the chiselled forms and on the aprons of the kilt-like garments worn by them. Figures of Sennacherib, of Hammurabi, and of the great king, Gilgamish, precursor of the Greek god Hercules, bore these inscriptions, and bore out in strange similarity the ideas brought down from these ancient peoples, and perpetuated in their modern children.

Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the lecture. In her opening remarks, the president, Mrs. Blackwell, drew attention to the handsome floor lamp in the outer studio, a gift presented to the association by the Art Study Club, with a shade designed and executed by Mrs. J. E. R. Munroe.

AYRSHIRE MAN IS OPTIMISTIC

Alex Hume, of Campbellford, Says Association is Prosperous.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (Special). — A record year in the industry with thoroughly optimistic expectations for the days that lie ahead was reported by Alexander Hume of Campbellford, president of the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, which yesterday concluded its annual convention held in the Hotel Carls-Rite. Another visitor from Peterborough district was Clarence Mann of J. Gordon Mann and Son, Bridgenorth, winners of the premier Ayrshire awards at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in 1926 and 1927.

According to President Hume, the finances of the association are in flourishing condition, the farmers are manifesting a praiseworthy desire to improve the breeding stock and a number of new recruits who have realized the merits of the Ayrshires have linked up with the National Association.

At the beginning of 1927, the Association was handicapped, said Mr. Hume, by the resignation of W. F. Stephen, who had filled the office of secretary for 21 years. Frank Napier, formerly on the editorial staff of the Breeders' Gazette, was appointed as permanent secretary after serving a period as temporary occupant of the office.

Result of Fair Successes.

Mr. Hume also referred to the fact that the success of Ayrshire exhibitors at local Fairs throughout the province had had an excellent effect in stimulating interest in the breed among ambitious farmers. He made special mention of the Ayrshire exhibits at the Royal Winter Fair which for quality were never before equalled in this continent. "We personally believe," said Mr. Hume, "that there is no better way to popularize the breed than by such exhibits as was put on at the 1927 Royal." He also quoted the Hon. Mr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, as stating that the Department would continue the policy of securing Scotch judges for the Royal until they were told to stop.

"We believe," said Mr. Hume, "that this Association would be doing a wise thing were it to increase its grant towards the Royal prize-list, that is, providing the Royal Fair Board is prepared to increase and extend the prizes and duplicate our increase." In this connection Mr. Hume pointed out the fact that the Ayrshire breed has every year consistently paid in entry fees more than any other, being at least $200 higher than the next breed. It was also suggested by Mr. Hume that the Association request the Winter Fair Board to include a class for bulls 3 years and under 4 in order to encourage competition to continue exhibiting.

Choice Scotch Animals Imported.

A number of enterprising breeders of the Association had at heavy expense imported many choice animals from Scotland. "Many breeders apart from the importers themselves will benefit from this importation of fresh blood," said Mr. Hume.

"I trust that you will forgive a personal reference," said Mr. Hume, "and allow me to thank the Association for the honor it has conferred on me by electing me as a director for a longer term of years than any member present has served in that capacity, and also for honoring me with the presidency on three different occasions."

Mr. Napier, in his report, stated that there had been an increase in revenue from membership fees, the total membership being 1,415. Three hundred and twenty-eight new names were added in 1927.

Gerard Tremblay, field man for the province of Quebec reported indications of increased interest in the breed in the French province.

A special committee on advertising and publicity reported that retailers had found Ayrshire milk a good specialty and it was suggested that more breeders living close to towns go in for this retail trade.

Organization of dairies specializing in Ayrshire milk in the large cities was also proposed. It was also suggested that the Association get into touch with breeders in the West Indies. Some of these colonies are thinking of starting separate herd books and members thought that it might be well to endeavor to get them to register in the Canadian book and form local associations corresponding to our provincial associations.

Policy Disapproved

The method at present in vogue of stamping out tuberculosis was approved, but the association unanimously agreed to co-operate with associations representing other breeds in protest against the proposal of the Department of Agriculture which aims at setting the minimum of cows for test at fifteen pure bred animals instead of ten as at present.

Banquet Held

Mr. Hume presided at the banquet which was held in the Carls-Rite and was addressed by G. T. Conklin of the American Ayrshire Associationtion, who told of the progress of the breed in the States where, he said, the cattle brought big prices. A number of three minute addresses were delivered by members of the association. Taking advantage of a fine opportunity, a large party of the association members motored to the Hamilton district, where they visited the T. Eaton farm and a number of other up-to-date establishments and were later the guests of the T. Eaton Co. at lunch in the Hamilton store.

Feeling that he had done his bit, Mr. Hume did not allow his name to go forward for re-election, and consequently drops out of the Board of Directors entirely.

LARGER HERD PLAN OPPOSED

Alex Hume Says Raising of Minimum Would Penalize Poor Man.

FOR CERTIFIED HERDS.

TORONTO, Feb. 1 (Secial to The Examiner). — Emphatic disapproval of the Government's proposal to raise the minimum number of cows required to get the test and certificate of cleanness for a pure bred herd, from ten to fifteen, was indicated by Alexander Hume, of Campbellford, retiring president of the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, when approached for a statement of his attitude at the close of the annual meeting of the association. Mr. Hume pointed out that the suggestion, if put into effect, must inevitably act as a deterrent to ambitious farmers struggling to improve their stock. Three tests of all the pure bred animals of the herd are made by Government appointees and are taken at intervals of six and then of twelve months. At the third test, if the animals are ofund to be all right, the farmer receives his certificate. If at any of the tests an animal reacts, it is condemned and the owner receives compensation.

It has been discovered that some farmers have not been keeping up to the spirit of their undertaking and are using the money thus obtained to buy inferior animals and do not make any effort to secure cattle of quality similar to that of those which had been condemned and for which they received compensation.

Mr. Hume, however, believe that the remedy proposed will have the effect of penalizing the honest farmer who is doing his best to raise the standard of cattle on his farm. To raise the minimum requirement to fifteen will simply put the attempt out of the question for the poorer farmer, and will hinder the progress towards a higher standard all round, is his contention.

Another member declared that at the Canadian National Exhibition dinner, references were made by Government seakers to the need of making farm life more attractive to ambitious youths already on the land. To ut increased difficulties in the way of his getting a ure bred herd certified free from tuberculosis, he said, was simply to take a step in the other direction.

SENIOR SCHOOL HOLDS CONCERT

Fine Program Given in St. Paul's Sunday School

NEW HALL PROPOSED.

The Senior Departments of the Sabbath School of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, following the example of the Junior Department at Christmas time, entertained the parents and friends last evening in the Sunday School Hall. The officers were dubious about having a large gathering on account of other attractions, but their hearts were gladdened by the splendid response, showing the interest taken and encouragement given to officers and scholars alike.

The audience was not disappointed by the program presented. There were representations from each class and the renditions, either piano or violin selections, or readings, were of the highest order. It was remarked by many that there is much young and promising talent in St. Paul's; and that impression was verified last night.

A feature of the evening was the concluding number, "A Mock Trial," by the Young Men's Class, a humorous and entertaining trial, with the prisoner—and there was "a woman in the case"—the judge, the learned counsel, policemen, jury, and crier, and other court appurtenances.

Oliver M. Steer, the superintendent, was chairman, and handled the program:

Orchestra, under M. B. Chenhall.
Piano Solo—Ruth Doxsee.
Hawaiian Selection—The Misses Hamilton, Jack Clayton, and Marvin Hamilton (in costume).
Piano Solo—Helen Veitch.
Dialogue—"A Bunch of Flowers."

Piano Duet—Sybil Jackson and Clara Patterson.
Recitation—Margaret Wyllie. "Two Scottish Martyrs."

Mock Trial—Young Men's Class.

Rev. Mr. Allan voiced the thanks of the officers and scholars for the large and enthusiastic gathering, and urged the parents to help the school in every way—it is the training ground for future men and women.

The Doxology concluded the entertainment.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

The Growing Kingdom of God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 12. The Growing Kingdom of God. Mark 4:26-34.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.,
Editor of The Congregationalist.

Text : Mark 4:26-34.

And he said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground;

And should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how.

For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear.

But when the fruit is brought forth, immediately he putteth in the sickle, because the harvest is come.

And he said, Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?

It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth is less than all the seeds that be in the earth:

But when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.

And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it.

But without a parable spake he not unto them: and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples.

The late Edward Everett Hale once raised the question whether it was possible for one who thought of kingship as implying arbitrary and despotic power and who had never sensed the reality of democracy to understand the meaning of "the kingdom of God."

However true that may be, we should remember that though there is much reference in our English version of the New Testament to the kingdom of God, the meaning of the word "kingdom" and the whole atmosphere that surrounds the reference to it are more akin to the realities of modern democracy than to the dominant conceptions of empire and aristocracy.

The kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom. Its authority is within the heart rather than in outward and arbitrary decrees, unless we think of the laws of nature as a part of its constitution.

Spiritual Realities.

But Jesus, in all his teaching, took certain things in the world order for granted, and his distinctive teaching related to the spiritual realities of life rather than to a world of law and force. What Jesus deals with is the meaning of life and the possibilities of life for free men, made in the image and likeness of God himself, in whom and through whom God manifests the divine life.

This kingdom is a social kingdom, a kingdom of fellowship and of relationships in which men are brought not only into communion with God but into communion with one another. There can be no such thing as an individual experience of religion that is not expressed in these social relationships.

So that, while the kingdom of God grows and increases as a power within our own hearts, it grows and increases also as a kingdom of love and truth, as a kingdom in which these larger and better relationships of man with man are expressed.

The deepest and greatest truth concerning the kingdom Jesus expressed in the form of parables or illustrations. Possibly this form of teaching was necessary and most effective because the kingdom of God is so much higher than all ordinary experiences and aspirations that we should fail to comprehend what it is and how it comes to us unless the nature and privileges of the kingdom were defined in this illustrative way.

Jesus compares it to seed upon the earth. The seed seems insignificant; it seems even lifeless. But scatter it in the proper soil and the blade appears, and then the ear, and then the full corn in the ear.

The kingdom of God is not some sweeping miracle, stupendous and overwhelming in its force. It is the germ of divine life scattered like seed in the souls of men. But the harvest of it is sure and the harvest of it is great.

So Jesus goes a little farther and emphasizes this by reference to a specific seed. He takes the little mustard seed, chosen for its tininess, and over against it he sets the tree putting forth branches. The great tree is contained in the seed.

It is well that we should grasp the reality of this truth, otherwise we shall be apt to miss the kingdom of God through despising the only way in which it may take root in our hearts, or we shall be deeply discouraged because the kingdom of God does not grow as rapidly as we think it ought to.

The lesson of the seed is, have faith in God. We cannot either enter into the kingdom or give our allegiance to the kingdom without faith. Of course as we look back from the days of Christ we see how this kingdom has grown. We see the fellowship that began in a few disciples now a worldwide fellowship of souls who believe in Jesus and who strive to do his will.

Sowing Seed Today.

Perhaps just because this is so it is all the more necessary that we should realize the meaning of the parables of our lesson. Just because the kingdom of God has grown so greatly we may be the more impatient with its seeming lack of present progress. But the same methods in which it grew from the beginning operate in its growth today. There must be the same sowing of seed and the same patient waiting.

The kingdom of God can be made to extend its boundaries over the hearts of other men and over our modern world only in the same way that it has developed in our own souls and in that fellowship in Christ to which it is our privilege to belong. The lesson of the kingdom is the lesson of growth; but what profound aspects of hope and optimism are manifest in the fact and the law of growth!

SANTAL MIDY CATARRH of BLADDER Pain Easily Relieved by Santal Midy Refuse any Imitation Look for the word "MIDY" Sold by All Druggists

IN POLICE COURT

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. — A local boy appeared before Magistrate Payne at ten o'clock yesterday morning to answer to a charge of theft. He is 18 years of age and has been previously sentenced for similar charges. On this occasion the article stolen was a book from the public library. This book is one of a set which is not allowed to leave the building but kept among others in the reference rooms for use in the building only.

To the charge as read, the accused pleaded guilty and elected to defend himself as he considered there was no use employing a lawyer.

Questioned by W. F. Kerr prosecutor for the crown, he stated that he had taken the book to keep and had only lent it to the person in whose possession it had been discovered. This person, he claimed, was interested in some of the information which the volume contained, and had been loaned it for that purpose. The book had not been sold, he said. He also admitted having been in the reformatory on two previous occasions for stealing the sum of forty dollars, and also for breaking into a local store. On these occasions he had been sent to the childrens shelter in Port Hope and later to Mimico to the reform school there. But it appeared he had been allowed to return when his uncle agreed to take charge of and be responsible for his good behavior. During that time he had lived within the letter of the law.

The librarian spoke well of the boy and said that she had always rather considered the boys of the family rather mischievous but not at all bad. She was inclined to believe that they themselves were not entirely to blame for any shortcomings. Magistrate Payne also considered the boys of the family mischievous and said that he had had bad reports from the neighbors. On previous occasions the boy had been dealt with leniently on account of his uncle's sincere plea for mercy for the boy.

Embracing the opportunity thus unexpectedly offered the accused asked that he be let off with a fine, which his uncle would pay and he would work out for his uncle. This would made circumstances less destitute for the family. The Crown Attorney expressed his willingness to give the boy an opportunity to behave himself, and the uncle was called. He agreed to take charge of the boy for three months on condition that should there be any bad reports the boy was to be turned over to the magistrate for sentence. This amounts to suspended sentence with the accused required to keep the peace for a period of three months.

ARE YOU RUN-DOWN?

All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood.

There are many people who have been semi-invalids so long that they accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured nervousness, broken sleep and a generally rundown feeling so long that they have given up hope of again enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. And as a blood-building tonic no other medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There is scarcely a spot in Canada where you will not find some formerly ailing person who has found new health through the use of this medicine. The experience of Mrs. Thomas Ahearn, St. Malo, Que., bears out these statements. She says:—"I have the greatest reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was in a very weak and run-down condition. Frequently I would faint and my legs would swell badly. It was almost impossible to do any housework. It seemed as if my blood had turned to water. In this weak and despondent condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes proved that they were helping me, but I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes, by which time I found myself a completely restored woman, able to do my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness, where before I had been despondent. For all this, thanks to the health-giving qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are feeling run-down, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN MEETINGS

Mount Pleasant Society Will Attend Valentine Party.

WILL HOLD DEBATE

MOUNT PLEASANT, February 10. —The Young People of the United Church held their weekly meeting on Monday evening. The meeting opened with the hymn 'When He Cometh." The business part of the meeting was discussed, and it was decided that they should accept the invitation to spend a Valentine social evening at the home of Mrs. Melville Jones the next week. They also decided that three weeks from Monday a debate and musical program will be held in the church, the committee for the debate being Mrs. T. Jamieson, Miss Helen McLean, and Rev. J. O. Totten.

The devotional part taken from Mark 1, 21-39 was read by Miss Viola McCall, followed by the hymn, "Jesus Saves." Miss Helen McLean gave the topic which was entitled "The Place of Pleasure in Life,' 'after which the meeting closed with the hymn, "Come to the Saviour."

MANY VISITORS HERE NEXT WEEK

Duffus' Motor Show and Two Conventions Are the Attractions.

The Duffus motor show and two conventions will bring thousands of visitors to Peterborough next week; and most of them will make purchases while they are here.

The Boy Scouts of Ontario are meeting here and there is also the three-day conference of insurance men of the city and district. But the motor show at the Duffus sales rooms will attract far greater numbers. The opportunity of getting an automobile free appeals to everyone, and J. J. Duffus is inviting by specoal letter all the residents of the five counties of Northumberland, Durham, Victoria, Haliburton and Peterborough. Visitors are expected all the way from Brighton, Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock, and even to Apsley on the east and from Fenelon Falls to Bowmanville on the west.

Advertisements in every newspaper in the five counties announce the week's motor show, which Mr. Duffus is advertising as widely and thoroughly as possible. Its success will be reflected in new prospects and business for the Duffus sales force in the city and district, but also in new business for the merchants generally. This was the experience of many merchants during the week of the Duffus motor show a year ago, and it should be repeated next week.

showed two films of his bird sanctuary and from them it was plainly seen that all kinds of bird life finds a home there. Children could be seen feeding the robins and the ponds on his farm were at times covered with wild geese.

Alexander Karr gave a short address on community spirit in which he urged all those present to get behind the Chamber of Commerce Forward Movement and make this a real city.

Fred Roy presided, and in introducing the speaker of the evening outlined the work of his association. The Peterborough County Fish and Game Association organized five years ago and the purpose in mind was the preservation of our fish and game. Years ago we did not consider it necessary, for there was any amount of fish. I am no howler or extremist, but unless something is done immediately our fish and game will be depleted. I am told pickerel are being taken out of the Otonabee by the ton and it is the purpose of this association to protest to the City Council, the County Council and the Government this destruction of fish. Last year the tourists left $507,000 in this district and this is almost entirely based on fish. Good roads and hotels are necessary, but fish is absolutely necessary to the tourist. I travelled in the United States this summer and I saw jnust as pretty scenery and as good roads and hotels as we have here, but there is no fish or game," said Mr. Roy.

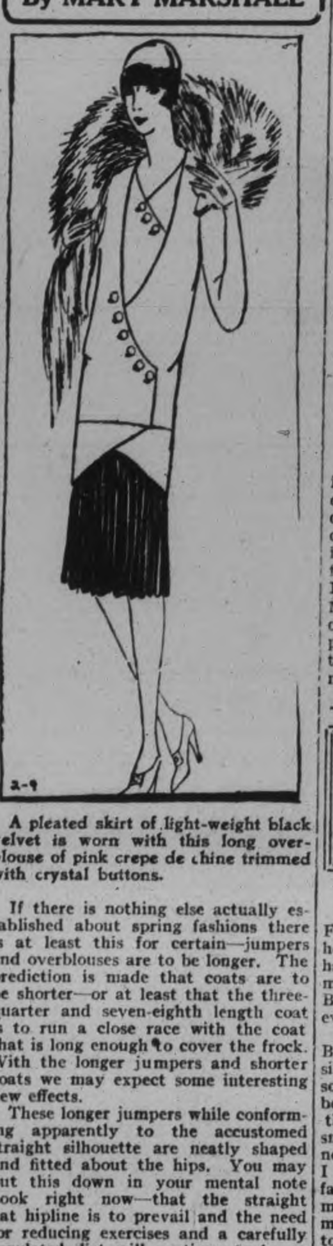
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



A pleated skirt of light-weight black velvet is worn with this long over-blouse of pink crepe de chine trimmed with crystal buttons.

If there is nothing else actually established about spring fashions there is at least this for certain—jumpers and overblouses are to be longer. The prediction is made that coats are to be shorter—or at least that the three-quarter and seven-eighth length coat is to run a close race with the coat that is long enough to cover the frock. With the longer jumpers and shorter coats we may expect some interesting new effects.

These longer jumpers while conforming apparently to the accustomed straight silhouette are neatly shaped and fitted about the hips. You may put this down in your mental note book right now—that the straight flat hipline is to prevail and the need for reducing exercises and a carefully regulated diet will continue to be as great as it has been.

I learned the other day that among the frocks recently chosen by the Queen of Spain from Worth in Paris is one of the new white blue of which you may have heard. Ever since the days of the Empress Eugenie, whose crinolined frocks were made by this dressmaker, European queens have been counted among the Worth clientele.

White blue is a color difficult to describe. I cannot do better than to repeat the definition I heard the other day, comparing it to the color of clear water as it looks in a pure white porcelain bathtub.

Jade green chiffon was the color of the chiffon foundation for a frock recently worn by Mrs. Coolidge at an important evening reception. Over the jade green there was a drapery of silver tissue with a skirt quite full at the sides and ending in a long rounded train at the back.

ENTERTAIN RIVAL PARTIES

Observing a fifty-year custom by titled ladies, whose husbands play important roles in the government of the country of holding lavish receptions on the eve of the opening of the British Parliament, the Marchioness of Londonderry, LEFT, at her palatial Park Lane residence, received "everybody who is anybody" in the Conservative Party. The Tories being in office, representatives of foreign countries in glittering uniforms attended the function, which was the most brilliant since the war. In contrast to this magnificence at humble Victoria Hall, Bloomsbury, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, RIGHT, daughter of the former Premier, received a number of Labor members of Parliament and friends Champagne was replaced at this reception by ale and Scotch soda, while the 60-cent cigars of the Londonderry event wree supplanted by the democratic pipe

SAINT and SINNER

"Oh, what did you do, Cherry?" Faith pleaded, fear surging into her heart again. She started to raise her hand toward that slightly ajar door, motioning Bob and Nils out of earshot. But no—it was better for Nils to know everything—

"I sent one of the stewards to find Bill and I waited for him on a deserted side porch. When he came I made some excuse for wanting to see him before we went into the ballroom, then I—I pretended to be cold and snuggled up with him in a porch chair not big enough for both of us. And I laughed—and—oh, you know!" she faltered, "You've seen me do it—lead men on. You see, Faith, I was determined to enter the ballroom engaged to Bill Warren and to announce our engagement when we unmasked. Bill's an officer in the club. Bill's wife will be in the inmost ring of Shelton and Marlboro society. I—Ithought all I wanted in the world was to make those horrible cats eat dirt. I forgot about Nils, forgot everything until Bill kissed me. And then—then I got so sick that I should have fainted if he hadn't been holding me so close. Then I simply ran away."

Faith had not heard or seen the door being closed, but now it was opened noisily, and Nils' deep, cello-like voice, addressing Bob in tones of hearty good fellowship, came pouring into the living room:

"I'm awfully sorry to have missed Cherry, old man. Suppose I'll have to propose by letter."

During Nils' carefully stage-managed speech, which Cherry had no faintest suspicion was stage-managed, the girl listened with frozen intentness. She was still kneeling beside Faith, but her white, amazed face was turned toward the half-opened door, through which she could see the back of Nils' head, as he talked to Bob, whose hand was on the knob.

Faith thought, as she rose from the couch and signalled Bob to follow her out of the room, that Nils would have made a great actor, for his pretense of delighted surprise at seeing Cherry was absolutely convincing.

"Oh, Nils!" Cherry ran the three steps that separated them and was swung up into his arms.

In the sun parlor, behind the door which had served Nils to such good advantage, Bob and Faith held each other tightly, their eyes misty but alight with laughter. "I'm afraid such superb tact and presence of mind are almost dangerous in a husband," Faith said. Then, in a low voice that trembled a little, she added: "We'll be alone now, and maybe just a little bit lonely until—the boy comes."

"You won't catch me complaining," Bob retorted. "You may not have suspected it, Mrs. Hathaway, but I'm sort of crazy about you!"

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1928.

Benefic aspects rule this day according to astrology, which reads in the stars kindly promise for the next twenty-four hours.

Under this planetary rule the clergy should benefit since it indicates a renewed interest in spiritual matters.

Young as well as old will awaken to a perception of the finer things of life, it is forecast, for world events will encourage serious thought.

The churches should benefit today which is read as unusually good for collections of money.

Large bequests and generous gifts are foretold for hospitals and other institutions founded for human welfare.

Warning is given against indulgence in religious prejudice of any sort, for the stars presage conflict between denominations of differing belief.

Secret organizations will have a part in controversies over church creeds and the growth of temporal power.

Brotherly love should be cultivated in this new year as never before, the seers declare, because events will test civilization.

The evening of this day is not an auspicious time to discuss serious issues, for Neptune is in a place that encourages deceit and even hypocrisy.

The lunation of this month, on the twenty-first—is read as one of the most important lunations of the year and is the precursor of serious trouble for Great Britain, according to astrologers.

Great winds and heavy storms may be expected in the United States next month when earthquakes and tidal waves also are foretold.

The commercial outlook for America indicates amazing prosperity and great increase of foreign trade.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a fairly good year in which they benefit through business enterprise.

Children born on this day probably will be quick in mind and able to make the best use of opportunities.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1928.

Although a malefic aspect is strong on this thirteenth day of the month the planetary influences are not altogether adverse, according to astrology.

Early in the morning women should be successful in public work of every sort, but they should not tempt fate in any manner, later in the day.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

SLAM BANG

When you hear the windows shake,
Hear the rattle of each pane,
When you hear the whole house make
Noises like a railroad train,
Do not think that there's a war,
Do not think some bandit gang
Is breaking down your own front door.
Don't you know? It's just Slam Bang.

When you hear an awful crash,
Upstairs, downstairs, front or back,
When you hear a dish go smash,
When you hear a chair go crack,
When each button, bell and wire
Starts to clatter and to clang,
No, there isn't any fire.
Don't you know? It's just Slam Bang.

Lots of times I read about
Earthquakes where the houses fall,
But I'm oftentimes in doubt
If there was a quake at all.
When you heard the windows shake,
When with noise the whole house rang,
When you felt the whole town quake,
Don't you know? 'Twas just Slam Bang!

(Copyright, 1928, Douglas Malloch.)

The seers foretell many matrimonial experiments in the new year and warn that the stars presage disaster for most of them.

Return to old ideas of loyalty, co-operation and domestic partnership is to become fashionable, the seers prophesy.

Much constructive work is indicated under this planetary government which presages gigantic industrial and commercial enterprises greater than any the world has known.

The direction of the stars favors art and architecture and the year is to be a period of tremendous building enterprises that will make America unique.

Again the seers prophesy that the tide of tourist travel will turn toward America in an amazing manner since the world will be curious to behold the new wonders of the country.

Strange convulsions of nature are to disturb both our eastern and western sea coasts, the English seers forecast.

New and old countries alike will be visited by cataclysms of nature and earthquakes will be widely scattered, it is foretold.

Agriculture will benefit in America by a new form of co-operation among farmers who will be able to conserve their best interests, the seers prophesy.

Astrologers prognosticate that there will be a wave of militarism which will sweep the whole world this new year.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have more enthusiastic appreciation from friends of opposite sex than from employers. They should watch their steps this year.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly attractive and lovable, but they may be too popular for their own good. They should be trained in stability of character.

Havelock Intermediates Defeated 2-0 in Opening Tilt

WHITBY WINS FIRST GAME OF HOME AND HOME SERIES

Both Teams Show Good Brand of Hockey on Soft Ice.

FEW PENALTIES.

Goalies Play Up Well With Clever Work in the Nets.

Wearied from their strenuous series against Lakefield, and entering their third battle of the week, Havelock Intermediates were beaten in Whitby last night by a 2—0 count, yet on the brand of hockey which they dished up and share of the play which they held, the boys from the railroad town were not deserving of the stigma of the brush. The big, barn-like rink was jammed to the doors for this, the first of home-and-home games between the two towns and while the fans saw what they hoped to see—a win for the homesters—the margin by which it came is far from a safe one and the losers went home, satisfied that they will turn the tables in the second encounter here on Monday night.

Goalies Good

The teams were evenly matched and whatever advantage one might have held over the other was lost on the heavy ice that made Whitby's attempted combination very inconsistent and Havelock's individual efforts equally as ineffective. Only the goalies had a chance to shine, and Prentice and Fox handed out most of the thrills of the evening with clever work in the nets. Both handled a host of shots, particularly in the last two periods and the only goals of the evening came as breaks over which Fox had little control. The one in the second period was off Hall's stick from centre ice that he had little reason to expect; the second, a clean drive by Atkinson, who was left uncovered at the blue line fourteen minutes after the start of the final chucker.

The homesters proved a gang of dangerous attackers, from Rice and Hall of the defense to Smith at the pivot position. Bundy, the old war horse, is going strong as ever, while Atkinson on the other rail packs a telling shot. Against this line, Wright showed up well, particularly on his rushes, but his tendency to wander into centre ice territory was taken advantage of; Brennan, leaving the greater share of the rushing to his teammates, except on opportune occasions, camped on Gundy's trail all evening, and did it well. Little Becky Jack took the regular position at centre, due to Pollock having recently been ill. The latter did some effective subbing and between the two, managed to keep that department safe.

McArthur did the relieving on the rearguard where Quinn, also rather under the weather, did short sessions with usual telling effect on the opposition. Hooper, his running mate, was on his very best behavior and went through the entire combat without a session on the bench—which is saying a lot for the big boy. Taken all round, the game was a remarkably clean one; fast, considering the ice conditions, and the teams were well matched. Providing that Brock Street boasts a better sheet on Monday night, the fans will see a real game here on first of week.

First Period

The Railroaders opened the fireworks right at the drop of the hat when Wright and Brennan tested Prentice with a couple of long ones but Bundy did likewise unto Fox, and play went back to the centre territory with neither team having any particular freedom. The Whitby talent showed ambition to work combination quite early in the game and only some close back-checking by the C.P.R.'s kept them away from Fox. There's not much to be said of what followed the next few minutes; rushes from both ends being met by stiff opposition. The rival sharpshooters had to be content with long range attempts until Hall drew the first penalty for dropping Hooper. The visitors were all for capitalizing on their one man advantage and had several shots at Prentice before the miscreant returned.

Brennan was also chased for an accidental trip and it was Whitby's turn to hold the advantage, but they, too, found difficulty in getting through and the period ended without a score.

Second Period

The second chucker started with the Railroaders again taking the offensive, and for almost ten minutes they showed their best hockey of the night.

Wright, Brennan and Jack took up the task with renewed interest and drove nine or ten shots at Prentice, which were cleared slowly.

Then came the break. Play was going along quite as usual, when Hall broke away from his own blue line and took a shot from centre ice. It caught Fox unprepared and the flag went up for the first time. The fans liked that; and said so.

Anxious to get back on even footing, Quinn and Co. went right in and took chances, particularly when a Whitby player was penalized, but somehow Prentice got his eye on the rubber every time, and the period ended with the count 1—0 for the homesters.

Third Period

The Moguls' nearest approach to a tally came a minute after the final stanza had begun. Wright and Jack had gone up together and the former's shot had landed dead on. The rubber dropped at the goalie's feet—a scramble and pile-up followed—but apparently it didn't register with the officials and, featured by close back-checking, the next ten minutes passed before Atkinson grabbed a loose puck, went to the blue line and heaved it at Fox, who had little chance to save. Though this was the final counter, the two teams worked hard for further results, and on several occasions, only the goalies prevented any registering. Quinn was penalized twice for heavy defensive measures, but both outfits seemed to have little good fortune when in close, and the homesters left the ice with only a two-goal lead to carry to Peterborough on Monday next.

The teams:

Havelock. — Goal, Fox; defence, Hooper and Quinn; centre, Jack; wings, Wright and Brennan. Subs., Pollock and McArthur.

Whitby.—Goal, Prentice; defense, Hall and Rice; centre, Smith; wings, Bundy and Atkinson. Subs. Sleightholm and Ross.

Referee—Ernie Collett of Toronto.

Visitors Victors In Winnipeg 'Spiel

WINNIPEG Man., Feb. 11.—Canadian Press. — Visiting curlers competing in the Winnipeg bonspiel, demonstrated yesterday that soft ice conditions are very much to their liking. In the majority of contests to-day the invading teams triumphed despite the fact that ice sheets in most of the clubs were covered by several inches of water.

Ross Harstone of Hamilton, Ont., was one of the few outside rinks to suffer defeat. He was eliminated from the Purity Flour event by H. Macdonald of Winnipeg, 11-7.

Ker Dunlop, St. Paul Minn., met a better fate in this competition by taking a hard fought game from G. Robertson, Hansack, Sask.

Warkworth

WARKWORTH, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Philo Orton of Chicago, Ill., spent a few days recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Smith.

Mrs. Angus McMillan of Walkerville, is spending a few days with Mrs. R. Sloggett.

Mrs. Leon Gooderich and Austa of Brighton are spending a few days with relatives in town.

CONTENDERS FOR SPEED SKATING CHAMPIONSHIP

In the approaching speed skating competition at St. Moritz, Switzerland, February 11-19, inclusive, the ABOVE trio, O'Neill Farrell, United States, LEFT; Charlie Gorman, Canada, CENTRE, and Charles Thunberg, Finland, RIGHT, are expected to be stern contenders for the championship. O'Neill Farrell recently skated in record time at Oslo, Norway, where the American skaters are in training, while Thunberg, a week or two ago, carried off the European championship, beating among others, Everson of Norway, who won the title at the Olympic games for speed skating in 1924. Charlie Gorman defeated Thunberg in the international championship field held at St. Johns, when the Finlander visited this country two years ago. Gorman is a veteran of veterans but that he still possesses much of his speed is shown by the fact that at the Newburgh meet on New Year's day he led the best in the United States and Canada, winning for the second time in succession the mid-atlantic championship. Ross Robinson of Toronto and Willie Logan of St. Johns are Canada's other representatives in the Olympic skating events.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I for 1 am glad this Havelock-Lakefield feud is over for anyway this winter. Seems to be them birds has been playing every other night or so, and it got kinda embarrassing around the house. You know you'd reach for the earflaps and the old bennie and start to edge out toward the door, and the ball and chain would say, "What, going out again?" and you'd murmur something about a hockey match. And she'd say, "What match?" and you'd say, "Havelock and Lakefield," and then she'd look at you like the bank manager does when you're trying to raise a 100 smackers, and say, "Why that game was the other night," and what a tough time it was explaining.

Anyway, Mac, the serious has been wound up, and Mister Barney Quinn's lads is boss for the year, although, believe me, their margin wasn't much to boast about. It took them teams 4 play-off games, 2 weeks, 4 special trains and 3 referees to get a winner, and all that separated them at the end was 1 marker. The fracas here Wed. night was won the 1st five mins. This Mister Wright, Havelock's right-winger, sunk 2 balls right off the reel, and we mighta as well gone home then, for them 2 settled the old hockey game. Only one more gool was bagged after that, and 1 bullet can't naturally beat 2. Everybody was here from both towns, and if they wasn't many counters to get excited over the rival bugs had lots of chances to cheer. The Lakefield fans yelled like Indians every time Mister Quinn or Mister Hooper was tossed for a 3-yard loss, while the lads and lasses from the railway town thought life was worth while whenever somebody stood Mister Johnnie Sabatino up on his ear. The spills drew more applause than the successful shots, and they was a whale of a lot more of them

Which was the best team? somebody asks. You ain't going to get me in no jam over that kinda argument. I got friends in both places. But, Mac, if you want me to pick the best hockey player out there, that's different. This Mister Wright stood out over the whole crowd like a red nose at a W.C.T.U. meeting. There is a boy that knows what it's all about, a shifty puck-carrier, with a fake shot and other stuff, and he packs a nice drive from the boards. And clean, say that bird is as spotless as the young lady in the soap ads. Transplant him into faster company, and I'll tell the world he'd be a mighty handy workman to have out along the boards.

Some of the older customers will remember back in the days when Peterborough used to cut a dash in rugby and championships in that sport wasn't unknown here, that Mister Vic McWilliams used to throw a wicked boot on the Peterborough line-up. The same Dr. McWilliams was 1 of the skips of the Granite Club which win the Ontario Tankard this week, and on behalf of the old brigade, here's our hearty congratulations. "Atta boy, Vic," sez I.

Well, Mac, I see the Olympic Committee has already decided that the world's amateur championship is in the bag for the Grads. Our lads go into the finals playing the winners of the 3 groups, and I'll bet a cookie right now that Mister Joe Sullivan and his pals ain't nearly as nervous as they was a year ago when the Petes held them to a tie in Toronto and they hadda pull the round out by winning right here. They should worry. They ain't going to halfta face even a fair intermediate team over there, and if they wanta exert themselves the Olympic officials'll need a adding machine to get the right total.

I think that's all for now, so toodle-loo, old thing.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS

TOMMY LOUGHRAN SAYS:

In another year I hope to have developed myself into the position of the logical challenger for the heavyweight championship, and even though it may sound egotistical, I expect to win the championship.

In the next year I am going to fight as often as possible and I am going to try to increase my weight, although I feel I do not need many more pounds to get into the heavyweight class. Dempsey didn't weigh much more than I do now when he won the championship from Willard, and Gene Tunney wasn't a giant when he beat Dempsey in Philadelphia.

It seems, though, that the public thinks only a big man should be the challenger and I am young enough to believe that I will come into more weight naturally.

I am not going to desert the light heavyweight class. I intend to give every contender in the class a chance to win my championship, and when the time comes that I may have cleared up every challenger I am sure that the boxing commissions will not make me give up my title to fight as a heavyweight.

I have found that form remains with you only as long as you continue to use it, and I am not going to get rusty waiting for the big chance. I have fought and I think I know him. I also have worked with Dempsey under circumstances that made me know that I could hold my own with a heavyweight.

TIGERS PLAY TO 3-3 COUNT

Homesters Put Up Good Battle in Exhibition Game With Lakefield.

FEW PENALTIES.

Lakefield with hard playing managed to tie the Tigers 3-3 in a very exciting and well-played game at Brock Street Rink last night. There were two penalties, none in the first period but two in the second.

In the first period Lakefield was at the zero mark, with the Tigers two ahead, and in the third Lakefield scored three for the Tigers' one. The Lakefield goalkeeper was caught out of his net in the second period, but as luck happened, no score was made by St. Andrew's.

The teams lined up as follows:

Tigers — Goal, T. Miller; defence, L. Johnston and G. Seabrooke; centre, O. Craig; wings, H. Jay and G. Jay; subs., S. Yeotes, R. Miller, E. Prete.

Lakefield — Goal, D. Dever; defence, O. Abrams and T. Stenner; centre, S. Dever; wings, W. Adamson and H. Jewell.

Referee—E. Northey.

ST. ANDREW'S LOSE OUT.

George Street defeated St. Andrew's 4-0 in a Church League game at Brock Street Rink last night.

The line-ups were:

St. Andrew's — Goal, C. Cadd; defence, H. Dearborn and A. Cox; centre, H. Mowry; wings, G. Breckenridge and J. Richardson; subs., C. Weir, C. Banks.

Referee—J. Sturgeon.

George Street — Goal, T. Miller; defence, A. Bonney (star) and R. Theobald; centre, C. Tuck; wings, C. Heard and J. Bradshaw; sub., H. Allison.

There was one penalty in two periods, A. Bonney for George Street. The first goal for George Street was scored by R. Theobald, the second goal by C. Tuck, and the third and four goals by A. Bonney.

Four good stops were executed in the second period by C. Cadd, the St. Andrew's goal-tender.

PARK STREET WINS 3-1.

Making a lone rush down centre ice in the last frame, Harold Epps tallied the final count for Park Street boys to defeat St. Paul's 3-1 in the final tussle of the Junior Church League series. Both teams were evenly matched and showed a good brand of clean, fast hockey, few penalties being handed out by Referee Johnny Ward. The line-up:

Park Street — Goal, M. Wilson; defence, J. Huggins and R. Killingbeck; centre, H. Epps; wings, C. Palmer and J. Taylor; subs., H. Miller.

St. Paul's — Goal, C. Kearns; defence, D. Snelgrove and H. Chenhall; centre, Gemmell; wings, C. Rose and A. Doughty; subs., M. Bennett, H. Westbrook and R. Stinson.

ROVER.

A very funny and interesting game was introduced by the Punch Press vs. Fitters. This game was originally called rover, because a football and a broom are substituted for puck and stick. There is much excitement for those involved in it. Score 1-1. There are seven players to a line-up:

Punch Press — Goal, F. Wood; defance, L. Feeley and T. Baxter; centre, R. McLennan; wings, M. Baker, H. Bannon, and H. Missen.

Fitters — Goal, F. Wade; defence, G. Graham and G. Miller; centre, R. Taylor; wings, D. Little, Wradley, and J. Marchen.

RULE CHANGES ARE APPROVED

The International Ice Hockey League Adopts Playing Rules of C.A.H.A.

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 11. — Canadian Press.—Practically all recent changes in the playing rules as approved by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association were adopted by the International Ice Hockey League at its annual meeting here yesterday.

The sixty foot defence no off side area will be put into effect for the Olympic Hockey Series which starts to-day. The International League, however, declined to sanction the Canadian rule allowing the kicking of the puck by the defending side behind its own blue line. Neither would they consent to allowing the goalkeeper dropping to his knees to stop the puck.

The United States Amateur Hockey Association is four years behind in dues so the Leaue decided to give them two weeks to pay up or be expelled from membership.

The absence of a United States team in this year's Olympic series has been severely criticized in Europe.

Paul Loicq of Brussels was re-elected president of the league while W. A. Hewitt of Toronto, was chosen for vice-president.

SEPPALA LEADS IN DOG DERBY

Veteran Alaskan Musher Has Commanding Lead Over Emil St. Goddard.

57 MILE RUN.

LACONIA, N.H., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press). — Leonhardt Seppala, veteran Alaskan musher, had a commanding lead over the rest of the field at the end of the first leg of the point-to-point race of the New England Sled Dog Club last night. His seven Siberian huskies loped into this city after a 57-mile run from North Conway with an advantage of 32 minutes and 30 second over the team of greyhounds driven by the youthful Emil St. Goddard from The Pas, Manitoba.

The Alaskan, who won the race a year ago, covered the distance in 5 hours and 19 minutes, while it took St. Goddard 5 hours 53 minutes and 30 seconds. Earl Brydges, another youngster from Manitoba, finished third in 6 hours, 9 minutes and 27 seconds.

It was Seppala's race yesterday after the first 20 miles. Up to that point, St. Goddard had held the lead. But the Alaskan forged ahead at Tamworth and had an 18-minute advantage over his rival at Meredith. From Meredith to Weirs, on Lake Winnipesaukee, he increased his lead to 22 minutes and then added more than 10 minutes to his advantage on the six-mile run from the weirs to the finishing point here.

With the exception of one dog, which had sore paws at the start and wore leather pads as protection against further injury, all of Seppala's dogs were in excellent condition at the finish, and their master was confident that they would be able to maintain a fast pace again today on the 35-mile run from this city to Wolfeboro.

Of the eight drivers who started from North Conway yesterday morning, all but one finished the first day's run. Hi Mason of Tamworth withdrew when he reached his home town after two of his dogs had developed lameness and he had been hopelessly outdistanced.

The standing at the end of yesterday's run follows:

1—Leonhardt Seppala, Alaska	5:19:00
2—Emil St. Goddard, The Pas	5:53:30
3—Earl Brydges, The Pas....	6:09:27
4—Walter Channing, Boston.	6:45:55
5—Shorty Russick, The Pas..	7:18:00

WINTER SPORTS OPEN TO-DAY

Due Ceremony Will Mark Inauguration of 1928 Olympic Events.

WILL HOLD PARADE.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 11—The 1928 Oympics got under way to-day—the opening day of the winter sports competition.

Due ceremony will mark the inauguration of the international athletic rivalry with a winter sports parade as the principal pre-competitive feature.

On the eve of actual competition, the Scandinavian countries ruled favorites to capture a majority of the winter sports laurels. In some events however they are expected to meet with stiff competition from other countries, particularly Canada and the United States.

Canada was an overwhelming favorite to retain the laurels it won in 1924 in hockey. The Dominion representatives the Toronto Grads are rated so high that they have been given the unprecedented honor of being chosen arbitrarily for the finals. The remaining ten nations entered in the hockey competition have been divided into three groups, the winner of each to play Canada in a series of three matches Feb. 17, 18 and 19, with the United States unrepresented; there appears to be no nation capable of extending the Canadians in the finals.

The executive commission of the International Olympic Committee cleared up one dispute surrounding hockey event yesterday when in effect it ruled out the French protest against the make up of Great Britain's team. The French had charged that two Canadians were members of the British aggregation. The committee in its ruling qualified Great Britain for play in the preliminary rounds in which it is entered against France, Hungary and Belgium, until Feb 13. The commission gave no indication of what its final decision would be should the Britons survive this play, which will have been completed by Feb. 13.

The United States is being given an even chance to win in several of the winter sports events. Anders Haugen, the former national champion Rolf Noason and Charles Proctor, present a formidable American front in the ski-jumping contest. Both Canada and the United States have crack entries in the speed skating events, the former being represented by Charlie German and Ross Robinson, and the United States by O'Neill Farrell, Eddie Murphy, Valentine Bialis and Irving Jaffe. Beatrix Loughren of New York, is one of the favorites in the figure skating competition. The United States has one heavy favorite in John Heaton, of New York, entered in the bobsleigh event.

MONTREAL TEAM TO MAKE EARLY START

Batterymen to Report at Stalling's Georgia Plantation on February 23.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP).—If it were possible to get a whole team of French baseball stars, George Stallings and Walter C. Hapgood would like to have them for the Montreal club of the International League. As it is, Bucky Gaudette and Joe Fabre will have to please the French majority in the Canadian metropolis when the International League returns after many years' absence for the opening game there May 2.

Hapgood, in an interview here today, declared Stallings would have a team in the thick of the fight from the first day, and that he expected the new park in Montreal, seating 25,000, would be filled and over-filled more than one day the coming season.

"We are in the best minor league city in the world," said Hapgood. "Montreal is the fifth city in size in North America, which means it is larger than all major league cities excepting New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit. And this great population is as baseball-mad as any city in the world. We have a good team for them and will have a stronger one if money can buy it."

The Montreal players for the most part are veterans of the 1927 Jersey City club. The Skeeters were sold to Montreal and later the Syracuse franchise was sold to Jersey City along with the Rochester players. So there has been quite a juggling of players in the International this winter. The fans will see many new faces.

Stallings will train his pitchers and catchers, as usual, on his great Georgia plantation. These men will go down just after Washington's birthday on February 22 and will put in two weeks of light baseball practice, horseback riding and wood chopping. They will hunt and kill their own quail and partridge and will sit in front of the fireplace in the evening and listen to "Marse George's" ideas of baseball.

The catchers are Thomas Daly, veteran at Jersey City; Joe Hyde of Allentown, just reinstated; and Frank Smith, a Notre Dame athlete.

The pitchers who will help Stallings in the plantation chores are Roy Buckalew, Jersey veteran, and distinguished as the finisher of many games last year; Al. Carlton, signed at Dallas; Jim Chaplin of Jersey; Karl Dunagan, bought from Portsmouth; Chester Falk, bought from St. Louis, and last year with the Buffalo champions; Bob Grody of Brooklyn and Jersey; Kenneth Newton, bought from Manchester, and who has played many semi-professional games at Montreal; Bob McCormick, a youngster of New York; Bob Shawkey, obtained from the Yankees; Leon Williams of Jersey, and Rufus Smith, a southpaw on option from Detroit. He has seen service at Providence and is a college man.

The main squad will train at Jackson, Miss.

In addition to the battery men, there will be Frank Stapleton for first. He was 1927 manager at Bridgeport. He is left-handed in both hitting and throwing. Red Holt may stage a comeback.

At second will be Chick Fewster, hero of many big league battles, obtained from Baltimore. Joe Fabre, a Frenchman, bought from New York, will be at short. He was the pick of the N.Y.P. League last fall.

Chester Fowler will be on third. Cincinnati paid about $15,000 to Minneapolis for this boy. Last year he played at Nashville, but balked on going south again.

In the outfield are Bucky Gaudette, Rabbit Whitman and Joe Shannon, all from Jersey; Tom Gulley, bought from Little Rock, and F. C. Newell, from the Michigan Sandlots.

Mandell Matched Against McLarnin

CHICAGO, Ills., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, will defend his title against Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver sensation, in an outdoor match in Chicago next July, Promoter Jim Mullen announced yesterday.

The time limit on the ultimatum given Mandell by the National Boxing Association has ten days yet to run, but Mandell had given Mullen his promise to defend his crown against any one as early as a month ago.

From the half-dozen challengers named by the N.B.A., Mullen picked McLarnin as the contender best qualified to give the champion a battle, and draw crowds to one of the major ball parks.

Smith Sisters Expected to Give Good Account of Themselves at St. Moritz.

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 10.—Fine style is being shown by the Canadian figure skaters here for the Olympic winter sports which open soon. Miss Maude Eustace Smith and her sister, Cecil, are expected to give a good account of themselves next week. There are 23 entries in the school figure skating event alone. Miss Cecil Smith is being coached by Bror Beyer, noted European teacher.

It will take a total of 20 hours to run off the school figure part of the figure skating events. Of the whole, 60 points will be awarded for school figures and 40 points for free figure skating.

The Swiss Skating Committee has decided to devote Tuesday to the men's single school figures; Wednesday to the ladies', and Thursday morning to the men's free skating, with Thursday afternoon for the ladies' free skating.

United States entrants are not contented with this arrangement, claiming that owing to the number of contestants in all the events there will be a tendency to carelessness on the part of the judges in judging the last participants. They assert that alternating the men's and ladies' contests would lend variety to the competitions, as well as removing any possibility of inequality in judging.

Charles Gorman, of St. John, ace of the Canadian speed skating representatives, has recovered from the inconvenience caused at first by the high altitude of the St. Moritz Olympic rink, and is training with increased vigor and exhibiting better confidence. Experts are more than ever taking him into account in speculations on the results.

Are Favorites.

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 10.—Skiing is a thrilling sport. Imagine a runner coming down seventy yards, gathering speed every moment, on a slope of sixty-five degrees, then taking the jump. Just as a golf ball leaves the tee, he shoots into the air. Below him lies an abyss three hundred yards away at the bottom. He must land on this slope and maintain his balance. He hurtles through the air, the wind singing like shells, flopping his arms like a duck to maintain his balance, and then plunk, he lands on the slope at seventy miles per hour and continues to the finishing post.

I. Ahan says that wind resistance on the jumps is more than three-quarters, the rest being ski fuclin. Dupris took a long jump yesterday, but fell. Putman did not work out after his accident the day before. The Norwegians and Swiss are regarded as favorites for the ski jump.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE IVORY BALL

Out of the igloo, or snow block house, crawled the Bushy Bear. He tramped around in the snow, shaking his shaggy head and looking this way and that way. Uncle Wiggily who, with Eski the North Pole rabbit had come to see if the Bear had awakened from his sleep wondered what was going to happen next.

"Hello there, you two!" growled the now wide awake Bear as he saw Uncle Wiggily and Eski. "Hello there! Have you seen it?"

"Seen what?" asked Uncle Wiggily, wondering why the Bear didn't try at once to have a lunch of rabbit ears. But the rabbit gentleman wasn't very much afraid, for Eski had said he would save Uncle Wiggily from the Bear. Though what Eski was going to do, Mr. Longears didn't know.

"Have you seen it?" growled the Bear again. He wasn't extra polite; was he?

"Seen what, if you please?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"My shadow!" snapped the Bear. "You see it's Candelmas Day and animals like the Ground Hog and me must finish about half our winter's sleep by this time. On Candelmas Day we crawl out of our dens, or wherever we happen to be asleep. I was asleep in that snow house," and the Bear pointed a paw at the igloo.

"Yes, I know you were," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Did you? How?" asked the Bear, who didn't seem to remember that he had chased Uncle Wiggily, Eski and Scooter and that they had gotten away from him. "How did you know I was in there?" asked the Bear. But before the rabbit could answer the shaggy chap went on

"Never mind! You needn't answer. I want to find out about my shadow. You see if I come out, after half my winter's sleep is over, and see my shadow in the sun, I'm supposed to be so frightened that I run back in my den and sleep six weeks more. And spring won't come until I awake again.

"What happens if you don't see your shadow?" asked Eski.

"Well," growled the Bear, "then I'm not frightened, and I go back to my den slowly and I only sleep four weeks instead of six, which makes spring come that much quicker."

"I don't believe anything of the sort!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"Don't you? Well, I'm glad to know that," said the Bear, "for I don't believe it myself. But where is my shadow, anyhow?"

"You haven't any," answered Eski, looking around. "The sun isn't shining, so, of course, there aren't any shadows—yours or ours, either."

"Ha! No shadow!" growled the Bear. "Then I must have some ears to nibble before I go back in my den to sleep four weeks."

He looked hungrily at Uncle Wiggily's ears but before the Bear could take a nibble, Eski jumped in front of the rabbit gentleman and took something from his pocket. I mean Eski took something from his own pocket, not Uncle Wiggily's.

The Eskimo rabbit held in his paw an ivory ball with a hole in it. Fastened to the ivory ball, made from the long tooth, or tusk of a Sea Lion, was a string, and on the other end of the string was a long slender stick of ivory. Eski swung the ball around in the air, but it did not fly away, for the string held it. Then, with a quick toss the North Pole bunny caught the ivory ball on the stick which went into a round hole of the ivory sphere.

"What do you call that?" growled the Bear, forgetting, for the moment, Uncle Wiggily's ears.

"That's a gazinto," said Eski, with a smile.

"A gazinta!" growled the Bear.

"Yes," went on the Eskimo rabbit, "you see the ivory stick goes into the hole of the ivory ball. Goes into—gazinta—it's the same thing," he explained. "Sort of a joke like."

"Oh, I see! Gazinta! Ha! Ha! a good joke!" laughed the Bear. "Let me try it."

So Eski handed the bear the ivory ball and stick, or gazinta as it is called, after an old joke, and the Bear tried to do the trick. But, instead of catching the ball on the pointed ivory stick, the Bear caught the heavy ivory sphere on his paws, rapping his knuckles hard.

"Wowch! Ow! Whoo!" howled the Bear, throwing the gazinta at Eski who cleverly caught it. Then the Bear popped his bruised paw into his mouth to stop the pain and the Eskimo rabbit whispered

"Come on, Uncle Wiggily! This is our chance to get away! I told you I'd save you."

CHARACTER TYPE NEW TO SCREEN IS SEEN IN "THE COUNTRY DOCTOR."

A new hero type, that of a shabby, kindly old physician, portrayed by Rudolph Schildkraut, in the title role of "The Country Doctor," is the newest addition to screen portraits.

The picture is a drama of rural New England life thirty years ago, immortalizing that unsung typically American character—the country practitioner. It is a screen drama by Beulah Marie Dix and will be shown at the Regent Theatre on Monday next.

Under the direction of Rupert Julian, who made "The Yankee Clipper," it is said to rank as one of the greatest rural classics. Julian is noted for his ability to combine human interest with spectacular scenic effects, and according to report he has been given ample latitude for both in this production.

The featured players include Mr. Schildkraut, Sam De Grasse, Junior Coghlan, Gladys Brockwell, Virginia Bradford and Louis Natheaux, the Turkish prince of "Turkish Delight."

THE CURE OF ACIDOSIS

As I explained in a previous article, acidosis simply means a lowering of the blood's alkalinity. The blood should be always slightly alkaline, and anything which reduces this alkalinity below the normal will create a dangerous condition in the system, which makes the body subject to many of the infectious diseases, and also such disorders as diabetes, nephritis, rheumatic fever, and arthritis.

The cure of acidosis is very simple, and depends almost entirely upon changing the diet so that the blood is properly nourished with the basic salts, such as calcium, potassium, sodium, magnesium, iron, and manganese. All of these alkaline elements are found in the non-starchy vegetables, such as the greens and small squashes.

To get the quickest results in building up an alkaline blood reserve, eat plentifully of these foods, and exclude for a time the sugars, starches, fats and proteins. A few days' diet on the cooked and raw green vegetables will bring back the normal amount of alkali to the blood. After perhaps a week of this non-starchy vegetable diet, it is safe to add small amounts of protein, such as an egg daily, and about one-fourth of a pound of lean meat.

For several weeks the denatured starches should be left out of the diet, and no sugar used except that contained in the fruits.

Those who are not adverse to taking a short fast will find that even quicker results will be obtained through taking a fruit fast for a few days. All of the acid fruits contain large amounts of the alkaline salts, and in their reaction are truly more alkaline than acid in their effect upon the blood.

After a few days' fruit fast it is an excellent plan to take the non-starchy vegetables as I have already suggested, after which the proteins may be gradually added.

During the treatment of acidosis large amounts of water should be taken between meals. It is better to use distilled water, as this is more quickly assimilated or absorbed into the tissues and passes through the kidneys with greater rapidity than the ordinary hydrant water.

It would seem to many that the taking of alkalies, such as bicarbonate of soda, would be the proper treatment for acidosis, and, although this treatment does bring about very quick temporary results, it is far better to get the permanent effect which comes from the diet treatment.

The treatment with alkaline remedies maybe condoned during an acute attack of some disease which has come from a neglected acidosis condition, but where one is not acutely sick, it is the best plan to use the treatment with diet which will build a strong blood alkaline reserve and create a strong defense against infectious diseases or those of faulty metabolism.

I have already written another article on acidosis and will gladly send you further information on this subject if you will write to me, care of this newspaper, inclosing a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. R. J. R. writes: "My husband has just had a seige of boils on the back of his neck. I maintain that they are caused from his blood, but he argues that they are infections in the roots of his hair and have nothing to do with the blood. Will you tell us, please.

Answer: You are both right. The boils start from an infection which often enters at the root of a hair. Only a small pimple would result if one's blood were in a clean condition, but where the blood stream is sluggish with morbid material a boil may develop and through more infection spread so that there will be a whole crop of boils from the first infection. To stop them from forming, the blood must first be made pure—the soil in which the germs grow must be removed through a cleansing diet and the stimulation of all of the execratory and eliminative functions.

Question: Reader writes: "Kindly tell me if glucose is found in grapefruit, oranges, or in the small fruits, or in what vegetables, and in what amounts."

Answer: Various forms of sugar are found in all of the fruits—both the so-called acid fruits and the dried of sugar fruits. The amount varies.

Question: M. H. H. writes: "I have some cracking noise in my left knee, being going on for months. Am in my 40's, but hardly think this can have anything to do with it. Kindly advise if there is anything that can be done to stop this cracking."

Answer: The cracking in your knee is caused by something very similar to that which causes rheumatism. A long course of alternate fasting and dieting, with foods to suit your condition, is necessary. Send for special articles on rheumatism.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. And this puzzles Vance when it is found near the strangled body of Margaret Odell. Finger-prints lead to Skeel's arrest, and Vance indicates he believes Skeel was hiding in a clothes closet in the "Canary's" apartment when the murder was committed. Markham, believing in Skeel's guilt, ridicules the theory and Vance's notion that the crime was committed by a man of superior intellect and ingenuity. Vance proceeds to explain how he arrived at his conclusion.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Y' know, Markham," Vance began, in his emotionless drawl, "every genuine work of art has a quality which the critics call elan—namely, enthusiasm and spontaneity. A copy, or imitation, lacks the distinguishing characteristic; it's too perfect, too carefully done, too exact.

"Even enlightened scions of the law, I fancy, are aware that there is bad drawing in Botticelli and disproportions in Rubens, what? In an original, d' ye see, such flaws don't matter. But an imitator never puts 'em in: he doesn't dare—he's too intent on getting all the details correct. The imitator works with a self-consciousness and a meticulous care which the artist, in the throes of creative labor, never exhibits.

"And here's the point: there's no way of imitating that enthusiasm and spontaneity—that elan—which an original painting possesses. However closely a copy may resemble an original, there's a vast psychological difference between them. The copy breathes an air of insincerity of ultra-perfection, of conscious effort. . . . You follow me, eh?"

"Most instructive, my dear Ruskin."

Vance meekly bowed his appreciation, and proceeded pleasantly.

"Now, let us consider the Odell murder. You and Heath are agreed that it is a commonplace, brutal, sordid, unimaginative crime. But, unlike you two bloodhounds on the trail, I have ignored its mere appearances, and have analyzed its various factors—

"I have looked at it psychologically, so to speak. And I have discovered that it is not a genuine and sincere crime—that is to say, an original—but only a sophisticated, self-conscious and clever imitation, done by a skilful copyist. I grant you it is correct and typical in every detail. But there is where it fails, don't y' know. Its technic is too good, its craftsmanship too perfect. The ensemble, as it were, is not convincing—it lacks elan.

"Esthetically speaking, it has all the earmarks of a tour de force. Vulgarly speaking, it's a fake." He paused and gave Markham an engaging smile. "I trust this somewhat oracular peroration has not bored you."

"Pray continue," urged Markham, with exaggerated politeness. His manner was jocular, but something in his tone led me to believe that he was seriously interested.

"What is true of art is true of life," Vance resumed placidly. "Every human action, d' ye see, conveys unconsciously an impression either of genuineness or of spuriousness—of sincerity or calculation. For example, two men at table eat in a similar way, handle their knives and forks in the same fashion, and apparently do the identical things. Although the sensitive spectator cannot put his finger on the points of difference, he none the less senses at once which man's breeding is genuine and instinctive and which man's is imitative and self-conscious."

He blew a wreath of smoke toward the ceiling, and settled more deeply into his chair.

"Now, Markham, just what are the universally recognized features of a sordid crime of robbery and murder? . . . . Brutality, disorder, haste, ransacked drawers, cluttered desks, broken jewel-cases, rings stripped from the victim's fingers, severed pendant chains, torn clothing, tipped-over chairs, upset lamps, broken vases, twisted draperies, strewn floors, and so forth. Such are the accepted immemorial indications—eh, what?

"But—consider a moment, old chap. Outside of fiction and the drama, in how many crimes do they all appear—all in perfect ordination, and without a single element to contradict the general effect? That is to say, how many actual crimes are technically perfect in their settings? . . . None! And why? Simply because nothing actual in this life—nothing that is spontaneous and genuine—runs to accepted form in every detail. The law of chance and fallibility invariably steps in."

He made a slight indicative gesture.

"But regard this particular crime: look at it closely. What do you find? You will perceive that its mise-en-scene has been staged, and its drama enacted, down to every minute detail—like a Zola novel. It is almost mathematically perfect. And therein, d' ye see, lies the irresistible inference of its having been carefully premeditated and planned.

"To use an art term, it is a tickled-up crime. Therefore, its conception was not spontaneous. . . . . And yet, don't y' know, I can't point out any specific flaw; for its great flaw lies in its being flawless. And nothing flawless, my dear fellow, is natural or genuine."

Markham was silent for a while.

"You deny even the remote possibility of a common thief having murdered the girl?" he asked at length; and now there was no hint of sarcasm in his voice.

"If a common thief did it," contended Vance, "then there's no science of psychology, there are no philosophic truths, and there are no laws of art. If it was a genuine crime of robbery, then, by the same token, there is no difference whatever between an old master and a clever technician's copy."

"You'd entirely eliminate robbery as the motive, I take it."

"The robbery," Vance affirmed, "was only a manufactured detail. The fact that the crime was committed by a highly astute person indicates unquestionably that there was a far more potent motive behind it.

"Any man capable of so ingenious and clever a piece of deception is obviously a person of education and imagination; and he most certainly would not have run the stupendous risk of killing a woman unless he had feared some overwhelming disaster—unless, indeed, her continuing to live would have caused him greater mental anguish, and would have put him in greater jeopardy, even than the crime itself.

"Between two colossal dangers, he chose the murder as the lesser."

Markham did not speak at once: he seemed lost in reflection. But presently he turned and, fixing Vance with a dubious stare, said:

What about that chiseled jewel-box? A professional burglar's jimmy, wielded by an experienced hand, doesn't fit into your esthetic hypothesis—it is, in fact, diametrically opposed to such a theory."

"I know it only too well." Vance nodded slowly. "And I've been harried and hectored by that steel chisel ever since I beheld the evidence of its work that first morning. . . . Markham, that chisel is the one genuine note in an otherwise spurious performance. It's as if the real artist had come along at the moment the copyist had finished his faked picture, and painted in a single small object with the hand of a master."

"But doesn't that bring us back inevitably to Skeel?"

"Skeel—ah, yes. That's the explanation, no doubt; but not the way you conceive it.

"Skeel ripped the box open—I don't question that; but deuce take it!—it's the only thing he did do; it's the only thing that was left for him to do. That's why he got only a ring which La Belle Marguerite was not wearing that night. All her other baubles—to wit, those that adorned her—had been stripped from her and were gone."

"Why are you so positive on this point?"

"The poker, man—the poker! . . . Don't you see? That amateurish assault upon the jewel-case with a cast-iron coal-prodder couldn't have been made after the case had been pried open—it would have had to be made before.

"And that seemingly insane attempt to break steel with cast-iron was part of the stage-setting. The real culprit didn't care if he got the case open or not. He merely wanted to look as if he had tried to get it open: so he used the poker and then left is lying beside the dinted box."

"I see what you mean." This point, I think, impressed Markham more strongly than any other Vance had raised; for the presence of the poker on the dressing table had not been explained away either by Heath or Inspector Brenner. . . . "Is that the reason you questioned Skeel as if he might have been present when your other visitor was there?"

"Exactly. By the evidence of the jewel-case I knew he either was in the apartment when the bogus crime of robbery was being staged, or else had come upon the scene when it was over and the stage-director had cleared out. . . . From his reactions to my questions I rather fancy he was present."

"Hiding in the closet?"

"Yes. That would account for the closet not having been disturbed.

"As I see it, it wasn't ransacked, for the simple and rather grotesque reason that the elegant Skeel was locked within.

"How else could that one clothes-press have escaped the rifling activities of the pseudo-burglar? He wouldn't have omitted it deliberately, and he was far too thoroughgoing to have overlooked it accidentally.—Then there are the finger-prints on the knob. . . ."

Vance lightly tapped on the arm of his chair.

"I tell you, Markham, old dear, you simply must build your conception of the crime on this hypothesis, and proceed accordingly.

"If you don't, each edifice you rear will come toppling about your ears."

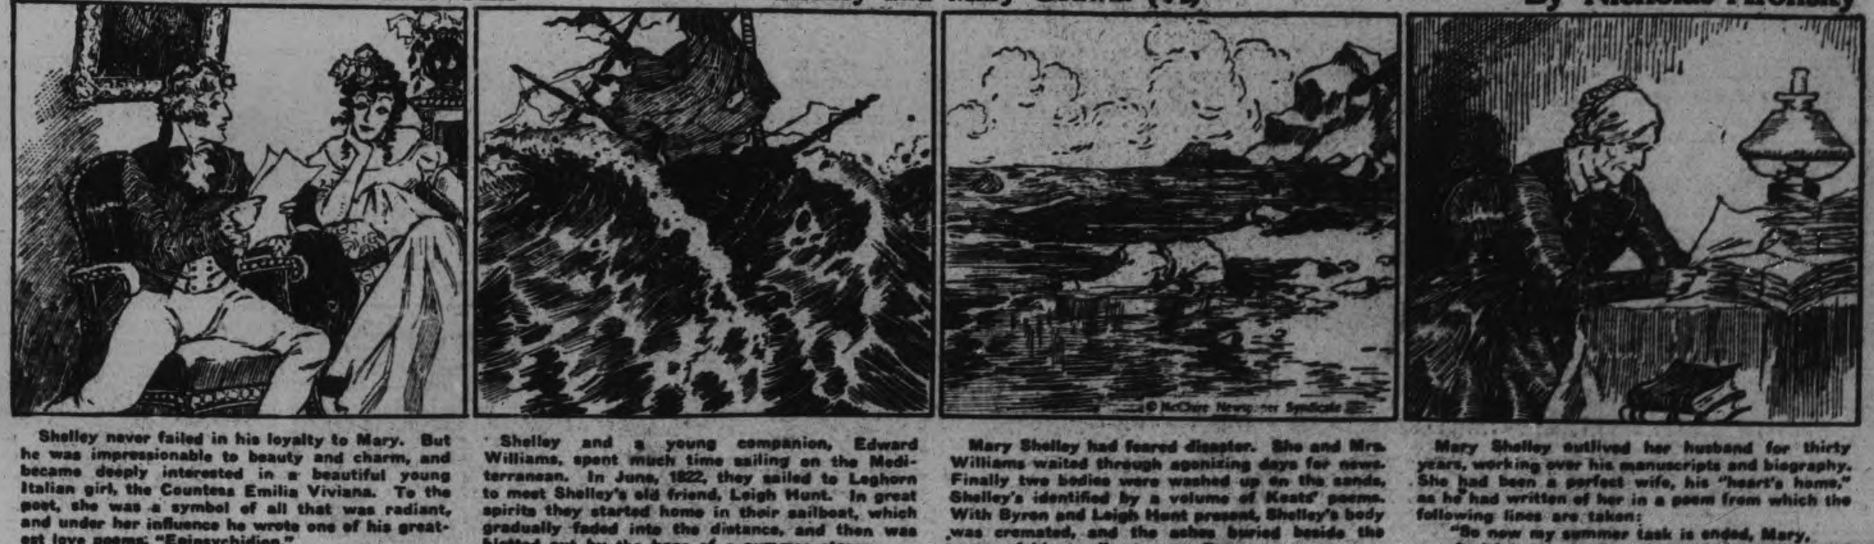
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES

Shelley and Mary Godwin (VI)

By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Shelley never failed in his loyalty to Mary. But he was impressionable to beauty and charm, and became deeply interested in a beautiful young Italian girl, the Countess Emilia Viviana. To the poet, she was a symbol of all that was radiant, and under her influence he wrote one of his greatest love poems, "Epipsychidion."

Shelley and a young companion, Edward Williams, spent much time sailing on the Mediterranean. In June, 1822, they sailed to Leghorn to meet Shelley's old friend, Leigh Hunt. In great spirits they started home in their sailboat, which gradually faded into the distance, and then was blotted out by the haze of a summer storm.

Mary Shelley had feared disaster. She and Mrs. Williams waited through agonizing days for news. Finally two bodies were washed up on the sands, Shelley's identified by a volume of Keats' poems. With Byron and Leigh Hunt present, Shelley's body was cremated, and the ashes buried beside the grave of his small son near Rome.

Mary Shelley outlived her husband for thirty years, working over his manuscripts and biography. She had been a perfect wife, his "heart's home," as he had written of her in a poem from which the following lines are taken:

"So now my summer task is ended, Mary,
And I return to thee, mine own heart's home."

The Dugout

(By J.R.H.)

Here's a guy named "C.O.S.B.P.O." wants to horn in, but any bird that talks under a name like that should be put on K.P. duty instead. Maybe you'll recognize his line—he's one of the best-known guys in Peterborough and we welcome him to the Dugout.

"I've been watchin' you Dugout guys fer the past few nights an' fer the life of me I don't know how yer manage to get away with the rough stuff you pulls off. Not that I'm complaining, mind yer. I ain't that kind o' guy.

But settin' all jokin' aside, it ain't so bad, is' it? 'What ain't so bad?' says you. Why yer old Dugout news.

I was goin' over some of me old souvenirs the other day—do you ever do it, pals? Each one brings back memories like a book and they don't all smell of powder, either."

What kind of powder, soldier? This is a stag party, and if you are going to drag in any old love stories, with clinging face powder as a background, we'll fade you, quick. What do you say? Oh! All right! Go ahead with you spiel.

"Well! I comes across an old carte postale all worked out in colored silks with crossed flags and the inscription says: "To my dear Swetnard." I got it in one of those little magasins which the troops used to frequent what they used call a Bibliotheque or Librairie or something—in a little base town.

I nsent it to the missus, but somehow she didn't understand at first that 'Frenchy's' English spellin' was as bad sometimes as my French.

Anyway! what's this stuff about the Legion you're shooting every night? You don't mean ter say there's a billet in town with a real live canteen where us fellows can get tergether?"

Pipe down on the rough stuff, Mac; I don't want to disappoint you. This is a DRY canteen the Legion advertises, so I don't suppose you would be interested.

"Where's that you say—Rue de la Murray? Well, I pass it every day and ter think I've never breezed in on the gang.

Come to think of it, it's not to late to join yer party now. Not that my company's much, but yer can never tell for I could always 'grouse' as good as the next feller. Anyway, I can keep a seat warm, an' some guys I know are so cold they couldn't do that."

Well, who the heck are you, anyhow? You sound tray zig-zag.

"Yer ask, Who I am? Well I ain't an 'Iron Second,' although that wasn't my fault. 'No alibis,' says you.

Neither was I one o' them 'Coming of Agers.' Now, I got yer guessing. Well! let me see; what was I—well I don't know meself sometime.

On the parade state they listed be a little better than a mule—an 'Other Rank.'

'Then I got a stand in—I shined the Sergeant-Major's buttons for him and they gave me in return some of them crooked things—frogs' legs or stripes—whatever it was yer called them."

Shut up, over in the corner there. This guy has the floor, even if he is a kiss-me-sergeant disciple.

"Then I got a whole lot more stuff, until there wasn't room fer more. So one day they says to me 'Here! we're going to start you all over again,' an' then they starts givin' me—what yer calls 'em pips—but Heinie calls has to butt in, gets scared like, and calls the scrap off.

That ended it or I guess I might have been by now an admiral or a general or something."

Ya! You might have been something! Even coal shovelers had a title in the army—"Shovel, coal, ordinary, mark 6A." Likely you were one of A.S.C. guys—Angels Seeking Cover. If you won't tell us who you were—tell us, Who you are.

"Yer wants to know who I am —suppose I call meself

C.O.S.B.P.O.

Anyone guess what that means?" And there you are, gang. Who wants the job, anyhow? I've tried to keep you from beating up this gink in the hope that he would say something—

Who threw that brick?

EXPERTS SKEPTICAL ABOUT RETIREMENT

Flynn, However, Believes Dempsey Serious About Quitting Ring For Good.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—If William Harrison Dempsey intended his retirement announcement as the prize joke of 1928, he has scored a bullseye.

It was the biggest fight story of the past week, the most important of many months, and yet it strikes this city as so incredible that it is being taken humorously.

In local fight circles it has been the biggest laugh in years. New York has pronounced it a preposterous combination of stale applesauce, unbelievable hookum and plain soft hooey.

Nine out of ten professional boxing men regard the alleged retirement as a necessary stage setting for the first championship match of 1928.

The writer has talked to men who should pass as authorities, managers like Leo P. Flynn, Jimmy Johnston, Billy McCarney, Joe Jacobs, Bill Duffy, Joe Smith and others.

Flynn Believes It.

These men are almost unanimous in scoffing at the tale.

The only notable exception is Flynn, who really believes that the sight in one of Dempsei's eyes was injured in the Chicago fight. Flynn testifies that he noticed Dempsey did not appear to see with one eye for two days after the fight. Flynn was Dempsey's manager, and was closer to him than anyone.

On the other hand, Bill Duffy was one of Dempsey's trusted advisors in that fight, and served as one of his seconds. Bill is willing to bet $5,000 that Dempsey fights Tunney again next September.

The remainder of the fight mob regards the fade-out as a large load of horsefeathers.

Has Retired Often.

The Man Mauler has shouted "Wolf" once too often. He has announced his retirement at least five times in the past six years. He retired after Carpentier; he retired after Firpo; he retired again when he broke with "Doc" Kearns; he retired after Tunney took the title, and now he must save his eyesight.

The fact remains that so long as there are $400,000 purses Jack Dempsey can find ways and means for spending them.

Summed up after several days of discussion, the reasons for his sudden infirmity seem to be these:

1—John Public will not accept anything as a heavyweight championship bout unless Dempsey is one of the principals. It was necessary for Jack to become disabled in order to have Tunney's appearance in June taken seriously.

2—Tex Rickard was placed in a better strategic position in dealing with Tunney by holding back Dempsey until September. Dempsey will not fight for anyone but Rickard, and Tunney cannot fight for anyone until he first fights for Rickard. If Tunney insists on fighting twice this year, Rickard has him at his mercy. Tunney realizes he will make twice as much fighting Dempsey as he will fighting anyone else.

3—Tunney, weary of being played down while Dempsey was being played up, insisted on Jack's temporary removal from the limelight.

DOMINION LIFE ANNUAL REPORT

All Previous Records Broken—Over $100,000,000 of Life Insurance in Force.

Those interested in The Dominion Life Assurance will be gratified by the results attained as shown in the statement presented at the annual meeting of the policyholders and shareholders of the Company held at Waterloo on February 10th, when Mr. Ford S. Kumpf, the Managing Director, presented the company's report for the year.

Considerable progress in every department was evident from the information contained in the report, and from Mr. Kumpf's address. The total of business applied for during 1927 was the greatest in the company's history, amounting to $26,028,716, an increase of practically $3,000,000 over the previous year.

The Company earned a higher rate of interest, namely 7.15 per cent on its investable assets; increased its assets by $3,051,673.40, which now amount to $18,890,284 and paidp rofits amounting to $374,658 to its policyholders during the year, in addition to having increased policyholders' surplus funds by $259,256.11. Policyholders' surplus funds amounted to $2,090,421 at the end of the year.

The total income of $4,566,290.32 for the past year including premium, investment and other receipts, represent an increase of $542,128.37 over 1926. At the same time the expense ratio showed a considerable reduction in spite of the fact that much attention was given to the development of new organization during the year, particularly in the Province of Quebec.

THE STRONGHOLD OF WINTER SPORTS

The story is told of a well-known Toronto insurance man who with his wife went to Quebec for the winter sports, neither of them going outside the hotel once until they left. While their friends find a great deal of humor in the fact, they unconsciously pay great tribute to the "Chateau Frontenac." There is usually so much to see and do inside this hospitable hostelry that there are no dull moments for any guest who chooses to remain within its turreted walls, but for those who would rather participate in the outdoor amusements, every facility is provided in the way of personal attention and real equipment and comprehensive programs are arranged by the sports director to take advantage of the conditions and exigencies of the day.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

The reason why some who prefix the word "Reverend" to their name, do not preach the resurrection truth is—the position they take positively denies this glorious truth.

They teach that man, who is a living soul, does not die, but that when he is dead, he is consciously alive either in a place of happiness or in a place of torment.

A dead man or a dead soul could by the power of Almighty God be resurrected or made alive again; but the idea of making a man or a living soul alive, who is already alive is utterly absurd.

It is quite apparent the "Reverends" cannot preach Satan's lie—"thou shalt not surely die" and preach the resurrection truth at one and the same time, for the preaching of the one is a flat contradiction of the other.

It is a question why men with ordinary intelligence continue preaching "Satan's lie." Some say they do so for sordid monetary considerations. The writer is compelled to believe it is done by many through ignorance, and also through the instigation of Satan himself. It is to be deplored that men who know of the error, continue to preach it for mere personal gain. It is supremely the best to be truthful and honest even though it may mean scarcity of food and plain raiment. The humble, honest hungry soul has a right to hear the truth.

Farewell for the present, farewell,
The long looked for glory is near;

When Jesus our Lord will appear."

WHAT A GAME IT WILL BE

When Havelock Meets Whitby in Brock Street Rink on Monday Night.

Havelock lived up to its reputation of being a better team this year than last by holding the fast Whitby Intermediate Team to a two-goal lead at Whitby last night. Whitby put Lindsay out, so they must have some class at that.

What a crowd will be on hand Monday to see the game. If Havelock wins this play-off there will be another series of games and no rival fan has enjoyed the games between Havelock and Lakefield more than the locals, who have had very little to enthuse over locally.

OBITUARY

JOHN RIDDELL.

At an early hour this morning there passed away an old and highly respected citizen of Peterborough in the person of the late John Riddell. He was born in South Monaghan in 1840. His parents were among the first settlers of that township. He was well acquainted with the struggles of the early settlers. He remembered the introduction of the present school and municipal systems. He was chosen by the ratepayers as Councilman, and then as Reeve for several years.

He worked as a carpenter for some time, but agriculture was what he engaged in most of his life. He was superintendent of Bensfort Sunday School for many years, and was exceedingly zealous for the welfare of that part of the Master's cause. The Baptist Church at Bailieboro had in him a loyal and liberal supporter during his residence in that township. He was secretary of the South Cavan and South Monaghan Bible Society for years.

Mr. Riddell was a staunch Liberal in politics and a warm friend of every organization that had for its object the welfare of the community. He married Miss Elizabeth Smithson, who predeceased him several years ago. When the activities of farm life became too strenous for him, he moved to Peterborough. His outdoor activities here were confined to gardening. His indoor pleasure was in reading. Up till very lately he was a well-known figure on the Market Square every Saturday forenoon. He was the last member of the original Riddell family. Two nephews and two nieces are resident in Winnipeg.

Since the death of Mrs. Riddell he has made his home with Mrs. Harold Baptie, 625 Water Street. Funeral services from Comstock's Funeral Home on Monday afternoon at one o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist Church.

Overheated pipes at 147 Hunter Street East caused the fire brigade a run at 12.03 p.m. Friday. Prompt attention prevented any serious damage.

Something quite out of the ordinary was to be seen in the windows of White's Cycles and Sports Store on Charlotte Street West, this morning. Perched on a cross bar in a roomy box was a large horned owl who (not Hoo Hoo) had been captured by M. Carl of Springville. The big fellow squatted with eyes closed, occasionally turning his head, but openly disgusted with this "publicity stuff." The youngsters found him quite interesting.

With the opening this morning of the new Eaton Store, George and Simcoe Streets, large crowds of customers and many people "just shopping" passed through the doors. A large staff of workmen had succeeded in putting the store in order after a thorough renovation during the past few days.

The members of the Women's Guild of All Saints' Church met at the home of Mrs. H. Strickland, 502 Murray Street, on Thursday afternoon, and held their regular business session, followed by the service of refreshments.

IN POLICE COURT

Harold Gibbs, when arraigned in Police Court this morning before Justice of the Peace Frank Adams, on a charge of selling liquor within the last ninety days, pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until Tuesday for trial. Bail was fixed at two securities of $500 each. Chief Newhall told The Examiner that the Gibbs case was the commencement of a clean-up campaign against those in this city who are trying to revive the old bootleg system. V. J. McElderry appeared for the prisoner.

Veterans Honor Former Chieftain

Legion Members And Others Attend Memorial Service

All Saints' Church Crowded With Soldiers and Civilians For Final Tribute To War-Time Leader—Simple Service Held.

SERMON BY REV. J. DOUGLAS PATERSON RECALLS CAREER OF GREAT SOLDIER

Peterborough's war veterans and citizens filled All Saints' Anglican Church to capacity yesterday afternoon for the memorial service to Field-Marshal Earl Haig of Bemersyde. Not since the war have the citizens of this city seen such a large parade of returned men who turned out to honor the memory of their old Commander-in-Chief. The service was most simple, being conducted by Rev. J. D. Paterson, the rector.

All the organizations in the city were represented somewhere in the parade. The City Council was out in a body, members of the Board of Education were present, and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion occupied the front seats on one side of the church.

It was a fitting service to him who had risen from the ranks to become the leader of his country in the hour of need, and who was honored and respected by the men and the citizens of a thankful Empire.

In the chancel of the church sat the City Council, representatives from the Board of Education, and E. A. Peck, M.P. All Saints' choir led the singing, and the orchestra accompanied the organ. In the front seat sat leaders of the Canadian Legion and others who have guided the destinies of the returned men for the last ten years. Behind the altar the Union Jack was hung, which with the white and black on the altar made a most suitable background. The 57th Band in their red uniforms added the only military touch to the service.

As the veterans marched into the church the organ pealed forth Chopin's "Marche Funebre," and when all were seated the band struck up "The Dead March in Saul." While they played that immense throng stood with bowed heads, many of them thinking of their late Field Marshal and Commander-in-Chief, who was loved by every soldier. Then followed the old funeral hymn, "Hush, blessed are the dead. The minister read portions of Scripture giving promise of the life after the grave. Psalm 90 was sung and then ex-Mayor J. J. Turner, in the absence of Judge Huycke, read a portion of Scripture, Ecclesiasticus 44: 1-15, where the prophet pays tribute to the great men who had passed. Mrs. G. F. Liddle, accompanied by Mr. Liddle on the organ, sang "O Rest in the Lord." Rev. J. W. Gordon read the lesson from the New Testament, the second chapter of II. Thessalonians.

"Abide With Me," that old favorite of the deceased, was then sung and the minister led in prayer. "Forever with the Lord" was sung. Following the sermon the choir sang "What are these," then followed prayers for the King, for the Empire, for world peace, and the benediction. The band played the National Anthem, and the service closed by all singing "Onward Christian Soldiers."

With the guard of honor in front composed of the scout and veteran standard bearers and the Union Jack on the altar behind, Rev. J. D. Paterson delivered a most eloquent address for the occasion. In commencing he expressed sorrow that His Honor Judge Huycke was unable to be present on account of sickness in the family, and promised to send to the Judge the sympathy of the large congregation at this time.

He took his text from St. John 1: 47, "Jesus saw Nathaniel coming to him and saith of him, Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile." He used the last few words as the setting for his discourse.

"It was always a great joy to our Lord to praise those who are worthy of praise. He had an appreciative eye and voice. He recognized the good features in the character of all men, finding virtue where others saw only vice. We can well believe that part of his ministry was to seek out the good in men and bring it to the notice of his fellows by words of praise. Instances of this crowd our memories. Of John the Baptist he said: "Verily I say unto you among them that are born of women there hath not arisen a greater than John the Baptist." upon St. Peter he bestowed the gracious words: "Blessed are thou Simon Bar-Jona, thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church," of the faith of the Roman official he

CAMPAIGN IN THIRD WEEK

All Preparations For the Final Drive Are Well Advanced.

TEAMS LINING UP.

Monday was the beginning of the third week of preparation for the intensive campaign on the part of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce in its reorganization and finance campaign. Last week was what might be termed Educational Week. Dr. Alexander Karr, the director, delivered thirty four addresses during the week. He created so much interest that he was requested by Secretary Frank Stinson to remain over a few days this week. Mr. McKeen, the campaign director, succeeded in having the request complied with by the American City Bureau.

As a climax to the educational work of the campaign a mass meeting has been arranged for Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th at eight o'clock, at the Legion Hall to which every citizen of Peterborough and the country round about is invited. Both Dr. Karr and Mr. McKeen will speak. "The Siamese Twins of Community Development" is Dr. Karr's subject. Mr. McKeen will discuss your Community in Revolution."

In commenting on this meeting for Tuesday night, President Gillespie said: "I am of the opinion that this will be one of the most important discussions of our community problems held in recent years, and should be heard by farmer, laborer, business man and manufacturer.

The majors are lining up their captains for the important work of making solicitation visits Feb. 20-24. The campaign will start off Tuesday morning at 7.30 o'clock, with an Early Bird breakfast at the Empress when final instructions will be given the team workers.

In the meantime the office staff is preparing the prospect list, a committee is analyzing it carefully and several prominent business and professional men are working upon the Activities Committee.

In commenting on the campaign this morning to The Examiner Mr. McKeen, the director said: "So far everything has gone very satisfactory. The newspaper has done its share, and more; the office detail is up to date, the Educational work under Dr. Karr, has gone splendidly. He has spoken 34 times to about 3500 people. The people are discussing the campaign in their homes, business offices, stores, the schools, and in the rural communities. As I see it now all that is necessary for the campaign to reach a successful conclusion is for the men of the town to give General Chairman J. J. Turner, Activities Chairman James Dutton, and G. A. Gillespie and Colonel J. Wells Fraser, the support they need. The campaign is now up to the leadership of the community. Neither they nor we can do the soliciting without assistance. Messrs. Lacheur and Graham are organizing their captains among the Kiwanians and Rotarians. The third group will probably be led by members of the Chamber of Commerce executives.

Now You Tell One

Some people gets all the breaks. A fellow named Jones recently crossed an egg-plant with a sunflower and got one million dollars, while it used to be that when a man crossed the street with a case of liquor he got sixteen months.

PETERBOROUGH WAR MEMORIAL

Many additions have been made in the last few days to the list of names for Peterborough's War Memorial, and besides those sent in by interested friends, Examiner reporters have gathered dozens from church war memorials and the records of many fraternal organizations. These have not all been examined yet, and those in charge are requested to assist the reporters in their search for names not included in the list.

The work has assumed proportions undreamed of when it was taken over by The Examiner staff, and so much has now been done that it would be a pity to allow the opportunity to pass without perfecting the task. In order to assure success, it will be necessary for every person who has any authentic knowledge of Peterborough County or City men who were killed in, or died as a result of, the Great War, to examine the list carefully and make such corrections as are necessary. Whether it is decided to include the names on the memorial or not, this list will be included in The Examiner records, and will be very valuable indeed in future years.

The following additions have been made to the City list: James Herbert English, Sidney Veness McCabe, Walter Everett Dixon, William Harold Scollie, Thomas Cable, Ernest Smith, Walter Waldron Elliott, Edward MacFarlane, Arthur Stuart Anderson, George H. Collins, Fred Stevens, John Charles Smith, James Newhall, Leroy Chambers, Everettt Laing, Willis Crocker, Percy T. Cooper, Bruce R. Hawkins, J. Howard Rowe, Norman Hartshorn, Bert Target, A. H. Martin, Hiram Stewart, Bruce Edwards, James Weslie.

There have been added to the County list: Robert Arthur Leeper, Burritt Bell.

The following corrections have been made in the City list: Harry G. Edminson, corrected to Harry Gardiner Edmison, G. VanNorman corrected to George Van Norman, Harold Fred Hill corrected to Harold Frederick Hill, Joseph H. Locey corrected to Harold Joseph Locey, Robert R. Elliott corrected to Russell Robert Elliott, T. W. Hardman corrected to Thomas William Hardman, R. E. Donaldson corrected to Robert Esplin Donaldson, George W. Finnie corrected to George Walter Finnie

The following corrections have been made in the County list: W. McManus corrected to Walter McManus, Patrick J. Fitzgerald corrected to Patrick Joseph Fitzgerald, H. Mather corrected to Harry Mather, D. Tear corrected to David Tear, W. Hope corrected to William Hope, Wellington McMorton to Wellington McNorton.

Information as to Christian names is required of two soldiers named Hayden and Leahy; surnames only appearing on the list.

Will someone please give information whether "Harold William Scollie" is a substitution for "Harold J. Scollie," or whether this is another soldier?

SCOUTS AND CUBS GIVEN FLAGS WHICH ARE THEN DEDICATED

Fifth Peterborough Troops and Pack Given Union Jack and Colors.

AT ALL SAINTS'.

Story of David and Goliath Basis of Helpful Lesson Given Boys in Sermon.

A Union Jack, a Boy Scout Flag, and a Wolf Cub Flag, were presented to the Fifth Peterborough (All Saints') troop and pack yesterday morning before the morning service, and dedicated at that service in a short but impressive ceremony.

There was a full turn out of the scouts and cubs of the Fifth, with visitors and friends.

The Union Jack, the gift of District Commissioner J. J. Turner, was presented by him. Mr. Turner impressed upon the boys in his few remarks the lessons of bravery, purity and truth taught by the three colors of the flag, and urged them to be loyal to their country and king. The flag was received by Patrol Leader Garry Johnston.

President J. John of the Peterborough Scout Association was the donor of the Troop flag a green banner, bearing the Boy Scout insignia, and troop name and number in gold. Patrol leader, Fred Parsons received it.

The Wolf Cub Pack of yellow, with the emblem and motto of the Cubs, and the name and number of the pack in green, was presented by the Men's Club of All Saints' church, through the president, Charles Wiggins. It was accepted on behalf of the pack by Sixer Earl Hope.

Flags Dedicated.

The boys then paraded from the parish hall to the church, where the dedication took place and where the colors will remain until a suitable place is pepared for the scout quarters. The lesson, read by Commissioner Turner, was the story of David and Goliath, and the sermon by the rector, the Rev. J. D. Paterson, was based on the same subject.

Calling attention to the fact that the last official act of the late Field Marshal Earl Haig had been the review of the Earl Haig's Own Troop of Boy Scouts Mr. Paterson remarked on the coincidence that the first official act of the troop after receiving its new colors, would be to parade at the Earl Haig memorial service to be held in the church yesterday afternoon. He dedicated the colors, praying that where ever they might be displayed and followed there should be shown loyalty to God and the king.

Mr. Pateson in commencing his sermon declared that in the minds

Sarnia Resident Burned By Acid

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 13 (Canadian Press).—John C. Hampton, a former alderman, received painful acid burns on the face while at his work at the Imperial Oil Refinery Saturday, and although his eyes were badly swollen and caused considerable pain during the night, it is believed that his sight would not be affected. Mr. Hampton was working at a pump in the acid department and when a valve was opened there was a rush of acid which caught him in the face.

A pocket of air was believed to have caused the outrush of acid.

He was given first aid treatment and then taken to his home at 265 South Mitton Street.

NEW FORD COUPE NOW ON DISPLAY

Handsome and Comfortable Model Reaches Local Agency.

The new Ford coupe, that mystery model of Henry Ford's new cars, made its appearance in this city this morning when it was put on exhibition in Hood and Cumming's new garage. The car, without doubt, is the best of the new models exhibited so far. It is well balanced, of a very attractive color, the seat is most comfortable, and the windows are such that a man when motoring can drive with ease. The gear shift lever can be moved to either side against the panel so that a driver can get out on the opposite side without having to put his feet over the lever. There is plenty of room in the back, and with very little changing a rumple seat can be installed. The price quoted is $740, which includes everything.

The only reliable news on Ford cars is to be obtained solely from or through Ford dealers, and Hood and Cumming will be glad to give everyone in this district, on inquiry, as full information at any time as they have in their possession.

MINE OFFICERS FINALLY ISSUE STORY OF FIRE

Statement Says 29 Bodies Have Been Brought Out So Far.

SILENCE CONDEMNED.

Timmins Paper Charges That Relatives of Dead Men Were Kept in Dark.

TIMMINS, Feb. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—An official statement issued from the Hollinger mine this afternoon said that up to 1.30 p.m. twenty-nine bodies had been recovered, five others were known to be dead, and five miners were missing.

In a special edition issued to-day the Timmins Citizen comments on what it terms a "source of aggravation," reference being to the reluctance of Hollinger officials to make any definite statement on the disaster. The paper charges that, while the "Hollinger mine has always had a reputation of elusiveness, the feature was overworked this week end, when it actually held back reports which might have been given had things been more thoroughly organized." Continuing, the Citizen said: "This is not hearsay. Even the deaths could have been reported Saturday night, yet the relatives were kept in ignorance of the fate of their loved ones. This was true even at Sunday noon, when yet no official news came from the powers that be."

According to this local paper, "the veil of secrecy was drawn across the atmosphere very shortly after the arrival on the scene of the general managers. The entire staff from the top down acted mum and on the sight of a reporter or news craving citizen closed up like the proverbial clam."

Up to noon to-day no official statement had been issued at the mine, although Noah Timmins, president of the company, last evening promised this would be forthcoming to-day.

To-day workers succeeded in sending two more bodies to the surface, those of P. Hede and M. Swythy. Coroner Montgomery expressed the opinion that the remaining bodies would be found during the day and brought to the surface. He said there was no possibility that any of the miners would be found alive. Two of the victims recovered early this morning were G. Aubrey and O. Chenier, who are brothers-in-law, and a third member of the same family, J. Aubrey, is dead in the mine. Chenier was married to a sister of the other men and the triple funeral will be held when the third body has been brought up.

Premier Sends Sympathy.

The Mayor of Timmins has received the following message from Premier King:

"My colleagues join with me in sending this expression of deep concern and sorrow in the great calamity that has overtaken your community. Please convey our sincere sympathy both to the bereaved families and to those who are so anxiously awaiting news of survivors.

Mayor Longmore replied as follows: "On behalf of the suffering families and friends of the survivors I wish to express appreciation of your kind message of sympathy and concern."

TOLEDO, Ohio, Feb. 13.—Henry Ford doesn't work on Sunday; neither does he want anyone else to do so. CASUALTY LIST OF 39 DEAD DEFINITELY FIXED AS TOLL EXACTED BY MINE DISASTER

Experienced Miners Express Opinion That Men Still Underground May Have Already Been Suffocated By Foul Air —Rescue Workers Battling Against Acrid Fumes Recover Five Bodies On Sunday.

MINE SPECIALISTS ARE SENT BY WASHINGTON TO AID RESCUE WORK AT HOLLINGER TRAGEDY

Survivors Tell Stories of Great Privation and Suffering, of Men Battling Against Smoke and Gas in Vain Attempt To Reach Safety of Outer Air.

TIMMINS, February 13 (By Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press). — The death toll in the Hollinger Mine disaster today was fixed as 39. Twenty-seven bodies have been recovered from the underground workings of the mine, and twelve more bodies are known to be underground.

Of the total of 51 miners trapped on Friday, when the fire broke out on the 550 foot level, and filled the vast workings with smoke, only twelve have been rescued. These were all brought up on Saturday afternoon.

Since then, rescue experts, equipped with special apparatus from Toronto and Pittsburgh, have been able to recover nothing but bodies.

About 700 and 800 men were working underground when the blaze was discovered about 10 a.m. on Friday. The alarm was given and by feverishly swift operation of the giant hoists, the great majority of men were brought to safety. The remainder, perhaps scouting the fear of fire in a quartz mine, remained below until it was too late for them to escape.

For hours it was not known how many had been brought to the surface, but as time went on it had been definitely established that all but 51 men had been taken out of the mine alive.

Rescuers Driven Back.

This was the figure as it stopped on Friday evening.

For a considerable time, information regarding the actual conditions of affairs was difficult to obtain. Time and time again, rescue parties went down the shaft, to be driven back by smoke and gas. Little progress could be made and no knowledge was available as to what part of the extensive underground workings the men might be in.

There are three surface shafts reaching down into the depths, the main, or old Hollinger, which penetrates to the 1,850 foot level: the central, going down to 3,050 feet, and the old Acme shaft, known as No. 11, which is down 2,000 feet. From these shafts the drifts are cut in various directions for several hundred yards and cross-cuts through the drifts give the underground workings other ramifications. The levels are connected in various places by inclined passages, or "raises."

The men were working in every part of the mine, widely scattered.

Stories from survivors in St. Mary's Hospital yesterday told of deeds of great heroism, of privation and of suffering. Men staggering blindly along the tortuous, black passages; groping their way by the sides of the tunnels or crawling on hands and knees over the trolley rails, choking as the smoke and gas filled their lungs, and eventually dropping dead through suffocation. This was partly revealed in the stories.

Tale of Horror.

Lying on his hosptial cot, M. N. Petchick unburdened himself to-day of a tale which for grim horror has had few equals. He was working on the fifth level on Friday morning when the smell of smoke was wafted to his nostrils. "I could tell the difference between smoke from blasting and wood smoke," he said, "and I knew that there was a fire somewhere."

He endeavored to warn some of his comrades and to make his way from No. 16 cross-cut to No. 13, at the end of which was the main shaft. With one or two others we started, but the smoke became heavier and they could detect gas getting into their lungs. They had reached almost to Number 13, where there was a truck that would have brought them to the main

WILLIAM J. GREEN IS EIGHTY; TAX COLLECTOR ALL CENTURY

Calls Attention To Smoking Ability of Younger Generation.

WAS A SPORTSMAN.

Will Stay On Job As Long As Providence and Council Allow.

William J. Green, who yesterday entered the ranks of octogenarians, was born in North Monaghan on February 12, 1848, and has lived in this district all his life. He attended school at the Town Hall School and afterwards the Murray Street Grammar School. For five years he worked as a dry goods clerk, following this with 25 years as a merchant tailor and has since the first year of this century been tax collector for the Town and City of Peterborough. He was well qualified for these positions by his training at Bryant and Stratton's Commercial College, Toronto, where he won a first class diploma.

Mr. Green has been an active member of the Charlotte Street Church, now Trinity Church, and was for thirty years financial secretary of Peterborough Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 111. He was appointed issuer of marriage licenses of the county in 1891; acted as secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for ten years; and served his Militia term as a private of No. 4 Company, 57th Battalion, known as the Ashburnham Company.

Mr. Green is probably one of the most widely known men in Peterborough, and his unfailing courtesy in dispatching his duties of his important office have won him many friendships among the business men of the city.

Mr. Green's Story

Mr. Green today told the story of his life to The Examiner, and it is here reproduced in his own words:

"The 12th day of February being my 80th birthday, it may be interesting to let the readers of The Examiner know something about another four-score citizen. My place of birth to be exact was somewhere between the four walls of the United Church of Canada in the village of Springville. When only a few weeks old our family moved to a home of its own three miles out the highway. This was occupied by our family for sixty years, and is now known as the Hunter farm.

"You may have noticed on the highway a large willow tree near the road. I planted this as a lad 75 years ago.

"My early school days were spent in the country and later in the Murray Street Grammar School, and I also took a course at Bryant and Stratton's Chain of Commercial Colleges in Toronto and received a first-class diploma. The salaries then were quite different from now. I received $1 for six weeks' work in a grocery store in my first situation. Then I got $50 for the first year and $80 for the second year in a dry goods store—and this was considered above the average.

Between Charlotte and Brock Streets I suppose there would be fifty young men sleeping over the shops, most of whom belonged to the volunteer fire brigade. At the first tinkle of the fire bell all would rush down

TWO MEN ROB TEA SALESMAN

J. P. Young, Driver For Ocean Blend Company, Assaulted Near Hastings.

ROBBERS TAKE $150.

HASTINGS Feb. 13. — On Saturday evening at about 6 o'clock while proceeding form Norwood to Hastings on the Norwood road, J. P. Young, a salesman for the Ocean Blend Tea Companp, was assaulted and robbed of $150 by two unmasked robbers.

Mr. Young had made his last call at Everette Richardson's, who resides about half a mile north of the town, and was just at the town limits when two young men appeared, one on each side of his sleigh. He was hit over the head and rendered unconscious.

When he regained consciousness, his hands were tied behind his back and the team had been started on their way into town. He then discovered that he had been robbed.

He had gone about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the hold up when he came to, and stopped at a house and was untied. He immediately gave the alarm to the police who are working on the case.

Mr. Young described his assailants who are still at large to the police, but as yet no trace has been found of them, although all the police in the nearby towns and district have been notified to be on the look out for the men.

The Weather

On Sunday morning the thermometer was at 4 degrees above zero; the highest during the day 27 degrees. It was an ideal Canadian winter day—bright sun, blue sky and a tonic in the air. This morning it was 5 degrees above zero. During the night it had been down to 5 below zero.—W. P.

THIRTEEN PERSONS KILLED IN HAIG MINE PIT EXPLOSION

Party of Officials Exploring the Mine Works at Whitehaven, England.

RUSH RELIEF WORK.

First Time Opened Since Similar Disaster Closed It Last December.

WHITEHAVEN, England, Feb. 13.—(Associated Press.)—A terrific explosion early yesterday in the Haig mine pit, the scene of other explosions disastrous to human life, killed thirteen of a party of twenty-one who were exploring the works for the first time since a similar disaster closed it last December.

Several officials were among those killed. Eight dazed and partially gassed workmen fought their way back to safety. The news they brought caused desperate efforts by rescue parties to reach the entombed men, but the foul air foiled their attempts. All hope was abandoned at noon. The relief workers were withdrawn and the mine was again sealed.

Thirty-nine lives were lost through an explosion in the same pit on September 5, 1922, and again last December the works suffered a blast which took four lives. An exploration party was organized Saturday and shortly after midnight entered the shaft in an attempt to locate the body of one of the miners killed in the December

Will Not Hold Inquest Into Tragedy Until All the Bodies Are Recovered

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 13 (Canadian Press).—No arrangements have yet been made for an inquest into the deaths in the Hollinger mine tragedy. Coroner H. E. Montgomery said yesterday that he would take no steps of this nature until all the bodies in the mine have been recovered, when one inquiry would be held into the tragedy.

The Department of Mines at Toronto has been in constant touch with the situation. A. F. Kenning, Member of the Ontario Legislature for South Cochrane, returned here at once from North Bay, from where he had intended going to Toronto, and is in regular communication with the provincial government. The provincial authorities were also kept informed by T. F. Sutherland, chief mining inspector of the province, who arrived Saturday.

J. G. McMillan, resident mine inspector at Temiskaming, has been actively prosecuting the work of rescue and his experience as an officer with the mine troops during the war proved useful in the present situation.

Material damage to the mine itself will be quite small, but in other directions the disaster will cost the company a heavy sum, some estimates running as high as a million dollars.

LEGION BRANCH HOLDS SERVICE

Campbellford Veterans Honor Memory of Late Earl Haig.

TOUCHING SERMON.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 13. — In accordance with the request sent out by the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion to all branches throughout Canada, the Campbellford branch held a memorial service in Christ Church last night in memory of the late Earl Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in France during the Great War, and founder of the British Empire Service League, of which the Canadian Legion is a part.

Although only about one-third of the members of the branch attended in a body, there were several returned soldiers and members of the Legion seated here and there throughout the congregation. The official dress for the occasion was mufti and medals, and Rev. N. Clarke Wallace wore his medals neatly attached to his stole. Each member of the Legion wore a poppy in the lapel of his coat. Seated in the front pews which had been reserved for them, the men who had served under the late Sir Douglas Haig formed a very imposing array, even though they were minus the shining brass and uniform dress of service.

The hymns for the service had been specially selected, and from the first verse of the processional to the last verse of "The Day Thou Gavest, Lord, Is Ended," all had a direct bearing on the memorable occasion. Rev. Clarke Wallace selected as his text the ninth verse of Matthew, verse thirty-six: "When He saw the multitude, He was moved with compassion, because they fainted."

The rector did not think it necessary to remind the congregation, still less the members of the Legion, that the purpose of the special service was to honor the memory of the late Earl Haig of Bemersyde. He thought it was eminently fiting that they should come for such a noble purpose, particularly those who had fought under the great Commander-in-Chief.

The great Thomas Babington Macauley, later Lord Macauley, one of the greatest minds of his time and master of English diction, said: "Those who never look to their ancestors need never look to posterity." By this he meant that those who never pay tribute to the great and noble characters of the past need never expect that such a people will ever produce anything of lasting value for posterity. So last night the Legion honored the memory of the late Earl Haig, Field-Marshal and Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in France.

But the life of Sir Douglas Haig, said Mr. Wallace, did not call for despondency, mourning, nor even eulogy. Rather did it set forth a high and noble ideal for posterity to take as an example. Nor did the rector deem it necessary for him to deal with the life of Sir Douglas Haig. He thought the newspapers had detailed that very thoroughly. His purpose was rather to give some enlightenment regarding the traits and character of the late field marshal, and show how the influence of such noble ideals as were his, can be an example to the rest of us.

"There is no man," said Mr. Wallace, "who is not called to some task and on whom some responsibility does not rest. This may be in the form of commanding a regiment, ministering to men's souls, or it may be in some very inconspicuous work, but it is good policy to enter into the duty with a full sense that it is God's duty set for you. It was with such feelings that the great Commander-in-Chief accepted the task to which he had been called. The result was that the country as a whole never lost faith in him. He was one of the very few Allied generals whose high prestige at the beginning of the war, mounted as the struggle continued and was at its peak when victory came.

"Naturally there were those who found faults with the general plans which the General adopted. His strategy and military tactics were also criticized as were those of every other Allied Commander, but Sir Douglas Haig pursued his own course steadily and allowed his critics, who were mostly of the political world, to continued to pass their opinions. Even when the Earl came out to Canada to establish the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, he had his political critics. He dealt with them just as he had dealt with the others.

"There is a very interesting and true story of an eminent Canadian politician who sent an envoy to the steamer when Sir Douglas Haig arrived. The envoy bore a letter to the Earl, but was unable to present it, as Sir Douglas had already been advised by wireless of the contents. When the letter was presented, Sir Douglas refused to accept, since it advised him as to what he should and should not say during his tour. He advised the envoy to return the letter to his pocket and present it when the Earl had finished his tour and was returning to England.

A Gentleman and a Soldier

"Earl Haig's keen sense of duty and passion for thoroughness could never have been maintained without the most sincere faith in God. The niceties of the Theological doctrine had little charm for him, and he did not consider religion to be a perpetual moping over the Good Book, but in being and doing good. Even with the responsibility of such a huge army hung on his shoulders, Sir Douglas Haig always bore in mind the viewpoint of the private soldier. He had little liking for sending men out to face the modern machines of war. He was a gentleman and a soldier. What greater can a man be?

"As a soldier he hated ostentation, simplicity was one of his characteristics. As an illustration, there is the story which is well known to practically every man of the expeditionary forces. The late Sir Douglas Haig approached a corps which he was to inspect. The commander stood awaiting his arrival, surrounded by a body guard of "brass hats." This was at a time when man power was at as low a stage as it was at any time during the campaign. The curt greeting which Earl Haig tendered was, 'Send away that circus.

Loved By His Men.

"Noted for his coolness and judgment, Sir Douglas Haig was also noted for his consideration for his men. He has even been likened to the idol of an earlier day, General Sir Redvers Buller, who some years ago visited his relatives in Campbellford. General Buller was perhaps the most beloved of any general for his consideration for his men, which amounted to almost a weakness in that great soldier. But with Haig, his sense of duty overcame that particular trait to a certain extent. He was a popular man in the sense that he was loved, and he himself loved greatly. Even the Boy Socuts adored him. The very Saturday before his death, Earl Haig inspected the 20th troop of the Richmond Boy Scouts, known as Earl Haig's Own. This was Saturday afternoon and his death occurred Sunday evening. The last message he gave men, he gave to those Boy Scouts. His words were those of a loyalist and staunch defender of his country, 'Stand up for England when people speak disrespectfully of her,' he told them. 'Try and realize what citizenship and public spirit really mean.'

"But perhaps his most outstanding characteristic was his Christ-like attitude toward those who needed his assistance, and in whose welfare he was most deeply interested. These were the ex-service men. For them he had compassion, and for their cause. So that the men who had served under him might have their just dues from so-called appreciative people, he formed the British Empire Service League. He could easily have brushed aside all connections with these men, but instead he formed not only the organization in the British Isles, but also a branch in each of the colonies. These are known as the Legions. The one in Canada is, naturally, the Canadian Legion. To this end he journeyed to this country and the results of his efforts are everywhere in evidence. To him is also due to the credit for establishing the Poppy Fund, or as it is sometimes known, the Earl Haig Fund.

"He had compassion on the multitude," said Mr. Wallace in conclusion, 'and this characteristic will live longer than many others which Sir Douglas Haig possessed."

ENTERS NAME.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (Associated Press).—Secretary Hoover yesterday became an avowed candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination and gave formal permission for his Ohio supporters to enter his name in the Ohio primary contest.

In his first campaign statement, which took the form of a letter to Thad Brown, chairman of the Ohio Hoover for President Committee, the Secretary declared himself bound "to carry forward the principles of the Republican party and the great objectives of President Coolidge's policies."

He indicated his intention to refrain from personal campaigning in the pre-convention primaries, and to retain his official post at the head of the Commerce Department.

OCEAN TRADE IS HELD UP BY HEAVY GALES

All Incoming Steamers Report Great Struggles Against Heavy Seas.

SWEEPS OVER COAST.

Six of Crew Believed Drowned When Vessel Sinks in Mersey River.

LONDON, February 13 (Associated Press).—All incoming shipping reports great struggles against the Atlantic gales of the past week. The steamship American Farmer, which arrived at Plymouth thirty hours late, sustained damage to its propellers four days out of New York and continued throughout its passage with heavy gales.

The steamship Montclare, bringing Lieut.-Col. Leopold C. M. S. Amery, Secretary for the Colonies, from Canada, after a long tour of the Dominions, reached Liverpool 24 hours late. The British steamship Sandown Castle, from Tyne for New York, reported by wireless that it was returning to Queenstown with the forehold full of water.

Six of the crew were missing and believed drowned after the dredging vessel Crinkel sank in the Mersey River due to the gale.

The lives of the crew of the British schooner, Agnes Glover, were saved through the pluck of one of the seamen, John Lewis. During the terrific gale of Friday, the schooner's anchor chains parted and she was being rapidly carried to sea, tearing through the mountainous seas.

Lewis, at great risk of his life, climbed into the rigging and wigwagged an appeal for aid which was sighted from Holyhead. A lifeboat put out

Funeral Service Is Held For Nine Victims

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 13 (Canadian Press).—The first funeral service for a victim of the Hollinger disaster took place yesterday at the United Church, where the body of W. M. Stevens, aged shift boss, was conveyed prior to being put on the train for his native town, Londonderry, N.S., where interment will take place.

Mr. Stevens was a member of the Masonic Order, and the body was accorded full fraternal rites by his fellow-Masons. Rev. J. D. Parks, pastor, paid tribute to the deceased and a large crowd attended the service.

In all churches here yesterday the pastors made fitting references to the tragedy. Messages of condolence had been received through Mayor E. L. Longmore from Premier Mackenzie King and Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, while Moysey and Company, mining brokers, instructed their local office to subscribe $5,000 at once to a relief fund.

"MADE IN CANADA"

IN 1705, the colonists of New France, owing to the loss of supply ships from the Mother Country, were forced to manufacture rough cloth from nettles and the inner bark of basswood. In 1737 furnaces were built in the St. Maurice Valley, Quebec, to smelt iron ore. From such humble beginnings Canadian industry was developed. Today 22,000 Canadian factories and mills pay wages annually of nearly $500,000,000 and turn out merchandise to the value of about $3,000,000,000 per annum.

This great organization, of national and international reputation, was not created without difficulty, despite willing workers and an abundance of raw materials and water power. For the Canadian manufacturer of 25 or 30 years ago was an inexperienced youth compared to the industrial magnates of the outside world. Small Canadian workshops, however, were gradually transformed into large plants, the quality of goods was steadily improved and new markets were developed.

Shortly after the Great War opened Canadian industry was taxed to the utmost to meet domestic needs and to supply the army. Then came the depressing aftermath. Between 1920 and 1924 over 1100 manufacturing establishments were closed. It took real courage and genius to survive under such adversity. But now, Canadian industry is on solid ground, at home and abroad.

A strong industrial organization is essential to a well-balanced economic structure. Realizing this, The Canadian Bank of Commerce built up, early in its career, a service based upon the development of Canadian industry. Today, over 200 of this Bank's 574 branches serve the manufacturers of Canada.

"and . . . I promise to keep that schoolgirl complexion"

Thousands are doing it through this simple rule in natural skin care, followed in this way:

WOMEN used to lose the priceless charm of youth, then struggle everlastingly to regain it. Today, by following natural and proved ways in skin care, they keep it.

Start by avoiding the use of unproved ways on your skin. A good complexion is too priceless for experiment. You can retain natural charm and freshness through the years simply by taking ordinary precautions with your skin.

Foremost skin specialists of the world recommend soap and water cleansing as the first rule in skin care. Leading beauty experts employ it. Results are proved on every side. Try it—it will do much for you.

The rule to follow if guarding a good complexion is your goal

Wash your face gently with soothing Palmolive Soap, massaging the lather softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all. Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away.

Avoid this mistake

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or one represented as of olive and palm oils, is the same as Palmolive.

And it costs but 10c the cake! So little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain a cake today. Then note what an amazing difference one week makes.

GIRLS ARRANGING VALENTINE PARTY

C. G. I. T. and Mission Circle to Combine Efforts—Ladies' Aid Meets.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 13.—The Wide-Awakes group of Canadian Girls-in-Training was entertained at the home of Councillor and Mrs. F. P. Stinson last Wednesday evening, practically all the members being present, with a number of the girls from the Golden Links Mission Circle as well.

A practice for the public meeting to be held in the basement of the church on Saint Valentine's Day (to-morrow) took up the first part of the evening, after which Miss Jean Stinson assisted her mother with the entertainment of their guests, contests, games and music filling up the hours happily, the service of dainty refreshments being but a pleasant interruption during a most enjoyable gathering.

The formal vote of thanks to Mrs. Stinson and her daughter for their hospitality was moved by the president of the C.G.I.T. group, Miss Elsie Spence, and seconded by the secretary, Miss Wilma Fallis, a hearty clap of the hands showing the unanimous approval of the twenty-five or more girls who were present.

Mrs. Stinson replied briefly, expressing her pleasure in having the girls as guests in her home, and her appreciation of the work which she believed the group is accomplishing, and promising a repetition of the delightful event at some future date.

The C.G.I.T. group is putting on the program for the regular Mission Circle meeting to-morrow, and there will be a social time afterward, with games, etc., suitable for Saint Valentine's Day, with light refreshments.

Ladies' Aid Meets.

A business meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. Albert Brown, Tupper Street, on Tuesday afternoon, the vice-president, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, being in the chair.

An opening devotional period was followed by a discussion of activities for the current year, the usual bazaar being decided upon to be held in the fall, and the annual fowl dinner, in connection with the church anniversary, being another probable event under Aid auspices in October.

A "Leap Year" dinner will be held in the church basement on Wednesday, February 29, followed by a program and a social good time.

On motion, $100.00 was voted to the trustees of the church to assist with current expenses. The improvements to the church kitchen, which are planned on a somewhat extensive scale, will not be undertaken until the warmer weather.

Preparations for the supplies for the bazaar will be under way throughout the intervening months, the ladies of the congregation being asked to contribute at least three articles to the sale, apart from baking and help along that line which is always requested when the event is held.

Further arrangements for the "Leap Year" dinner will be made by the committee in charge, and the event promises to be a unique and successfull occasion.

Wedding Bells

HETZEL—WOODS

The wedding of Miss Edna Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woods of Peterboro, Ont., and Irving F. Hetzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hetzel of Sawyer street, took place January 28 at 3 o'clock at Lake Avenue Baptist Church.

The bride wore a gown of white georgette and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. Miss LaVerne Hetzel, sister of the bridegroom, was bridemaid. She wore an orchid gown and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses and sweet peas. Norman Woods, brother of the bride, was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hetzel left on a western trip. They will reside in this city.

CAVAN NEWS.

CAVAN, Feb. 11.—On Friday evening the Tuxis Square, Bailieboro, gave their play, "The Mascot" in Cavan Community Hall under the auspices of the Cavan Tuxis Square. The play was interesting and well given. The boys sang a number of songs accompanied on the banjo by Mr. Keith Barnard. There were also duets sung. The program was good and much enjoyed by the audience.

The Cavan Ladies' Aid which was to have met at the home of Mrs. Richard Matchett on Thursday afternoon, February 2, was postponed until the following Thursday and will be held at the same place.

Mrs. McCombe, Millbrook, was in Cavan, with her daughter, Mrs. L. Newton, for a couple of days last week.

Miss Jean Syer, Lindsay, spent the week end with her cousin, Miss Lillie Syer.

DANGEROUS COASTING.

Realizing how much enjoyment there is in this form of recreation, The Examiner reluctantly is forced to call attention to the fact that the coasting at present being done on several city hills is dangerous, and also illegal according to the city bylaws.

Coasting is a pastime full of thrills and pleasure; it is capital exercise that should be encouraged rather than curtailed, and it is unfortunate that there is little local opportunity for this sport under safe conditions.

City streets—unless it were possible to close them to traffic—are not the place for coasting.

Even under the old conditions there were accidents; today with the peril of the automobile added to the ordinary risk, it is inviting disaster to allow the streets to be used by sleigh-riding parties.

The city police no doubt hate to act in the capacity of kill-joys, but in the interest of public safety they will have to enforce the regulations and put an end to a custom that sooner or later, if it is not made impossible, will result in a bad accident.

FARM HELP.

It must have been with a good deal of satisfaction that farmers in the Peterborough district read the other day the announcement that a supply of trained farm labourers is being sent into this section by the Canadian Pacific Colonization Department.

These farm workers come from the British Isles where they have had the benefit of agricultural training, and it is expected that they will prove capable of good service.

One of the greatest problems the farmer of today has to face is that of securing adequate help during the busy season, and many an agriculturist has had to curtail production simply because of this lack of man-power.

No matter what the conditions might be in urban industries, it has been difficult to induce the city's unemployed to take jobs on the farm, and almost impossible to find useful workers among those willing to try the experiment.

The supply of trained farm workers alloted to the Peterborough district will undoubtedly be quickly absorbed, and should be of considerable benefit to local farmers.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS.

Congratulations are in order to W. J. Green, City Tax Collector, who attained yesterday the ripe age of eighty years, but who retains not only all the faculties of younger citizens but includes with them more enthusiasm and interest in local affairs than possessed by the majority of people no matter what their age.

Mr. Green is a living proof that a man may make his fellow-citizen dig deep down in their pockets every year and still remain popular.

For years he has been the machinery by which Peterborough has collected the money necessary to carry on the civic services and finance the various municipal activities, and yet in spite of that fact he enjoys the friendship of a host of citizens, who will unite in wishing him many happy returns.

Mr. Green is just eighty years young; he can still quivver with anxiety, matching that of the flappers in the grandstand, when a visiting ball team fills the bases with nobody out, and he is as interested in the fate of Peterborough's hockey clubs as he is in seeing that all the taxes on the roll are collected.

COMMUNITY PROMOTION WORK.

Peterborough needs imagination and action.

Few sections of the Province have reached the crest of their development. Peterborough, though great it is, has barely started to attain recognition to which her opportunities entitle her.

There is no essential difference between community promotion and any other form of merchandising. Any community program has for its object "selling" something. First to its own people—then to the other fellow.

The successful salesman knows his goods, believes in them and pushes them twelve months in the year. This is true whether selling peanuts, shoes, dry goods, hardware, automobiles, news, land or a district.

Take a department store. It ministers to many needs, gathering its wares together under one roof from many factories and many lands.

While the merchant builds up good-will for each department, the fame and name of the store is rated higher than any one department.

Peterborough, the community, is just the same. It has many parts. Each department or business a competitor with all others, but the whole is greater than any of its parts, yet the whole fails to function if any of its parts are not effective.

Personal success means a measure of community success. Community success presents opportunity for greater personal success.

Co-operation—the team—is the measure and index of growth. Without co-operation in a broad way any community program is doomed to failure at its inception.

Community promotion work is a chorus, not a solo. It is the orderly advance of any army in accord with a pre-arranged plan, rather than the raid of a sniper, however effective he may be as an individual rifle shot.

That is why a successful Chamber of Commerce is a necessity.

ATHLETICS AS A REMEDY.

Most of our readers must have noticed the report in our columns stating that Knute Rockne, the famous Notre Dame football coach, deplores the increase of physical decadence in modern youth, and that he holds that athletics is the remedy. We are not altogether willing to join in a general declaration of the decadence of our youth, the statement can be too broad. But that athletics is the remedy for any alleged decadence we have no doubt about. Mr. Rockne, of course, speaks with experience and we can support him in his charge about decadence by referring to the very poor physical condition in which such a large proportion of the students of a university in the west was found to be after a careful examination. Further than that, a magistrate recently pointed out that he noticed none of the miserable criminals brought before him had ever indulged in athletics. There is not the least question that athletics can be made most important means for training both mentally and bodily. And we have outstanding proof of the truth of this. The citizens have constantly before their eyes the gentlemen cadets of the Royal Military College, and are forced to see the difference there is in them when they join, and when they have finished their training. This training, as every one knows, includes athletics, and we need not refer to the wonderful annual event in connection therewith. The magnificent history of the college also shows that athletics does not interfere with study, but helps it, and to inculcate those qualities which fit their possessors to become leading men. We can only say that we hope Mr. Rockne's statement is not correct that "Physical unfitness has increased in leaps and bounds among college youth in the last decade," but if by further inquiry it is found to be true, then that the proper authorities will apply the remedy pointed out.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

FARM COSTS AND PRICES.

With the method of marketing farm products the live question of the day, it is only natural that it should form the main topic of the educational course conducted by the United Farmers of Ontario. Those attending the classes are afforded the opportunity of hearing what expert instructors have to contribute towards the formation of a correct judgment on its various phases, and also what, in their opinion, are the essentials of success. In this connection, a highly interesting and instructive talk was given last week by Professor Archie Leitch, of the Ontario Agricultural College, who has come definitely to the conclusion that the one chance for profitable co-operative effort rests on the basis of quality. This, as Hon. J. S. Martin, the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, is unceasingly explaining to farmers in his peregrinations through Ontario, is the principal reason for the wonderful advance made by Denmark, a small country with, originally, many disadvantages of soil and climate. Yet co-operative effort on scientific lines, in the growing, preparation and marketing of its food products, has given Denmark its unrivalled place in the confidence of British consumers, the greatest of European markets.

Professor Leitch introduced his declaration on the supreme value of quality as the essential fundamental of co-operative marketing when dealing more particularly with the matter of keeping farm stock sheets. He pointed out that valuable and necessary as these are, as a record of a farmer's business and for his own information, neither he nor any co-operative organization of which he is a member can function with the idea of regulating or fixing of prices unless he or it enjoys a monopoly of the products marketed. In part, his views are: "The only way you can influence prices is to withdraw part of your volume from the market. The result of this withdrawal will send up prices temporarily, and the tendency will inevitably be to increase production of that article. The resulting surplus will force prices down again and conditions will be worse than ever." Professor Leitch also finds a great gap between the sets of figures presented by farmers as indicating cost of production. He is certain that if wheat rose to $2.50 a bushel and stayed there, the cost of production would soon approach that price, while if it fell to a dollar a bushel, the so-called cost of production would become very close to that figure. This he illustrated by citing a recent survey in Oxford County. Twenty-five typical dairy farms were asked for their respective costs of producing 100 pounds of milk. The replies varied all the way from 93 cents to $4.06 for that quantity.

But another angle to this question of cost-keeping is hard to explain, though it might not justify the opinion that cost-keeping is futile. It, probably, shows the grower what crops have proved unprofitable, but it cannot solve the problem of producing at a given figure and obtaining a return showing profit on the cost. As an illustration, take the case of a farmer who keeps accurate books, many do this, and thus knows with sufficient accuracy what a bushel of wheat or any other product cost him. He goes to the grain buyer with his sample and is told the price is so much on that day. "But," the farmer might reply, "here are my cost sheets showing it cost me more than that price to produce the wheat." The buyer might be interested, even personally sympathetic. But he also knows that it is his business to abide by the price fixed by the grain market centres of the world. As for the farmer, his accurate cost sheets had no bearing on the ruling price, and for that purpose need never have been kept. The price, dependent on general world conditions, had been set before the farmer's arrival, regardless of what the grain cost him individually. Cost sheets have their use in enabling a farmer to regulate his output. But Professor Leitch was undoubtedly right in declaring quality to be the prime factor in a competitive market such as that farmers must face. With quality, too, must come standardization to create and maintain the confidence of the public consumer.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is to be hoped that Premier Ferguson will not forget to send a Valentine to The Toronto Star.

This is the week Hon. J. A. Robb will hold the centre of the stage. He usually gives a very good performance, too, although he will have to be a magician this session if he can provide for all the public works the country is demanding and still do the tax-slashing the people expect.

Running over the majority of the speeches in the debate on the Address, it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that they could have been cut to twenty minutes without any injury to the public.

The attendance of ex-service men at yesterday's service in memory of Earl Haig showed that Peterborough's war veterans had not forgotten their old Commander-in-Chief.

Anyway the Provincial Government is going to find out how many old people in Ontario will suffer this year because the Government refuses to participate in the old age pensions scheme.

One of the Quebec members used a great deal of his 40-minute period to proving that Premier Taschereau of Quebec is a genuine friend of Federal Liberalism. A suitable topic for a party convention, but the value of such discussion from a national standpoint is open to doubt.

Western dairymen want the Australian Trade Treaty cancelled. Yet under this agreement we sell more to Australia than she does to us, and the importation of Australian butter, about which the Westerners complain, doesn't seem to have caused enough slump in prices for the consumer to do any cheering.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, February 13 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain here on Saturday was quiet, and in consequence the demand in the domestic market was chiefly for local and country requirements, and only a small volume of business was done. The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour continued slow, but values were steady.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all lines of millfeed at firm prices. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was active and firm.

The egg trade continued good and the undertone to the market was steady. The receipts on Saturday were 967 cases.

The butter market was steady and a fair amount of business was done. The receipts were 103 packages.

Little business was done in cheese, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 91 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 13 (Canadian Press). — Corn prices made a lively advance on Saturday, owing to the highest level reached in many weeks, promise of unseasonably warm weather likely to curtail the movement of corn being largely responsible for active buying which set in on the part of commission houses and speculators as well.

Closing quotations on corn were strong, 1½c to 1⅝c net higher, with wheat ⅜c to ⅝c up, oats showing ⅛c to ⅜c advance, and provisions unchanged to 15c down.

At first, the corn market tended downward, the early weather conditions being construed as auspicious for the crop movement, subsequently a forecast that temperatures would be somewhat above normal next week led to persistent buying which toward the last included the execution of numerous standing orders to stop losses at various fixed limits. Under such circumstances, the surplus offerings in the corn pit disappeared at a rapid rate, and the close was at virtually the day's top figures.

On Saturday prices advance in the corn market, profit-taking sales were rather free at times, but nevertheless the gains were tightly held as a rule, and the advance for the week ranged from 4c to 4⅜c a bushel. Aggressiveness shown by dull leaders in the late dealings on Saturday proved to be especially disconcerting to scalpers who in earlier hours had been on the selling side expecting that the week-end with a holiday ahead would witness heavy realizing on what the scalpers mistakenly judged to be an over-bought market.

Wheat and oats ascended with corn, and as a result of some buying of cash wheat here for outside mills, prices for march delivery of wheat showed an inclination to gain as compared with May, and in this connection a good deal of stress was laid on the high quality of domestic wheat stocks, the present smallness of winter wheat arrivals and indications of better floor business, and the firmness of holders in refusing to shade prices for exporters.

Provisions averaged lower, sympathizing with hog values, but there was some buying later on account of corn strength.

SCHOLARSHIPS ARE PRESENTED

Attendance Large On Second Night of Commencement Exercises.

CUPS ARE DONATED.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 11. — The second night of the High School commencement saw the auditorium packed to the doors and many people unable to procure tickets. It would have been an easy matter to dispose of tickets at mostly any price yesterday, but no one wished to dispose of such valuable property, even when offered four times the regular price as was the case in one instance. The popular request to repeat the program has not yet been either granted or refused. It is, however, being duly considered. If it is repeated it will in all probability be early in the coming week.

Although the audience last night was slightly more appreciative than the one of the first night, the same numbers received the major portion of the applause. The members of the cast seemed more at home after their first night success, and there was not the slightest trace of stage fright evidenced by any one. There were many people from the neighboring towns and these were very outspoken in their praise of the entertainment.

After the entertainment, the auditorium was cleared of chairs, and dancing was the order of the night till one o'clock. Music was furnished by Leonard's Orchestra. At intermission, the graduation diplomas and the remainder of the scholarships were presented. These included the Dr. Peake Medal, the Linton Scholarship, and the Strathcona Medal.

Diplomas Presented.

The graduation diplomas were presented by Dr. O. C. Watson, chairman of the Board of School Trustees for 1927. Before presenting these diplomas, Dr. Watson took the opportunity to comment favorably on the comedy. He thought it was nothing short of marvellous, the degree of proficiency shown by the members of the cast. The stage scenery, too, was wonderfully well adapted to the purpose. "Here is the Trent River," said the doctor, "and the Bessie Butler coming across Crow Bay. But the lighthouse should not be there, as it would, in all probability, not be built till next year." Then returning to more serious vein, Dr. Watson stated that J. C. Fowlds, Oshawa, had donated a cup for the competition of the Junior forms. The very generous donation from a Campbellford Old Boy was greatly appreciated. This announcement would have been made before, he said, but word had just been received that day.

He further assured the people that the High School staff and the Board of Education would appreciate it very much if someone would donate a senior boys' cup for field day competition, and also one for oratory. These, he said, were not jokes, but serious requests, and he felt certain that Dr. Richardson would donate one, since he had been the first person to applaud when he, Dr. Watson, had stepepd out on the stage.

There was always room for scholarships, he declared. They created greater interest in the work. The results of the last departmental examinations had been very gratifying, and warranted such rewards for effort. In the Upper School the percentage passed was eighty-seven. The percentage in the Lower School was slightly lower at eighty-five.

Of the twenty-seven graduates of last year, nine had entered the Normal Schools, nine had gone into business, four were attending the universities, three had entered as nurses-in-training, one had gone into the trades, and one remained at school taking special work. Of the twenty-seven, only nine were present to receive their diplomas. The graduates are: Lucille Abar, Clyta Abernethy, Alice Andrews, Stanton Archer, Gerald Bailey, Roy Barnum, Jean Blake, Monica Blute, Marjorie Booth, Lilian Buchanan, Marguerite Calnan, Stuart Carr, Georgina Clarke, Irving Clemens, Jean Clysdale, Katherine Convey, Bernice Farrell, Magnolia Fraser, Kenneth Goddin, Bertha Hardy, Ethel Horsman, Carl Irwin, Frances Jones, Alex. Little, Jack McAvoy, John Moran, and Cecil Stephens

George O'Sullivan presented the medals and scholarships. Before making the presentations he wished to say that the board was very proud of the high school and the high standard of efficiency which it had maintained not only in the academical work but also in the field of port. The wonderful organization and co-operation between the pupils and staff had led to the ultimate goal, success.

He also tendered his honest congratulations to the members of the cast and those responsible in any way for the success of "Tulip time."

The Dr. Peake medal is given each year by Dr. S. A. Peake of St. Louis, a Campbellford old boy to the student who stands highest in the Middle school. This year the coveted honor goes to Russel Learmonth of Hastings. The Jack Linton Scholarship is new this year and is given for the highest standing in Upper School Mathematics. This was won by Stuart Carr. In presenting the scholarship, Mr. O'Sullivan mentioned the fact that Stuart Carr, now attending university, has been a brilliant student, and a member of the Boys' Parliament, in which he had gained considerable fame.

The Strathcona Medal is also given annually by the Strathcona truts, to the cadet who makes the highest score on the rifle ranges. There is a regular 'shoot" for this medal each year and the winner is selected by the process of elimination. This year Ted Blute holds the honors as school marksman and incidentally the Strathcona medal.

Apparently there is to be no shortage of cups and scholarships for the present year at least. During the dancing several offers were made to the principal. These were later announced from the stage, by Warden Davidson, A. L. Riendeau and Richard McKelvie. That these were appreciated was proven by the vigor with which the school yell was given by every student on the floor.

Ever since the new high school building has been occupied, many favorabel comments have been passed with reference to it. The results of the examinations have always been considered as exceptionally high but the staff of teachers who are responsible for the major portion of the success of the school rarely find their names mentioned directly. They are invariably "Taken for granted." Those to whom the success of the present affair and the praises being sung on every side are due, are E. H. Greig, B.A., principal, and the teacher of science; Miss K. O'Shaughnessy, B.A., teacher of moderns; Miss K. Ferris, B.A., teacher of English; Earl Stephens B. A., teacher of Mathematics; Miss L. Stafford, B.A., teacher of classics; Miss M. Wheadon, B.A., teacher of commercial work; and Miss M. Hammond, B.A., teacher of history and English.

THE TINY THINGS.

From the tiny things we learn our greatest lessons. Here is one: Place a potted rosebush in a closed sunparlor and let the plant dry out and you may observe many wingless parasites that will soon change to flying insects and, after the metamorphosis, these little flying animals will leave the rosebush and taking advantage of nature's laws, live from other food than that of the rose.

This scientific microbe revelation again clearly proves that a Great Providence provides for the tiniest thing.

WHY TEETH DECAY

The causes of tooth decay may be mechanical, chemical nutritional or bacteriological.

The teeth of many children have a poor start in life because the mother, during gestation, does not understand the science of feeding her body properly in order to supply the materials for the growth of the baby's bony structures. If her diet is deficient in calcium and phosphorus the baby's teeth will not develop properly, and when they do burst through the gums they may grow in with faulty positions.

Both the first and second teeth are really formed before the birth of the child but can usually be made to grow better if the baby is fed properly even though the mother's diet during pregnancy is incorrect.

When the child's teeth grow in improperly, and the diet has not been corrected until the child is at the adolescent stage, certain teeth may be affected because they do not fit properly with the corresponding teeth on the other jaw. Sometimes one or more teeth will be so out of alignment with the others that they are hardly used at all for chewing, and consequently become weak through lack of exercise. The teeth which do strike together may be overly irritated through meeting too forcibly, as these few teeth may have to do all the work of mastication. In many cases the orthodontist can correct the trouble by the extraction of one or two teeth or by wiring the teeth to grow in a certain position.

When one eats the ordinary mixed-diet, the friction of the food against the teeth is not sufficient to clean off the bacterial mold which forms between meals. To keep the teeth clean from these molds it is necessary to brush the teeth well two or three times daily. It is a good plan to have five or six tooth brushes to use so that there will be time for the brushes to dry out as they are used alternately. Every few days the brushes should be sterilized in boiling water and each dipped for a few seconds in grain alcohol or some other antiseptic.

The teeth should be brushed from all directions, including up and down between the teeth. It is very important to give the gums a good brushing, even though they bleed a little at first. After a few days the bleeding will stop if no pyorrhea or trench mouth exists. Any good dentifrice may be used to scour and chemically clean the teeth.

The teeth of many people are injured by a poor quality of saliva. It is known that saliva contains ptyalin, which is an alkaline digestive ferment. It may be that other alkalines or bases exist in the saliva of the normal person, but they have not been actually found. Some patients who seem to have a normal ptyalin test to their saliva will still suffer from what appears to be an acid mouth. Eating plenty of green vegetables and whole grains seems to correct this condition, providing the grain foods are used in proper combination with other foods so as not to cause hyperacidity of the stomach.

Both the dietitian and the dentist can help the patient to better health through better mouth hygiene.

Questions and Answers.

Question A. E. asks "Will you tell me through your very helpful and interesting column what can be done to check perspiration from the arm pits? Are the patent drugs which are advertised safe to use?"

Answer The best way to stop excessive sweating under the arms is to induce a good sweat all over the body three or four times a week. You can best do this by putting on heavy clothing and taking a long walk. If all of the pores of the skin are active you will not be troubled with an abnormal amount of perspiration under the arms.

Question Sam S. writes "Kindly explain the principles of the milk diet and how it cures disease."

Answer The milk diet may be of some benefit in curing disease if the patient is really undernourished, but as most of those who take the milk diet for the cure of disease are really over-fed before they start, they do not get from the milk the anticipated benefits. More sickness comes from over-eating than from under-eating. In some cases the milk diet is beneficial because it is a simple diet, and if only three or four quarts a day are used there is a beneficial effect upon the whole alimentary canal. This is mostly because of the rest from other foods, and from faulty food combinations which are so commonly used. What to keep in mind is that the body cures itself, and whatever diet is taken, it must be one which will not interfere with this natural cure.

Question A. H. asks. "Are sties caused from impure blood or defective eyes, and what is the remedy?"

Answer: The acidosis which makes sties or boils possible is created through wrong eating habits. The irritating cause may be from rubbing the eyes and infecting the eyelids with a common streptococcus bacterium. Defective vision has its effect in producing sties, mainly because the one who is suffering from eyestrain is liable to rub the eyes more frequently.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

A HOUSE ALL DARK

It stands beside the gloomy street,
A house all dark, nor lights the way
For weary hearts and weary feet,
And maids grown sad, and men grown gray.
If but one window gave one ray
The bitter might be turned to sweet,
The very night might dream of day,
And souls of victory, in defeat.

And there are those who stand beside
The street of life, as houses stand:
And on their thresholds hopes have died,
And yet they never stretched a hand.
They serve no friend, no town, no land,
Though women have wept and children cried.
Yes, they have greatly prospered, and,
Receiving love, have love denied.

As there are houses stern and stark,
So there are hearts with doors shut tight,
Who set for other men no mark,
Who send no beacons through the night.
So little we do, so much we might,
When all men need is just a spark.
Oh, does your window show a light,
Or is your heart a house all dark?

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Friendly stars rule this day according to astrology which finds that malefic aspects dominate.

It is a favorable day for intellectual pursuits and educators should benefit.

Writers should profit by the planetary government which is read as presaging constantly increasing demand for their work.

Newspapers and magazines should benefit in this new year, for they will have much that is sensational to chronicle in the way of world events.

This is read as a promising aspect for lawyers and there will be the highest possible reward for one of the profession, the seers predict. This may mean that the next president will be an attorney.

Owing to the recent conjunction of Jupiter and Uranus sinister happenings are foretold for the British government.

The decline of democratic ideals and the rise of dictators in European countries is foretold.

In China the complete victory of the north over the south is prognosticated, but revolution will be widespread.

Eclipses as well as conjunction of planets in 1928 augur ill for the peace and happiness of Europe, the seers announce.

There will be this year five eclipses, three of the Sun and two of the Moon, the first taking place May 19, when there is reason for grave forebodings.

Troubles of various kinds are indicated for Labrador, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, where unfortunate weather conditions will add to other difficulties.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of great significance in their lives. Fortune may come to them.

Children born on this day probably will be exaulted in thought, strong in character and exceedingly versatile.

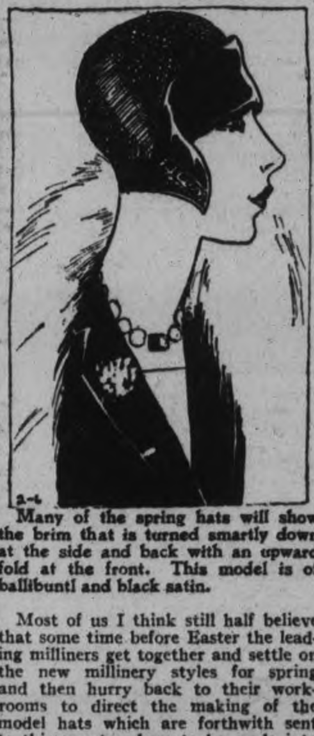
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



Many of the spring hats will show the brim that is turned smartly down at the side and back with an upward fold at the front. This model is of ballibuntl and black satin.

Most of us I think still half believe that some time before Easter the leading milliners get together and settle on the new millinery styles for spring and then hurry back to their workrooms to direct the making of the model hats which are forthwith sent to this country, here to be made into the hats from which we have then to select the hats which we must wear.

The French milliners themselves rather resent having anyone believe that they ever have a hand in launching any new fashions as such. As one of the most distinguished of these milliners of the Rue de la Paix in Paris has said

"It happens, of course, that certain hats are more frequently noticed and copied. This repetition of the same model might give rise to the idea that there is a new mode. In reality, however, each house that deserves the name of 'creator' makes a hat for each client, according to her person, her spirit and style, in arranging whatever becomes her best in form, shade and trimming, keeping within the general lines that are adopted by women at the moment."

More and more American milliners are adopting this French idea of their profession—more and more they realize that the important thing is not to possess the sort of glib salesmanship that will induce a customer to be satisfied with any one of the hats that she happens to have on display, but to be able to find just the hat best suited to that particular customer, or not having it to make it for her.

While seeking first the hat that is becoming to the individual one must not forget "the general lines that are adopted by women at the moment." And at this particular moment hats are still as closely shaped to the head as possible—they extend further than ever down at the nape of the neck and frequently there is an extension of material well beyond the ears at the sides.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE DEER'S RIDE

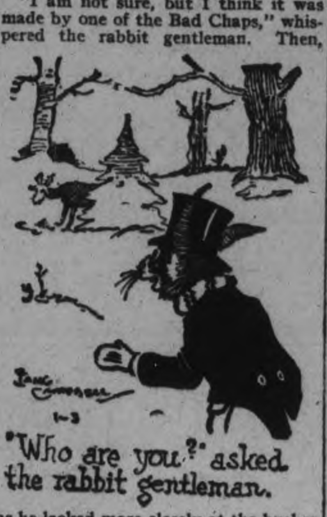
(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Standing beside the little reindeer in the snowy woods, Uncle Wiggily listened to the strange noise in the bushes—the noise I told you about last night. But I did not have time to tell you what it was.

"Did you hear that?" asked Uncle Wiggily of the little deer who had become lost when he tried to follow his father from the North Pole. The little deer's father worked for Santa Claus.

"Yes, I heard that noise," answered the little deer, whose name was Tap Tap, so called because his feet made tapping noises on the snow. "What was the noise, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I am not sure, but I think it was made by one of the Bad Chaps," whispered the rabbit gentleman. Then, as he looked more closely at the bushes he saw something fuzzy and exclaimed: "Yes, it's the Bob Cat! I see his silly little tail. Oh, come on, little deer, we must run fast to get away from the Bob Cat!"



"Who are you?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

But, to the surprise of the rabbit gentleman, the little deer did not run. Tap Tap stood there looking at the bush from behind which the noise had sounded. Tap Tap shook his head and his little horns.

"I am not going to run, Uncle Wiggily!" said Tap Tap bravely. "We reindeers do not run unless we have to and then we go very fast. There is time enough to run after I have seen this Bob Cat as you call him. I went to see him."

"Then it may be too late!" whispered Mr. Longears. "He is a very Bad Chap. The Police Dog put him in jail, but the Bob Cat must have gotten out. Come on! Run! There's his tail!" and the rabbit pointed to something fuzzy sticking out of the bushes.

"Oh, that's the Bob Cat's tail, is it?" asked Tap Tap. "Well, I'm glad to know that. And I'm going to make him wish he'd never brought his tail here or come himself."

"What are you going to do?" asked Uncle Wiggily as the little deer shook his horns and lowered his head.

"I'm going to jab that Bob Cat with my sharp horns!" answered Tap Tap. "My horns are not very large, but they are sharp. Here I go!"

With that he dashed into the bushes with his head held low, just as bulls, cows, moose and other horned animals fight. And no sooner had Tap Tap jabbed his horns into the bushes near where Uncle Wiggily had pointed out, as he thought, the short, fuzzy tail of the Bob Cat, than a voice yelled:

"Ouch! Oh, stop! Oh, who is sticking pins in my legs?" And with that a large, white, shaggy animal, roaring with pain, dashed out of the bushes.

"Why, it's Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily.

"Of course it is!" growled Mr. Whitewash, rubbing his hind leg where Tap Tap had jabbed him. "Who'd you think it was in there?"

"I thought you were the Bob Cat, hiding to get my ears," said Uncle Wiggily. "Oh, I'm so sorry!"

"So am I!" and Mr. Whitewash, half growling and half laughing rubbed his hind leg again. "That was a sharp jab. Who did it?"

"I did," answered Tap Tap. "I'm sorry, too, but I wanted to be brave, like the big reindeer, and I rushed at the bush so Uncle Wiggily would not be hurt. For he is going to be kind to me. I am lost, but I guess you are also, White Bear, for I have seen your kind at the North Pole."

"No, I am not lost," said Mr. Whitewash. "It is many years since I have lived at the North Pole. But I am going back now, on a visit, and stay until spring."

"Ha! That's the very thing!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I was just wondering how I could get this little deer back to his North Pole home, and now I see a way. Will you take him, Mr. Whitewash?"

"Yes," answered the Polar Bear, "I'll take Tap Tap home. But it is a long way and he had better ride on my back."

"Oh, I should love that!" cried Tap Tap. "Oh, what a fine ride I am going to have! Thank you both for being so kind to me."

Mr. Whitewash was just going to tell Tap Tap to jump up on his back, for the deer was so little the big bear could easily ride him there, when, all of a sudden, something happened. And what it was you shall be told later.

to the Fire Hall--now the City Tax Office—pull the old hand engine and hose cart to the fire, handle the hose and pump the water. We received $1.00 a year for this work, and at the end of the fall this amount was kept from us for poll tax. I am sure Chief Gimblett would be well satisfied with the work done by that fire department, only five members of which are here now.

Fifty years ago we had twenty dry goods stores and more than that where we could get liquor. There were no Y.M.C.A.'s or moving pictures to fill the nights. Very few young men smoked cigars or used tobacco until the cigar stores were opened—and now look at the young generation.

I was always fond of healthy sport. I was a member of the Maple Leaf Cricket Club in this district, which was known as the Pine Groves, and also a member of the Red Stockings Lacrosse Club which was started in the year 1872. I imagine that John Corkery, the retired postmaster and myself are the only ones left of the original Red Stockings of 1872. Lacrosse was the only game for years to draw a good crowd, and we held the championship of this district for many seasons. The Gilderesee Cup, which was won at Kingston, is somewhere here as a trophy.

Joined I.O.O.F. in 1873.

I was initiated with twenty-two others in May, 1873, in the Independent Order of Oddfellows, No. 111, the hall then being the upper half of the Council Chamber. Of that number, I am the only one remaining, the others having passed away twenty years ago. I was an officer in the Lodge for thirty years, and from the beginning, saw the Lodge prosper in members and assets of over $20,000. I had the pleasure of being presented with the first twenty-five year veteran's jewel and also the first fifty-year jewel awarded to any Oddfellow in the city.

I attended the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, hearing the first and last sermon preached in that church, and also the first sermon preached in Trinity Church. I have attended more services in these two churches than any person living or dead. I think we had always the best of preachers and choirs in the city.

In 1878 I entered into partnership in the merchant tailoring business with J. O. Madison, who was an artist of great ability in that line. He went afterwards to New York, where he held a very high position in Garment Cutting, Fashion Plates, and Journals. I continued in merchant tailoring for twenty-two years, and in 1900 I was appointed sity tax collector, this being my twenty-eighth year. I always liked office work, and I mean to stay as long as Providence and the City Council allow me."

CASUALTY LIST OF 39 DEAD

shaft, but when almost on it, they were driven by billows of deadly acrid smoke. They staggered back toward Number 16, and some of the party separated.

Petchick made his way to the fourth level, and there again gave the warning. Seven men were picked up, all told, and efforts were made to reach the main shaft on this level. Again they were driven back into the workings, until they finally reached a dead end.

The smoke poured in on them, and the men had to improvise gas masks from their shirts, steeped in water. They collected the carbine from their lamps and with hammers broke the compressed air line over their heads. They endeavored to twist the pipe so that the air might blow the smoke away from them, and in this they were partially successful.

Meanwhile they kept one lamp burning, conserving their supply of carbide.

"It was cold and wet and we were hungry," said Petchick. "Some of the fellows had ordinary boots on, and soon their feet got so wet they almost froze. We had water to drink out of the drip that runs down the side of the rock, but we had only two lunches among us."

.. Keep Cold Vigil.

This food was carefuly rationed out and hour after hour the seven kept their cold vigil. There were times when the smoke would clear entirely away from that part of the mine where they were entrapped and on such occasions they would start out.

"But as soon as we started walking or crawling along, we would just disturb the gas which was sweeping low —no more than two feet from the ground. This would get into our lungs and it drove us back to the dead end, where we had some fresh air, anyway," Petchick said. He told of how the hours passed in the utter dreariness of the underground, until finally their supply of both food and carbide was exhausted.

One of the men remembered having passed two of their comrades dead, back in the workings, and Petchick slowly made his way to where the bodies lay. He collected the carbide and the lunch tins of the dead men and returned to where the others were. The carbide enabled them to keep a light going for a few hours more, but the food was poisoned by the gas, and not fit to eat. However, one of the tins contained a bottle full of tea and another some coffee. This was carefully divided and life was maintained for a while longer.

A council of war was held and it was finally decided to try and make for the main shaft, a policy considered better than slowly starving to death. Previously, however, two of their number had started out to try and locate another trolley. That was the last seen of them.

Reduced to five, the party then begun their journey. As far as which prevented men getting to the source of the news, they could not be overtaken. Mine officials worked hard but beyond outlining measures that had been taken to effect rescue, where that was possible, they could shed no light.

Washington Sends Aid

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 13 (A.P.)—Extraordinary efforts by the American government and by American and Canadian railroads are being made to help save the lives of the men trapped underground in the Hollinger mine at Timmins, in Norther Ontario.

Scott Turner, director of the American Bureau of Mines, loaned to the enterprise the latest mine rescue car which the government has, and it left Pittsburgh Saturday behind a special engine on the Pennsylvania Railroad to Buffalo at which point it was to be picked up by another special on the Canadian lines and rushed via Toronto across Ontario. This is the first time that American Government equipment has been sent out of the country in such an effort.

Director Turner was appealed to Friday night by A. F. Brigham, general manager of the Hollinger property.

"We have assigned to the task the finest crew of rescue workers ever assembled," Director Turner said, "and the railroads broke all known time schedules in the endeavor to get the car there. Dan Harrington, chief engineer of our safety department, is with the car and has with him George McCaa, a special investigator, and S. H. Katz. our gas specialist. The car is equipped with oxygen tanks and masks to enable workers to penetrate fumes and a large quantity of extra equipment."

"One of the tems included, which may sound strange to persons unfamiliar with the rescue work, is a case of canary-birds. These birds are very sensitive to atmospheric conditions underground and signal conditions which are dangerous sometimes before human beings or instruments can detect air taint."

explosion. At that time fire had prevented the recovery of the body and the pit had been sealed up until the fire should burn itself out for want of oxygen.

The party, which included several mine experts, carried oxygen and was fully equipped with rescue apparatus. It made good progress until the men neared the scene of the December explosion when four blasts occurred within ten minutes. The last was a violent one, filling the mine with bad air.

Fire Broke Out.

Fire was believed to have broken out anew in the area torn by the explosions and the air of the entire workings was soon fouled beyond human endurance. It was this condition which balked the efforts to rescue.

Among those killed in yesterday's disaster were William Louden and P. Burdess, government inspectors of mines; Robert Steel, manager of the works; Henry Hanlon, a miner's agent; John Tyson, secretary of the Cumberland Colliery Officials' Association; Robert Fell, under-manager of the Haig Pit, and several minor offcials.

25 Lives Lost.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 13 (Associated Press).—From twenty to twenty-five lives are known to have been taken by the furious storm which swept in from the British Isles Saturday and ravaged the whole northern country. Shipping was demoralized and the sea was pounded with such force that millions of fish were killed and washed ashore.

Most of the casualties were reported from the vicinity of Soerland and Vestland, where the gale attained its maximum velocity, crushing houses, barns and causing much property loss as well as live stock. Millions of dead fish were swept ashore along the coast and countless other millions floated the sea. Scientists attribute the death of the fish to sulphuretted hydrogen which came to the surface from the ocean bottom when disturbed by the tremendous force of the gale.

A fish famine threatens, as housewives refuse to buy them, fearing the fish are poisoned.

marvelled and declared: "He had not found such great faith, no not in Israel."

"We cannot do less on such a day, and on such an occasion as this, for we give a dignity to our organizations, civic, military and fraternal, when we come together to honor the memory of the Empire's greatest sons.

"I believe you will not consider my text amiss in this connection. Our late Field Marshall is indeed well described as a man in whom there was no guile. It is somewhat difficult to state wherein his true greatness lay, but we are all ready to admit that he was truly great. Going back 14 years when the was commenced he did not appeal to the nation as Kitchener did. No one thought of him as the man that would paly a great part in the war. Popular affection never went out to him like it did to Earl Roberts. His name did not fascinate people like the names and feats of some of the other allied generals and at last he even took second place to a foreign commander, a thing never done before in the records of British military history. Yet nearly ten years after the end of the war we are ready to do him such honor as has rarely been accorded to any citizen of our Empire. He holds a more certain place in the affections of his comrades and the nation than any other man of this past decade.

Publicly Thanked.

"'At the close of the war he was publicly thanked at the bar of the House of Commons; a substantial grant was made from the public treasury and his sovereign gave him almost the highest honor in his power. People might have criticized, but no disgruntled general came forward to make public his mistakes; no jealous official told of how it could have been done better; at a time of severe financial strain no one considered the nations gift to be unfair, and most of all it was at a time when the voice of the Socialists were particularly loud, but no voice was raised against the well-merited honors given to the man who had led the citizen army to victory. This was no small achievement and it was made greater when we remember that nearly 10 years later when the glamour and enthusiasm had died away when men who were then leaders had failed to hold their high places, the public still honored him, and probably more affectionately regarded him than ever before.

"He was the type of man who achieves success not because he was brilliant or was credited with unusual gifts, but because he always did everything well, and was trustworthy. Earl Haig's quick advancement was the reward of honest work well done and the high offices given to him were because he could be counted on not to fail.

"His interests and his inclinations endear his memory with the British people. He took no part in the affairs of the state. His high rank and title did not remove him from the friendship of mankind. I saw him last summer, not in the uniform of a Field Marshall, but in that of a Colonel of his own regiment, at the dedication of a Scottish War Memorial. It was dificult to realize that the man with the almost white moustache chatting with the other officers of his regiment was the man who had commanded the greatest army ever raised in the empire. In his church (the Church of Scotland) he filled the high and holy office of an elder which carries with it the duty of assisting the minister in the administration of the Sacrament .

"In London he was given a wonderful funeral three sons of the king were in attendance and all the pomp and splendor of a thankful empire was given the hero. In Scotland his remains were drawn up the road to Bemersyde castle by one horse hitched to a cart.

Aided Veterans.

"The best remains to be said for when the last bugle sounded on November 11 1918 he might have came home to rest proud of the honors bestowed upon him. He might have turned his back on the army forgetting all the horrors of the great struggle. But that was not the nature of the man. He well knew of the sorrow the death and the bereavement of wounds never to be healed of unemployment to be faced, and of handicaps to be overcome. He knew too that the nation would soon forget, and that ex-service men would be passed on as unfit and unsuited in the keen struggle of business in the post war period. The soldiers' war was not over; it was against indifference and that great man re-organized his forces and wielded all bodies of ex-service men into one great unit under one commander, so that they could attack the new problems and proclaim their rights to the world through the British Empire Service Legion, of which our own Canadian Legion is a vital part. To unify all the organizations of ex-service men he travelled to every part of the empire building up and strengthening the new organization and before he laid down the office of president he had the satisfaction of seeing his plans carried out.

"The call to the Legion is as great to-day as it ever was. Ex-service men must be united and the greatest honor any man can do to him who was the leader is to join up in the services of the Legion.

"He inaugurated poppy day, and this will be observed for years to come. Hundreds of citizens were turned away from this church to-day who wanted to honor him. Will they on the next poppy day put their hands in their pockets and honor those who are crippled maimed, or are helpless widows and orphans.

"He indeed was a great man. The idol of the army in war time and the soldiers' friend in peace time. He was what we like to consider the typical British soldier and gentleman who feared God, loved the brotherhood and honored and served the king.

"Mourn for the man of long enduring blood,
The stateman, warrior, moderate resolute,
Whole in himself a common good;
Mourn for the man of amplest influence,
Yet clearest of ambitions crime,
Our greatest, yet with least pretense;
Great in council and great in war,
Foremost captain of his time,
Rich in having commonsense,
And as the greatest only are
In his simplicity divine."

Those present from the City Council were Mayor Denne, Aldermen Lowe, Ackerman, Macdonald, Cotton, Hamilton, Stocker, McIntyre, Huffman, and from the Board of Education E. F. Reid and F H. Dawson.

Closing Quotations on the Principal Active Stocks.

F. G. Oke and Company wires as follows:

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—The market as a whole opened this morning quite firm, while appreciable advances were recorded in Noranda, Teck-Hughes, Lake Shore, Dome and Amulet. All of these stocks appeared in consistent demand at current quotations and higher prices are anticipated on the street.

The feature of this morning's market was Pen D'Oreille, which was in strong demand at $14.60 and $14.70 per share. This company owns a large acreage on the west side of the Pen D'Oreille River of British Columbia. It is a lead-zinc-silver proposition which is equipped with a concentrator of over 200-ton daily capacity. The company is also fortunate in owning a power site in the vicinity of Consolidated Mining and Smelting plant of Trail, B.C., and we are informed that a power site is to be developed to as much as 20,000 horse-power and is considered one of the best undeveloped power sites in the nothwest.

Rumors are current regarding some splendid surface indications at Mint Ore which is tied to the south of Jackson-Manion mines in the Woman Lake area and as a result there appears to be plenty of buying orders around current prices. There seems little doubt that the market has improved considerably during the last few days and that the technical position of most stocks is becoming sounder every day. The last indication of strength in the market did not materialize into an upward swing of importance, but we must not overlook the fact that sooner or later the market will surely react to much higher levels and commence a marked upward tendency. In view of this fact and also because we believe that many stocks are selling at real bargain prices now, we would suggest that those who are considering mining stock purchases, make their commitments at an early date.

PRUDENTIAL MEN HEAR DR. A. KARR

Staff Enjoys Address on Personality as a Sales Force.

The staff of the Prudential Insurance Company in Peterborough were treated to an exceptional address on Saturday morning, on "Personality as a Sales Force," by Dr. Alexander Karr who is in the city in the interests of the Chamber of Commerce Forward Movement. Mr. Karr's address was full of enthusiasm and instruction, and while his address was to an organization of salesmen, important points were brought out, which could not help but strengthen any sales organization.

Dr. Karr emphasized the importance of personality, which is the outward manifestation of the inward man—the voice of a man's character. He referred to President Elliot's definition, "Everyone now believes there is in a man a ruling, characteristic essence or spirit which is the man himself. This spirit, dull or bright, petty or grand, pure or foul, looks out of the eyes, sounds in the voice, and expresses itself in the manners of the individual. This is the thing we can Personality."

He dwelt upon the importance of personality in all phases of life, not alone from the sales standpoint, but to the individual. He showed that personality is created and its quality is determined by what the mind does with the material the five senses bring into it. A man has such a power over the control of the creative agencies within himself that he can, through the exercise of his imagination, under the control of his will, build for himself any kind of a personality he pleases.

The staff of the Prudential Insurance Company sincerely desires to thank Dr. Karr for his interesting address, and also to thank the Chamber of Commerce. They will assist as much as possible in their Forward Movement.

SURVEY OF CITY BEING PREPARED

Directors of Peterborough Forward Movement Analyze Community.

AS BASE FOR PROGRAM.

In addition to the mere details of conducting the "Forward Peterborough Movement" for the Chamber of Commerce for the adequate financing of that organization, Henry R. McKeen and Alexander Karr, the community specialists in charge, are doing more. They are analyzing the communty and making some definite suggestions as to future programs and policies of the organization.

The Examiner caried an outline of the agricultural suggestions of Mr. McKeen on Saturday. In addition to this he has prepared a community survey outline that will be given to the executive council for their consideration and action immediately following the membership and finance campaign.

"This survey when completed will give you the facts upon which to base your future programs of work," says Mr. McKeen. "When completed it will be as startling in its fact revelation as the school questionnaire answers. The most itneresting facts in the world are those we find out about our own communities. Too often we are like the ostrich. We do not want to face them so we bury our heads in the sands of ignorance."

The community inventory as suggested by Messrs. McKeen and Karr contains twenty-five items of city statistics, fourteen of transportation, twelve dealing with real estate, twenty relating to markets, twenty-eight community resources, ten finance, seven groups of general statistics, twenty-four industrial reports and thirty-five historical groupings.

These when completed will enable not only the Chamber of Commerce to strike a balance from this community inventory, but will show the city what needs to be done first to balance industry, agriculture, transportation, commerce, education, recreation, tourists and publicity.

"Do this yourselves through special committees, each assigned to a definite part of it and have your own people secure this information," says Mr. McKeen. "They will be more interesed in the ctiy and better citizens."

Firemen Effect Rescue Of All Employees of Toronto Firm.

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (Canadian Press) Forty employes, mostly women and girls, of Lang Brothers, lamp shade manufacturers, were trapped by fire in the third floor workshop of the plant today. All were able to escape within a short time, however. With the assistance of firemen, about twenty of the girls clambered wildly down the rear fire escape and jumped to a motor truck below, while others were brought out by the firemen. Four male employers sustained slight injuries. The fire originated from an explosion of highly inflammable varnishing material.

ROTARY HEARS OF MOTOR TRIP TO THE SOUTH

Rotarian Chris Graham Gives Breezy Impression of Florida.

ATTENDANCE RECORD.

Every Member Present For Two Meetings in Succession.

For two weeks in succession the Peterborough Rotary Club has enjoyed a perfect attendance and it was announced at to-day's luncheon that another 100 per cent attendance can be registered this week, provided the members who were absent today attend the meeting at Lindsay to-morrow when Judge L. V. O'Connor is to be honored.

Rotarian Chris. G. Graham was the speaker to-day, entertaining the members with a breezy and witty description of his recent trip to Florida, a motor journey by the way in which the party covered 4500 miles, and used 262 gallons of gasoline. Rotarian Graham's companions on the journey were Rotarian Jack Gillespie, T. H. Hooper and Ormie Ball.

The speaker told of the high lights of the trip from Peterborough to Florida, and gave his impressions of Tampa, St. Petersburgh, Miami, Jacksonville, and other Florida cities interspering his descriptions with some realistic imitations of the southern darkies that were most amusing.

Rotarian Graham, commenting on the squalor noticed in the rural portions of some of the southern states declared that the party realized more than ever what a splendid country they lived in. The farmers in Ontario were in an enviable position as compared with many of the agriculturists of the south. The speaker paid a warm tribute to the skill of Rotarian Gillespie as a driver and remarked that the trip had been wonderfully enjoyed. Rotarian John Crane thanked the speaker on behalf of the club.

Dr. Alexander Karr also addressed to-day's meeting in the interests of the forward movement of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, appealing to the members of the Rotary Club as leaders in the community to get behind the movement. Dr. Karr stressed the necessity of leadership and of leaders being great believers, and especially urged the desirability of including the farmers of the district in Chamber of Commerce activities. A wonderful chance of development existed in regard to agriculture in this section of Ontario, especially in regard to dairying.

Pledge cards were passed around at the conclusion of Dr. Karr's eloquent address and many Rotarians signified their willingness to assist in the campaign.

President A. L. Killaly expressed the regret of the club at the fact that Rotarian Commandant Ham was leaving Peterborough, and at the same time congratulated him upon his promotion.

Rotarian Andrew Brown was given a round of applause for his sucsuccess in promoting two 100 per cent. meetings.

Among the visitors to-day was Rotarian Frank Mitchell of Windsor, president of the local bus company.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTER HOLDS ELECTION

Miss Olga Johnston New Regent of Peter Robinson Chapter.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. was held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A on Saturday afternoon, the regent, Mrs. J. McNabb, presiding. Elections for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Regent, Miss Olga Johnston; 1st vice-recent, Mrs. J. McNabb; 2nd vice-regent, Mrs. F. Hooper; secretary, Miss Florence Adams; treasurer, Miss Violet McKeown; Educational secretary, Miss Mayme Montgomery; Echoes secretary, Miss Geraldine Glover; Standard bearer, Miss Maida Conner; Councillors, Mrs. F. Stinson, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. R. S. Cummings, Mrs. Walter Belleghem, Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mrs. B. V. Moore, the Misses Daisy Davidson, Margaret Cameron, Cora Clark, Hazel Buller.

Scrutineer of the ballots were the Misses M. Drope and R. Clegg.

The meeting was addressed briefly by two speakers, Dr. Alexander Karr, educational director for the American City Bureau's "Forward Movement" campaign, who outlined the ideas behind this campaign and advocated the methods of "thinking kindly and helping some," and Miss Caroline Davidson of the Mission for Sailors, who spoke to the members about the work carried on by this organization among sailors on the inland seas, among lighthouse keepers and among other isolated residents of the Dominion. Sailors to the number of 25,000 were benefitted in this way last year and 1,700 visits were made to them by missionaries. In Port Arthur alone, 1,180 letters were received by the missionaries and $2,080 was deposited with them by the men for safe-keeping.

Miss Doris Burgess, in charge of the local relief work carried on by the Chapter, gave a brief report, mentioning the splendid assistance afforded by James Abraham in this work.

The retiring regent, Mrs. J. A. McNabb, was presented with a lovely bouquet of spring flowers and made a suitable acknowledgment, thanking the members for their support and co-operation, and also speaking in appreciative terms of the loyal and devoted service to the work of the Chapter given during the past four years by the retiring secretary, Miss Maida Conner. Mrs. McNabb also thanked Mrs. F. Hooper especially for assistance given during her absence from the Chapter meetings.

Reports for the past year were given by the secretary, Miss Maida Conner, and the treasurer, Mrs. B. V. Moore. Mention was made of the excellent results of the group system initiated by Msr. J. K. Hughes, and the different methods taken to make money, all of which were very successful.

Mrs. Frank Sherwood was appointed convenor of the Telephone committee, with power to add to her committee.

Secretary's Report.

The report of the secretary was a resume of the year's work. Thirteen new members joined the Chapter and the limit of membership was raised from ninety to one hundred.

At the beginning of the year, over $500 was left from the proceeds of the Hope Chest draw made in the previous year. The members agreed that this sum should be used for one definite purpose. Accordingly, it was spent in supplying a fracture bed and other necessary equipment for Nicholls Hospital, in a room to be called "The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. Fracture Room."

The activities of the various groups who functioned during the year included a tea and individual bridge parties, a dance at Rye's Pavilion, a rummage sale, a bridge party in the new Ford building and a bridge at the Empress Hotel. In connection with the Diamond Jubilee celebration, the Chapter co-operated by supplying one of the floats in the parade.

Treasurer's Report.

The report of the treasurer follows:

Madam Regent and Members of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E.

I beg to submit herewith the annual financial report of our year 1927.

In order to make my report a little more clear, I will make a few comparisons with last year's report.

Our receipts are $254 less than last year, but all members will remember that our ushering for last year was $165.17, and the proceeds from the Hope Chest was $1,167.41. We had neither of these to help us this year.

Last year our donations to charities amounted to $739. This year they are $812, an increase of $73. Every year is marked by an increase in this work, which is very gratifying.

Last year we had a balance of $789 to start the year's work with. This year we have $355.77, but at the last meeting there were donations made amounting to $215.50, leaving a balance in the bank of $140.27. Of this, $117.26 belongs to our savings account, which leaves only $23.01 for current. As this is the smallest balance there has been to start a new year on, it should be an incentive to work all the harder for our different objectives and terminate this year with as flying colors as last.

I might mention the fact that we are quite strongly entrenched, having a $500 Toronto Savings and Loan Company debenture, which bears interest at the rate of 5 per cent. Our income from this alone is $25 each year.

The Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. Statement of Receipts and Disbursements for year ending Jan. 15, 1928.

By cash in bank, January 9, 1927, $789.41; receipts from fees, $40.00; receipts from Community Bridge and Tea, $83.10; receipts from Fashion Shows, $75.00; reecipts from Group Tea, $10.60; receipts from Group Bridges, $108.35; receipts from Group Dances, $155.09; receipts from Easter Dance, $284.00; receipts from Rummage Sale, $54.00; receipts from Interest, $19.79; receipts from Commissions, $13.20; receipts from Sundries, $5.00. Total—$1,637.54.

To Disbursements—

Norham

NORHAM, Feb. 11.—Miss Hazel Grills of Stirling is at present visiting her friend, Miss Alma Gummer.

Miss Alice Turney of Morganston spent Wednesday in Norham with friends.

At six o'clock on Wednesday evening a jolly crowd of young "Norhamites" assembled at B. Isaac's store. Hayden Newman with a team and sleigh furnished the means of transportation from Norham to Campbellford where the party divided, some attending the theatre, others patronizing the Campbellford rink.

Among the group were: Misses Hazel Grills of Sterling, Claire Curtis, Lucille Lean, Janet Dick, Orletta Gummer, Alice Turney, Alma Gummer, Heather Grant, Bernice Campbell, Maisie Grant, and Messrs. Hayden Newman, Lloyd Massey, Edward Huycke, Ewart Huycke, Rex Lean, Gordon Mitchell, Arthur Meneilley, Eric McKague, Allen Platt, Ralph Campbell and John Bouhd, Jr.

Very good time was made on the trip to Campbellford and a jolly time ensued. During the evening the wind had drifted the snow till in spots the road was almost impassable. With the resulting heavy roads proving quite a handicap the trip home was much slower. A jolly night was reported by all.

HOW I DEVELOPED EFFICIENCY IN HOUSEWORK

by HILDA DORAN ROSS
Home Economics Counselor

"I can remember when housewives put their clothes to soak Sunday night, in order to be the first in the neighborhood to hang out their washing on Monday morning. Then, 'wash day' was a whole day. Now, you can finish your washing in a few hours.

"Just put your clothes in a tub or machine full of snowy, foaming suds made from Princess Soap Flakes. Quickly these suds will dissolve the dirt and grease. They save a lot of the hard, back-aching rubbing. When you hang your clothes out, you will be proud of the white linens and bright, clean, colored things. White things will be snowy white and your colored clothes won't fade and 'wash out' if they are washable at all. Use Princess Soap Flakes for finest, daintiest garments because this pure soap will not hurt anything which can stand plain water. Economical too."

Big Yellow Package

DON'T HAVE RED HANDS
Princess Soap Flakes will not harm your hands because they contain no harsh chemical filler or free caustic.

OUR GUARANTEE
We guarantee to replace any washable garment which, by reason of its having been washed with Princess Soap Flakes, has been damaged in texture or its color made to run, provided such garment has been washed in accordance with our instructions.

Les Canadiens Play to 1-1 Tie With Boston

GOALIES STAR IN TILT WITH BOSTON BRUINS

Tight Defensive Work on Part of Visitors Holds Frenchmen.

SHORE-MORENZ GOOD

Homester Won Two, Tied Two of Canadiens-Bruins Battles.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 13 (Canadian Press).—An exhibition of splendid goal tending by Hainsworth and Winkler in the opposing nets and tight defensive work on the part of the opposing rearguards prevented the fast-skating forwards from making a score-fest of the Canadien-Boston Bruins National Hockey League match here Saturday night. The game went to an overtime tie, one goal to one.

Canadiens could not solve the Shore-Hitchman defence as they did on the previous appearance of Boston here while at the other end Frederickson, Clapper and Galbraith were stopped by Gardiner and Mantha.

The game was the last, barring possible play-offs, between the teams this season. Canadiens have won two of the four games. The other two were tied.

Shore scored for his team early in the first period, making a blazing rush from his own goal clean through. Morenz, the league's leading scorer, tied it up near the end of the second frame when he grabbed a neat pass from Mantha who was behind Bruins' cage.

The visitors had a decided edge in the first half of the game and nearly scored more often that they did. About half way through the second period the local attack speeded up and from then on they did most of the puck carrying and out-shot the opposition, although in the overtime period the Boston thrusts were the most dangerous. One of these came when Harrington and Clapper executed a well-planned passing attack which Gardiner broke up when they had Hainsworth out of position. The other was from Shore and Galbraith when Hainsworth took care of a difficult shot.

Ten penalties were handed out in a game which was strenuous but on the whole clean. The checking was heavy but of the legitimate variety. Eddie Shore was serving his second penalty of the second period when Morenz scored.

On the whole Boston's subs showed no better than those of Canadiens. Clapper was outstanding both at centre and on the defence when he was on, while Gordon, Connor and Harrington turned in useful performances. Pete Lepine showed up best of the locals' second string. Canadiens introduced George Patterson, late of Toronto Maple Leafs and Toronto Ravinas to their supporters. Patterson went well but needs more practice with his new team-mates. Myldore Larochelle, sub of Canadiens for the last three years was missing from the line-up. He is slated for one of the minor clubs, probably in the Canadian-American League.

Sprague Cleghorn managed the Bruins in place of Art Ross, who is ill here. Sprague did not appear on the ice.

Line-up:

Canadiens.—Goal, Hainsworth; Defense, Gardiner and Mantha; Centre, Morenz; Wings, Joliat and Gagne; Subs, Hart, Lepine, Leduc, Patterson, Gaudreault, and Langlois.

Boston.—Goal, Winkler; Defense Hitchman and Shore; Centre, Frederickson; Wings, Galbraith and Oliver; Subs, Cleghorn, Connor, Clapper, Harrington, Gordon and Gainor.

Third Period:

POLAND SEEN AS CONTENDER

Many Surprises Furnished in Second Day of Olympic Hockey Series.

TIE SWEDEN 2-2

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 13.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — The second day's matches in the Olympic hockey series played here yesterday furnished several outstanding surprises. They saw the rise of Poland from obscurity to possible contenders for the world's amateur hockey championship, and the partial eclipse of Germany as a favorite.

Four games were played, and the first, between Belgium and Hungary, proved uninteresting. The former team displaying superior combination, outscored their opposition, 3 goals to 2.

The second match between Poland and Sweden was the feature event of the day. The Poles proved that they could not only learn the game, adopted by them two years ago, but also play it well, as their 2-2 draw with Sweden, one of the favorites, would indicate.

Holmquist, the Swedish star, scored twice because the Polish goalkeeper persisted in leaving his cage. On the other hand the Polish forward line scored twice through brilliant rushes and clean shots, to tie the game. With a different goalkeeper the Poles would probably have defeated the Swedish team.

The English team was somehow unable to repeat their clever victory of Saturday and were defeated by the French 3 goals to 2. The English lacked driving power and were unable to solve the clever combination play of Winds, Simond and Hassler of the French team. Kuaglia accounted for two goals and when Captain Rauch from mid-ice, shot unimpededly into the English net the game was decided then and there. The Carruthers brothers scored for the British on individual efforts in the first and third periods.

The last game was bitterly contested, although the hockey shown was very mediocre. The Germans proved to be indifferent skaters and the Austrians hemmed them in around their own goal for most of the time, often leaving their defence unprotected. The match ended in a scoreless draw, so each team gets a point.

MILITARY SKI RACE.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, February 13 (Canadian Press). — A gruelling military patrol ski race where youthful soldiers dropped exhausted in the mountain passes over a distance of 20 miles, while others, drunk with fatigue, staggered over the finish line to fall headlong in the snow, composed a big part of the Olympic program here yesterday. There were four hockey matches as well.

Norway won the military patrol event with Finland second and Switzerland third. Two members of the Finnish team (each nation enters one officer and three soldiers in active service) collapsed after crossing the finish line, and had to be carried to a hotel, where hot grog and other stimulants were administered. A young French soldier who had swooned three miles from the end of the race, was borne on the shoulders of his team mates for the remainder of the distance.

Nine nations competed, each country's patrol being obliged to start and and finish together. The abandonment of one member of a patrol automatically disqualified the entire team. Norway's winning time over the twenty-mile course, wherein the difference of altitudes between the start and the finish at some points were 3,000 feet, was 3 hours 50 minutes 47 seconds. The hardy men from the Northland, fresh and erect, finished singing the National Anthem of Norway at their top of the lungs, five minutes ahead of the crestfallen Finns.

France sprang the first surprise in the hockey play, defeating Great Britain by three goals to two, and now leads in the competition with two victories and no defeats. France appears certain to be the first semi-finalist against Canada on Friday. Belgium conquered Hungary by three goals to two, while Sweden and Poland played a tie at two goals each. Austria and Germany struggled to another draw ,which was scoreless.

YOUNG AUSTRALIAN DEFEATS BOROTRA

Jack Crawford, Davis Cup Player, Wins in Straight Sets.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Australia's ninteen-year-old Davis cup player, Jack Crawford, gave a brilliant display on Saturday when he beat Jean Borotra of France 6-1, 6-4 in the last day's play in the tennis test between Australia and France. Last week Crawford ran Borotra to five sets in the Sidney championships before the Frenchman won.

BASKETBALL.

Four games were played last week. At the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening the Woollens and the De Lavals played an interesting game. Miss McPherson scored two of the baskets for the DeLavals. Final score, DeLavals 6 and Woollens 3. The following games were played on Friday evening at the Y.W.C.A.:

De Lavals and Y Seniors: This game resulted in the score 8-2 in favor of the Y Seniors. Irene Chambers scored the four baskets for the Y team; F. Giroux and Edna Forester the two free shots for the De Lavals.

Westclox-Y. Elementary: This was a close game as seen by no score at the end of the second period. Final score: Y. Elementary 4; Westclox 0.

Brintons-Senior School Girls: This game resulted in the Senior School girls winning 16-2.

FARED BADLY.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Visiting United States' basketball teams fared badly in Montreal on Saturday evening.

The Central Young Men's Christian Association team defeated the Hartley House five from New York by a score of 30-28.

The Triangle Club, of Englewood, N.J., went down to defeat before the Young Men's Hebrew Association team of Montreal. The final score was 48 to 32.

GRIMES TRADED.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitball pitcher of the New York Giants, was traded to Pittsburgh Saturday for Vic Aldridge, curve ball star of the National League champions, in a deal that caught the baseball world again by surprise.

Made on a stranght player basis with no cash involved, the trade was completed in a long distance telephone conversation between Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pirates, and Jim Tierney, Giants' secretary.

On the basis of 1927 records, which showed Grimes a much more consistent performer, the Pirates got the better of the deal, but both twirlers rank among the best in the League.

MAROONS WIN FROM PIRATES BY 3-1 SCORE

Goals Made When Team Scored Against Was Short Due to Penalties.

FAST HOCKEY

Montreal Tally Last Two Counters in Final Frame.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 13 (Canadian Press).—Montreal Maroons took a strenuous National Hockey League match from the fighting Pittsburgh Pirates here Saturday night by a score of 3 goals to 1. All four scores came when the team scored against was short due to penalties.

Tex White grabbed the first count in the opening period when both Stewart and Siebert were with the penalty time-keepers. Drury shortly afterwards upset Dunc. Munro and went off, and Stewart gave Lamb the pass that tied the score. Play was fast and hard during the rest of the first period and the second, but not scoring resulted. Hooley Smith on a lone dash around the Pittsburgh defence put his team in the lead in the third frame when McKinnon was off and in the concluding minute of the game while White was under banishment Stewart scored on a clever pass from Dutton.

The match started vigorously, both squads making frequent inroads into the rival inner guards. Cotton sent Pirate hopes soaring as flanked by Milks and Darragh, he cut close on Benedict, who only cleared after a heated melee.

Numerous Penalties

Stewart tripped Milks and went off. A moment later Babe Siebert lifted his stick to White's face. The gesture netter a cut eye for the Pittsburgher and a penalty for Siebert. Stewart was still off and Pittsburgh took advantage of the Maroons' depleted ranks to inaugurate a vicious assault. Drury, McCurry and White piled into the mouth of the visitors' goal and in the scramble that ensued, the disc slid over the line. The tally was disallowed, however, as offside. The Buccaneers continued to swarm about Benedict. White circled to the left, outskated both defence men and rushed in on Benedict for a clear shot that the enemy goalie could only wave at.

The Pirate lead was not for long. Drury sent Dunc. Munro flying on a sortie by the latter into home territory. Drury thereupon headed for the penal stall and it was Montreal's turn to combat a short-handed opposing force. Stewart took the puck from a face off, and promptly passed to Lamb who skirted the Corsair left, streaked in on Worters and beat the diminutive goalie with a clever, well-timed flip to the mesh.

The second period found the teams willing but unable to make scoring grade. Worters staged a pretty play with a dual save on successive close-up smashes from Smith and Stewart.

The third frame got under way with Tex White and Roger Smith sporting bandages. McKinnon's banishment was a costly one. Realizing that time was short and that opportunities might be few, Montreal attacked with redoubled fury. For perhaps a minute the Bucs stayed off the onslaught. Hooley Smith was not to be denied. Picking up the puck in his own area, Hooley rounded Burke and was in on Worters, who never had a chance of beating the low smash that turned the tide definitely to Montreal.

Stewart's counter to sew up the fracas in the concluding minute was neat but superfluous. White was out on a tripping penalty at the moment and Stewart sped up the left side unguarded. Dutton fed him the puck at the correct instant and Nels shot a low wallop that caromed from Worters' pads into the cage. The Maroons played a tight defensive game after Smith's score, the Pirates battering themselves unsuccessfully on the Montreal defense.

U.S. To Open Speed Skating Competition

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, February 13 (Associated Press). —The United States has the honor of starting the Olympic speed skating competition to-day as the name of O'Neill Farrell of Chicago was the first to come out of the hat when drawings were made last evening.

Farrell will have Bertil Bachmann of Finland as his opponent in the first heat scheduled. Irving Jaffe of New York will be lined up against Giorgio Boroni of Italy in the very next heat, while Eddie Murphy of Chicago races with Simon Heiden of Holland in one of the last heats.

Manager Hansen of the American contingent at a late hour decided to start Valentine Bialis in the heats. Bialis drew Otto Polaazek of Austria as his rival. The races will be at distances of 500 and 5,000 meters.

LEADERS LOSE OUT IN SATURDAY GAMES

Heavy Reverses Suffered by Running Teams in Soccer Leagues.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Mild weather over the complete countryside in the British Isles Saturday may have accounted for the poor showings of the ranking teams in soccer. As the first three teams in the English Senior League all fell by the wayside there will be no changes to record in the averages. The crushing reversal suffered by Everton on their own grounds suggests to critics that this team may be slipping after their fine showing so far this season. Tottenham Hotspurs put themselves in a safe position in the first half through the goals of Dinnock and O'Callaghan. Everton got a lucky goal soon after the restart as a result of a heading bout, the ball going from Brown to Weldon to Troup, who netted rather unexpectedly. O'Callaghan then staged a very brilliant display and netted three times. Troup also scored Everton's second counter late on in the match.

Cardiff also led at the half way mark by two goals, Huddersfield Town having an off day. Thirlaway scored in twenty-five minutes, while Wadsworth helped the Welshmen by putting the ball through his own goal. Thirlaway got into the limelight in the second half by heading in a clever goal and Len Davies completed Cardiff's quartet of markers.

The Manchester United-Leicester City, another feature game, was fairly even up to half time, though the United had the edge through the goals of Hanson and Nicol. Chandler netted for Leicester. Spence put Manchester United in a winning position by his two goals in the second half, Nicol making it five. Chandler got one for Leicester near the end.

Rovers Win.

Blackburn Rovers and Newcastle Untied battled on even terms until nineteen minutes into the second half. Then Mitchell scored the marker which gave the Rovers the game. The Newcastle captain portested that the ball had not gone over the line, but the referee called it a goal.

Bolton Wanderers gave a flash of their old time form when they beat Birmingham. Jack was successful twice before the interval, Bradford getting a point for Birmingham. After the turnround the game was a very even affair. In the last phase Gibson got another gaol for the Wanderers and Crosbie netted for Birmingham just before the whistle blew.

Sunderland owed their victory over Bury to the goal secured by Clunas late on in the second half.

Two goals came from penalties in the game between The Wednesday and Middlesbrough, won by the latter. Hooper of The Wednesday got both. Scorers for the winners were: Camsell, Carr and Bruce.

West Ham United and the Arsenal, the two London teams, battled to a draw before a great crowd. The Arsenal scored through Brain in the first half and the same player made his team two up soon after the interval. Watson reduced the Arsenal lead and then Cope kindly put the ball through his own posts to tie up the match.

Plenty of scoring marked the affair between Derby and Burnley with the latter doing more of it. Burnley scored through Dougal Deel and Face and Derby through Sill in the first half. Derby made frantic efforts to get on even terms in the second half and had just succeeded through goals by Storer and Gill, when Freeman put in a winner for Burnley near time.

Aston Villa and Sheffield United fought it out on even terms until three minutes from the end when Cook scored after a beautiful dodging run for the Villa.

Portsmouth won a closely contested strugggle at home from Liverpool by the one goal scored in the match. Watson netted for the Southerners three minutes from the interval.

Chelsea bounded into a clear lead in the second division standing by their emphatic victory over Bristol City at Stamford Bridge. The visitors put up a good fight in the first half.

TWEED LOSES TO MARMORA

Homesters Take First Win of Season by 1 to 0 Score.

PLAY GOOD HOCKEY

MARMORA, Feb 13. — Marmora Continuation School Hockey Team, playing the Tweed high school on Marmora rink on Thursday got its first win of the season by the score of 1-0. As was the case of the former meeting of these teams at Tweed on Monday, when a 2-2 tie occurred, the game was keenly contested, both teams showing excellent form. Marmora's goal came in the first period after nine minutes of play, Flynn scoring for the blue line. Both goalies defended well, Burns starring for the homesters. Due to tardy advertising of the game which was postponed from the evening previous, the attendance was poor. The teams:

TEAM HAS CHANCE TO ENTER PLAY-OFF

Campbellford Hockey Executive Still Hopeful of Victory.

Campbellford, Feb. 13. — The Campbellfod hockey executive is not at all pleased because the newspapers have intimated that their entry in the Trent Valley League no longer has a chance to get as far as the play off and incidentally stand a chance of coming out on the top of the heap.

After carefully applying all the general mathematical laws having a bearing on the situation they find that even yet they have a chance of winning. They believe that they will at least get into the play off. But their chances do not enti[illegible] depend on their own efforts. The fortunes of other teams had to be taken into consideration. Therefore unless the dope is wrong the orange and black will be seen taking the ice against some other contender for the final honors. This will be hailed with enthusiasm by the local fans.

The date for the next game has not yet been defintely arranged but it is expected that Madoc will play here on the 23rd. This game was postponed earlier in the schedule, when the soft weather spoiled the ice. There is still another game to be played with Tweed as the result of the Horkins protest.

DAMAGE BEING DONE TO TREES ON ARMOUR HILL

Persons Using the West Side of Memorial Hill Should Discontinue Practice.

Attention is drawn to the advertisement of warning from the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, referring to the fact that the west side of Armour Hill, their own property, but being cared for as a Memorial Park, is being used for skiing and other winter sports.

The Women's Patriotic League have expended a very considerable amount of money in planting thousands of small trees which are growing rapidly, but which are also being destroyed by those who are using the hill for the purpose above mentioned.

It is felt that it is but necessary to draw the attention of the public who are interested in these sports to the fact that the damage that is being done and can be done to the property, and it will be discontinued. It will only be a short while before the trees are grown and the hill a beauty spot, so that it is worth while giving the trees every chance during their earlier years of growth.

You can lay some dough on the line that Boston, while it may not have a champion very soon, practically is certain of seeing one of its boys in a title bout soon.

The Hub fans have had some great fighters among their local boys in the past, including John L. Sullivan, once world's heavyweight champion; Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion; and Sam Langford, one of the best heavies the game has ever known, and some good one call Boston home now.

Honey-boy Finnegan and Jack Sharkey are two Bostonese in line for championship fights.

Finnegan is angling for a crack at Sammy Mandell. If he gets it —well he may beat Mandell.

Sharkey has a tougher road ahead of him. He fights Johnny Risko on March 12, and if he wins he then must fight the winner of the Delaney-Heeney fight of March 1 before he can get Champion Tunney before him. But he is confident—and he may get there if he is lucky?

NATIONAL COUNCIL WORK IS EXPLAINED

Mds. C. H. Edwards Addresses St. James' Church Ladies' Aid.

The ladies of St. James' United Church enjoyed an instructive and social afternoon Thursday in the Sunday school hall. Mrs. Edwards, president of the Local Council, addressed the meeting in her usual capable manner, and delighted the audience on the way she presented to the ladies the work and aim of the National Council, of which the Peterborough Local Council forms a part. She spoke briefly of Lady Aberdeen, wife of the Governor-General, Organizing the Council in 1892, she saw the need of one organization where representatives, from all societies could be joined together where there was to be co-operation and co-ordination, all classes and religions meeting on common ground, for the betterment of mankind generally. The motto is "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Canada has now fifty-five Federated Councils and thirteen nationally organized societies. There are at present nineteen standing committees. Mrs. Edwards explained each committee as she named them, Child Welfare, Citizenship, Conservation, Equal Moral Standard, Education, Films and Printed Matter, Fine and Applied Arts, Housing, Household Economics, Immigration and Colonization, Laws for the Protection of Women and Children, League of Nations, Mental Hygiene, National Recreation, Press, Public Health, Soldiers' and Sailors' Pensions and Taxation.

Mrs. Edwards spoke of the visit of Mrs. J. A. Wilson, National President, to Peterborough recently and quoted her as saying, "Let us Canadianize ourselves first of all, so that we may be better citizens.

Mrs. Edwards spoke of different standing committees working in Peterborough—the Well Babies' Clinic, and the good work being done by Dr. Bernie; the police matron and her work; the supervision of all dance halls, etc. Nothing had been done regarding the housing, but the speaker thought it was time to get busy and prevent so many gas stations building on the finest corner lots. She deplored the fact that the railways had secured the land along the waterfront and hoped something could be done in the future to beautify the grounds along the railroads.

Mrs. Edwards concluded her address with remarks that the Woman's Council was the Woman's Parliament and they hoped to do more in regards to the feeble-minded, and had been asked to take up the St. Lawrence waterway question, and also hoped that the word Canadian would stand, when the next census was taken.

Mrs. A. Wilson, president of the Ladies' Aid, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for her splendid address. Mrs. Deyell seconded it and the ladies present showed their appreciation by hearty applause.

Mrs. E. Kitney was present and sang two beautiful songs, accompanied by Miss Eileen Rose, "Coming Home," by Charles Willeby, and "Mother," by Stanley Widener.

Dainty refreshments were served under the capable management of the social convenor, Mrs. Plunkett, and her committee.

$50,000 Damage Done Fort William Fire

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Feb. 13 (Canadian Press).—Fire of unknown origin broke out in the basement of the R. E. Walker, Ltd., dry goods store on Saturday night, about 11.15, an hour after the store had closed, and did immense damage by smoke and fire to the stock, valued at $50,000, which is almost a total loss. The store is located in the Victoria block, rebuilt a few years ago after a fire which destroyed it.

Smoke damage was suffered by the billiard parlor and Elks hall, on the upper floor, and to a somewhat less extent by Bryans, Limited, men's furnishings, and R. Strachan, jeweller, both on the ground floor of the same block. James Murphy is owner of the building.

Paper, for instance, glows with different colors under ultra-violet light, depending on how, and of what, it is made. The genuineness of bank notes or rare postage stamps is detected by comparing under the rays the ones in doubt with others known to be authentic. If one turns yellow, say, and the other blue, forgery is proved. Secret writing and erasures, too, glare out strikingly.

"LES MISERABLES" GREAT IN IN EVERY WAY.

(S. Morgan-Powell in the Montreal Daily Star.)

There cannot be two candid opinions about the quality of the French film "Les Miserables," the screen version made by Cine-Romans of Victor Hugo's epic novel. It is great no matter by what standard or from viewpoint you judge it—great in conception, great in design, great in execution, and great in the quality of the acting and the vision of the producers. The original version was in two parts, one of ten and the other of eleven reels. This has been condensed, for purposes of North American consumption, into twelve reels. A great deal of profoundly interestnig material has of necessity been eliminated. But as it stands, in its curtailed form, the film is still a remarkable example of what intelligence, respect for an author's work, and the inspiration a work of genius affords sincere artists can achieve when applied to the silver sheet of a novel that possesses the elements of immortality.

Many of the best known names in the French theatre were proud to take part in this picture. The story as they tell it picks out the principal dramatic incidents in the novel, always preserving the main theme—the regeneration of humanity through the influence of goodness in man. From the time when Jean Valjean is given his liberty by the Christ-like old Bishop, his face is set towards good instead of evil. The dramatic proportions of the book have been ingeniously preserved, even in the abridged film, and though it is impossible not to discern here and there hiatuses that indicate cuts, yet there is no inconsistency to be noted, and the sequel invariably provides the essential clue.

As to the acting, this is the best acting of a nation whose theatre has led the world. oNt a single role, no matter how trifling, is insignificant, because each is interpreted with care, with due regard to values, and with a sound sense of proportion. The leading roles are so played as to leave one in no doubt whatever as to the future of the French film industry. Technically, moreover, this picture is comparable with the finest anywhere. The photography in some instances is nothing short of wonderful, and at the same time there is an utter absence of inconsistent or blatant lighting effects for the purpose of catering to the most infantile intelligence. Scenes that call for gloom are done in gloom, but gloom touched with imagination and suggestion. The scenes at the barricades in Paris are the ultimate in realism upon the screen. They make each tragic moment live before the eyes of the spectator. Assuredly "Les Miserables" marks the beginning of a new era for the European film.

"THE COUNTRY DOCTOR," BIG PICTURE

A tense story of swifty-moving drama in a New England village—birth, death, suicide, fire, blizzard—these are the ingredients of the theme developed in Rupert Julian's fine production for De Mille Pictures, "The Country Doctor," which is now playing at the Regent Theatre. Featuring Rudolph Schildkraut, Junior Coghlan, Sam De Grasse, Gladys Brockwell, Virginia Bradford and Louis Natheaux in exceptionally strong roles, the photoplay created a profound impression.

The story tells of a self-sacrificing country physician in rural New England who is on duty day and night and whose efforts frequently are rewarded with the gift of a sack of potatoes or turnips! There is a charming love theme, between the daughter of a "scarlet" woman and the son of a small town tyrant, which leads to a pathetic tragedy, yet through the efforts of the doctor, all ends happily.

The character interpretations are unusually artistic. Mr. Schildkraut as the doctor. Junior Coghlan is seen to fine advantage. Gladys Brockwell as the loving mother. Mr. De Grasse as the small town tyrant; Virginian Bradford as the young wife and Frank Marion as the husband, contribute much to the enjoyableness of the picture.

DODGE INCREASING "VICTORY" OUTPUT

Factory Receives Many Messages Asking For Larger Allotments.

Production schedules for the new Victory Six recently announced by Dodge Brothers are to be materially increased, according to Ernest P. Clarkson, managing director, to make possible reasonably prompt filling of the telegraphic orders which are being received from dealers in constantly increasing volume.

"Factory production and scheduled allotments for shipment to dealers during the first three months of 1928", Mr. Clarkson said, "were planned in expectation of a very generous demand for the new car, with its advanced engineering features, but the wires asking for immediate shipment and for increased allotments indicate that by the end of January a decided enlargement of our production plans must be completed so that all purchasers of the new Victory Six may be sure of prompt deliveries. Dodge Brothers manufacturing facilities, and orders which have been placed for raw materials, however, are such that it is possible to increase output of this popular type to such volume as will insure cars for buyers without any long delay."

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. This leads Vance to the theory that the real murderer had not opened it, but someone after him, someone who was hiding in the closet when the murder was committed. That man, he thinks, was Skeel, whose finger-prints were found in the apartment of the strangled Margaret Odell. Markham ridicules the theory and Vance painstakingly explains his reasons for thinking the crime not one of robbery but the work of a highly intelligent man who wanted the girl out of the way.

CHAPTER XXV.

(Wednesday, September 12; evening.)

When Vance finished speaking, there was a long silence.

Markham, impressed by the other's earnestness, sat in a brown study. His ideas had been shaken. The theory of Skeel's guilt, to which he had clung from the moment of the identification of the finger-prints, had, it must be admitted, not entirely satisfied him, although he had been able to suggest no alternative.

Now Vance had categorically repudiated this theory and at the same time had advanced another which, despite its indefiniteness, had nevertheless taken into account all the physical points of the case; and Markham, at first antagonistic, had found himself, almost against his will, becoming more and more sympathetic to this new point of view.

"Damn it, Vance!" he said. "I'm not in the least convinced by your theatrical theory. And yet, I feel a curious undercurrent of plausibility in your analysis. . . . I wonder—"

He turned sharply, and scrutinized the other steadfastly for a moment.

"Look here! Have you any one in mind as the protagonist of the drama you've outlined?"

"'Pon my word, I haven't the slightest notion as to who killed the lady," Vance assured him. "But if you are ever to find the murderer, you must look for a shrewd, superior man with nerves of iron, who was in imminent danger of being irremediably ruined by the girl—a man of inherent cruelty and vindictiveness; a supreme egoist; a fatalist more or less; and —I'm inclined to believe—something of a madman."

"Mad!"

"Oh, not a lunatic—just a madman, a perfectly normal, logical, calculating madman—same as you and I and Van here. Only, our hobbies are harmless d' ye see. This chap's mania is outside your preposterously revered law. That's why you're after him.

"If his aberration were stamp-collecting, or golf, you wouldn't give him a second thought. But his perfectly rational penchant for eliminating declassees ladies who bothered him fills you with horror: it's not your hobby. Consequently, you have a hot yearning to flay him alive."

"I'll admit," said Markham coolly, "that a homicidal mania is my idea of madness."

"But he didn't have a homicidal mania, Markham old thing. You miss all the fine distinctions in psychology. This man was annoyed by a certain person, and set to work, masterfully and reasonably, to do away with the source of his annoyance. And he did it with surpassin' cleverness.

"To be sure, his act was a bit grisly. But when, if ever, you get your hands on him, you'll be amazed to find how normal he is. And able, too—oh, able no end."

Again Markham lapsed into a long thoughtful silence. At last he spoke

"The only trouble with your ingenious deductions is that they don't accord with the known circumstances of the case. And facts, my dear Vance are still regarded by a few of us old-fashioned lawyers as more or less conclusive."

"Why this needless confession of your short-comings?" inquired Vance whimsically. Then, after a moment: "Let me have the facts which appear to you antagonistic to my deductions."

"Well, there are only four men of the type you describe who could have had any remote reason for murdering the Odell woman. Heath's scouts went into her history pretty thoroughly, and for over two years—that is, since her appearance in the 'Follies'—the only welcome ones at her apartment have been Mannix, Doctor Lindquist, Pop Cleaver, and, of course, Spotswoode. The Canary was a bit exclusive, it seems; and no other man got near enough to her even to be considered as a possible murderer."

"It appears, then, that you have a complete quartet to draw on." Vance's tone was apathetic. "What do you crave—a regiment?"

"No," answered Markham patiently "I crave only one logical possibility But Mannix was through with the gir over a year ago; Cleaver and Spotswoode both have water-tight alibis; and that leaves only Doctor Lindquist, whom I can't exactly picture as a strangler and burglar, despite his irascibility. Moreover, he, too, has an alibi; and it may be a genuine one."

Vance wagged his head.

"There's something positively pathetic about the childlike faith of the legal mind.

"My dear fellow!" Vance rebuked him. "The presumption implied in that remark is most immodest. If you could distinguish between rationality and irrationality you wouldn't be a lawyer—you'd be a god. . . No; you're going at this thing the wrong way. The real factors in the case are not what you call the known circumstances, but the unknown quantities—the human x's, so to speak—the personalities, or natures, of your quartet."

He lit a fresh cigaret, and lay back, closing his eyes.

"Tell me what you know of these four cavalieri serventi—you say Heath has turned in his report. Who were their mamas? What do they eat for breakfast? Are they susceptible to poison-viy? . . . Let's have Spotswoode's dossier first. Do you know anything about him?"

"In a general way, returned Markham. "Old Puritan stock, I believe—governors, burgomasters, a few successful traders. All Yankee forebears—no intermixture. As a matter of fact, Spotswoode represents the oldest and hardiest of the New England aristocracy—although I imagine the so-called wine of the Puritans has become pretty well diluted by now. His affair with the Odell girl is hardly consonant with the older Puritans' mortification of the flesh."

"It's wholly consonant, though, with the psychological reactions which are apt to follow the inhibitions produced by such mortification," submitted Vance "But what does he do? Whence cometh his lucre?"

'His father manufactured automobile accessories, made a fortune at it, and left the business to him. He tinkers at it, but not seriously, though I believe he has designed a few appurtenances."

"I do hope the hideous cut-glass olla for holding paper bouquets is not one of them. The man who invented that tonneau decoration is capable of any fiendish crime."

"It couldn't have been Spotswoode then," said Markham tolerantly, "for he certainly can't qualify as your potential strangler. We know the girl was alive after he left her, and that, during the time she was murdered, he was with Judge Redfern. . . Even you, friend Vance, couldn't manipulate those facts to the gentleman's disadvantage."

"On that, at least, we agree," conceded Vance. "And that's all you know of the gentleman?"

"I think that's all, except that he married a well-to-do woman—a daughter of a Southern senator, I believe."

"Doesn't help any. . . . And now, let's have Mannix's history."

Markham referred to a typewritten sheet of paper.

"Both parents immigrants — came over in the steerage. Original name Mannikiewicz, or something like that. Born on the East side; learned the fur business in his father's retail shop in Hester Street; worked for the Sanfrasco Cloak Company, and got to be factory foreman.

"Saved his money, and sweetened the pot by manipulating real estate; then went into the fur business for himself, and steadily worked up to his present opulent state. Public school, and night commercial college. Married in 1900 and divorced a year later. Lives a gay life—helps support the night clubs, but never gets drunk. I suppose he comes under the head of a spender and wine-opener. Has invested some money in musical comedies, and always has a stage beauty in tow. Runs to blondes."

"Not very revealin'," sighed Vance. "The city is full of Mannixes . . . What did you garner in connection with our medico?"

"The city has its quota of Doctor Lindquists, too, I fear. He was brought up in a small Middle-West bailiwick—French and Magyar extraction; took his M.D. from the Ohio State Medical, practiced in Chicago—some shady business there, but never convicted: came to Albany and got in on the X-ray-machine craze; invented a breast-pump and formed a stock company—made a small fortune out of it; went to Vienna for two years——"

"Ah, the Freudian motif!"

"—returned to New York, and opened a private sanitarium; charged outrageous prices, and thereby endeared himself to the new rich. Has been at the endearing process ever since. Was defendant in a breach-of-promise suit some years ago, but the case was settled out of court. He's not married."

"He wouldn't be," commented Vance. "Such gentry never are. . . . Interestin' summary, though—yes, decidedly interestin.' I'm tempted to develop a psychoneurosis and let Ambroise treat me. I do so want to know him better. And where—oh, where—was this egregious healer at the moment of our erring sister's demise? Ah, who can tell, my Markham: who knows—who—knows?"

"In any event, I don't think he was murdering any one."

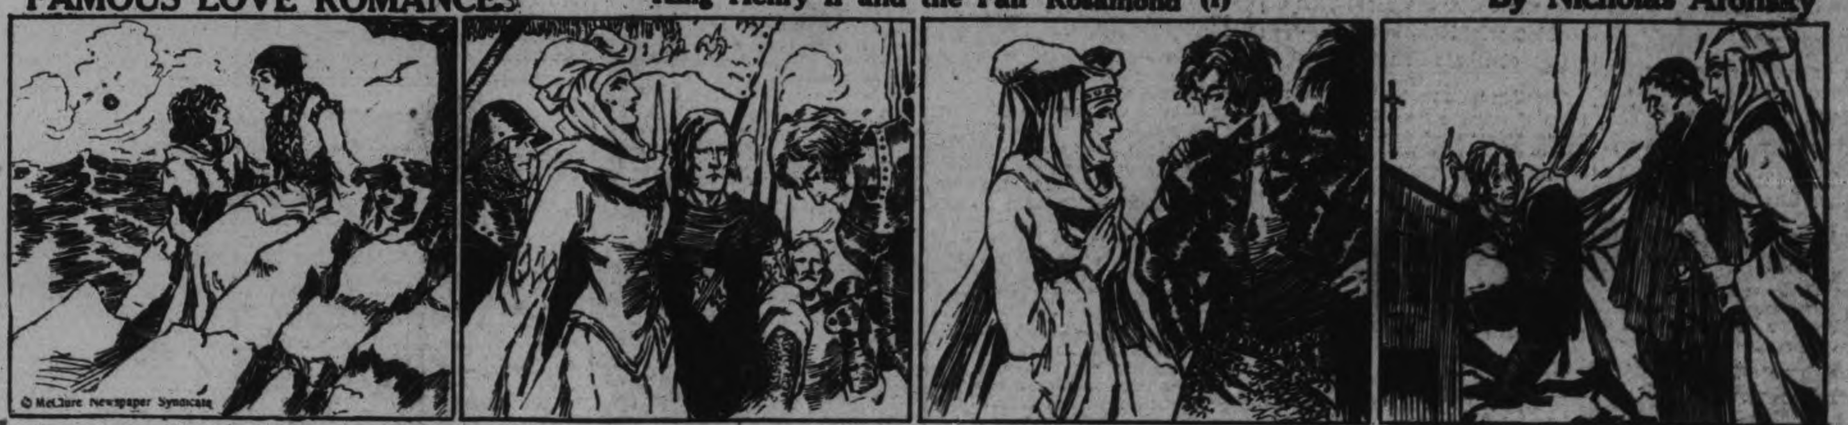
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES - King Henry II and the Fair Rosamond (I) - By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Young Henry Plantagenet, grandson of King Henry I of England, met and loved Rosamond Clifford, daughter of Walter de Clifford, a man of noble birth and bearing, when he was little more than a boy. Rosamond was modest, accomplished and beautiful, and agreed to wait for Henry until he could marry her.

In the year 1150, Henry, a good-looking youth of seventeen, went with his father to do homage to King Louis VII of France, and there saw, for the first time, the beautiful French Queen, Eleanor of Aquitaine. She was twenty-seven, with many love affairs already to her credit, and was much attracted to Henry's father.

About two years later, Henry's father being dead, the boy, now grown to a martial-looking young knight, again visited the French court. The fickle Queen transferred her affections to him and, telling him she would divorce her husband, and use her wealth to help him gain the English crown, turned Henry's head.

Her husband, Louis VII, austere and religious, who, because he coveted her rich Aquitanian heritage, had several times refused advice to divorce his erring, pleasure-loving Queen, could not ignore her infatuation for the young Englishman, and allowed her to divorce him on the ground that he was her fourth cousin.

TORONTO POLICE THINK MAN HELD REALLY NEVILLE

Believe. That John Montague, Arrested in San Francisco, Young Financier.

RECORD REQUESTED.

Young Man Held For Illegal Entry and Obtaining Money By False Pretenses.

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (Special to The Examiner).—Toronto police are of the opinion that the man arrested at San Francisco, under the name of John Montague, who later declared that he was John Nelles G. H. Neville, is indeed the young financier who formerly lived in Peterborough and Bridgenorth, son of a former minister of Bridgenorth Methodist Church. In a statement given to The Examiner from the Detective Department of the Toronto Police Force on Saturday, it was said that San Francisco authorities had wired for Neville's record. Beyond responding to this request the Toronto police have no special concern regarding Neville, who was arrested on February 4 under a warrant from the immigration authorities as a Canadian who had obtained illegal entry to the United States, and has since been charged with obtaining by false pretences

Toronto police were entirely unaware of the whereabouts of the young man whose financial operations read like the plot of a thrilling melodrama, until a wire was received informing them of his arrest under the name of Montague. Under the latter name, he is charged with having swindled two women out of $150 and $300 respectively which he had induced them to entrust to him for investment. When placed under arrest at San Francisco he denied the charges, declaring that he was not the person sought for under the name of Montague and that he was a Canadian whose name was Neville.

Chicago Police Intervene

The situation has been further complicated by the intervention of the Chicago police who declare that he is wanted in connection with dealings in that city involving at least $25,000. It is believed here that priority will be given to the chicago charges against Neville. New York police are also investigating operations of Neville in the Empire state, that are said to run into the neighborhood of $300,000. A woman under the name of Jean Heslit, claiming to be the wife of Neville, was also arrested on November 7

Chequered Career

Althought still quite a young man, around thirty, Neville has crammed into his short career the experiences of a long life-time and was described by a member of the Supreme Court as another Ponzi.

Early in 1925, Netville gave evidences of great financial prosperity and it was stated that during that year he had realized no less than $100,000 by fortunate speculations. In Toronto, he established a brokerage concern and became known as a remarkably successful financier. His operations covered a wide area, extending as far west as the Prairie provinces and including the inducement of several people in this district to entrust him with their savings. A number of professors of the University of Toronto also had sufficient confidence in him to place their accounts in his charge. Then clouds appeared on the horizon, which were followed by bankruptcy proceedings and the winding up of the concern. in December, 1925. He was accused of obtaining $60,000 from the widow of a Toronto business man for investment and the certificate of the seat of Neville's firm on the Toronto Stock Exchange was handed over as security. Neville was placed on trial and was found guilty of obtaining and was released on suspended sentence.

High Life

Neville lived in a sumptuous fashion in Toronto at the height of his prosperity and even after the bankruptcy proceedings, while still an undischarged bankrupt he created quite a stir by the purchase of a fine property at Bobcaygean valued at more than $40,000. While there he lived in grand style, somewhat after the manner of the landowning gentry of Europe and became interested in the raising of pure-bred horses.

This property was later foreclosed by creditors, and Neville went to England. Little was heard of his career there until the arrival here of a young English lady named Miss J. Terrard, who journeye to Toronto in the endeavor to obtained restitution of sums which, through her advice, personal friends had entrusted to Neville for investment. Miss Terrard stated that Neville mixed with the very best society in England, setting up a standard of fashion which compared very favorably with that of the elite who accepted him as one of themselves. In England he was looked upon as something of a financial wizard and he discussed high finance in the manner of one to whom none of its secrets were hid. Of good appearance, an excellent talker and immaculately groomed, Neville invariably made a good impression on all who met him for the first time, and he appeared to have the faculty of radiating confidence in his powers.

Abandoned Baby

It is not yet known whether the woman who was taken into custody on November 7 is the Mrs. Melville who left a nine-months'-old baby with a nurse in a hotel in Windsor, England, and afterwards disappeared.

Last summer the furnishings of his home in Rosedale, Toronto, were sold by auction by his creditors and realized 35 cents on the dollar.

Neville is said to have informed the San Francisco authorities that he is a graduate of Oxford University. This statement, if made at all, is untrue, as Neville never at any time attended the English seat of learning.

The Dugout

(By J.R.H.)

Here's another soldat aching for trouble. He stars off "What did you do in the Great War, papa?" and I rise to tell the meeting he had better be careful with that flea-bitten language around this dump. Not that I have any objection to telling what I did in the Great War, not at all. My great ambition was to keep at least half a kilomet between me and every shell; to look cockeyed at every M.P. and get away with it; to try for A.W.O.L. records; and to catch the shirt-reading infantrymen who stole pieces out of my telephone line. I must say, modestly, that I reached most of my objectives aforementioned, but I never did find the wagon line soldier who first called us "Telephone Girls." And I'm heartbroken therefor and thereby.

I'll likely wish before this argument is over that I'd paid more attention to that bayonet drill, because I can't run very fast, and anyhow if you start running suddenly nowadays people are likely to take you for a part of the crime wave.

"I don't know what you were in the late lamented war," this cootie continues, "but I'll bet you're used to dugouts, deep—deep ones, far from the screech of shells and murmur of bullets." Guilty! I always was for safety first, even before Kiwanis Club conducted that campaign last year. I remember on June 2, 1916, up in Maple Copse, saying to the C.M.R. guy that was pumping lead between the white crosses up towards Sanctuary Wood, "if you let them Boche with their sawtooth bayonets get close to me tonight I ain't never going to speak to you again." And he didn't. That's my idea of safety —get another to fight for you—or sign your crummy letters with somebody else's name.

Take a long walk, "Barnes." The trench outside has more curves than a Follies Bergere chorus girl, and I want to lose sight of you around the first one quick.

SCOUTS AND CUBS

of all present were good wishes for the boys and the hope that the principles they were learning were for the building up of a real manhood among the boys of the city and parish.

The speaker reviewed the historical points of the lesson telling how Goliath the giant had challenged the people of Israel daily as the armies of Israel and the Philistines lay encamped on opposite sides of the valley. As the giant was ten feet six inches in height, the Israelites feared him and none appeared to answer the challenge. There was no greate warrior ready to take it up. Saul the king, who was head and shoulders taller than any man in the kingdom, and might be expected to fight for his people, declined to answer.

Three Enemies Defeated.

Then came the boy David. He was a young man who had never worn armor or carried weapons of war, but he had faith in God and confidence in his ability to win with God's help. There were however other enemies to be met before he reached Goliath. His own brothers tried to dissuade him, not because they feared that he might be killed, but because he might win and become more important than they were. David turned from them.

A second enemy was the king — Saul. He received the boy and offered him his armour and weapons, but David refused them as he was not used to them. He declared that he could defeat the giant with his sling because of the power of God, rebuking the king because he had put no trust in God. David reasoned with the king.

The third enemy was Goliath himself. The giant, when he saw who was coming toward him, laughed at David and told him to go home and grow up, and tried to frighten him away with fierce oaths and threats. David ran to meet him, and slew him.

The Scout knows, continued Mr. Paterson, that scouting stands for straight clean living with honor untarnished, but this is not easy. The Scout has enemies, just as David had. There are those who will laugh and try to dissuade him from his manner of living. He should turn from them.

Others ask that the boy gets out of it, saying it is only a game which will pass away. There would not be such men behind the movement as there are, declared Mr. Paterson, if it was merely a game. These people should be told the truth about the matter as David told Saul, and impressed with the fact that scouting is the game of life and makes better men.

There is a third enemy. The scout will meet that which is wrong dishonest, unjust. He can't turn away fom this or argue against it, but must fight, not only for to-day, but for life. He can't win in his own power but with faith in God and in himself, can fight and conquer, as David did.

As a final word of advice to the boys, Mr. Paterson gave them Saul's words to David as he went to meet Goliath, "Go forward, and the Lord be with you."

The boys were in charge of Scoutmaster George Gimblett, Junior, and Cubmaster Albert Hope. Assisting were Troop Leader E. Peters and two visiting scouts Frank Paddon and Lloyd George, older boys from Toronto, who were in the city in connection with the coming convention.

During the service the choir sang as an anthem, "Onward Soldiers True."

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Rev. Father Costello preached at the Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, taking his text from the parable of the sower and the seed: "That on the good ground are they which in good and perfect heart, hearing the word, keep it and bring forth fruit in patience." This text is taken from the Gospel according to St. Luke, 8th chapter, 15th verse.

"The seed is the word of God—His divine revelation given to the Apostles and their successors, to be explained in season and out of season." This seed falls sometimes on hearts that think only of the material things of this life, and are not occupied with considerations pertaining to their immortal souls, while again it falls on rocky soil, on hearts that accept it with enthusiasm at first, but in time of temptation weaken and fall away.

"Our purpose here is not to serve the world and its pleasures nor to weaken before the onslaught of sin. We are here to listen to the word of God, to accept it with humble hearts, and with docile wills to put it into partcice in our daily lives. We must avoid the occasions of sin; the filthy theatrical presentations and the filthy parties which do so much to drag souls down to damnation, and the evil companionship which is likewise conducive of sin."

WEDDING BELLS

ARMITAGE—FEELEY.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning, when Philomene Almada, second eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Feeley, of Park Street, became the bride of Robert Winton Armitage, of Peterborough, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Armitage, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. Costello. The wedding music was played by Miss Hurley, who also sang an "Ave Maria."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of poudre blue georgette, trimmed with silver, and hat and shoes to match. Her bouquet was of sweetheart roses and carnations.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marie Almeara Feeley, sister of the bride, was in a two-tone frock of rose and blue chiffon with shoes and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. Joseph McGuire acted as best man.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, a number of relatives being present.

Mr. and Mrs. Armitage left on the afternoon train for a short honeymoon trip to Toronto, Buffalo, and Rochester, N.Y. On their return, they will reside at 207 Park Street. The bride travelled in a dress of grey crepe romain trimmed with rose with hat to match and seal coat.

The young people were recipients of many pretty and useful gifts. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a string of pearls, to the bridesmaid a bracelet of brilliants, and to the best man a silver pencil.

GRIFFIN—NEILL

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at 284 Lansdowne Street, when Lillian Kathleen, only daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Neil and the late William Neil, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Earl S. Griffin, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Griffin, 141 London Street.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate friends of the bride and groom by the Rev. K. R. Mills, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Thomas McFarland was daintily gowned in a dress of Napoleon blue flat crepe, with silver stockings and black shoes, and carried a beautiful bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Alex. Johns, sister of the groom, who wore a dress of navy flat crepe and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, while the groom was assisted by Mr. Ray Derrick. After the ceremony was performed, congratulations were extended to the young couple, including a telegram from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, and daughter Joy, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., after which the guests partook of a dainty wedding supper.

Later on in the evening the young couple left for a short honeymoon and upon their return will reside at 284 Lansdowne Street. The bride travelled in a navy blue needlepoint coat with squirrel trimmings and a blue velvet hat with silver trimming, and gloves to match.

MASON'S CELEBRATES ITS GROCERY JUBILEE

50 Years in Business Started in the Present Headquarters in 1878.

This year E. F. Mason celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the grocery business by his father, W. J. Mason, in 1878, at 429 George street, which is the main store of the chain of groceterias.

Fifty years is a record only made possible by meeting the demands and requirements of the public. The expansion of the business is a convincing proof of the part played by the Mason Stores in the distribution of quality food products to the people of Peterborough.

The growing good will that has been extended to this business in all parts of the city is much appreciated and worth many times more than the business dollar.

Full announcement of the most startling event ever staged by a grocery business in Peterborough will appear in to-morrow's paper. Watch for it.

Obituary

JOHN McCABE

The funeral of the late John McCabe took place at nine o'clock on Friday morning from his late residence at 470 Gilmour Street to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

The Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. A. G. McCabe of Regiopolis College, Kingston, with Rev. V. J. Gillogly of Kinmount as deacon and Rev. K. A. Corkery as subdeacon. His Lordship Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, sang the "Libera," and Rev. P. Costello preached the sermon, dwelling at length on the qualities exhibited in the life of a Christian man, as exemplified in the late John McCabe, and speaking of death as a joyful deliverance. Father Costello also alluded to the good work carried on in the Community of St. Joseph by the daughter of the deceased, and by his two sisters, all of whom are members of the Sisterhood.

Priests present in the sanctuary were Rev. P. McGuire, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. J. Finn, Rev. J. G. Maher, and Rev. C. Moloney. Rev. Father Maher officiated at the cemetery. The Funeral Mass was sung by the Children's Choir.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. George Plunkett of Cobourg, Arnold Plunkett of Toronto, Wilfred Plunkett of Oshawa, Robert Begley of Oshawa, Frank McCabe of Detroit and Joseph Begley of Peterborough.

ALL BODIES ARE RECOVERED FROM HOLLINGER MINE PIT; WILL INVESTIGATE DISASTER

Company Officials Unable To Shed Any Light As To Cause of Blaze.

STARTED IN DUMP.

Dependents of Dead To Receive Compensation Under Provisions of O.W.C.A.

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 14.—(Canadian Press.—The body of O. Tittlit, the last of the 39 men who died in the Hollinger mine disaster, was brought to the surface around 8 o'clock last night.

The remains of all of the victims of the fire, which broke out in the mine last Friday, have now been recovered.

Breaking an official silence of three days, Arthur Brigham, general manager of the company, and Noah Timmins, president, received newspaper men here yesterday and submitted themselves to interrogation. The interview cast little light on the cause of the blaze, the officials declaring that until a rigorous enquiry, which they contemplated undertaking within the next few days had been instituted they could establish no reason for the outbreak. Mr. Brigham scoffed at the suggestion that the catastrophe had been deliberately brought about, asserting that it seemed incredible that anyone with a grudge against the company would take it out in the form of killing the company's employees.

Against the Law.

It had been established that the stope in which the fire broke out between the fifth and sixth levels had been used as a dumping place for rubbish—sawdust and paper. This, Mr. Brigham said, was a direct violation of the law, but it had been done outside of the knowledge of the company ofifcers. It was next to impossible for the mine inspectors to ascertain what the stope contained additional to the muck and the back fill for which it was the proper repostiors. There were chutes in this stope. These, however, had not been installed for the purpose of carrying rubbish, but for depositing the debris from the workings.

Mine officials were totally unprepared for the emergency that arose, said Mr. Brigham.

Care has been taken to guard against local blazes and these were never a menace for the Hollinger was a wet mine with considerable water running into the workings. This fact itself was regarded as sometning of a security against any serious outbreak.

The actual property damage to the Hollinger was negligible but the financial loss could not be estimated. The capacity of the mine was 6,000 tons of ore daily and the works have now been closed down for over 3 days. It might be another week before operations were resumed.

Would Receive Compensation.

The dependents of the dead men would receive compensation under the provisions of the Provincial Workmen's Compensation Act. Mr. Brigham said. To this the company contributed a portion.

The general manager praised the timely assistance of the Toronto special train and the car sent from Jenners, Pa., by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. He also spoke warmly of the facilities afforded for the rapid transportation of these aids by the Canadian railway companies.

There has been no indication yet as to when the inquest or the Provincial government investigation will be held. The mine early last evening was reported almost free of smoke and gas and it was believed that the fire had burned itself out. As soon as the bodies were recovered and identified they were distributed among the local undertakers. An idea of the nation-wide character of the disaster is indicated by the destinations to which the bodies have been shipped Some have gone to Nova Scotia, others to Quebec, New Brunswick and other parts of Canada. A number of the dead men were from the old country, with South West England predominating. Cornish miners are present in Northern Ontario in large numbers, many of these following the plan of working in the Canadian gold mines for a few years and returning home with their savings. any nations of Europe are represented in the death list, Finlanders, Ukrainians, Austrians, Croats and others. A large proportion of the dead men were French Canadians from the older settled parts of Quebec.

One man, M. Whalen, was a Newfoundlander.

The Hollinger Company yesterday presented the next of kin of each victim with $200 to tide them over the period when they would begin to receive money under the Workmen's Compensation Act. The provisions of the latter will give each widow $40 a month, with $10 for each dependent child under 16 years of age.

Feeling of Depression.

The disaster has created a feeling of the utmost depression in this northern mining town. While the mine works are totally deserted except for those who are engaged in the task of recovering bodies and a few surface men, the streets of Timmins are crowded wtih miners congregated in large groups all discussing the tragedy. Timmins has two weekly newspapers, the Citizen and the Advance and these have shown remarkable and sympathetic enterprise in bulleting the latest news for the information of relatives. The former issued a special edition late on Saturday evening and another yesterday afternoon. Yesterday morning the former issued a broad sheet for free distribution.

Facilities for getting news out of Timmins were good, for anticipating a large call upon the personnel of the telegraph office, the manager reinforced the customary staff of 2 operators with railroad and brokers telegraphers. No estimation of the wordage sent out from the one telegraph office here could be guaged, but many thousands of words have been handled additional to hundreds of private telegrams.

Labor Motion Is Defeated In London

LONDON, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—A Labor motion complaining the government's failure to deal with the unemployment situation was defeated last night in the House of Commons by a vote of 293 to 137.

In the course of the debate on the motion, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin defended the government's refusal to ratify the Washington Convention fixing the eight-hour day as the standard for labor. He argued that until absolute clearness on all points in the agreement have been achieved, there would be deal danger "to our power to maintain our standard of life if we left ourselves open to competition which in the view of the government might be unfair." He added that the British government is most anxious to obtain a revision of the convention which would remove every doubt from the minds of all participants.

HOPE GIVEN UP FOR STATESMAN

Death of Earl of Oxford and Asquith Matter of Hours.

HEART VERY WEAK.

DUTTON COURTNEY, Eng., Feb. 14 (Canadian Press).—Death was slowly drawing the curtain to-day on another great figure of the Great War, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, who, as the Right Hon. Herbert Asquith, served his country as Prime Minister from 1908 to 1916. All hope for Earl Oxford's recovery was abandoned by his physician early to-day, and it was said the end was only a question of how long the enfeebled heart of the 75-year-old statesman could hold out.

Oxford has been in ill-health for a long time, but pulmonary complications developed and his condition was immediately considered grave.

Early in the evening, Lady Oxford, Princess Bibesco, his daughter, Anthony Asquith, and other members of the family were watching at the bedside, but there was nothing in the aspect of this quiet village to indicate that the aged statesman was battling for life in the mullion-windowed room in the red brick house which borders the main roadway.

The whole British nation last night was watching with deep sympathy the ebbing of the life of the man who held the helm of affairs at the opening of the Great War, and who has been part of the country's life for the past half-century.

Lord Oxford, or, as he was better known during most of his political career, Herbert H. Asquith, retired from politics on October 19, 1926, when he resigned from the leadership of the political party. His formerly robust health soon began to feel the effects of advancing age, and he became an invalid, but was still fresh and vigorous in mind and keenly interested in affairs, but was unable to move about owing to an affection of the leg.

Two or three times since his retirement, Lord Oxford has been reported ill. He was known to be suffering from heart trouble. His present seizure began last week and it was then reported as being a return of the leg trouble, and was not regarded as serious.

The public were surprised yesterday by the sudden announcement of the former Premier's serious condition, in which bronchitis was one of the developments.

OPEN INQUIRY WILL BE HELD INTO DISASTER

Every Person Interested Will Be Given Opportunity To Testify.

PUNISHMENT FOR GUILTY.

Inquest Opens To-day, With Nine Miners On Jury—Adjourned Until To-morrow.

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (Canadian Press). — Premier George Howard Ferguson announced at noon today that when the inquiry to be instituted into the Hollinger Mine fire opens, it will be open to the public, and the miners, and any one else interested will have a full opportunity to make such representations as they desire.

The Premier added that he has not decided what form the inquiry will take, but there is a possibility a Royal Commission may be appointed. The method will be decided after a Cabinet conference.

Premier Ferguson also intimated that if definite guilt or responsibility could be established, "punishment will follow as a matter of course."

The Premier's statement was in the nature of a reply to a resolution of the Porcupine district miners, asking for an inquiry at which they might be allowed to give evidence.

Under Compensation Act

Officials of the Mothers' Allowance Board said today that no claim will fall upon them in connection with the deaths at the mine. The payments made by the Government to the widows and children of the employees who lost their lives will be made under the Workmen's Compensation Act. It will probably be a week or so before the first application is made and meanwhile the Hollinger Mine has given financial aid to the bereaved families.

Inquest Opens

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 14 (Canadian Press).—A jury composed of nine miners, the municipal relief officer, a merchant, and an agent opened, under Coroner Montgomery, the inquest into the deaths of the thirty-nine men who lost their lives in the Hollinger disaster. The proceedings today were purely formal, adjournment being granted until tomorrow when the jurors are to be taken underground at the mine to inspect the scene of the fire. A further adjournment for a least a week will be ordered tomorrow, it is expected.

MEMORIAL PARK TREES ARE BEING DESTROYED

Notice Is Given That Skiing and Other Sports Must Be Discontinued To Preserve Hill as Park.

The attention of the public is again called by the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham to the fact that the Memorial Park, known as Armour Hill, is being used for skiing and other winter sports, this again last evening in face of the fact of a warning notice being published.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham are going to put it up to the young men and young women of the city to consider the facts in connection with this park. Some thousands of dollars have been spent on it in the planting and caring for trees on both the east and west sides of the hill, and if people are using it as they have been this winter, the expenditure will have been in vain. They feel that it is only necessary to again call the attention of the public to this fact, and the practice of using the Park for winter sports for the next few years will be discontinued.

This Day In Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—To-day in the House of Commons government orders will have precedence.

Yesterday in the Commons the resolution of J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg, North Centre), advocating the establishment of a national banking system was carried after it had been amended by W. Irvine, (U.F.A., Wetaskiwin). The amendment referred the question of improved banking systems to the Banking and Commerce committee for consideration, omitting reference to a national system. A resolution by E. J. Garland, (U.F.A., Bow River), advocating the establishment of a national research institute was carried. A resolution of T. E. Kaiser (Conservative, Ontario), advocating the conversion of bituminous coal into crude oil was debated and was still before the House at adjournment.

Hon. J. A. Robb announced that he would introduce the budget on Thursday.

CONFIDENCE IN PETERBORO

"Wherever there is honey there are bees." This is an old business maxim which has recently received a notable application in local merchandizing. And it has been applied not only to the City of Peterborough, but also to the extensive district of which Peterborough is conspicuously the natural centre.

The limits of that district are obviously indefninite. They depend to some extent at least upon the enterprise of the merchants who go after the "honey."

The limits of that district are obviously indefinite. They delivered by motor truck a load of furniture to the vicinity of Brighton village, away down on the south-eastern end of Northumberland county. This was not only a comparatively long trip but it was made under winter conditions, and presumably it was a profitable one for the merchant and for the purchaser, who had selected Peterborough as his buying centre. The element of distance did not prove an obstacle to either party in that transaction. The decisive factor was the satisfaction of the buyer, the price values offered to the public in brief, an inversion of the bees and honey metaphor.

Peterborough stores have also presented during months past, in various other lines, values that have been attracting buyers from a large area. Groceries are selling at prices that seem to be cut to the limit, the men's wear stores are quoting suits and overcoats and other furnishings at figures that appear to be on a level with prices of about fifteen years ago; women declare that there have been exceptional bargains in suits, wraps and other items of their wardrobes.

Recent enquiry elicited the fact that Peterborough is a decidedly attractive buying centre. It holds out substantial economies to the people of this city and district. And as the New Year begins to broaden out, there are new promises of bigger business that should encourage and stimulate the energetic merchant. Any person can quite safely predict that there will be more business done in Peterborough this year than ever before, providing that the general influencing conditions remain propitious and helpful. The man on the street is convinced of that future, and the same sentiment is held by the general body of merchants. There are more attracting features here than ever, more inducing conditions, more automobiles on better roads, and a feeling of national security and prosperity that reaches down to the individual consumer.

The new impetus that has been given to merchandizing in Peterborough deserves every possible reinforcement. An illustration of what one man alone can do to further community business is the J. J. Duffus' motor show this week. Naturally it was devised in his own interests, but it will have a helpful incidental effect in many of the stores of the city.

The Duffus' show indicates a business man's confidence in the large community of which Peterborough is the expanding hub. The opening of the Teco store is another cogent expression of confidence in the Peterborough district. And appropriating for the moment the slogan of the Porter S. White store: "It's confidence that does it." That may be trite, but it is absolutely true.

Confidence of the merchants in their merchandize and their honest efforts, and on the other hand confidence of the public in the advantages of buying in Peterborough!

SEVENTEEN MEN WANT POSITION

Township of Monaghan Re-appoints T. B. Henry Sanitary Inspector, Etc.

BILL SENT TO MEMBER.

The North Monaghan Council held its regular monthly meeting at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, with all the members present, and Reeve Rye in the chair.

Charles Trotter came before the Council and complained of being assessed for two dogs in 1927 and taxes amount to $8. Mr. Trotter asked for a reduction in the dog tax, as he stated that he kept only one dog. No action was taken in regard to Mr. Trotter's dog tax.

William Stevens, High Street, was present, and stated that the road in front of his place was in a very bad condition. He asked the Council to have three or four loads of gravel placed there to fill up the holes. A resolution was passed that the council give consideration to Mr. Steven's request in the annual road inspection.

John Whitfield, the tax collector, presented his statement of the amount of poll tax collected by him for 1927, the statement showing that he had collected $165.

The following charity bills were passed in order to be paid: W. J. Byers, $34.46; W. J. Grady, $12.59; A. Thompson, $56.45; N. L. Paterson, $9.73.

MASS MEETING IS EDUCATIONAL

No Attempt Will Be Made To Take Subscriptions To-night.

TWO SPEAKERS.

All arrangements have been completed for the mass meeting to be held this evening at Canadian Legion Hall, Murray Street, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce in furthering the Forward Peterborough Movement. The speakers will be Dr. Alexander Karr and Harry R. McKeen, who have charge of the campaign. These men will give the audience present the conclusions about Peterborough resulting from their two weeks' intensive study of the community. Both gentlemen will deal frankly with the facts as they appear to them.

Mr. McKeen said this morning: "Long ago I quiet expecting people to agree with me, so I'm merely asking them to come and think with us. From that will come some very definite conclusions on the part of the audience, that will result in much good for Peterborough."

President Gillespie has cancelled an important business engagement in order to be present at this meeting. He urges every citizen in Peterborough to attend this meeting, as the speakers will deal with problems of vital interest to every citizen. This will be the first opportunity a general audience will have had to hear Mr. McKeen. Heretofore most of the speaking has been done by Mr. Karr. No effort will be made to take subscriptions at this meeting. It is purely an educational and fact presenting one.

HICKMAN TO DIE FOR MURDER OF MARIAN PARKER

Will Be Hanged April 27 Unless Attorneys' Appeal Succeeds.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED.

Hickman Hears Sentence Bravely, Having Expected Extreme Penalty.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14 (Canadian Press).—William Edward Hickman today was sentenced to death for the kidnopping and slaying of Marian Parker. The execution was set for Friday, April 27. Judge J. J. Trabucco pronounced sentence. Hickman will be hanged unless his attorneys are successful in an appeal to the State Supreme Court. Two witnesses were placed on the witness stand to establish the crime and degree of murder.

Hickman was ordered turned over to the Sheriff at once for transfer to San Quentin Prison. The prisoner, who had stood erect to hear his sentence pronounced, dropped heavily into his seat after the last word fell from Juudge Trabucco's lips

County Autopsy Surgeon A. Wagner testified to his examination of the mutilated body of the Parker child, and Herman Cline, Chief of Detectives, repeated his testimony of Hickman's sanity trial concerning the youth's confessions.

Before passing sentence, the judge denied the defence motion for a new trial and also overruled a motion alleging the court was without jurisdiction to pronounce judgment. The court overrode an objection by the defence to the admission of any evidence to fix the degree of the crime.

Hickman was pallid and grave as he was led from the court room. However, ten minutes after the brief procedure was finished he was smiling and jaunty as he returned to pose for news cameramen in the court room.

Anticipating that he would be condemned to die on the gallows for the kidnapping and murder of Marian Parker, William Edward Hickman had clamly prepared himself to receive sentence today. Although Judge Trabucco had the alternative of imposing life sentence, there was little expectation that such mercy would be shown. When the jury found Hickman sane, Judge Trabucco said that while he could not specify the sentence at that time, the "defendant would be given all the law allows."

ANNIVERSARY LONG DISTANCE

First of Extra Long Calls Put Through Feb. 14, 1916.

MONTREAL TO VANCOUVER.

Twelve years ago to-day—February 14, 1916—a small group of Eastern Canada business men talked, one after another, by telephone from Montreal to some prominent citizen of Vancouver—hence the Bell system flag is flying to-day from the Bell Telephone Building on Hunter Street.

"While those talks of twelve years ago," said Manager Beamer to the Examiner this morning, "have been more or less put in the background by the recent rapid advancement in radio-telephony, which a few days ago in Toronto permitted the establishment of a 9,000-mile Toronto-London-Mexican connection without delay, nevertheless they really marked the beginning of the era of extra-long haul telephone talks which are so much a part of business and social communication to-day. This was the first long talk—almost trans-continental—from a Canadian city. It represented the triumph of the vacuum tube repeater (which plays such an important part in Transatlantic telephony to-day) in long distance telephoning, and is therefore, we feel, worth commemorating in this way.

PLEASURE-SEEKERS ARE SPOILING TREES

Patriotic League Asks Skiiers and Tobogganers To Use East Side.

The Women's Ashburnham Patriotic League is indignant at the damage wrought by pleasure seekers who frequent Armour Hill. On the side where trees and shrubs have been planted, skiiers and tobogganists have trampled them down. The ladies of the League feel that the other side of the hill might be used by the young people rather than the side on which the trees and shrubs are to be found.

TRANSPORTATION TROUBLES ARE AIRED BEFORE COUNCIL; LARGER BUSES TO COME HERE

Manager of Border Transit Company Discusses Service With Aldermen.

PRESENTS STATEMENT.

Fire By-law Finally Fixed Up For Presentation—Market Hall Repairs Sought.

A full discussion of the troubles and complaints about the Border Transit Company took place at the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night. Frank J. Mitchell of the company was present and explained the company's position, reiterating the desire of the company to provide the best service possible without losing. He asked that every complaint be aired at the meeting in order that he could take steps to rectify it before going back to Windsor. After hearing his explanation of the company's position the aldermen agreed that the provision of larger buses in place of those now running would be the only possible solution of the problem. Extra buses would be idle or running empty except at rush hours, while large vehicles would take care of the traffic at such times.

In introducing the matter Mr. Mitchell stated that the service had been allowed to run down by a former employee but since William MacLay, the present manager, had been placed in charge things had been checked up. In his survey made yesterday he had found that many people ride home at noon and walk back, while he had been told that in two or three months everybody would have out cars or bicycles and the congestion existing at present would be wiped out. It would not be fair to ask the company to spend $20,000 for two new buses under these conditions.

Ald. Macdonald asked that the bus now waiting at the C. G. E. at noon and quitting time should start first from the DeLaval to take care of the workers there, who have only one bus. Ald. Cotton pointed out that the large buses which Mr. Mitchell said he was trying to obtain would help in this particular case.

Statement Presented.

Mr. Mitchell presented a statement of profit and loss from June 1 until Dec. 31. In that time the buses had run 224,164 miles and the income had been $45,637.75, or about 20.3 cents a mile. Under the contract with the Hydro under which they had operated previously they had received twenty cents a mile for the buses, cleaned, fuelled, and serviced, the Hydro providing operators, tickets, etc. Now everything has to be provided from the revenue, and he quoted some of the expenditures, such as gasoline, $9,447.06, tires, $2,110.93, labor, $2,625.38, material and parts, $5,187.89, operators' wages, $11,454.45, superintendent's and accountant's salaries, $2,056.74, rent, $383.00, and many minor items. These totalled $45,563.84, leaving a profit of $73.91. In this there had been no allowance for the truck and snow-plow provided.

Having presented this statement, Mr. Mitchell set forth the company's intentions, saying, "We are willing to do everything asked of us, but it's got to pay." He expressed the opinion that by maintaining the five-cent fare, as at present, and educating the people to ride often the company could make more money than by raising the fare.

Pay-As-You-Enter Now.

The aldermen were startled by the facts disclosed by Mr. Mitchell in explaining why the pay-as-you-enter system is to be inaugurated. Not only will it save time at transfer points, but the following practices will be more or less checked up, he said:

Dropping in a small number of coppers during the rush.

Using tickets from other cities.

Transferring several times on one transfer.

Collegiate pupils having smaller children buy tickets for them. This will be stopped by the introduction of a straight three-cent fare, with no tickets.

Splitting tickets.

Another eye-opener for the aldermen was the statement that seventeen cushions had been stolen during the six months.

A suggestion had been made, said Mr. Mitchell, that the buses should not wait at transfer points, but should go right on. This he thought impractible because a person missing one bus would not want to stand on the corner for fifteen or twenty minutes waiting for the next.

Old Newspaper Draws Attention

Much attention has been attracted by the old newspaper on display in The Examiner window. This is a copy of the New York Herald of April 15, 1865, the day after the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, and is devoted almost entirely to the tragic happening of the night before and to the surrender of the Confederate forces.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE IN WORK

Harry McKeen Reports To Chamber of Commerce on Campaign.

A MEANS TO AN END.

The executive council of the Chamber of Commerce met in special session on Monday evening to go over with Harry R. McKeen, director of the Forward Peterborough Movement, the campaign thus far.

The reports indicated that the work was moving along splendidly so far. Mr. McKeen indicated frankly that from this time on the success of the campaign was more largely dependent upon the work of the Activities Committee and sales group. Both volunteer groups, yet vitally necessary to the success of the work. He emphasized the necessity for each member of not only the executive, but every member of the organization should be ready to do some work.

"Keep this thought in mind," emphasized Mr. MrKeen, "Your Chamber of Commerce is not an end, but a means toward an end. The final objective is Peterborough and Ontario. To accomplish this, folks must lose sight of themselves and think only in terms of the broader objective."

In order that the largest number of persons possible might be participators in the membership group, the executive voted to keep the individual membership fee at $15.00 per year, and is asking for three-year subscriptions, but urging those with the larger interests to multiply their investment in the organization through the Activities Fund. It was agreed that any sums invested beyond the regular membership fee would be credited to this fund unless definitely assigned by the subscriber to an individual. The chairmen of the Activities Committee, Messrs. Dutton and Gillespie, will meet this evening and assign the cards of that group to men whom they think best qualified to present them.

The team organization under Col. J. Wells Fraser is going along smoothly. Major Chris Graham announced a full corps of captains in the persons of Andy Brown, Ross Dobbin, James Juby, C. H. Rogers, and J. H. Seels. These men are each enlisting five men to assist them as lieutenants.

ATLANTIC ACE RETURNS HOME FROM HAVANA

Lindbergh Completes 1,200 Mile Non-Stop Flight From Cuba To St. Louis.

TRAVELLED 9,000 MILES.

Has Visited Fifteen Nations and Dependencies Since Departure From Washington.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. Feb. 14. — Canadian Press. — Flying through fog and rain, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh completed a 1200 mile non-stop flight from Havana, Cuba, by landing safely at Lambert-St. Louis field at 5:01 p.m., yesterday. He was in the air for 15 hours and 6 minutes.

Since his departure from Washington, December 13, for Mexico City, Colonel Lindbergh has covered about 9000 miles on a circuitous route, and had visited fifteen nations and dependencies in Central and South America and the West Indies.

His approach to the field was from the west at 4:56 p.m., passing to the northwest the "Spirit of St. Louis" began circling the field at an altitude of approximately 100 feet. Lindbergh evidently was scanning the field to make sure no crowd was in the way. He made four complete circuits. In descending he "gave the gun" to his plane to avoid getting fired in the mud.

When Lindbergh got out of the plane there was back-slapping and a chorus of greeting as President Harold H. Bixby of the Chamber of Commerce, Acting-mayor Walter Neun and others greeted him.

As mechanics shoved the Spirit of St. Louis into the hangar, Lindbergh posed with the official greeters for photographers and movies in the light of flares which were burned to help out the dim and disappearing daylight.

Lindberg said he flew from Key West along the West Coast of Florida to Cedar Springs and then took a compass course to St. Louis, which he followed, flying low. Visibility, he said, was "very low."

COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER BANK SYSTEM

Given Authority By House To Discuss Improvements in Canada's System.

ALL-DAY SESSION.

Gross Revenue of $532,446 Made From Goods Seized By Customs.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 14.— (Canadain Press.)—Improvements in Canada's banking system will be considered by the Banking committee of the House. Last night the House carried a motion to give the committee authority to this end.

J. B. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg, North Centre) raised the issue with a motion that the time had come, for establishment of a national system of banking. Discussion held the House practically all afternoon and on into the early evening. Eventually the motion was adopted, but with an important amendment. This struck from the original motion the reference to a "national" system and substituted authority to the banking committee to consider an improved banking system thereon.

In a reference to recent bank mergers in Canada, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, observed that a few years ago he had "to go and urge upon one of the strong banking institutions of the country to take over the concern— I am referring to the Union Bank—simply because I feared that we should have in Canada, if this were not done, a condition worse than existed in the case of the Home Bank.

$532,446 Revenue.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 14.— (Canadian Press.) — Goods seized from smugglers and for infractions of the customs and excise laws of Canada netted the Dominion a gross revenue of $532,446 during nine months of the present fiscal year. This information was given to the House of Commons yesterday by W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue. Mr. Euler furnished the House with a statement showing the gross revenue from seizures during the fiscal year 1922-23 and for each fiscal year since. In the fiscal year 1922-23 the revenue from customs seizures and from excise seizures totalled $326,434. For 1926-27 amounted to $429,603. In connection with the seizures during the present year, however, it is noted that 70,534 gallons of liquor have been seized, having a duty paid value of $830,750. This amount must be added to the revenue of $532,446 in order to get the total amount derived from seizures during the nine months of the present year covered in the return.

While the gross revenue from seizures has been increasing, the number of employees and the salaries of the preventive staff also shows a great enlargement. The number of employees in the preventive service in 1922-23 was 127. In the first nine months of the present fiscal year, it had grown to 662. Salaries and expenses paid to employees of the preventive service in 1922-23 totalled $234,223, while in the nine months of the present year, they were $1,110,271. The nine months mentioned in the return brings the fiscal year up to the end of last December.

Coming Elections May Affect Relations

LONDON, Feb. 14 (A.P.). — James Ramsay Macdonald, Labor leader and former premier, in an article which will appear in today's Daily Herald, says that the elections to be held in the coming year in France, Germany, and America, and probably England, may have a considerable effect on the problem of relations between the Old and New Worlds.

In his article he states: "Every time I hear a speech upon the theme that serious differeuce between us are 'unthinkable,' I shudder. What horrible calamities have not grown into strength because at their early stages complacent people thought them unthinkable; a nasty frame of mind is growing up. Unless it is dealt with, it will grow. It must be faced now."

The former premier goes on to say that the misunderstandings will not be removed if the problem is approached by old European policies and diplomacies and remarks that when Lord Derby invited Senator Borah to come to Europe, some Americans believed they saw the working of the old evil wiliness of Europe. "The less the Lord Derbys try to influence America, the better," he concludes.

WINNIPEG FLIER AWARDED CUP

Captain Stevenson Awarded Harmon Trophy For Canada For 1927.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Captain Frederick Joseph Stevenson, of Winnipeg, who was killed January 5 while carrying out a test flight at Le Pas, has been awarded the Harmon Trophy for Canada for 1927, it was announced here yesterday by Captain R. C. Gonthier, President of the Canadian section, International League of Aviators.

PRINCE OF WALES TO HAVE NEW TITLE

Asked To Assume Title of "Master of Merchant Navy and Fishing Fleet."

LONDON, Feb. 14 (Canadian Press)—The Prince of Wales has an addition to his already numerous titles, King George having asked him to assume the title of "Master of the Merchant Navy and Fishing Fleet."

The London Gazette, official newspaper, today will make the following announcement:

"His Majesty has been for some time considering what steps can be taken to bring the merchant navy and fishing fleet into line with other great services of the Empire by having as titular head some member of the Royal family.

"With this end in view and in recognition of the splendid services which the merchant navy and fishing fleet have rendered to the empire for many centuries, both in peace and in war, His Majesty, after taking ministerial advice, has asked the Prince of Wales to assume the title of Master of the Merchant Navy and Fishing Fleet."

It was explained that the change in no way entails the introduction of military status into the merchant navy and fishing fleet, the idea being to do honor to the fine body of officers, men and stewardesses and bring them into closer touch with the crown."

CLINIC FINDS QUICK WAY TO END COLDS

Advise Hospital Tested Method; Is Ideal for Home Use And Brings Relief in Few Hours

A great many Peterboro people—like James H. Springer, have learned that it is no longer necessary to let cold make a person feel miserable or cause fear of pneumonia. Four doctors at the hospital clinic are recommending a simple home treatment that brings quick, sure relief—often in a few hours.

A severe cold had kept Mr. Springer from business several days. When nothing seemed to help him he called the hospital for advice. Doctors then recommended double strength doses of Cherry Pectoral—a highly concentrated mixture of ingredients which hospitals have found to be the quickest, safest and most dependable to end colds. With the first swallow he felt the soothing, comforting, healing warmth, from his nose passages deep down into his chest. In a few hours he felt lots better and in a day or so the cold was completely gone.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by the physician who treated each case.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It is absorbed by the whole system. This quickly checks phlegm, heals irritation and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll fell like a different person tomorrow.

ANNUAL MEETING IS HELD OF DELORO BOY SCOUT TROOP

Progress Shown in Review of the Past Year's Work.

BADGES PRESENTED.

Displays of First Aid and Signalling Given By Members.

MARMORA, Feb 14. — Those of parents and well-wishers who accepted the invitation to attend the annual meeting of the 1st Deloro Boy Scout Troop at Deloro Hall on Saturday evening went away impressed that the Boy Scout movement is worthy of representation in every village and town as well as in the cities.

Mr. M. J. Tamplin, who presided, gave an interesting review of the past year's accomplishments. Chartered last February with a membership of eight boys, despite withdrawals and removals, the Troop is now well holding its own with sixteen members and making good progress. Mr. Tamplin touched upon the valued assistance of the Troop Committee whose work was to back up the Scouts and to administer their finances. The committee had been successful in the past year in raising an income of $123.60. This included a much appreciated grant of twenty-five dollars from the Deloro Social and Dramatic Society. After paying the expenses for the year they had on hand about ten dollars. The big thing worked for in 1927 had been the ten-day Scout camp. Another achievement was the fixing up of the Scout headquarters.

The Chairman then paid fitting tribute to the labors of Scoutmaster S. B. Cheeseman and reminded his hearers that a Scoutmaster has a seven-day job. In mentioning the present constitution of the Troop, Mr. Tamplin said that two were in the Tenderfoot class and eight in the second class. Three had earned proficiency badges, two had merited ambulance badges, while another was entitled to the cyclist badge. The question of a Wolf Cub Troop had been spoken of, but its formation depended upon the support given by parents and the discovery of one who would take up leadership with the wholeheartedness which characterized the Scoutmaster's work.

Scoutmaster Cheeseman, in his speech which followed, gave incidentals of the camp life, and regular meetings, which left no one in doubt as to the formation of the local troop having been worth while.

F. Paquet, member of the Troop Committee, in a brief speech, said: "I think I can detect the handiwork of the Scouts in the matter of discipline in the home."

Mr. F. A. Bapty spoke of his visits to the camp and to headquarters. Everything in connection with these, he found to the credit of the troop. He also said that a great deal of credit was due to the Scoutmaster. Mr. Bapty was then asked to present stars to the following: Norman Smith, John O'Neill, Lawrence Paquet, Fred. Callery, George O'Neill, William Smith, William Simmons and Dan Paquet. Ambulance badges were also presented to Norman Smith and John O'Neill.

The swearing in of Vincent Callery as a new member of the Troop was a ceremony watched with much interest by the visitors present. Good displays of first aid, artificial respiration and signalling by members of the Troop followed.

Mr. S. B. Wright, in a few apt words, remarked that the movement was entitled to every encouragement.

The meeting concluded with visitors joining the Scouts in circle formation for an excellent repast of cakes, candies and soft drinks.

Messrs. M. J. Tamplin and S. B. Cheeseman are attending the big Boy Scout convention in Peterborough this week.

The second annual dance and bridge party in aid of the Troop funds is being held at Deloro Hall and the Company House on the night of Feb. 17th. Last year about seventy-five dollars was taken in at this event and this year the committee hopes to do even better.

Jules Coulombe Under Care of Alienists

MONTREAL, February 14 (Canadian Press). — Jules Coulombe, self-confessed killer of Arthur Richard, variously described by the police as a painter and a professional beggar, and a woman whose identity has not yet been ascertained, is under the observation of alienists in the medical wing of Bordeaux Jail, here.

Coulombe, according to his own confession, killed Richard and the unknown woman in his home on Sanguinet Street here. He then burned the bodies piecemeal in a small stove, throwing Richard's torso on an adjoining roof. The discovery of the torso led to Coulombe's arrest two weeks ago.

If so, it will pay you to try this Chinese Washing Fluid. From your druggist buy:—1 can Gillett's Flake Lye (be sure it's "Gillett's" and not a cheap imitation); ½ oz. Muriate of Ammonia; ½ oz. Salts of Tartar; 1 oz. Sulphate of Soda; dissolve in three gallons of water; keep in large glass bottle or stoneware jar. Use a cup of this fluid to each tub of water, allowing the clothes to soak over night. You'll be amazed at how little rubbing is needed to get clothes spotlessly clean and sweet-smelling, and it will not injure the finest fabrics.

THE MODERN ALADDIN

IT has been said that the chemical engineer who first made sulphuric acid achieved a discovery of more importance to the human race than the discovery of the continent of America by Columbus. For, if the art of making it were lost today, we should be without steel, and the foundation of our industrial structure would disappear.

The world's debt to the chemical engineer is continually mounting. It is he who brought to mankind comforts and conveniences that a century ago were only wishes; it is he who is almost daily finding new substances, new uses for them and new ways of using present materials.

Canadian Industries Limited not only maintains its own staff of chemical engineers, but also has the advantage of an interchange of technical information with two of the most forward-looking of the world's great industrial enterprises—Imperial Chemical Industries Limited, of Great Britain, and E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Company of the United States.

Originally all three companies produced explosives only, and in seeking to improve them, their chemical engineers developed a series of products seemingly unrelated, but actually cousins in the same family because the basic materials are similar.

Thus came Pyralin used in the manufacture of toiletware, combs, collars, etc.; thus came Fabrikoid, so largely used in the upholstering of automobiles and furniture, in binding books, in making luggage and many other things; thus came Duco and a complete line of New Process Paints and Varnishes for the decoration and preservation of the country's homes, cars, furniture, etc.

The Canadian Industries Limited trade-mark on all of these products, so varied in their use, is a guarantee of excellence—a guarantee of the best Canadian workmanship, based on the world's latest chemical engineering knowledge.

This is Number Two of a series of advertisements published that the public may have a clearer understanding of Canadian Industries Limited and its Subsidiary Companies.

E. F. MASON'S

Going 7 Stores Strong 1928

50th ANNIVERSARY YEAR

In the year 1878, Mr. W. J. Mason, father of the present proprietor, opened a grocery store at 429 George Street, which is still the headquarters of the E. F. Mason chain of groceterias scattered around the city. A half-century of conscientious catering to the people's needs, re-adjusting methods as conditions changed has resulted in the linking together of the present chain of popular grocery stores under the one head, centralized at the home of the original store. As a pioneer in the Peterboro business section, the management looks back with considerable pride over this long period of unbroken success in this field, and feels that a real celebration is due to both themselves and their patrons. As a slight outlet to our enthusiasm,

We Will Give Away Absolutely FREE a

BEAUTIFUL CAR

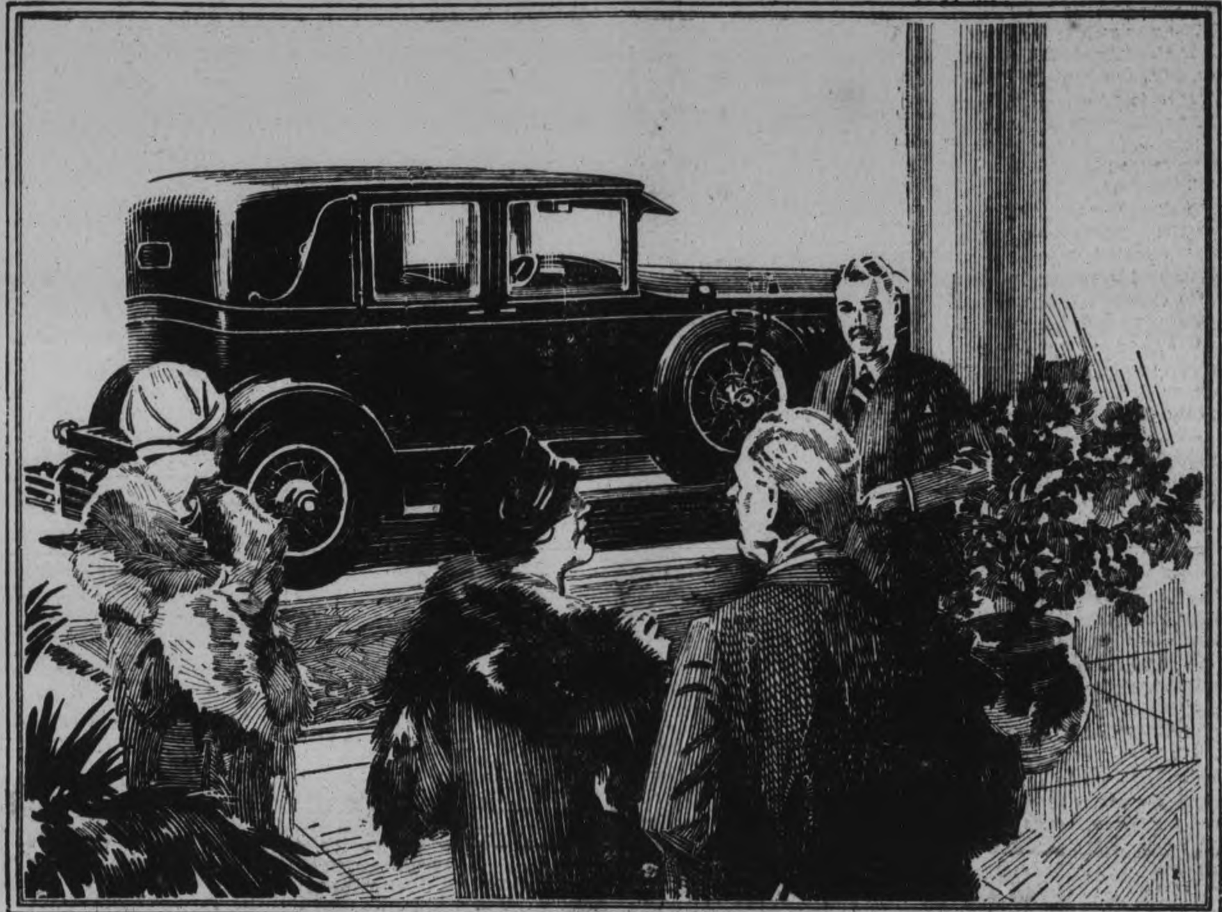
To some Customer at one of our 7 Stores

No Strings to This Gift

When we say we are going to give away this beautiful enclosed Car, we mean just that. It does not depend on the size of any purchase, there is no ticket with every dollar you spend, and you do not have to win out on any guessing contest, but every customer (barring children unless sent shopping by parents) has an equal opportunity to be the successful one.

For the next 65 shopping days our Jubilee Celebration will be in full swing at all of our 7 Stores, and on Monday, April 30th, the Car will be awarded.

During the 65 days of our Jubilee Celebration, Mason's prices for Groceries will be the talk of the town—a profit-sharing event far surpassing anything ever attempted in Peterboro.



How to Try For the Car

Every customer at any Mason Groceteria Store will be handed a ticket which is in two parts. On one end four questions, simply getting our customer's opinion of the Mason Stores and asking for suggestions for improvement. When filled out and name signed, tear off that end and drop in box, keeping the stub with number on it until the drawing is made on April 30th. Mayor Denne will pick out a ticket, and the party whose name appears on it will receive the car.

The information and advice given on the tickets is the compensation we will realize from the gift of the Automobile, and we feel that we will be getting good value for the investment.

Customers are not confined to the one ticket, but will receive one every time they visit the Store during the 65 days of the celebration. Phone orders will have a ticket with the goods.

THE FREE TICKETS WILL BE GIVEN OUT AT

429 George Street, Market Arcade, 324 George, Smith and Reid, George and Antrim, Charlotte and Downie, Sherbrooke and Rubidge, 75 Hunter St. E., to adults or children sent shopping by parents.

INVESTIGATING THE DISASTER.

Premier Ferguson has announced an investigation by a Royal Commission into the Hollinger disaster, in which thirty-nine miners lost their lives.

The northern mining field has been so singularly fortunate in the matter of major accidents that the catastrophe in the Hollinger has left the people of New Ontario stunned by the extent of the disaster, and nothing short of an exhaustive probe will satisfy them.

In the interest of miners generally the fire which took such a heavy toll of lives must be fully investigated in order, as the Premier has pointed out, "that the circumstances which led to this disaster are provided against in future."

So rare had been cases of fire in a gold mine that the theory has been generally accepted in Ontario's mining area that such a fire was impossible.

The case of the Hollinger has proved the fallacy of this theory and it will be necessary now to ascertain the origin of the fire and discover whether or not the conditions that caused such a heavy loss of life can be prevented so that a repetition of this catastrophe can be avoided.

CANADA'S OLYMPIC TEAM.

While it is true that Canada's representatives in the Olympic hockey series should carry off the honors without a great deal of trouble, and some people are inclined on that account to look upon the trip overseas of the Varsity Grads as more or less of a joke, it should be remembered that the Canadian champions are the travelling salesmen, as it were, of a game that this country is selling to the world.

How well Canada has promulgated the merits of ice hockey, as the result of the performances of the Falcons and the Granites at the last two Olympiads, is shown by the fact that a dozen European countries are represented in the present series.

The game is getting a foothold everywhere in Europe and, while the teams over there are not yet of Canadian senior calibre, they are improving fast and to them the visit of Canada's representatives is of great importance from an education standpoint.

Hockey is Canada's game and this country must continue to send her best amateur teams to the Olympic series; nothing less could be expected of the cradle of a game that is fast spreading over the face of the globe, despite climatic difficulties.

In the Varsity Alumni Canada will be worthily represented both on the ice and in the contacts that participation in the series makes possible.

THE WAR MEMORIAL.

The question of whether or not the names of Peterborough's war dead should be engraven on the memorial to be erected here is one that will have to receive earnest attention.

The difficulty that is being experienced by The Examiner in endeavoring to secure a complete and accurate list will leave very grave doubts as to the absolute correctness of the roll of honor.

Since the work began—and it must be remembered that the list of names was published on several occasions—there have been so many additions and corrections that a perfect list would seem to be an impossibility for the conviction will not down that in spite of the numerous changes that have been made there are other names that should be included and perhaps other alterations that should be made.

There are not a few citizens who feel that the best plan would be to dedicate the memorial to the memory of the war dead of Peterborough City and County, without attempting to name all those who gave their lives.

In the meantime, however, The Examiner would appreciate the continued assistance of the citizens of the district generally in this formidable task undertaken on behalf of the war memorial committee, of securing a complete and fully accurate list.

PROMOTING PETERBOROUGH.

In successfully promoting—selling—Peterborough, it is necessary to have an idea of what the community has in possibilities, what it may become, a plan how to get it—then go get it. That is what the Chamber of Commerce wants to do. It takes vision, men and money.

The vision should not be obscured by spectacles of personal selfish interest but the lens of opportunity.

You say that is mere sentiment. All right, let us see.

That Peterborough will keep on growing is certain. It is not future growth that is vital just now but the rate of growth. The now is important to Peterborough. Those in the business of manufacturing and merchandising need this growth this year and next. Not in the indefinite future. And, sentiment aside, patriotism aside civic pride aside, there is nothing the present business men can do that will pay bigger dividends in immediate wealth than to realize and cash in on these dividends now. This very year.

Other communities are doing it and getting for themselves not only their share but that which rightfully belongs to Peterborough, and Peterborough County.

This organized, planned development concerns everybody. The banker, because accelerated progress means increasing wealth which means deposits and clearances. It concerns the merchant for with it comes business expansion. Peterborough today has stores enough to serve a city of 50,000 people and the supporting trade territory. Unless there is more trade, these business concerns will fail

Every citizen of Peterborough represents the expenditure by somebody, somewhere of $4,876. This is divided in many ways—banks, merchants, public utilities, transportation, property owners and personal.

There are abundant opportunities in Peterborough if people but knew. These people must be told. There is only one way—through publicity. That must be done by some such non-partisan, non-sectarian agency like the Chamber of Commerce

Two things are necessary to quicky and materially increase Peterborough's permanent population.

The world must know what it can get in Peterborough; if and when it comes here, and that Peterborough should know what it has to offer.

In other words, know the facts and then disseminate these facts where they will do most good.

That is the job of the Chamber of Commerce.

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

Two young Communists from Canada are on their way to Russia to spend two years in the Lenin Memorial Institute, where they will receive further instruction and training in Communist theories and practices. One young Canadian has already been there for a year. The expenses in each case are met by the Communist party, and presumably the students are to return equipped to forward the cause of Lenin in the Dominion.

Despatches from Moscow and other centres frequently tell of the shooting of men who hold and practice views which are revolutionary from the Soviet standpoint. Exile and near-starvation is a penalty meted out to Trotsky and other prominent men who do not see eye to eye with the governing powers. If Canada opened an institute for the training of young Russians and sent them back to their country to work against and attempt to overthrow the existing regime, does any one imagine they would be permitted to live twenty-four hours?

Far be it from any thought to suggest the use of the firing squad for Soviet missionaries, but Canada should find a way to stop their activities. The men who have gone to Moscow to learn how to use Soviet tactics in this country should not be permitted to return and remain here if they are not native-born. The United States has been able to check many agitators by depriving them of their citizenship rights and sending them whence they came. Others have been cured by prospective doses of the same medicine. Canada may pride herself on her broad-mindedness, but she is not called upon to leave the door wide open for the cranks and disturbers of other countries who wish to come here and work up a revolution. If the laws on the statute books are not adequate to meet the situation which they are creating, this is a good time to adopt and enforce new ones. Much money and trouble would be saved in the long run.—The Globe.

LOOKING TO CANADA.

Colonel Robert A. Johnson, deputy master and comptroller of the Royal Mint of Great Britain, says in his annual report, just published, that it is imperative to economize gold as a commodity and as money. His report is specially interesting to Canadians as he makes the assertion that "gold mining in Canada has developed very rapidly in recent years and the Dominion bids fair to become the second largest producer in the world." This is a mere statement of an obvious fact, but it is gratifying to have it proclaimed by a highly-placed British official. Colonel Johnson has been following world developments more closely than has Mr. J. M. Keynes, who risked his great reputation by saying two or three years ago that no considerable gold discovery had been made in the past 25 years.

Colonel Johnson declares that the rise in working costs in South Africa is regarded with apprehension. If it continues it will be impossible to work many of the older mines. Such a condition must turn the attention of economists and financiers increasingly to the Canadian gold fields. In 1925 the gold production of South Africa was valued at $198,399,790, of the United States $47,959,991, and of Canada $35,880,819. Since then the output of Canada has increased and that of the United States has decreased. It is estimated that in 1919 Canada will pass the United States. She will be still a long way behind South Africa and may never overtake the Rand, but it is of importance to the whole world that in this coontry there are gold mines which will take up the slack caused by declining production in South Africa and the United States, and thus help to stabilize all the currencies on a gold basis. Colonel Johnson writes:

> "It may perhaps be safely said that the suggestions for the dislodgment of gold as the basis of the world's currency, whether sound or unsound in theory, are not likely to be put into practice in the immediate future.
> "It may well be that in the future the international gold exchange will be served to an even larger extent than at present by gold in bars instead of in coin."

Italy has just returned to the gold standard and it is probable that within a year or two all the important countries will be on a pre-war currency basis. They will have a common interest in maintaining the output of gold so as to prevent depreciation of prices and the depression that accompanies deflation. The Canadian gold fields, therefore, will become a growingly significant factor in international economy. Today the financial experts in all nations have their eyes on this country. With the gold yield declining elsewhere the gold standard would not be so secure but for the increasing output of the Dominion.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Varsity Grads are giving Canada more publicity than half a dozen ministers to Paris could bring about.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, February 14 (Canadian Press). — A moderately active business was done on the Montreal grain market yesterday. There was some demand from local buyers for Manitoba No. 6 wheat, and sales were made at 52c per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, and there was also some trading in tough No. 1 feed oats at 56½c per bushel, and in tough No. 2 feed oats at 54½c per bushel, track Fort William for all-rail shipment.

Owing to the increasing scarcity of Argentine corn here a stronger feeling prevailed and prices scored another advance of one cent per bushel. Sales of car lots were made at $1.07 per bushel, ex-store. The demand for oats on spot was rather quiet and prices were unchanged.

The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour was again dull, but the undertone was firm.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

A feature of the local egg market was the further weakness in storage eggs, and prices were reduced two to four cents per dozen. The demand was limited. On the other hand, the tone of the market for fresh eggs was steady and a fair trade was done. The receipts were 856 cases.

Owing to the improvement in the New England States of late for potatoes, the smaller receipts here and the light stocks on track, a stronger feeling developed, and prices were marked up five cents per bag. There was a fair demand. Car lots of New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at $1.30 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.25 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.15 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

Business in beans was confined to sales of odd cars of choice white hand-picked to arrive at $3.00 per bushel, ex-track, and smaller quantities at $3.20 per bushel, ex-store.

Further strength developed in the butter market and values scored an advance of ¾c to 1c per pound. This was attributed to the increased demand. The receipts were 96 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 37 boxes.

Voice of the People

MONTREAL AND LIQUOR

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—The writer of a recent article in The Examiner on the improved condition of Montreal under government control of liquor has been asked what he has to say to the recent dispatch from Montreal referring to the increase of dives and brothels and in the number of girls of respectable families being found there.

In reply, the writer wishes to say that he did not visit dives and brothels, and did not refer to them in his article. Since, however, they appear in the recent dispatch he wishes to say that it is a matter of common talk amongst men that women and girls of all classes everywhere seem to have in an alarmingly increasing multitude of cases, lost all sense of sex-restraint, shame and modesty and openly flaunt themselves with a view to gratifying their evil instincts, securing husbands and lavish admirers. As one prominent man said: "What can mothers who wear short dresses and the lowest-of-the low necks expect of their daughters but just what they are doing. Men do not blame the daughters but do blame the mothers and that horde of idle women who see everybody's faults but their own."

This is a question that the writer in question did not refer to and did not wish to discuss, but since it has come to the fore he can only say that liquor is not the cause of the trouble though it is used largely to aggravate it. The blame lies with women themselves, who are doing nothing to mitigate the evil, as if, indeed it were a readier way to get their daughters off their hands. This is the crying evil, the most terrible of all evils and no attempt is being made to stop it.

A Thought

THE UNEXPECTED.

It is the unexpected that so often happens. The not-looked for sudden-change or the thing not provided against frequently takes place, and I often wonder why more people do not learn to expect what they do not "expect." We are the richest nation in the world, but riches are no bar to invasion. Resources only tempt invaders. And put this down: The only sure means of preserving honorable peace is in national defense.

General John J. Pershing knows war, is a man of few words, believes in peace and preparedness.

ANOTHER PREACHER OF WORK

By Dr. Frank Crane.

George Clemenceau, known as the "Tiger" of France, now eighty-five years old, steps forward as another preacher of the gospel of work.

It has always been our belief that work is about the best cure for most ills that human flesh is heir to. It regulates not only the physical system, as most diseases are cured by forgetting them and thinking of something else, but it is a wonderful balance wheel to the moral character, as the most moral element of any community is that which is at work steadily. And the most moral as well as the healthiest physically is that which gets up when the alarm clock goes off and not that which lies abed until some time in the afternoon.

Getting up and going to work is a marvelous health preserver.

Clemenceau says: "The chief factor in the acquisition and retention of health and happiness is work, I am sure.

"Most of us judge other men and ourselves only according to abstract formulas which each school of thought mechanically sorts out for children Words! Words! Words! Where you find the most words you find the least action, just as where there's more beauty there's the least brains.

"The question at the Gates of Heaven will obviously be: 'What have you done?' and not, 'What did you promise?' Health and contentment come hand in hand like twin sisters.

"My work has always been likewise a diversion, and so varied that if I grew tired I could refresh myself by working at another branch of it."

This is an echo of the old gospel of work as preached by Carlyle.

There is nothing like doing something which the world is willing to pay for to put us into sound condition.

When God created the garden of Eden it is said that he put man in it to train it and tend it.

The world was not given to us complete, so that none of us could make a living by doing nothing.

It is, as you may say, full of raw material, and it is our business to bring it to complete shape. In so doing we find our greatest help.

Valentine Day

Valentine Day affords a good illustration of the modifications which exist in Canada of ancient customs brought to Peterborough as elsewhere in the Dominion by the pioneer settlers from the British Isles.

Around this part of the year, the popular press of Great Britain annually feature a number of articles, practically all of which refer to Valentine as a memory of customs that have passed in all but the most remote districts of the kingdom. Sub-headings such as, "A festival that is out of date," or "A once widely observed custom" show the angle from which the subject is usually treated. In contrast with the English or Scottish city of its size, Peterborough this year celebrates Valentine with zeal that shows little or no sign of diminution.

The observances of Valentine were long assailed by utilitarian philosophers and reformers. "The custome and change of valentines is not ill left, with many other such costly and idle costumes, which by a tacit and general consent we lay down as obsolete" an unromantic commentator urged so long ago as 1648; but for many years after that date, the rites and ceremonies commemorative of St. Valentine continued to occupy His Majesty's loyal subjects on February 14. Misson, a writer who followed later in the same century, relates the survival of the custom. "St. Valentine's Day," he said "is the time when all living nature inclines to couple, and the young folk in England and Scotland, too, by a very ancient custom, celebrate a little festival that tends to the same end. An equal number of maids and bachelors get together; all write their true, and sometimes feigned names, upon separate billets, which they roll up and draw by way of lots, the men taking the maids' billets so that each of the young men lights upon a girl that he calls his Valentine.

"Fortune having thus divided the company into so many couples, the Valentines give balls and treats to their mistresses, wear their billets several days upon their bosoms or sleeves, and this little sport often ends in love."

A Serious Business.

In the spacious days of our ancestors when Valentine choosing was a serious business, love-lorn maidens resorted to desperate methods of divination to discover who was to be their Valentine. The fickle fair wrote the names of their various suitors on slips of paper, which were then rolled up in little balls of clay and thrown into water. The first name to rise to the surface was deemed to be "the one true Valentine."

More courageous were the maidens who went to further extremes. A rather flighty young lady in a series of bold essays, published in 1756, thus adverts to the ancient notions with respect to the day. "Last Friday was Valentine's Day and the night before I got five bay-leaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow and the fifth to the middle: and then if I dreamt of my sweetheart, Betty said we should be married before the year was out. But to make sure, I boiled an egg hard, and took out the yolk and filled it with salt; and when I went to bed, ate it, shell and all, without speaking or drinking after it. We also wrote our lovers' names upon bits of paper, and rolled them up in clay, and put them into water and the first that rose up was to be our Valentine."

The old tradition fully justified itself in the mind of the young lady, for low and behold! next day the first male she set eyes on was her sweetheart. Here is the explanation in a later note:

"What do you think of it? Mr. Blossom was my man. I lay abed and shut my eyes all the morning, till he came to our house, for I would not have seen another man before him for all the world."

Diarist on Valentine.

In Pepy's Diary, that mine of wealth of pictures of life and manners in seventeenth century England, we find numerous allusions to the Valentine Day fancies of the pleasure-loving men and women who danced attendance at the Court of Charles II. The selection of men as Valentines was not confined to the unmarried, even the flirty benedict, Pepys himself was occasionally chosen. Thus we find him congratulating himself on the fact that he has been drawn as Valentine by a very young girl, and would be able to get by lightly in the purchase of the present that custom decreed had to follow his selection.

An entry in his diary on February 14, 1667, tells us that his wife received from her Valentine a present which consisted of her name beautifully inscribed in fine gold letters on very expensive blue paper. "We awere both well pleased with it," he says. On the part of the prudent husband, the satisfaction was tempered by this reflection which he has also jotted down. "But I am also this year my wife's Valentine, and it will cost me five pounds." However, he consoles himself by the thought that he would have had to spend the money on his wife even if he had not been drawn as her Valentine.

Curious Survival.

In certain parts of Norfolk, England, the young folk still remember Valentine, but for a mercenary reason.

If, on the morning of February 14, an early-rising child can "catch" a grown-up and repeat the words, "Good morning, Valentine," before being spoken to, it is expected that the person thus surprised should reward the youngster with a gift of sixpence. It is essential that the "catching" be done before sunrise, otherwise the challenger instead of receiving the gratuity, is liable to be styled "sunburnt" and to receive a sound cuff on the ears for speaking out of turn. Competent observers have remarked that in those parts where this custom still persists, a surprising number of people of mature years contrive to rise unwontedly late on the morning of the 14th of February.

The average time consumed by telephone operators in answering more than 70,000,000 calls during a test in Ohio was 3.7 seconds a call.

W.P.—An Appreciation

By F. H. Dobbin.

At least once in each year, generally about December or January following, we have a brief spell of public recognition of men and women who have given useful and mostly unremunerated service in various beneficial activities in and about the city. We acclaim the industry and persistence of citizens who have served in the council, the school board and other public institutions and say good things in recognition. Churches and societies get into print with reports, mostly congratulatory extolling (and deservedly) the efforts made by men and women so connected. In rare cases gifts accompany these expressions.

But we have one man who so far has been invariably left out of the category, whose useful and continuous diligence gives to us pretty much all there is to be said from day to day as to the vagaries of that perpetual subject of remark and conversation, the weather—a state of affairs that never reaches, except in brief spells, a satisfactory conclusion because nearly all wishes diverge. It is a never-failing subject of remark, reminiscence and comparison. On the street, in the store and factory, homeone has to relieve his mind and make comment as to the prevailing cold or heat, the rain or shine, as the day brings. And, as has been remarked, no one ever does anything about it except Walter Peters. We all accept his decision as to extremes of heat and cold, wetness or dryness, of intensity of wind and other atmospheric vagaries. Occasionally these variations in the weather form the subject of bets and it is quite likely that Mr. Peters is asked to settle disputes, he being the only authoritative arbitrator available. Personal and back-shed records are scoffed at as fugitive and unreliable and subject to distortion. But when Mr. Peters says it is so, it's so. It is a positive comfort to have someone who does not prevaricate.

Some day, and likely after the list of deserved appreciation has been exhausted, a few friends may be incited to do something. Just in recognition of thirty-two years of his assiduous and careful attentions to a self-imposed duty. Making a hobby a real contribution to the interest of the city and neighbourhood, supplying reliable data to this or that. Extreme rains, downpours, flooded streets, colossal snows, winds, etc., besides the placid happenings of the temperate months. Extreme variations in the weather are impressed on the memories of people, often because some marked inconvenience and occasionally some intimate calamity has followed, in which they may have participated. But outside of such general recollections, habit and scope of the weather is not recognized until we have to find some definite date, place and event.

Mr. Peters is ever cautious in attempting prophesy. You can't get him to predict fine weather two weeks from now, much as you may desire it for special reasons. He has been implored by prospective brides to at least provide fine and bright weather for a certain date in June, but was invariably noncomittal. And any weather fixer who wouldn't oblige sweet seventeen, deserves to have his accoutrements taken from him, and to be reduced to the ranks. His suggestions as to what is in store are gleaned from what has happened over scores of years in which he has been concerned with the records. He makes no surmises as to where the bad and uncomfortable weather comes from except to indicate what a definite wind or a definite temperature may bring. He has little use for the oldtime Ayers' Almanac, the stand-by of our forefathers, which took all the days of the month in which to take a chance at three kinds of weather, ten days apart. He knows that what may come is based on meteorological laws that indicate, on the average, a state of humidity, heat, cold and wind over long periods of years. In a quiet way Mr. Peters carries on what the barrister terms a consulting practice, being appealed to on the street to say what is in store. With astuteness he generally advises that what may be expected may be what the enquirer expects, and lets it go at that.

The paraphernalia for catching the weather as it flows is not very complex. A thermometer, of a probity beyond suspicion, a barometer, receptacles to catch the rain and measure the depth that has fallen, and quantity, to take the deposits of snow; sheets on which to plot data and spaces for remarks. But the main thing is diligence, keeping at it, never to put off to-day's record for tomorrow's plotting. All this calls for more fidelity to an idea than is often implied in paid-for service.

Possibly a brief reference as to thist Dominion-wide regulation and how it came about may be of interest. It may not be generally known that Peterborough is, with one exception, that of Toronto, the oldest established weather station in Canada. Records have been kept, here, continuously for fifty-six years. Toronto has eighty-four years to its credit. For many years the late Thomas Telford kept the records for this section. On his death (in 1896), Walter Peters was appointed and has continuously ever since filled the position.

Up to about the early '70s the weather records in Ontario (and in Peterborough) were kept through the services of school teachers, the stations being under the control of the Provincial Government. On the Federal Government taking over the control of the records of the different provinces other arrangements were made.

The Service as now constituted is under the control of the Dominion Government with the head office at the "Observatory," in Queen's Park, Toronto. Scattered through its breadth, from Victoria to Halifax and from its southern limit to the Arctic Ocean, there are several hundred stations where accurate records are kept from day to day of weather conditions. Naturally some of these are much fuller than others, but all serve a useful purpose. The longer period in which these records have been consecutively kept the more valuable they become for purpose of reference and for striking a general average.

Other stations in this District (comprised in the Midland District of Ontario) are at Lakefield, Apsley, Bancroft, Kinmount, Lindsay, and Queensboro, in the County of Hastings.

'Y' COMMITTEES PREPARE PAGEANT

Hard at Work Getting Annual Production Under Way.

In connection with the Y.W.C.A gymnasium pageant, several meetings have already been held and plans are well under way to make this big pageant a greater success than ever.

A meeting of the general committee was held a week ago and an outline of the work of the various committees presented, and the committees drawn up. Members of the general committe are the physical committee and the executive: Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. G. Macdonald, Miss A. Wood, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. H. Wightman. Mrs. H. Beal, Mrs. N. D. Drummond, Miss M. Hamilton, Miss M. Dickson, Mrs. R. Neill, Mrs. S. Porter, Miss E. Morrow, and Mrs. E. E. Harvey.

The advertising committee, consisting of Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. R. Turner, Miss M. Hamilton, Mrs. G. Wood, and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, will arrange for the printing and circulating of dodgers, posters, pennants, newspaper advertisements and notices to other organizations. The ticket committee, Mrs. Macdonald, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Wightman, Miss M. Elliott, Mrs. J. Seels, Mrs. J. J. Craig, and Mrs. J. McNabb will help with the circulation of tickets and prizes for those selling the most. The car committee is composed of Mrs. W. Warne, Mrs. W. Oke, Miss M. Jory, Mrs. A. Robinson and Miss D. Davidson.

The most important committee is the sewing committee. This committee met last Friday afternoon and arranged for the making of 350 costumes. This large task will be handled by fourteen groups of interested ladies who will meet several afternoons or evenings and be responsible for thirty or more costumes. Two of the Y.W.C.A. club rooms have been converted into sewing and cutting rooms and sewing machines will soon be busy converting yards of brightly colored material into attractive costumes. This committee would very much appreciate the services of mothers of the children and friends of the Association who would be willing to help with the sewing, either by getting a group or sewing a few afternoons. The committee also need several more sewing machines and would appreciate it very much if friends would volunteer to loan their machines. The physical director is now buyinug materials and all costumes will be made at the Y.W.C.A. and sold to the pupils at the cost of the material. The sewing committee is composed of the following ladies: Mrs. H. Beal and Mrs. F. D. Kerr, joint convenors; Mrs. R. Hartstone, Mrs. N. D. Drummond, Mrs. W. Oke, Miss C. Large, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle, Mrs. C. B. Westbrook, Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholme, Mrs. B. McNeeley, Mrs. V. A. Hill, Mrs. J. Harkness, Mrs. J. Long, Mrs. T. Brown, Mrs. H. M. Yelland, Mrs. M. H. Drysdale, Mrs. H. Gillespie, Mrs. L. LeClair, Mrs N. Greer, Mrs. F. W. Burnham, and Mrs. J. J. Craig.

Business Expansion Creates Opportunities

For Men of Character

THE Confederation Life Association had its most successful year in 1927, and wrote more new business than ever before in its 57 years' history, and it has again increased its scale of profits to policyholders, as has been done regularly for the past eight years.

The Association is able to offer exceptional opportunities to intelligent men of standing who have the ability and energy to fill some of the promising vacancies that expanding business has created.

Men of force and character who will put the requisite energy into the work are practically guaranteed success when connected with this old established institution which furnishes every help to its staff to put them on the way to success.

If you feel that you want a new opportunity to make a success of your life, and are willing to work hard with the determination to succeed, write to the Confederation Life Association, Toronto, and learn "The Way to Success."

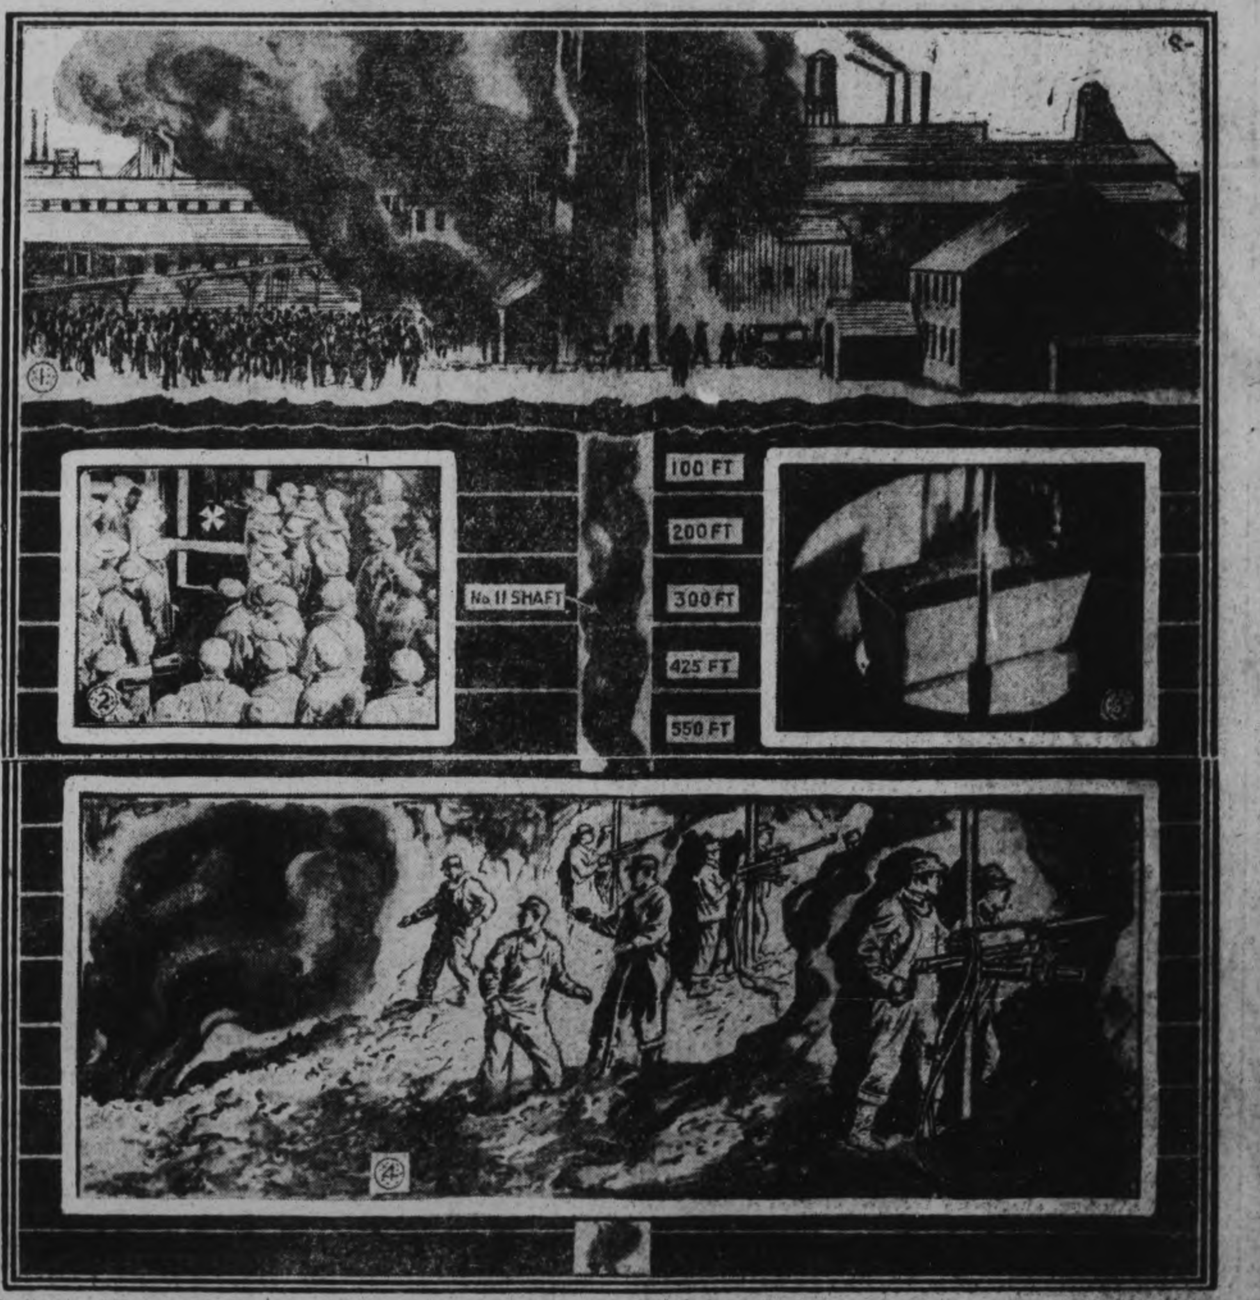
Marmora

MARMORA, Feb. 11.—St. Paul's Junior A.Y.P.A. held another splendid meeting on Wednesday evening. Following arrangements for the Valentine social on the 15th, Grenville Melville gave an amusing recitation. Mr. W. R. Reynolds, of Deloro, was the special speaker of the evening, and in an interesting informal talk to the young folk he stressed the importance of looking after one's health, reading good books and showing kindness to others, if one would live life at its best. Rev. A. B. Caldwell, who was present, followed with a few remarks, suggested by Mr. Reynold's talk.

Mr. and Mrs. William Haslak are home again after a fortnight's holiday in Toronto.

Miss Kathleen Neill is spending a few days in Toronto.



North America followed with feverish interest the fortunes of the forty odd miners trapped in a labyrinth of death when fire broke out on the five hundred foot level of the wealthy Hollinger mine at Timmins. Carbon-monoxide, that ancient enemy of all who work underground, was the grim factor that killed thirty-nine men. A veil of poisonous vapor separated the two score miners from the outside world, mobilizing to send them relief. In the ABOVE composite product of the artist and the photographer, the tragic stage on which the dragon Fire, and the Black Horseman of the Apocalypse play prominent parts, is set forth with vivid conviction. The drawing is not intended to be a scentfic, scale drawing, but shows, in No. 1, the main pit head, at the mouth of the main shaft, with the anxious lines of miners outside, eager to help. Five hundred feet below the site of the fire is imagined, the smoke rolling forth to the terror of the miners, who realize that they are cut off from their way of escape, at least until help, immune in gas masks, breaks through the barrier. The photograph at 2 pictures miners awaiting to go up to fresh air and freedeom, in the cage that rises and descends in the main shaft. The "X" indicates the shaft. At No. 3 the lure of the mine, the heart's desire of strong men—a nugged refined from Hollinger ores, worth a king's ransom in itself—at current prices, $25,000. Sketches in above layout are copyright by Charles Snelgrove, Star staff artist.

MINES.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

TORONTO, Feb. 14.— The market in general did not show much change over yesterday's closing prices while underlying conditions are considered fairly sound by those of wide market experience and who are supposed to know.

Goodyear Tire Features Otherwise Dull Market

TORONTO, February 14 (Canadian Press).—Extreme dullness marked the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. While trading was extremely light and scattered a generally firm tone was shown and at least one stock was conspicuously strong. This was Goodyear Tire, which climbed another 8 at 168. Canadian Oil firmed two at 62½. Hiram Walker firmed a point at 61, and Carlings, the unlisted leader, was fractionally better at 35½. British American Oil was steady around 36. Two features were very weak, International, which lost 1¾ at 92¾, and Cockshutt Plow, which softened four at 125. Numerous slight advances were shown in recent leaders.

Mine Trade Lighter With Trend Uncertain

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (Canadian Press).—Trading was lighter on the Standard Mining Exchange today and an uneasy tendency was shown. Pend O'Reille was the weakest issue in an uncertain list, selling down eighty at 14.00. Dome weakened 25 cents at 12.75 and Sherritt Gordon lost 20 at 7.25. On the whole price changes were small. Though Wright Hargreaves eased ten in heavy trading at 4.60, the rest of the Kirkland Lake issues were steady. A few really strong issues developed, including Bidgood, gaining six at 72½, and San Antonio, advancing eight at 44. Sudbury Basin strengthened 20 at 14.70. Hollinger was steadier, firming 15 at 17.20.

Corn Goes Higher Influencing Wheat

CHICAGO, Feb. 14 (Canadian Press).—Higher prices for corn as well as active trading resulted early today from wet weather over the corn belt, July establishing new top quotations for the season. Wheat was steadied by corn strength, despite moisture where needed. Opening ½ to 1⅛c up, corn reacted a little and then rose higher than before. Wheat started at ⅜c lower to an equal advance and held near to the initial figures. Oats were firmer. Opening prices were: Wheat, March 130⅛, May 130⅜. Corn, March 93¾, May 96¾. Oats, March 55⅛, May 55⅝.

DUFFUS SHOWS FINE CARS AT ANNUAL EXHIBIT

Large Crowd Attends Motor Show of Willys-Overland Lines.

OF STRIKING BEAUTY.

Sales Manager For Company is Impressed With Display Arranged.

The J. J. Duffus Limited, Motor Show got away to a good start when hundreds of citizens viewed the new cars and expressed amazement and pleasure at the elegance of those on exhibit.

Willys-Knight cars, Whippets, and a full line of trucks, make up the wonderful display. The building is most artistically decorated inside with orange and black streamers.

Twenty-seven cars in all are on exhibit, with added refinements and reductions in price.

The Whippet sedan is both dignified and beautiful. It has a wide, deep upholstered seats which invite relaxation and comfort. It is an ideal family car for summer and winter alike

The touring car is a low swung, speedy-looking open car, and the exterior is finished in a two-tone harmony of triple-coated lacquer.

The coach is stylish and roomy, with folding front seats permitting easy entrance or exit. The body lines are particularly pleasing, and the interior is attractively upholstered.

The coupe is an ideal business car, with all kinds of room in the back for luggage.

The cabriolet coupe is the first truly convertible coupe in the light car field. With top raised it is a weather-proof closed car, and with top lowered it is a roadster of the smartest type. It has a wide rumble seat, and a removable panel to permit front and rear seat conversation.

The lines of Willys-Knight Special Six are low and graceful, with rich and harmonious colors. These include the sedan, cabriolet coupe, and special six roadster, and stand for beauty, luxury, performance, and stamina.

A beautiful line of Willys-Knight Standard Sixes is also on exhibit. These are roomy, comfortable, tastefully appointed, and offer a richness and luxury that one would expect to find only in cars of a much higher price.

Seiberling tires are exhibited, and there is a display of Marvelube oils.

Tickets are being given to all people who attend the Motor Show, and on Saturday night Mayor Denne will draw one, and the lucky winner will get a Whippet coach.

A distinguished visitor at the show is Florian Leduc, general sales-manager of the Willys Overland Sales Company, who has just returned from a tour of the big motor shows in both the States and Canada. At New York, Chicago and Detroit the reception was equally as fine for the new low-priced Whippets and Willys Knights as at Peterborough.

Mr. Leduc was loud in his praise for the very tasteful way in which the Duffus Show has been put on, and goes so far as to say that the Peterborough display is on a par with both Ottawa and Montreal, so that Mr. Duffus' remark that he would have one of the best shows east of Toronto is substantiated. From a standpoint of being a distributor's own private show "It is without doubt one of the best that is staged in the whole Dominion of Canada."

From a standpoint of orders taken at the Duffus Show for both immediate and Spring delivery, the Peterborough performance, on a per capita basis, is far away and ahead of any of the Canadian shows. That the new low-priced Standard Willys Knight has met with the approval of the Peterborough citizens, is to put it very mildly. From the comment of the visitors it is plainly evident that this new car is accepted as being of true Willys Knight quality at ordinary car prices.

THE MADRIGAL SINGERS

(By Jeanette.)

The concert given in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening by the Madrigal Singers was very successful and entertaining. The hall was packed to capacity, about five hundred people being present. Applause followed the rendition of each number, with especial appreciation for the solos contributed by Mr. Harvey Doney, baritone singer of Toronto, and Mr. Maurice H. Park, tenor. Two numbers in duet by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Mr. Doney also proved very attractive to the audience and were loudly encored.

The Madrigal Singers, a group of ladies trained and directed by Mrs. Park, were heard to good advantage last night. Their background and costuming added much to the charm of their music . The stage was arranged with a number of tall lighted tapers and hangings of black and silver, with panels of tapestry. A fireplace, a spinning-wheel, and a tall grandfather's clock were appropriate items, and the gowns of the singers were of pastel tints in mauves, greens, yellows and rose, made in old-time style with tightly-fitting bodices, white fichus, and white caps.

The programme of the Madrigal Singers opened with a soft-voiced rendition of "Love's Old Sweet Song," followed by a brisk, swinging chorus in "Come to the Fair." Unaccompanied numbers were "Cradle Song," "I Saw Lovely Phyllis," "Indian Lullaby," and "O May, Thou Art a Merry Time." The group exhibited a nice attention to attack, release, and rhythm, and their articulation was very pleasing. A fine interpretation was given to Bridge's "Lullaby" and the final choral number, "Around the Gypsy Fire,' 'both of these being applauded generously. The latter rendition demonstrated possibly to better advantage the voices of the various sections of the choir, as its descriptive music was not quite as high-pitched as the majority of the other choral selections. Two other pretty madrigal offerings were "Sweet and Low," and a fetching little "story" song in "Two Little Stars." Several repetitions were given in recall numbers by the group of singers.

Mr. Harvey Doney, baritone soloist of Sherbourne Street United Church, Toronto, repeated the pleasing impression made by him on a previous visit here. His powerful, rich voice, with its resonant quality and sweet timbre, was loudly applauded at each appearance. He repeated several of his former numbers, the "Prologue" "I Pagliacci," sung by request, and Mendelssohn's "I'm a Roamer," the buoyant, free, rapid music of the bombastic dancing master. In these two and in a later encore, the merry, vivid, staccato melody of the Neapolitan street song, "Funiculi, Funicula," he was at his best, and held his audience entranced with his dramatic, vital rendition of the gay music. Other numbers were a characteristic negro melody, "Banjo Song," a somewhat dreary thing called "The Sailor's Grave," which was not noticeably suited to the singer's temperament, and a final encore in the hunting song, "Tally Ho."

With Mrs. Park, Mr. Doney sang a trio of beautifully-rendered duets, in which the two fine voices were heard in splendid effect. These were the softly-noted selection, "Calm as the Night," the vivacious "Swing Song" of "Veronique" and an encore in "Here and There,' 'another bright number.

Mr. Maurice Park, whose songs were greeted with enthusiastic applause which demonstrated the enjoyment of the audience in his singing, was in excellent voice. His fine warm, expressive tenor was superb in the opening group, a song in French, "Vainement, ma bien aimee." from "Le Roi d'Ys," and the dramatic recitation of Lohengrin's "Narration." His second group of two old English songs was also received with much appreciation, and included "The Happy Lover" and 'A Sailor Loved a Lass," with an encore in one of Brahms' pretty love songs.

Accompaniments for the evening were in the capable hands of two young ladies, Miss Agnes Logan, who played for the soloists, and Miss Gwen Donley, who provided a fine pianoforte background for the choral numbers.

Members of the group of Madrigal Singers include: Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Mrs. H. F. Doig, Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, Mrs. G. D. McClelland, Mrs. Leila Spriggs, the Misses Geraldine Collins, Daisy Davidson, Margaret Dickson, Ethelwyn Dix, Bertha Hill, May Jory, Helen Lytle, Helen Lamb, Ethel Mabee, Isobel McKee, Mildred Magee, Frances Robertson, Cora Smith, Isabel Connolly, Margaret Wolstenholme, and Miss Gwen Donley, accompanist.

MRS. H. FALLIS IS RE-ELECTED FOR SIXTH TIME

Chosen President of Women's Conservative Association Again.

REVIEWS LEGISLATION.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Liberal-Conservative Club was held in Hooper's palm rooms yesterday afternoon with a record attendance, the room being filled to the utmost capacity.

The president, Mrs. Howard Fallis, occupied the chair, and in a few remarks reviewed the work done by the club during the past year, referring particularly to the at home at which the Hon. R. B. Bennett, and the Hon Howard Ferguson spoke, and the launching of the Young Conservative Club She called particular attention to Clause 10 in the objective of the Young Conservative Association which is being organized throughout Ontario.

Clause 10 reads: "That as many of the young men and women of today who comprise the clubs in our association, will be the legislators, members of parliament, and the leaders in all walks of life in the future, we realize the following facts:

"(1) That if the youth of to-day wishes to achieve success in the world at large, the first and essential lesson they must learn is that of self-control.

"(2) That as the Liberal-Conservative party as a whole believe in the principle and practice of temperance, to this end we emphasize the development of our members into useful, temperate, law-abiding citizens, pledged to do all in their power to help the bringing about of the best possible conditions in our province."

The secretary, Mrs. J. Cridland, reported the last meeting and gave a splendid yearly report which was approved.

Mrs. Fallis spoke on the recent opening of the provincial house, describing it as one of the prettiest scenes she had seen, with so many lovely gowns. She also spoke of the special introduction of Horace Colliver, Conservative member from Prince Edward County. This special honor is accorded a member elected by acclamation.

Mr. Colliver was elected by acclamation from a county formerly considered one of the strongest O.T.A. ridings in the province. The speech from the throne contained nothing startling. Among the matters referred to was the development of New Ontario—an empire within itself—the greatest asset for young Ontarians which in years to come will provide an outlet for Ontario, as Canada did for the British Isles. Old age pension legislation was introduced by the Federal government. While Mr. Ferguson was in sympathy with the idea he feels that it is not fair for the provincial government of Ontario to shoulder so much responsibility. The provincial government has not the same sources of revenue as the Federal government, and in Ontario the old age pensions would be a much harder responsibility to shoulder than in a western province which is essentially a young people's country and where they live chiefly in rural sections and the aged are thus more self supporting than in urban Ontario. Another thing the provinces were not consulted by Mr. King and his government in the framing of this policy yet he follows his old time propensity to shift the responsibility said Mrs Fallis

She also referred to Regulation 17, and explained the situation in regard to the bilingual school question. The policy of the province is, quoting Premier Ferguson's words, that the English language must prevail and must be available to every child in the province. That is the policy and we stand by it and adhere to it, he said.

What we have undertaken to do is largely experimental. There have been three former experiments and inquiry has shown that none of them has been successful. They talk about wiping out Regulation 17. Of course it is gone, in the letter, but the spirit of that was the limitation of the use of a language other than English, and that requirement is there still, and we have only attempted to adapt it to conditions, so that it will be more successful than in the past. It is a crime against the welfare of the country to stir constantly up strife and bitterness against the different elements of this Canadian Dominion when you can arrive at a conclusion that will be of advantage to all people concerned. I am so convinced that I am right that I am going to convince every person in the province of Ontario before I get through with it," was Mr. Ferguson's declaration.

In the Federal House great interest is taken in the questions of development of the St. Lawrence and immigration.

On being asked to speak on the question of a national flag for Canada, Mrs. Fallis asked, "Are we ready to be a nation and accept all a nation's responsibility in regard to defence, armament, navy?

"Until we are we should stop this talk of being raised to the status of a nation, and be proud to be 'daughter in my mother's house and mistress in my own.'"

This was received with loud applause.

Referring to what she called the King's government boasting of the success and prosperity of Canada, Mrs Fallis asked, "Is it success to have thousands of the best educated of our young men and young women going every year to the country to the south of us to help manufacture our raw materials and send them back to us as the finished product?"

WEDDING BELLS

YELLAND—ROBERTSON.

The marriage was solemnized yesterday of Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church, of Joseph Creamer Yelland and Laurel Muriel Robertson, both of Peterborough. Attendants were Miss Ellen Hall and Mr. George Mongraw. Mr. and Mrs. Yelland will reside in Peterborough.

IANNICELLA—CUPOLI.

A pretty wedding took place at 8 o'clock this morning in St. Peter's Cathedral when Alice Mary, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cupoli, of 529 Elm street, became the bride of William Iannicella of Windsor, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Iannicella. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. Costello. The wedding music was played by Miss Hurley, who also sang during the Nuptial Mass.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was in a lovely frock of ivory georgette, trimmed with lace. She wore a white veil with wreath of orange blossoms, long white kid gloves, white silk hose and brocade slippers, and a string of pearls. Her bouquet was of ophera roses and lilies.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Rock Iannicella of Windsor who wore a pretty gown of Nile green satin faced crepe trimmed with cream lace and lavender shoulder flower. Her hat was of lavender and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Rock Iannicella of Windsor, acted as best man. Dainty little flower girls were nieces of the bride and bridegroom, small Aileen Cupoli and Josephine Iannicella of Windsor, in frilled dresses of maize and pink georgette, with hair bandeaux to match, and carrying baskets of roses and carnations.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast and luncheon were served at the home of the bride's parents, with a dance to follow in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Iannicella will leave to-morrow morning by the 4 55 C.P.R. train for Toronto, en route to Windsor, where they will reside. The bride's going away costume is a three piece dress of navy and sand georgette, with trimming of silk braid, small, gold colored, metallic lace hat, blonde shoes and stockings, and black marvella coat with fur collar and cuffs.

The young people were recipient of many pretty and useful gifts. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid a rosary, to the flower girls a ring and bracelet, and to the best man a Waltham chain.

PAINTER HAD STOMACH TROUBLE 5 YEARS

It's pretty discouraging when a hard-working man has such severe Stomach Trouble as to keep him from work for two weeks at a time. Such was the serious condition of Mr. Herbert Brown, 68 Toronto St., Winnipeg, when he first tried Tanlac. "Whatever I ate," writes Mr. Brown, "did me no good, it soured on my stomach and the gas would get around my heart and cause it to palpitate until I thought it would jump out of my body. I had to give up eating solid food and lived practically on milk. For fully five years this kept up, as I had not been able to get any benefit from the medicine I tried.

"At last I decided to get Tanlac and this put me right on my feet. My stomach is now in splendid condition and I eat like a horse. Everything agrees with me and I have never had a sign of gas or bloating since taking Tanlac."

This is only one of thousands of people who have been helped back to health and strength by taking Tanlac. Let it do the same for you. Get a bottle today at your druggist's. Money back if it doesn't help you.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

TRANSPORTATION TROUBLES ARE

Ald. Huffman suggested that the Jackson Park bus come straight down Charlotte street instead of turning up to McDonnell again. People living on Charlotte street, he said, would not take it except on bad days as they could walk down town faster. To this Mr. MacLay replied that they would lose a lot of passengers from the Elm to Murray street section.

Mayor Denne pointed out that the present route was arranged to suit the people of the Charlotte street section. "They're the ones who are complaining", retorted Ald. Huffman. They would be the people who would start to walk as soon as the weather improved, while the other section is farther away from the centre of the city, answered the mayor.

Ald Lowe remarked that there was too much time lost at the transfer point. This Mr. MacLay said, would be eliminated by the pay-as-you-enter system.

The matter of Sunday service was brought up. The takings have averaged about $40 a Sunday, whereas about that amount is needed from each bus to make it pay.

The Mayor stated that the only complaint unsettled was that of the service on the icy day last week. The wires had been hot all that morning. Mr. Mitchell explained that the whole staff had worked all night laying ashes, etc., so that the buses could run, and that in Detroit not a bus had moved until noon. Ald. Ackerman congratulated Mr. Mitchell on the enterprise of his staff, which he had seen shovelling ashes from the Post Office at midnight.

The complaint was entered that men from the Westclox had been unable to get home for dinner. Ald. Huffman pointed out that they had been spoiled when Cooney and Joplings's buses used to run a special trip for them and then go back to the yards until five o'clock. "They took the cream off the business," added Mr. Mitchell.

"I don't want you to think we are throwing up our hands," admonished Mr. Mitchell in conclusion. "We are here for four and a half years more and we have confidence in this city that we can make the system pay when we get started."

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Mitchell on motion of Aldermen Phelan and Cotton. "We're here to give service," responded Mr. Mitchell, "and complaints are only at rush hours."

"Rush on the big buses", was Mayor Denne's parting word.

Silent Policeman Fired.

"Who is responsible for the silent policeman at the corner of George and Charlotte streets?" demanded Ald. Hamilton, almost before Messrs. Mitchell and MacLay had got out.

"Ald. Stocker", replied Mayor Denne.

"It's no ornament, and it's dangerous", was Ald. Hamilton's pronouncement.

"The Board of Works was going to move it but the Police Department asked that it be left there", explained Ald. Stocker. "It saves a man."

"The tree makes it worse," added Ald. Lowe, and a motion passed unanimously that the pillar be removed.

Ald. Hamilton advocated some steps to remove the bumps at the railway crossings. Mr. Mitchell had mentioned that the buses had broken twenty-two springs during January, and proposed that the snow be smoothed down with pick and shovel at the places.

Ald. Stocker reported that he had taken up the matter with the roadmaster of the C.P.R., but Ald. Hamilton declared that it was solely the city's business.

Fire By-law Fixed Up.

Aldermen Ackerman and Hamilton, the only aldermen who had not heard the fire by-law during committee, had been given an opportunity to read it over, and came armed with questions. The first one, raised by Ald. Ackerman, was regarding the clause giving the officer in charge at a fire the right to demand the services of any citizen. At his request the ambiguity was removed, making it certain that only the officer or fireman in charge, and not any member of the brigade, could do this.

The clause requiring each fireman to carry one thousand dollars insurance at his own expense he characterized as being none of the council's business, and was told that the chief wanted it put in.

"Are you though?" asked Alderman Hamilton.

"No, I have a lot more," was the encouraging reply.

"Shoot," commanded the Mayor.

The next clause to draw Ald. Ackerman's attention was the one regarding the notification when work is being done necessitating closing a main or hydrant. Ald. Cotton explained that while the bylaw calls for this to be done in writing it is usually done by phone.

"Just a little co-operation," added the mayor.

Whether or not the report of reprimands, dismissals and other matters is received every month, was Ald. Ackerman's next question. It is, according to Ald. Cotton, and distributed to the members of the council.

While Ald. Ackerman looked up his next point, Ald. Ackerman interjected the opinion that 25 miles an hour for the vehicles is too slow while going to a fire. The men can't get the eight ton truck up to a higher speed between crossings, explained Ald. Cotton, while that is fast enough with such a vehicle anyhow.

Whether the city can compel the posting of no-smoking signs in certain type of buildings, the installation of drip pans instead of sawdust under oil barrels, and the keeping of oily waste in metal receptaclase, was next questioned.

City Solicitor Wearing quoted the Municipal Act as giving a number of specified powers and adding "to make such regulations for the prevention of fire and the spread of fire as the council deems necessary."

"Every chimney and stove pipe shall be kept clean and free from soot," read Ald. Ackerman, looking questioningly toward the Mayor. That gives the chief power to inspect and enforce that precaution, explained His Worship.

The clause regarding public garages where cars are repaired, was amended to make necessary only a single fire door in the wall separating the repair shop from the other parts of the building. Double doors had been required.

"Do you think that this bylaw states definitely that the chief has authority over the assistant chief?" asked Ald. Hamilton reading the clause giving the council the appointing of chief and assistant, and giving the chief the power of suspending or dismissing any member. "He should have some authority," said Ald. Macdonald.

"We have enough autocrats now, without making the fire chief one," demurred Ald. Stocker. "We lost one of the best men we had last year."

"The chief should have authority to suspend the assistant chief," declared Ald. Hamilton.

"If he dismissed him the council would have the appointing of his successor and could reappoint the same man," added Ald. Phelan.

"If the council hires the assistant chief the chief would think twice about firing him without a good reason," Mayor Denne reasoned, "and if he had a good reason for firing him the council would back him up."

A later clause stated that the chief should assign all duties.

There should be some regulation of the chief's hours, Ald. Stocker declared. All the rules are for the men and none are for the chief, he added.

Embankment needs Repair.

B. F. Ackerman and E. H. D. Hall were a deputation from the Little Lake Cemetery Company board asking that steps be taken to repair the wall and bank around Crescent street. They pointed out that the trees are dying from lack of soil and suggested the building of a retaining wall. Ald. Stocker will look into the matter and report to the Board of Works.

Aldermen Ackerman and Greene were empowered to continue discussions with the committee from the Board of Education and the Separate School Board and to bring in a detailed report on the establishment of a department of health with a full time M.O.H.

Mayor Denne with Aldermen Ackerman and Hamilton, were instructed to interview the City Trust about repairs to the buildings. Ald. Hamilton brought up the matter declaring the heating system of the market hall inadequate, and proposing that a furnace be installed. Ald. Huffman added that if this could be done there would be more revenue from the rent of the hall.

Mayor Denne suggested that the repair of the old Ashburnham town hall be also undertaken. To the suggestion that the city trust hadn't the money he replied that it gets the revenue from the stores in both buildings. The condition of the market hall steps will also be inquired into.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL WILL PAVE WIDER STRIP THAN 20 FEET ALLOWED BY COUNTIES COUNCIL

Cost of Extra Width in Centre of the Town Will Be About $15,000.

LOCAL MPROVEMENT.

Necessary By-laws Will Be Prepared For Next Meeting—Tenders To Be Called.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 14. — The regular Council meeting night having been postponed on account of the Warden's banquet held in the Parish Hall last Monday evening, the Council met last night in regular session in their Council Rooms in the Public Library building. On account of the unavoidable lateness of Mayor Kingston, Reeve Bygott occupied the chair till His Worship arrived. This was just as the communications were being read. All the other members of the Council were present to deal with the question of paving to be done this year, and for which the United Counties have made a grant to the town of $50,000.

Specifications have already been drawn up and the proposed paving program surveyed and mapped. It is estimated that the cost will be in the neighborhood of $65,000, and the cost will be borne on an eighty-twenty basis by the ratepayers. This amount includes the full width of the street under the Local Improvements Act for the parts where the paving will pass the business section of the town. The proposed stretch of paving is on the connecting links and through the centre of the town. There is to be two miles in all.

The streets proposed on the blueprint which accompanies the estimates are from the corporation boundary on the Havelock Road along Church Street, Queen Street, George Street, across Tice and south on Grand Road to the southern boundary of the corporation. The second strip will begin at the western boundary of the town on the Hastings road and follow along Sepastopol and Tice Streets to the Bridge, along Bridge Street to Centre Street, and thence to the southern boundary on the Stirling Road. Thos program may also include Front Street.

The parts which are scheduled for extension to the curb are from the corner of Ranney and Bridge Streets along Bridge and Tice Streets to the west side of Canrobert Street. It is also proposed to widen the part from ninety feet south of Tice Street on Grand Road to two hundred and thirty-five feet north of the crossing of Tice Street. These widenings, together with the storm sewers, are estimated to cost slightly less than fifteen thousand dollars. This is the portion of the cost which is to be borne by the town on the 80-20 basis.

The Council is proceeding with the program with due respect to the laws not only of the municipality and the Province, but also those of economy. It is not rushing into the matter in headlong haste which may prove dangerous at some future date. In order that the business might be given the undivided attention of the members, the routine business of the Council was disposed of before the paving affair was brought up for their consideration.

Reeve Bygott reminded the Council that Campbellford had been successful in securing a grant of fifty thousand dollars from the Counties Council for the purpose of paving the connecting links of the county highways that pass through the town. He suggested that the work of advertising for tenders and other preliminaries be started at once so as to have the work of paving actually completed by an early date in the summer. He suggested that an advertising committee be formed, and detailed some of the proceedings which would have to be gone through Mayor Kingston mentioned the several methods which might be applied to the financing of the widening of the twenty-foot strip allowed by the counties. D. J. Lynch, solicitor for the town, explained that he had looked up these methods and agreed with what the Mayor had said. He suggested as the best plan, that the Council pass a by-law with a two-thirds majority. This allowed the people three weeks in which to enter an appeal before the Municipal Board. There was also the initiation plan, but he did not think it as suitable.

Mr. Marryot, Hastings, was present at the request of the council, and gave some useful information on the subject. He explained the agreement which the village of Hastings had entered into and detailed the proper procedure where the Department of Public Highways was concerned. He thought it possible that he might arrange to have the Campbellford council inspect the Hastings agreement for their information. Mayor Kingston asked if the people should not have a vote on the matter. Mr. Lynch explained that it was entirely in order if the council so desired, but it was not necessary if the bylaw were passed. By the bylaw method the people have the opportunity to register a complaint just as though they had voted on the matter. He was in favor of the bylaw method. Further discussion showed that a "money bylaw" would be necessary. This bylaw was necessary to provide for the necessary current funds while the paving was in progress and to pay for the widening of the parts mentioned for that purpose.

The estimated cost of this widening was set at $13,500, but the storm sewers necessary to be installed before this was done would increase the cost to aproximately $15,000.

Mr. Marryot said that the estimates placed before the council had set gravel at $1.75 per yard. He thought it could be obtained for less. Hastings had secured a much lower price from a thoroughly reliable firm and the Campbellford gravel was of a much higher standard It would not in all probability require washing as the Hastings gravel would have had to be treated; and he further reminded the council that the town had its own screening plant. This would lower the estimate considerably. He felt certain that Mr. Fellows, the government engineer, would pass favorably on the Campbellford gravel without having it washed.

Widening Approved.

In order to start the ball rolling Reeve Bygott and Councillor Wiggins put a motion recommending the widening to be done from Ranney street along Bridge and Tice streets to the west side of Canrobert street, and on George street from a point 235 feet north of Tice to a point 90 feet south of Tice street. The cost of this widening to be divided on the basis of 80-20 and to come under the local improvement act. After considerable discussion, the motion was carried unanimously.

Reeve Bygott, Councillors Wiggins and Stone, with the mayor, were appointed a committee to advertise and to prepare the bylaw, on motion of Deputy Reeve Davidson and Councillor Abernethy.

Moved by Reeve Bygott and seconded by Coun. Wiggins that the Counties council be asked to prepare a written agreement with the town of Campbellford under the Highways improvement act, authorizing the town of Campbellford to proceed with the paving program as outlined in the Jan. sessions of the Counties council. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Wilkinson and seconded by Coun. Cole that the bylaw necessary to provide funds to meet the current expenses while the paving is in progress be prepared and brought in at the next regular meeting of the council Carrie.d.

Routine Business.

Among the communications read was a letter from Chief Justice Riddle refering to the prevention of certain diseases and asking that a sum of money be forwarded for this work. The matter was left in the hands of the Inquiry committee with instructions to report at the next regular meeting. The request from the board of the Public Library for the usual anual grant of $1,550.00 was granted on motion of Bygott and Wilkinson. A communication from the Ontario Municipal Association recommending that the towns and villages of the Province become members of the association and thus benefit along certain lines detailed in the communication was favorably considered and the fee of $25.00 ordered paid for the present year. A similar request from the Union of Canadian Municipalities was laid on the table.

Annie McGibbon, through her attorney, Raymond Elliot, Trenton, sent a notice by registered mail that on Friday, February 3rd, she had fallen on the streets of Campbellford and sustained physical injury. The letter requested that the town of Campbellford award her damages. As an alternative, court action was suggested in the letter. It appears that during the icy weather, Annie McGibbon, Trenton, fell on the sidewalk on the south side of the Bank of Montreal building. The matter was referred to the Globe Indemnity Company in which the corporation is insured.

Wall Extension Sought.

This ended the communications, but there was still a petition signed by R. H. MacDonald and eighteen others requesting an extension of the cement wall on the east side of the river from where it ends at present to a point further up the river and about opposite the old saw mill. In the petition it was pointed out that the water from the river overflowed the wall and flooded their properties. The petition was presented by S. F. Bidgood who explained the nature of the complaint. Councillor Stone did not think that the government could be persuaded to continue the wall, but thought they might raise the rip-rap in an attempt to arrive at the same result. He thought there was a case for damages and mentioned how Mr. Sanders had explained that the ice was the cause of all the trouble.

On motion of Councillors Stone and O'Sullivan, the petition was forwarded to the superintendent of the Trent Canal with a recommendation that the necessary action be taken. Mr. Bidgood thanked the council for their consideration.

Deputy Reeve Davidson advised the council that the night constable had requested an increase in salary and spoke in favour of the increase. Councillors Stone and Wiggins moved that the matter be left in the hands of the Police committee, but before the question was put, Councillor Wilkinson asked what the present salaries of each constable is. He was told $1,000 and $1,200. When the vote was taken only Messrs. Davidson and O'Sullivan were opposed.

Report Received

The auditors' report caused some discussion. In presenting it, Councillor Wiggins said that he considered it the best report that the council had had during his term of office. He, therefore, moved its adoption. But Reeve Bygott thought the report should be more thoroughly understood before it was accepted as a matter for the general information of the council. Mayor Kingston said it was customery to receive the report and refer it to the finance committee. This was made a motion by Messrs. Bygott and Wilkinson, and carried.

The matter of numbering the stores was broached by the Mayor. He claimed that he had been approached by several business men who were in favor of the idea for advertising purposes. As matters stood they were almost forced to refer to the location of their places of business in reference to some other place of business. Thus some one was receiving free advertising. The Mayor thought it would not be a bad idea to number the whole town, and after a brief discussion, Councillors Wilkinson, Cole, and Stone were appointed a committee to deal with the matter.

Councillor Wilkinson then advocated the purchase and erection of automatic electric Stop and Go signs for the two main corners of the town. He also thought that Stop Streets ought to be brought into being as, in his opinion, there would be someone killed if something were not done. The Mayor brought up the parking by-law again, and ventured the opinion that in case of fire on Front Street, there was almost sure to be a serious accident when there were very many cars parked there. Considerable discussion followed, which did not bear any direct result, with the exception that the electric Stop and Go business was left in the hands of the Police Committee for approval. On motion of Councillors Wiggins and Stone, the pay sheets and accounts for the month were passed.

BANQUET MARKS END OF COURSE

Young People of Downeyville Enjoy Dinner, Followed by Dance.

FITTING SPEECHES

DOWNEYVILLE, Feb. 13.—A banquet of unusual interest was given here in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening at the completion of the short course in agriculture and home Economics under the direction of M. H. Winter. Covers were laid for one hundred and forty, the boys and girls who attended the classes, also their parents and friends being present. At 6.30 all sat down to prettily decorated tables laden with good things to eat. D. M. O'Leary acted as toastmaster.

In response to the toast to "Our King," all joined in singing "God Save the King." "Our Country," was the next toast, also proposed by Mr. O'Leary in the absence of Reeve Martin Carroll and was responded to by Miss Nora Costello. A reading, "The Efficient Nurse," by Miss Mary Winn received well-deserved praise.

Father Gelvin, in proposing the toast, "Our Classes," congratulated the boys and girls on the interest which they had manifested and the splendid attendance througout the course. Miss Nellie Downey responded on behalf of the girls and Frank Harrington on behalf of the boys, and to this Mr. Winter also replied. It was through his efforts the course was made possible.

C. E. Weeks of Lindsay, chief speaker of the evening, was then introduced. His address on "Success" was listened to with great attention and apparently he convinced his hearers that such was not measured by dollars and cents, but in deeds of a life well lived.

Following this a humorous class paper, "The Downeyville Bizzard," was read by Miss Marie O'Neill, its editor. No member escaped its columns. All were "caught in the blizzard."

"Our Guests" was next proposed by Joseph Piggott and responded to by Mr. Sutcliffe of Lindsay; Miss Petty, R.N., instructor in home nursing, and Mr. Hawkins, instructor in agriculture. Lastly, Leslie Lucas proposed the toast, "Our Hostesses," which was responded to by Miss Anna Murray, of the C.W.L., who had taken full charge of the tables. After all singing "Auld Lang Syne," those who cared to remained for a few hours' dancing, the music being supplied by Downers' Orchestra of Lindsay.

The president was in the chair. arrangements were made for a social evening on Friday evening of February the seventeenth. This evening will be of the same nature as the last. Two weeks later another social evening with a debate will be held.

Orders were taken for salt and grass seed and such village businessmen as join the club will handle the surplus. There will be no storing by the club. Those who order get their goods at cost in the usual way. Those who do not, can buy from the store-keepers at their prices, which will necessarily be at an advance.

For Six Years PIMPLES Covered Her Face

Mrs. Albert Stubbs, Newbury, Ont., writes:—"My face was covered with pimples and was so bad I was ashamed to be seen. I suffered in this way for six years, until one day a friend told me to use and after I had used two bottles the pimples were all gone and my skin was as clean and smooth as ever."

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

LEAGUE SERVICES ARE RESUMED

Petherick's Corners Young People Begin Attendance Contest.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Feb. 14—League services were resumed recently with Thomas Fry, devotional convener, in charge. There were thirty present, starting an automobile attendance contest which promises to be very close. The "Chevrolets" devotional group, and the "Whippets" citizenship department are tied for first place, while the "Stars" missionary and "Fords" social groups were close behind. A standard program is being prepared by a committee, and from the beginning of March points will be allowed for programs.

The devotional talk at the opening meeting was given by Fred Barnum, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fry conducted the remainder of the devotional period. Mrs. L. Barnum gave an interesting reading, "Youth and Pleasure," followed by open discussion on "Pleasure." The consensus was that the greatest pleasure can be attained by giving enjoyment to others.

Earl Fairman, missionary convenor, will conduct the next meeting, and Misses Gladys Simpson and Jennie Fry, delegates to Cobourg Winter School, will present reports.

THE CURE OF DIABETES MELLITUS

If you have been to your doctor and found that you have an excess of blood sugar or sugar showing in the urine, you need not be unduly alarmed, as this disease can usually be cured if the proper dietary treatment is started in time.

Diabetes is a great deal more serious with children than with adults, and twice as common with males as females. The majority of cases occur between the ages of thirty and sixty, but one may have a considerable amount of sugar showing in the urine and still live for a good many years without any kind of treatment.

The sensible thing for one to do when he has discovered the start of this disease is to take a plain water fast for a few days. This is not only my own idea, but is recommended by all of the leading diet authorities and nutritional experts with whom I so often disagree. We are practically all united in the belief that a few days' fast is always beneficial; but while others recommend only four or five days, I am sure that a ten or fifteen days' fast is productive of more good results, and will accomplish more at the start than many weeks of careful dieting.

Large amounts of distilled water should be taken during the fast, and, of course, from one to three distilled water enemas daily. The system should be literally flooded with clear water to wash out accumulated poisons and the excess of sugar from faulty carbohydrate conversion. Skin bathing must be kept up, and two or three sponge or shower baths taken daily to insure proper skin elimination. After the fast this is a model of the diet I usually recommend for my patients:

Breakfast: Choice of one kind of protein, such as eggs, nuts, or cheese. Only one egg should be used; or two ounces of nuts; or two ounces of cheese. Three or four slices of Melba toast. (This is toast dextrinized completely through, which removes all the starch.) A small dish of stewed fruit, such as prunes, figs, raisins, baked apple, or applesauce, no sugar being added. Between breakfast and lunch at least one quart of distilled water should be taken.

Lunch: Choice of one or more as desired of the following vegetables: Celery, spinach, small string beans, asparagus, cucumber, egg plant, small beets and tops, summer squash, small turnips and tops, small carrots, small parsnips, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant, (salsify), mallow, kale, zucchini, parsley, Nasturtium leaves and flowers, endive, avocado (alligator pear), or ripe olives. These may be used both cooked and raw. In the afternoon at least one quart of distilled water should be used.

Dinner: Choice of one of the following proteins: Beef, mutton, rabbit, chicken, fish (except salmon), cottage or cream cheese, gelatin, frogs' legs or turtle. Not over a quarter of a pound of meat should be used, or a corresponding amount of any of the other proteins. Choice of one or more vegetables from the list used at lunch. No desserts.

This diet should be taken for at least several weeks before any attempt is made to use any of the carbohydrate foods. If sugar does not disappear from the urine with this diet, it is sometimes advisable to take a milk diet for several weeks, but this is not usually necessary, and the diet I have just given will be sufficient to adequately nourish the body without the addition of any other kind of food.

If the reader is suffering from Diabetes, and does not get complete results from following this diet, I will be glad to have him write to me personally for service is furnished to readers of The Examiner.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Alex M. writes: "Specialists tell me I have no hydrochloric acid in my stomach. Have taken bottle after bottle of it until it has affected my teeth. What is your idea of a cure?"

Answer: The cure of too much or too little stomach acidity depends entirely upon living on a well balanced diet. The more hydrochloric acid you take internally, the worse your condition will become eventually.

Question: Housewife asks: "Are carrots, string beans and beets a good combination with meat and stewed fruit? If so, is it all right for me to have this combination regularly every day?"

Answer: The combination you ask about is an excellent one, and can be used with benefit at least once a day.

Question: E. M. asks: "Are cold shower baths daily each morning good for a person?"

Answer: Cold baths are very invigorating and help to increase the blood's circulation. Some people who are anemic or nervous cannot take a real cold bath with benefit until they have practically recovered from their trouble.

Question: Mother asks: "What do you suppose is the cause of a boy of thirteen always picking at his nose? I have given him the worm remedy, but still he picks at each side."

Answer: Your boy may be troubled with adenoids or chronic catarrh. In some cases, the nose picking is simply a habit which you can correct by having him wear mittens or gloves as much of the time as possible.

HOROSCOPE
The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1928

According to astrology this is an unfavorable day for many activities on the planet Earth and caution should be exercised in even routine matters.

Women are well directed today and they should push all important business before early afternoon.

There is a promising sign for flirtation and for honest love-making, but it will be wise not to exchange pledges or even confidences while this rule prevails.

The planetary rule is fairly favorable to brides and bride-grooms, who should find good luck attending the wedding ceremony.

There is an auspicious rule for home-making and home-building. Myriads of dwellings will be constructed in the spring, it is forecast.

Increase of insanity and slight mental unbalance is foretold and there will be crimes that encourage belief in obsession, the seers prophesy.

Astrologers call attention to the importance of resting the nerves and avoidare certain sinister aspects that threaten the brain.

Maladies of the heart as well as the brain will be more than ever prevalent, it is forecast, and it is pointed out that the wise will conserve their energies.

Despite many threatening aspects, astrologers prognosticate for the United States abundant prosperity and marvelous development.

Beauty is to attain a new value in the public mind and American cities will take on many glories, original and fundamentally artistic, the seers foretell.

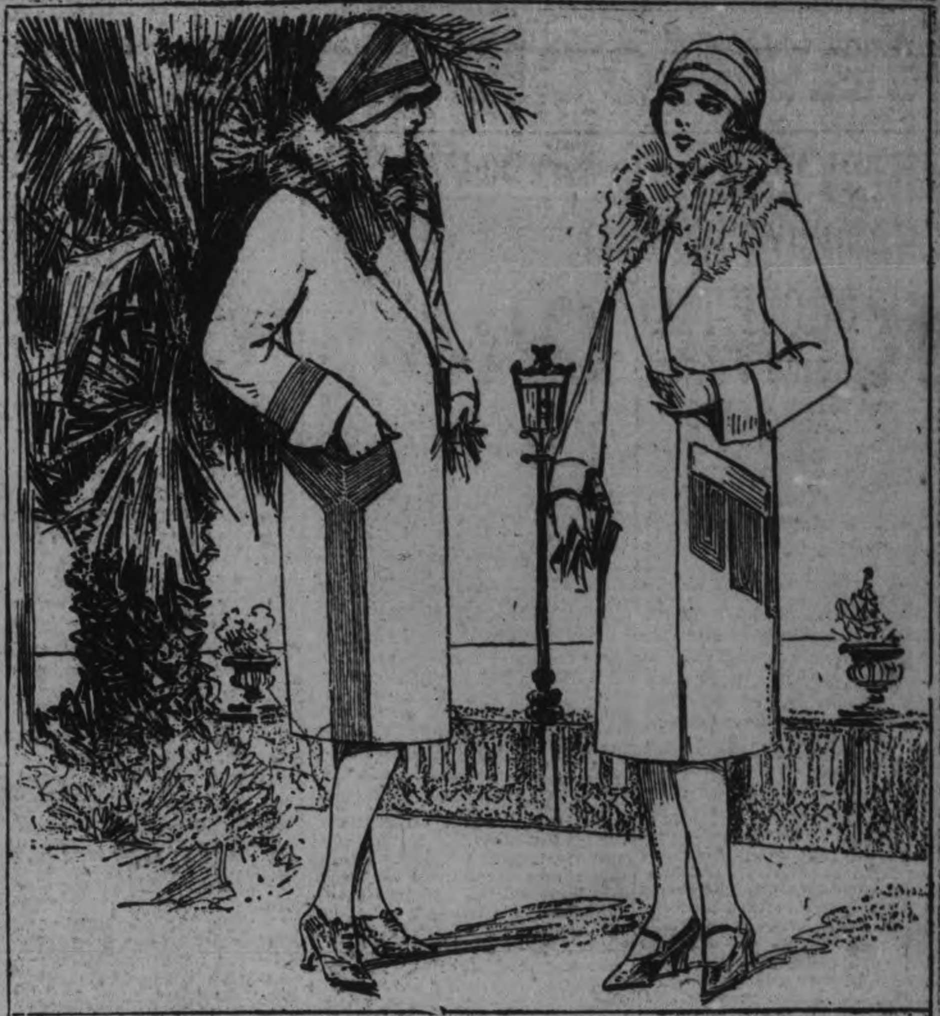
In 1928 young heroes and young leaders of thought and action are to develop in the United States and to win international recognition, if the stars are rightly read.

Turkey is now subject to benefic planetary aspects that will raise the country to a higher plane among the nations, the seers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is may meet epoch-making experiences in their lives this year. They should be wise and cautious in all their actions.

Children born on this day probably will be keen of mind and strong of body. The subjects of this sign may be deceived now and then, but as a rule they should be good judges of human nature.

Queen Mary's favorite color in dress is wistaria-delphinium, blue-pale, with a suggestion of mauve. In all things she prefers soft pastel shades to brilliancy and has a marked aversion to black.



With the grace of a swan and the softness of down..The fabric, silhouettes, stitchery and tailoring are incomparably elegant and exclusive..

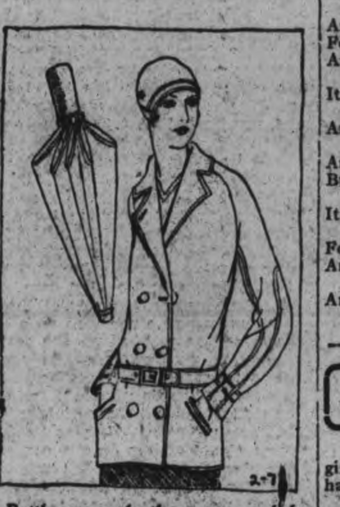
Barrie's

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL



Bottle green leather was used for the short raincoat and the stubby little umbrella to carry with it.

Quite the smartest rainy-day outfit I have seen was one that consisted of a short leather jacket with a leather-covered umbrella to match. I really don't know whether these leather umbrellas would prove as generally practicable as the usual silk-covered umbrellas, but there's no denying that they look attractive.

Dogs and ducks, not to mention horses and elephants have served as models for umbrella handles recently and now having apparently exhausted the inspiration to be taken from the animal kingdom the umbrella makers are turning to the vegetable kingdom.

I saw a charming umbrella the other day made unusually cheerful by the addition of a vivid red tomato. There is nothing especially appropriate about a tomato—and I should not imagine that the tomato offered an especially convenient sort of handle. Still it is every bit as appropriate as a dog's head. Before long we may be privileged to choose our favorite vegetable and the umbrella dealers may have umbrellas with handles shaped like parsnips, radishes, carrots, and even potatoes.

With all these amusing and picturesque umbrellas to choose from and with raincoats that are colorful and becoming it is no wonder that up-to-date women have no great dread of rainy days. Undoubtedly the reason why the older women in our families have such a depressing aversion to cloudy skies and watch the barometer with such dread of any signs of rain is because of an early acquired rainy-day complex due to the unbecoming and dreary sort of rainboat and hubrellas that were in fashion when they were young.

Perhaps I shouldn't have said "in fashion"—the fact seems to be that until recently fashions didn't count in rainy weather, and an umbrella was an umbrella until it was worn through. Now fashions in umbrellas change as rapidly as fashions in hats.

UNNECESSARY WORK

All extra-extras should be put away in summer time to save the housewife. That includes small ornaments for mantel, many small rugs and such things as intricate crystal or ivory lamps or decorations.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

SOMEONE CARES

It's a rough old world, with a rough old way,
And maybe you had a hurt today,
For the hill is hard, and the road is long,
And many a dream you dream goes wrong.
It's a rough old world, and its corners show,
And its blows you feel, and its bumps you know,
And many a grief one often bears,
But what do you care if someone cares?

It's a rough old world, with a rough old face,
For it all is life, and it's all a race,
And a few will shove, and a few will crowd,
And a few be mean, and a few be proud.
It's a rough old world, you will always find,
There are words untrue, there are deeds unkind,
And the pebble hurts, and the bramble tears,
But what do you care if someone cares?

It's a rough old world, with a rough old hand,
And it's hard to meet, and to understand,
But all we need is a friend or two,
Whatever the rest may say or do.
It's a rough old world, with a rough old way,
And maybe a hurt you had today,
But here's a word for each word of theirs:
I want you to know that someone cares.

Havelock Intermediates Defeated 4-2 on Round

WHITBY WINS CHAMPIONSHIP OF GROUP TWO

Tied With Havelock 2-2 in the Final Tussle, But Win on Round.

GOOD HOCKEY.

Railroaders Stage Final Spurt To Tie Count in Last Frame.

If ever a team put up a valiant fight, only to lose because of earlier short comings, it was that gang of Havelock Intermediates when they threw four men up on the line, knotted the count at 2—2 in the final session and besieged the Whitby citadel during the dying minutes of last night's game in Brock Street Rink. Yet, with the enemy on the run, they could not land another, and by virtue of their 2—0 victory last Friday night the Whitby Intermediates trotted off home with the championship of Group 2 tucked away beneath their belts. On the play during the greater part of the two games, an unprejudiced fan would grant the winners their crown; yet in defeat, the Moguls went down fighting and were far from disgraced. They've won a warm spot in the heart of Peterborough fandom after last night's game.

When the Railroaders made such an expectedly good showing in the Lakeshore town last week, interest in the return game went up sky high and the villagers from out east lost no time in slating a special train to insure transportation, and plenty of support for their hopefuls; Whitby fans, not to be outdone, chartered large transportation buses, and the result was that Brock Street Rink housed one of the largest gates of the season. Peterborough supporters of the C.P.R.'s were there in no small numbers, too.

Whitby's team is a good one, comprising several of the old stand-bys: Gundy, Hall and Rice, a couple of recent graduates from junior ranks, a star in Atkinson, their right winger, and an experienced net guardian in Prentice; but in last night's battle they met all kinds of opposition. Anxious to wipe out the visitors' 2-goal margin, the Havelock lads went over the fence and up on the attack at the starting gong, and it was five minutes before the invaders could shake off every appearance of being "the invaded." Later, they recovered and from then on, until the last seven minutes, it was a battle royal with all the frills.

Scores First Goal

In nine minutes and thirty-five seconds the white flag went up for the first time, when Smith capitalized on a loose puck, but that was the last flag-raising for the first and middle chuckers. The others were in the final session—but more of that later.

Last night's entertainment was by far the best and most exciting Intermediate grade hockey dished up locally this year. Differing from the Havelock-Lakefield tussles, in that there was more attempt at combination, less cowboy and Indian and faster skating, there was also a lesser number of penalties and in all ways it assumed the calibre that is to be expected as the race narrows down. True, both teams have plenty to learn and many rough corners were still quite noticeable but—who wants to be that critical? The Moguls, at their best, compared well individually with their opponents, but collectively the visitors were the better; they attempted and had better success with their passing and, excepting Wright and Brennan, skated faster and cleared more quickly than the Havelock men.

First Period

Bob Armstrong was on the bell when the first period opened at 8.30 and there was little time lost in preliminaries. Pollock, back at regular centre for Havelock, played the rubber to his own men at the face-off, and down they went, were checked a bit, and Wright let fly at Prentice. Thus started a bit of a siege with Atkinson the only Whitby man to break out of the danger zone. He carried the rubber a piece, lost it, and back they went to the visitors' blue line. Hall didn't help his team any when he tripped Brennan but Prentice was singularly fortunate in the comparatively few shots that reached him with any speed. With the help of his four teammates he managed to keep his doorstep clear until the number were again even, by which time the fury of the attack had simmered out and play evened up. Nevertheless fully four minutes had elapsed before Fox was called upon to do a save.

No one anticipated the first goal that came during the tenth minute of play. Fox and Prentice were equally busy, but most of the play was even when Smith pounced on a loose puck that the defense had neglected to clear after stopping an attacking forward. The result was that the Whitby centre man drove a hard one from short range. It beat Fox and the score stood 3—0 on the round.

After that, Havelock matched good individual back-checking against attempted combination, most of the shots were from long range, and the gong sounded without another score. Quinn drew a penalty just before it ended.

Second Period

The entire second period went by without a single goal. Fox was right at his best and he handled them from all angles and ranges during the session. Prentice wasn't entirely idle either, but most of his work was on long range heaves. Havelock began the period with a shake-up in their forward line. Wright, who learned hockey as a centre man, went to the pivot position from right wing, his place was taken by Hooper, who in turn was replaced by McArthur on the rearguard. It seemed effective for a while, but the opposition was going too, and most of the play was between the blue lines. Hooper and Jack were chased in quick succession and on their return, the going began to get more strenuous. Legitimate bodychecks were none to gentle, but there was no display of actual "cussedness." Sleightholm garnered the only enforced term for his team. Toward the end, the Railroaders began to come back strong, and the period concluded with them camping on the Whitby blue line.

Third Period

What a battle they had in the final twenty minutes! The fastest hockey of the night, three of the four goals, Lady Luck playing a hand—all this, and more was crammed in and more cause for hope was given the Havelock supporters than during the earlier part of the game.

The Moguls went up four in a line this session and they stayed there. Wright, Brennan, Pollock and Hooper climbed in and were making good progress, but Rice did them dirt on one of the nicest rushes of the entire evening. Six minutes after play began, he scooped up the rubber at his own end of the ice, beat the Havelock forward line, side-stepped the defense, and coasted in on Fox to put the visiting coterie four goals up on the round—a real heartbreaker for the opposition. But Barney's men are made of better stuff and they just steamed up a little and went back on the attack. They were rewarded a couple of minutes later when Hooper shot a goal from the right rail after a scramble.

The goal referee never saw it and refused to raise the flag but Referee Armstrong had his own opinion. He allowed the counter and replaced the official at the net.

One tally wasn't enough for the big defenseman, however, and he wasn't long in proving the fact. Half a minute after the first counter, he again landed on a loose puck that had slipped out of a scramble and he put it where the bell would ring. Prentice had little chance to save.

Then began the real siege of the evening. Desperate men do desperate things and up went the whole Quinn outfit to get goals. Barney dropped back as a precautionary measure and was called upon to stop an attacker, but got a penalty for his efforts. Hooper began to see red and was benched for three minutes, but the C.P.R.'s stuck to their guns and scramble after scramble ensued in front of the Whitby net. Atkinson, the visiting right winger proved the most dangerous of the red-sweatered gang and he it was who gave the one-man defense system of Havelock many anxious moments. Close back-checking prevented his scoring on several solo rushes.

And so the struggle went on, but Lady Luck was not smiling upon the Havelockers, and the game closed with Whitby the winners of the group championship. The teams:

Whitby.—Goal, Prentice; defense, Hall and Rice; wings, Atkinson and Bundy; centre, Smith; subs, Sleightholm and Ross.

Havelock. — Goal, Fox; defense, Hooper and Quinn; wings, Wright and Brennan; centre, Pollock. Subs., McArthur and Jack.

Referee—Bob Armstrong.

SEPPALA TAKES ANOTHER WIN

Wins Annual 3-Day Point-to-Point Race of New England Sled Dog Club.

$1,000 PRIZE REWARD.

NORTH CONWAY N.H., Feb. 14.—Canadian Press. — Leonhardt Seppala's team of Siberian huskies scored another triumph yesterday when they gave their 50 year old Alaskan driver an easy victory in the annual 3-day point to point race of the New England Sled Dog Club.

The hero of the dash to Nome with serum in a diphtheria epidemic a year years ago, covered the 130 miles in 12 hours and 42 minutes.

This was an hour, 17 minutes and 4 seconds better than the time of Emil St. Goddard, youthful driver of The Pas, Man. who finished second in 13:39:48; St. Goddard barely held his advantage over Earl Bridges, also of The Pas, on their tussle for second place, and was of outstanding interest in the final day of racing.

Brydges finished third in 14:03:17; Shorty Russick the third entry from The Pas fourth in 15:47:53; Walter Channing of Boston, forty eight year old driver, fifth in 15:53:15; Mrs. E. B. Ricker, of Poland Springs Maine, sixth, in 16:40; and E. P. Clark of West Milan, last in 17:54: 19.

Seppala, who has twice won the Alaskan sweepstakes, and won the New England event last year, gained a lead of half an hour on the first day's run from North Conway to Laconia, another half hour to it on the second day, driving from Laconia to Wolfeboro, and piled up an additional 17 minutes and 48 seconds on the return from Wofeboro to North Conway yesterday.

His prize for the event is $1000. St Goddard won $500; Brydes $300; Russick $200 and Channing $100.

The special prize of $200 offered by the Eastern Kennel Club for the driver whose team finished in the best condition went to Russick.

In their second place contest, St. Goddard started the second day with a lead of 11 minutes and 11 seconds over Brydges. The first ten minutes yesterday they kept on even terms, but by the time they had reached the 16 mile mark, Brydges had cut the lead by three minutes, and going to West Ossipe, a 24 mile mark, he picked up another minute.

At Madison, six miles farther along he was still gaining, and at Conway, 6 miles from the finish, St. Goddard was leading by one minute and 11 seconds. But on the last leg one of Brydge's six dogs went lame and he was forced to take time to unhitch him and put him on the sleigh. Thus he lost nearly all that he had gained earlier in the day and St. Goddard led him in total time by 3 minutes and 29 seconds at the finish.

There was a secondary contest for fourth place between Russick and Channing. On the first two days Shorty's husky lead dog, Hobegan, had refused to work well with the Irish setters making up the rest of the team, but yesterday he settled down to work. The result was that whereas Channing was 15 minutes and 35 seconds ahead of him yesterday morning, Russick quickly drew ahead of him in the course of the day and finished the race fixe minutes and 22 seconds ahead.

For yesterday's 44 mile run the times were: Seppala 3:44:40; St. God dard 3:59:55; Brydges 3:56:35; Russick 4:03:30; Channing, 4:21:35; Mrs. Ricker, 4:16:05; and Clark 5:11:20.

The prizes were distributed last night at a banquet given by the people of North Conway.

H. R. Scott, J. N. McGill, H. B. Allen, and J. E. Allen (skip).

T. H. Collins, W. E. Ball, G. W. Sayles and R. H. Edmunds (skip).

The ten-day time limit having expired without the rink from the Granite Club, Toronto, coming here to play for the Carew Cup, the challenge of the Cobourg Club is next in line, and a rink from that town will probably be here to compete for the trophy. Millbrook made its initial win of this trophy from a rink of the Granite Club, playing at Toronto and bringing home the silverware.

Group C—Friday nights.

Ryan 30; Condon 26; Duffus 22; McCabe 10; Prindible 16; Black 24* Kylie 10; LeBarr 30*.

Interest has been sustained throughout the first half of the long series and seems keen enough to continue until the close.

The tidbit for this week is down for Friday night when Doc Hayes and Doc Sheehy will hold a clinic on Tommy Ryan with the express intention of extracting three games, pinnage and other odds and ends. They will be aided and abetted by George Rutherford who will deliver the anesthetic, Mike Duffus and Vic Rutherford. The dentalists, or is it the orthodontists, are warned that prying points out of Ryan is just as easy as trying to get a rear passenger out of the six o'clock Byersville bus. All seats for this battle are already reserved, police and traffic officers engaged, and the alleys reshellacked. These two teams are tied for their group honors and this is their first clash. If a referee is needed Bill Prindible uay be named.

The twenty-four teams are composed of members and non-members.

The following lines are dedicated to George Rutherford and Jim Dorris although they did not inspire them. Perhaps Bill Hayes qualifies for the apostrophe. However, the writer claims immunity as to possible libel action.

Little boy blew, but none thought he would,
When he hit the one pin on the nose,
And left the Two and the Three, the Four and Five
Standing up there in challenging rows.

Gone was the chance for a much-needed strike
And a spare looked impossible too;
And right down the centre as wide as a pike
The groove stared at Little Boy Blue.

Oh, the best of them miss, mankind has learned,
And what boots it our failure to rue
When cold Lady Luck all our wooing has spurned,— Soliloquized Little Boy Blue.

"Watch him blow", shouts Pete Sap with the wide open map
"Spare 'er up", yells Boy's gang on the griddle.
And he hopped to the line with a style superfine,—
And trundled it straight down the middle.

Little Boy Blue don't feel forlorn
If you've counted but one with your two.
For there's millions of bowlers yet unborn,
Who'll miss them some time just like you.

Well, you'd scarcely believe it could happen at all,
Though the gang's yelling "trouble on two,"
But you did, Boy, you did, groove three in a row!—
Mark a blow for Little Boy Blue.

NORWAY WINS MAJOR HONORS

Captures Bulk of Laurels For Olympic Speed Skating Championships.

GORMAN CUT.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, February 14 (Associated Press). — Blonde and blue-eyed men of the North swept down upon the Olympic ice yesterday and raced away with the major honors in the first day's events of the Olympic speed skating championships.

Norway's flashy band of speed stars captured the bulk of laurels when Ivar Ballengrad skated off with the 5,000 meter race after Bernt Evensen had tied with Clas Thunberg, the famous Finnish champion, in the 500 meter event in record-breaking Olympic time.

All told, Norway took six out of the twelve point-scoring places in the two opening events, while the United States and Finland each gathered three. But while Finland's stars gave their Norwegian rivals a keen tussle in each race, the American contingent was able to land no better than third in either feature. Charles Gorman, the Canadian ace, was shot out in the 500 meters after being thrown off his stride by his opponents' fall, but his protest was denied. Because of this fact, Gorman withdrew from the 5,000 meter event. Ross Robinson, Gorman's team mate, was shut out in the longer race.

O'Neil Farrell, of Chicago, the chief American threat in the 500 meter race, won in the last Olympic by Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, finished in a tie for third place, and with better racing luck might have don even better. As it was, Farrell's time of 43 6-10 seconds was only 2-10 of a second behind the record-shattering pace of the two winners, Evensen and Thunberg, who were clocked in 43 4-10, breaking Jewtraw's old record by 6-10 of a second.

Farrell was unable to score in the 5,000 meter race afterward, but two Americans placed when Irving Jaffa of New York finished fourth and Valentine Bialis, the team captain, sixth. While a blinding snowstorm swept the racing course, the skaters skated their battle against time.

Farrell, a heavy favorite in the shorter race among the Americans, was handicapped by lack of such fast pacing as Thunberg had when he was paired for his heat with Larsen, one of the Norwegian aces. The American, drawn against Bartil Backman, of Finland, took the lead at the start and was forced to make his own pace all the way.

In this race, Eddie Murphy, of Chicago, finished eighth, Jaffa eleventh, and Bialis sixteenth. Farrell and Murphy both were far down the list in the 500 meter event.

The summary of the two races:

500 meters—Tie for first between Bernt Evensen, Norway, and Clas Thunberg, Finland, each 43 4-10 seconds; third, tie among O'Neil Farrell, United States, Roald Larsen, Norway, and Jaske Priman, Finland, each 43 6-10 seconds; 6, Haakon Pedersen, Norway, 43 8-10 seconds.

5,000 meters—Won by Ivar Ballengrad, Norway, 8 minutes 50 5-10 seconds; second, Julius Skuttnab, Finland, 8m. 59 1-10s.; third, Bernt Evensen, Norway, 9m. 01 1-10s.; fourth, Irving Jaffa, United States, 9m. 01 3-10s; fifth, Armand Carlsen, 9m. 01 5-10s.; sixth, Valentine Bialis, United States.

MINISTERS HEAR VISITING SPEAKER

Dr. McKeen Suggests That They Preach On Some Civic Topic.

At the monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association on Monday, held in the Y.M.C.A., Dr. McKeen addressed the ministers on civic responsibilities and suggested that the ministers of the city preach on some civic topic in the near future. After his address an informal conference was held, when a number of interesting questions were put to Dr. McKeen, which brought out valuable points, that might otherwise have been missed.

After the meeting, a farewell dinner was held at the Paragon to Commandant Ham, who leaves shortly for Toronto.

Speeches were made by most of the ministers present, commending very highly the work of Commandant Ham, in the Association, and in the city; also congratulating him on his promotion, and wishing him every success in his new position.

Commandant Ham suitably replied, expressing his regret at leaving Peterborough.

PICKEREL SALE IS VERY HEAVY

John Simons Sells 250 Pounds in One Day—Good Eating.

WOULD CURB SHIPMENTS.

John Simons, the Charlotte Street fruit and fish vendor, bought 250 pounds of Rice Lake pickerel on Thursday morning, and at the close of the day had only a few pounds left. The price was 20c, with a heavy demand.

"I could sell lots more," said Mr. Simons. "The people like the Rice Lake pickered. At this season it is fine eating, and there is no trouble to sell it. I never saw so much offered as this winter. It seems that the people around Rice Lake were just finding out that they are permitted to sell the fish. Last winter there was some offered, but not so much as this winter. Why, you can buy it from Toronto wholesale houses. So you can guess how much is being caught."

Fred Roy, president of the Fish and Game Association, was one of the Thursday callers at the Simons store. His interest was largely to inquire about the extent of the sales.

"For me, I don't care when the Government stops the sale of pickerel," Mr. Simons said. "While it is all right to buy and sell it, I might as well do it as some other dealer. Any person can see that if a lot of pickerel are caught in the winter time, there will be that many less for the spawning season and also for the open season for catching when the tourists are here in the summer. And if the business is stopped, we'll get other business from the tourists that will make up for the pickerel we can sell now."

Mr. Simons has a suggestion of his own to make to the Fish and Game Association. "The Rice Lake pickerel is good food, and it is cheap for those who buy it. Of course, it may be dear for the country as a whole to sell it at twenty cents a pound, and leave that much less fish for the tourists. But I also think that the tourists are allowed to send too much fish out of Canada in the summer. They pack up big boxes of fish in ice far more than they need or can use, and ship it off to their homes in the United States. While the people are talking about the supply of fish, I think they should look at the question from all angles, and get the best law we can. I want to say this, any way, that I don't care if I never sell another pound of pickerel. If they change the law to-morrow, I won't be sorry."

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with liathia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

LORD WILLINGDON WILL ADDRESS ENGINEERS AT ANNUAL MEETING

Members of Institute Will Gather From All Parts of Canada.

MANY FINE PAPERS

Several Engineers Will Discuss Construction of New Welland Canal.

The annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada, to be held this year February 14 to 16 ,at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, brings together from all parts of Canada the technical men engaged in the development of the Dominion. During the three days of the meeting they will discuss not only matters affecting the welfare of the Institute and the engineering profession in general but recent developments in all branches of engineering. A feature of the technical sessions will be a series of papers on important phases of the construction of the new Welland Ship Canal. These papers are of great importance at this time, when the question of further canalization along the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence. Waterway is so much to the fore. The new Welland Canal which is nearing completion, is an outstanding engineering work, and involved the solution of problems which have been studied by engineers in all parts of the world. The difficulties encountered in carrying out this remarkable piece of construction will be described by the engineers in charge and discussed by other experts at the meeting.

Another subject of general interest to be discussed is the results of investigations to determine the cause of disintegration of certain concrete structures. A committee of the Engineering Institute of Canada has been actively engaged on research work in this connection, and have reported the results of their investigations from time to time. At this meeting in Montreal a progress report of this work will be discussed together with papers on "The Effect of Steam Treatment of Portland Cement Mortars and Their Resistance to Sulphate action," by Prof. T. Thorvaldson and V. A. Vigfusson, of the University of Saskatchewan, and "The Requirements of a Durable Concrete as Observed from Structures in Service," by R. B. Young, M.E.I.C., testing engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Other research work to be described and discussed includes the protection of Hydro-Electric plants against ice troubles by electrical heating of the trash racks; the removal of carbon sulphur compounds from coal gas by oil washing; and economy and performance tests of the uniflow steam engine. There will also be discussed the construction features of Montreal's first skyscraper, the new Royal Bank building.

On the first day of the meeting reports of the activities of the Institute will be presented and the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. F. C. Laberge, chairman of the Montreal Branch of the Institute, will preside at the luncheon, at which Mayor Martin of Montreal will welcome the visiting engineers.

During the afternoon a reception and tea in honor of the visiting ladies will be held, and following the tea Her Excellency Lady Willingdon will meet the ladies present.

The evening will be devoted to a popular address on "X-ray Investigations of Egyptian Mummies," by Dr. L. E. Pariseau, followed by a smoking concert.

The program for Wednesday, February 14, includes the discussion of technical papers, visits to engineering works of interest, and in the evening the annual dinner of the Institute at which His Excellency the Governor-General will address the members.

The discussion of technical papers will be continued on the last day, and the meeting will terminate on that evening with a reception and supper-dance.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS PIE

"Well, my dear, have you started it yet?" asked Uncle Wiggily, poking his pink, twinkling nose out into the kitchen of his hollow stump bungalow one morning. His wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy were rattling pans, dishes and egg-beaters around the kitchen table.

"Have I started what?" inquired the rabbit lady, surprised like.

"The Christmas pie," replied Mr. Longears. "You know it will be Christmas on Sunday and we should have a pie, and—"

"Now look here!" squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper, catching up a rolling pin. Of course she may only have been going to roll out some pie-crust with the heavy piece of wood. But Uncle Wiggily was taking no chances. He hid his pink nose behind the door. "Look here!" went on Nurse Jane. "What do you mean, if you please, by asking if we are going to make a Christmas pie? Can't you see how busy we are?"

"Yes, I see you are," admitted the rabbit gentleman, still keeping out of reach of the rolling pin. "But we always have a pie at Christmas you know."

"Not with a pudding and cranberry sauce and apple dumplings and maple sugar turnovers and all those fixings—we can't have a Christmas pie with all those things!" said Mrs. Longears. "Hop along, Wiggy, my dear. I haven't time to make a Christmas pie."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along, but he looked sad, for he had been thinking very much about the Christmas pie, and it was sorry news to hear there would be none.

"I know what I'll do," said the rabbit gentleman, when he had hopped down the road, a little way from his bungalow. "I'll watch my chance, and when my wife and Nurse Jane go out I'll make the pie myself."

No sooner said than done. Uncle Wiggily hid behind a sassafras bush and watched his bungalow until he saw his wife and Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy come out to go to the movies. They had finished, for that day, the work of making puddings, cakes and turnovers for the Christmas feast.

"Though why they couldn't make a pie I don't see," sighed Mr. Longears. "But I can do it myself. I know how and there is sure to be plenty of butter, eggs, sugar and whatever else goes in a pie, left in the kitchen after their baking."

Soon the rabbit gentleman was back in his bungalow. All the little bunnies were at the Hollow Stump School, so Mr. Longears had the kitchen to himself. He mixed up some pie dough and then, all of a sudden, he happened to think:

"What shall I put in the pie? It ought to have something in. Pies are made of apples, peaches, raisins, lemons or something like that. A pie must have something besides crust. I forgot about that. I don't know what kind of a Christmas pie to make. I'll look down in the cellar. There are sure to be apples, peaches or carrots there. And that isn't so bad. A carrot pie! Ha! I'll make that kind."

Uncle Wiggily brought up some carrots to put in his pie when, all of a sudden, as he happened to look out the kitchen window, he saw the Bushy Bear ambling along.

"Oh, my goodness!" gasped the rabbit. "Here comes Mr. Bruin! He's after me or my money I guess. Well, I'll hide my gold pennies, anyhow!" Seeing the open pie in front of him, Uncle Wiggily piled all the gold pennies from his pocket on the lower crust. Then he spread the top crust of the pie over the money, patted it down and just then the door opened and in came the Bear.

"Ho! Ho!" growled the shaggy chap. "I am just in time to eat!"

"You aren't going to eat me, I hope!" sighed Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, I am!" snarled the Bear. "But first I'll eat this pie!" and he picked up the one on the table.

"Oh, that's a Christmas pie!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "You wouldn't eat that, would you? Besides, it isn't baked yet, and it's got in—well, it's got something in that I——"

"I don't care what it's got in!" snarled the Bear. "And if you think I won't eat it, just watch me!" With that he took a big bite of the pie. But as his teeth champed down on the hard gold pennies the Bear felt a lot of pains in his mouth. Several of his teeth were broken and he dropped the pie, clapped his paws to his jaws and howled:

"Oh, dear me! Such aches and pains! What a queer Christmas pie! Now, I've got to go to the dentist's!" And away he ran, not hurting Mr. Longears at all.

"Well, that pie is spoiled, but my money and ears are safe," chuckled the bunny uncle. "And I can soon make another pie," which he did and it was put away for Christmas.

FOURTH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The meeting of the Fourth Troop opened on Thursday with flag break, followed by an inspection of the Scouts and Patrol corners. Bob Hewitt was initiated into the Crow Patrol, raising the roster to three. The exercises that the patrol leader had shown the troop a few weeks ago were reviewed, followed by two new exercises to strengthen the tissues of the heart.

The troop flag was presented to the Kangaroos for winning the most points at the last meeting.

There were two ten-minute instruction periods, followed by a signalling game. The three patrols lined up facing the scoutmaster, who had a pair of signalling flags. Each member had been given a letter of the alphabet and when the scoutmaster sent a letter the scouts who had that letter ran up to the front, took a peg out of the circle, and ran to the other circle. The peg had to be stood up within the circle. The first scout back to the line won.

Patrols in Council was held for one minute and then everybody helped to get the council fire ready.

The council fire opened with O Canada, followed by The Capitol Ship and Onward, Boy Scouts, Onward. A game called "Ships, Ships" was played.

Archie Dryland and Harold Stewart passed their first class banking account. P. L. Jack Heffernan passed his Scout's Pace and Signalling tests. He was awarded his second class badge, the third in the Troop.

Mr. Corbett read some short stories from the "Scout Leader."

The meeting closed with the lowering of the flag, the singing of God Save the King, and thirty seconds Scout silence.

The Owls are leading with 113½ points and the Kangaroos second with 110 and the Crows third with 106. Last Thursday the troop held its annual skiing and tobogganing party.

"LES MISERABLES."

It is essentially fitting that a French company should produce "Les Miserables." One can't imagine American or English or German producers giving the proper Gallic touch to the immortal story of Jean Valjean, convict of Toulon, and the little Cosette, wayside waif, who form the principal actors and give the tale its title "Les Miserables." Anyone who has read the famous book will be glad to see this picture. Victor Hugo's gloomy trend has been preserved in the film, which is unenlightened by an meretricious touches of comedy such as another producer might have seen fit to introduce and thus spoil the artistic effect.

The story opens with Jean Valjean leaving the prison where he has spent nineteen years for the theft of a loaf of bread, and shows him with the saintly Bishop Myriel, the old priest who befriends him and turns his twisted mind to better thoughts. The background of those days when the nobles were masters of "the high justice, the middle and the low," when theft was considered worthy of extreme punishment and men lived in a cruel, hard age, has been maintained, and the French temperament has a wonderful scope. For instance, what American film would show a man who is about to enter a burning building, pause to gesture dramatically at the entrance?

Jean, afte his rescue of the children from the burning house, is made a popular idol. He becomes Pere Madeleine and gradually assumes a commanding role in the community, as the Mayor and employer of labor in a flourishing factory. But Nemesis dogs his steps in the person of Javert, Inspector of Police, who accuses him of being the escaped convict and the man who has stolen a two-franc piece from a minstrel. Jean, knowing that he is guilty denies his identity, but is unable to dodge the issue when Champmathieu, an unfortunate man, is about to be sentenced to ten years in prison for the old offence. He confesses in a dramatic scene, but later escapes and makes his way toward Paris. At a wayside inn, he finds the little slavey, Cosette, and buys her for fifteen hundred francs. Together, the two hide in Paris and bide happily in the Rue Plumet. Cosette makes a strange heroine to film fans of this continent. She is of the older type of young woman and plays her part very well indeed, but is unable to give an attractive picture of the role.

Later, Marius appears, and the Revolutionary students stage an unsuccessful effort to start a Republic. Jean Valjean becomes involved in the fray and rescues his enemy, Javert, from the students amongst whom he has been spying. Later ,there is a thrilling incident in the underground sewers of Paris, and the picture ends with the death of Jean and the reunion of Cosette and Marius.

AT THE REGENT.

NOTED FILM PLAYERS ENRICH THEIR ART IN "THE COUNTRY DOCTOR"

Names known throughout the motion picture world are listed in the case of "The Country Doctor," now playing at the Regent Theatre.

Rudolph Schildkraut plays the title role and brings to the screen a technique gained through forty years of European stage experience. The idol of pre-war Vienna and Berlin, who interpreted the High Priest of the Temple in "The King of Kings" comes a lovable, kindly rural practitioner—the father confessor of his entire community whose pathos and humor move one from laughter to tears and back to laughter again.

The kid stowaway of "The Yankee Clipper" — Junior Coghlan — enacts a prominent child part in this fine picture, while the "heavy" role is portrayed by Sam De Grasse, who has long been noted for his work in such characterizations.

Another veteran of the stage and screen, Gladys Brockwell, depicts an exacting mother role in "The Country Doctor," while Virginia Bradford is cast as her daughter in the ingenue lead. Frank Marion is seen in a juvenile role.

Louis Natheaux, whose work in "The King of Kings" and other De Mille productions, has been highly commended by critics, also is featured. Other members of "The Country Doctor" cast include Ethel Wales, prominent character screen actress and Jane Keckley.

HEALTH IN WINTER.

How To Avoid Colds, Influenza and Like Troubles.

Have you noticed that some people enjoy good health through the most trying weather, while others succumb to colds or influenza at every touch of wintry conditions, or are attacked by rheumatism or sciatica? The reason is to be found in the condition of the blood. If it is rich and pure the system is able to resist disease. But let the blood become impoverished and the way is made clear for disease to enter the system.

The common sense way to avoid colds and influenza is to keep a plentiful supply of rich, red blood in your veins. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have achieved world-wide fame for their remarkable blood-enriching powers. The new blood which comes with the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tones up the whole system and so helps the body to resist winter ills.

If your system has already been weakened by colds or influenza, or if you are enduring the agonies of sciatica or rheumatism, then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are even more valuable for restoring your health and building up your strength so as to render you immune from further attacks. Give these pills a fair trial and they will not disappoint you.

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WAS SO NERVOUS and SHORT OF BREATH COULD HARDLY SLEEP

Mrs. Louise Baglin, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"For several years I was greatly troubled with my heart; I was so nervous and short of breath I could hardly sleep at night, and if I did sleep for a while I had bad dreams.

"I managed to keep at my work, somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I had to give up. I used many kinds of medicine, but found no help until I got a box of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS. After the first box I found a great change, and after two boxes I was as well as I could be.

"I told my mother, who had choking sensations, about them and they helped her greatly."

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE Author of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. This leads Vance to think that the real murderer had not opened it, but someone who was hiding in the closet when the murder was committed. That man, he thinks, was Skeel, whose finger-prints were found in the apartment of the strangled Margaret Odell. Markham ridicules the theory and Vance painstakingly explains his reasons for thinking the crime was not one of robbery but the work of a highly intelligent man. Markham and Vance discuss Mannix, Spotswoode and Dr. Lindquist.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"You're so prejudicial!" said Vance. "But let us move reluctantly on.—What's your picture of Cleaver? The fact that he's familiarly called Pop is helpful as a starter. You simply couldn't imagine Beethoven being called Shorty, or Bismarck being referred to as Snookums."

"Cleaver has been a politician most of his life—a Tammany Hall 'regular.' Was a ward-boss at twenty-five; ran a Democratic club of some kind in Brooklyn for a time; was an alderman for two terms, and practiced general law. Was appointed tax commissioner; left politics, and raised a small racing-stable. Later secured an illegal gambling concession at Saratoga; and now operates a poolroom in Jersey City He's what you might call a professional sport. Loves his liquor."

"No marriages?"

"None on the records.—But see here: Cleaver's out of it. He was ticketed in Boonton that night at half past eleven."

"Is that, by any chance, the water-tight alibi you mentioned a moment ago?"

"In my primitive legal way I considered it as such." Markham resented Vance's question. "The summons was handed him at half past eleven; it's so marked and dated. And Boonton is fifty miles from here—a good two hours' motor ride. Therefore, Cleaver unquestionably left New York about half past nine; and even if he'd driven directly back, he couldn't have reached here until long after the time the medical examiner declared the girl was dead.

"As a matter of routine, I investigated the summons, and even spoke by phone to the officer who issued it. It was genuine enough—I ought to know: I had it quashed."

"Did this Boonton Dogberry know Cleaver by sight?"

"No, but he gave me an accurate description of him. And naturally he took the car's number."

Vance looked at Markham with open-eyed sorrow.

"My dear Markham—my very dear Markham—can't you see that all you've actually proved is that a bucolic traffic Nemesis handed a speed-violation summons to a smooth-faced, middle aged, stout man who was driving Cleaver's car near Boonton at half past eleven on the night of the murder? . . . And, my word! Isn't that exactly the sort of alibi the old boy would arrange if he intended taking the lady's life at midnight or thereabouts?"

"Come, come!" laughed Markham. "That's a bit too far-fetched. You'd give every law-breaker credit for concocting schemes of the most diabolical cunning."

"So I would," admitted Vance apathetically. "And—d'ye know?—I rather fancy that's just the kind of schemes a law-breaker would concoct, if he was planning a murder, and his own life was at stake.

"What really amazes me is the naive assumption of your investigators that a murderer gives no intelligent thought whatever to his future safety. It's rather touchin', y' know."

Markham grunted.

"Well, you can take it from me, it was Cleaver himself who got that summons."

"I dare say you're right," Vanceff conceded. "I merely suggested the possibility of deception, don't y' know. The only point I really insist on is that the fascinatin' Miss Odell was killed by a man of subtle and superior mentality."

"And I, in turn," irritably rejoined Markham, "insist that the only men of that type who touched her life intimately enough to have had any reason to do it are Mannix, Cleaver, Lindquist, and Spotswoode. And I further insist that not one of them can be regarded as a promising possibility."

"I fear I must contradict you, old dear," said Vance serenely. "They're all possibilities—and one of them is guilty."

Markham glared at him derisively.

"Well, well! So the case is settled! Now, if you'll but indicate which is the guilty one, I'll arrest him at once and return to my other duties."

"You're always in such haste," Vance lamented. "Why leap and run?' The wisdom of the world's philosophers is against it. Festina lente, says Caesar; or, as Rufus has it, Festinatio tarda est. And the Koran says quite frankly that haste is of the Devil. Shakespeare was constantly belittling speed:

'He tires betimes that spurs too fast
betimes';
and 'Wisely, and slow; they stumble
that run fast.'

Chaucer also held similar views. 'He hasteth wel,' said he, 'that wysely can abyde.' Even God's common people have embalmed the idea in numberless proverbs: 'God and quickly seldom meet'; and 'Hasty men never want woe——'"

Markham rose with a gesture of impatience.

"Hell! I'm going home before you start a bed-time story," he growled.

The ironical aftermath of this remark was that Vance did tell a "bed-time story" that night; but he told it to me in the seclusion of his own library; and the gist of it was this:

"Heath is committed, body and soul, to a belief in Skeel's guilt; and Markham is as effectively strangled with legal red tape as the poor Canary was strangled with powerful hands. Eheu, Van! There's nothing left for me but to set forth tomorrow a cappella, like Gaboriau's Monsieur Lecoq, and see what can be done in the noble cause of justice.

"I shall ignore both Heath and Markham, and become as a pelican of the wilderness, an owl of the desert, a sparrow alone upon the housetop. . . . Really, y' know, I'm no avenger of society, but I do detest an unsolved problem."

(Thursday, September 13; forenoon)

Greatly to Currie's astonishment Vance gave instructions to be called at nine o'clock the following morning; and at ten o'clock we were sitting on his little roof-garden having breakfast in the mellow mid-September sunshine.

"Van," he said to me, when Currie had brought us our second cup of coffee, "however secretive a woman may be, there's always some one to whom she unburdens her soul. A confidant is an essential to the feminine temperament. It may be a mother, or a lover, or a priest, or a doctor, or, more generally, a girl chum.

"In the Canary's case we haven't a mother or a priest. Her lover—the elegant Skeel—was a potential enemy; and we're pretty safe in ruling out her doctor—she was too shrewd to confide in such a creature as Lindquist. The girl chum, then, remains. And today we seek her." He lit a cigaret and rose. "But, first, we must visit Mr. Benjamin Browne of Seventh Avenue."

Benjamin Browne was a well-known photographer of stage celebrities, with galleries in the heart of the city's theatrical district; and as we entered the reception-room of his luxurious studio later that morning my curiosity as to the object of our visit was at the breaking-point.

Vance went straight to the desk, behind which sat a young woman with flaming red hair and mascaro-shaded eyes, and bowed in his most dignified manner. Then taking a small mounted photograph from his pocket, he laid it before her.

"I am producing a musical comedy, mademoiselle," he said, "and I wish to communicate with the young lady who left this picture of herself with me. Unfortunately I've misplaced her card; but as her photograph bore the imprint of Browne's, I thought you might be good enough to look in your files and tell me who she is and where I may find her."

He slipped a five-dollar bill under the edge of the blotter, and waited with an air of innocent expectancy.

The young woman looked at him quizzically, and I thought I detected the hint of a smile at the corners of her artfully rouged lips.

But after a moment she took the photograph without a word and disappeared through a rear door. Ten minutes later she returned and handed Vance the picture. On the back of it she had written a name and address.

"The young lady is Miss Alys La-Fosse, and she lives at the Belafield Hotel."

There was now no doubt as to her smile. "You really shouldn't be so careless with the addresses of your applicants—some poor girl might lose an engagement." And her smile suddenly turned into soft laughter.

"Mademoiselle," replied Vance, with mock seriousness, "in the future I shal be guided by your warning." And with another dignified bow, we went out.

"Good Lord!" he said, as we emerged into Seventh Avenue. "Really, y' know, I should have disguised myself as an impresario, with a gold-headed cane, a derby, and a purple shirt. That young woman is thoroughly convinced that I'm contemplating an intrigue."

He turned into a florist's shop at the corner, and, selecting a dozen American Beauties, addressed them to "Benjamin Browne's Receptionist."

"And now," he said, "let us stroll to the Belafield, and seek an audience with Alys."

(To be continued.)

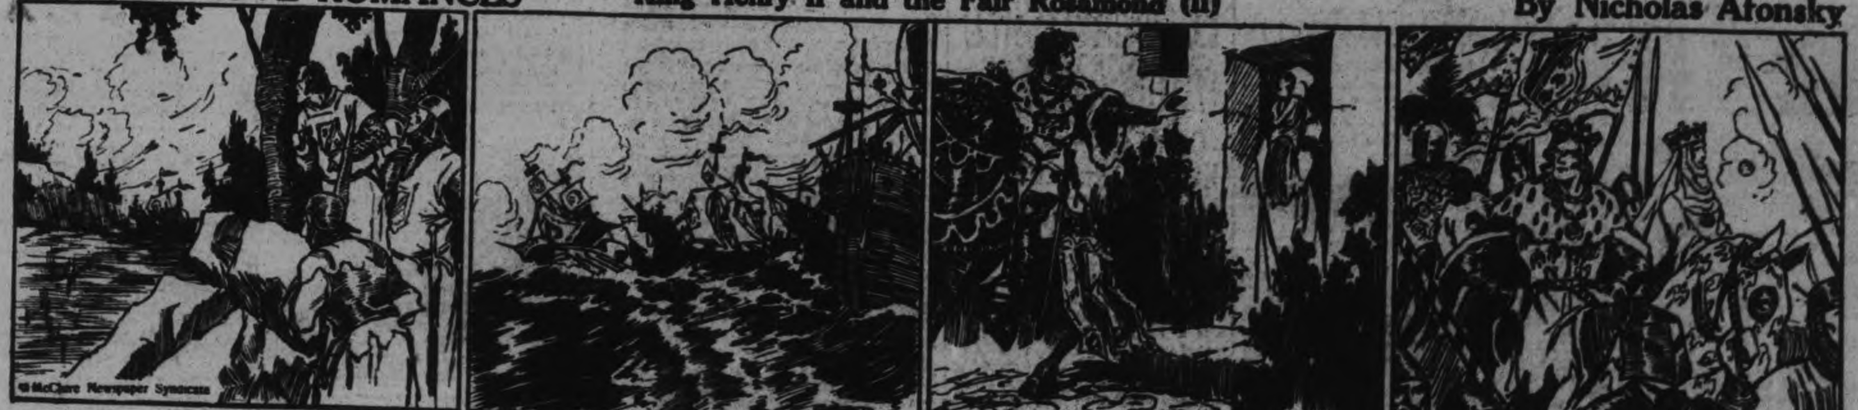
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES King Henry II and the Fair Rosamond (II) By Nicholas Afonsky



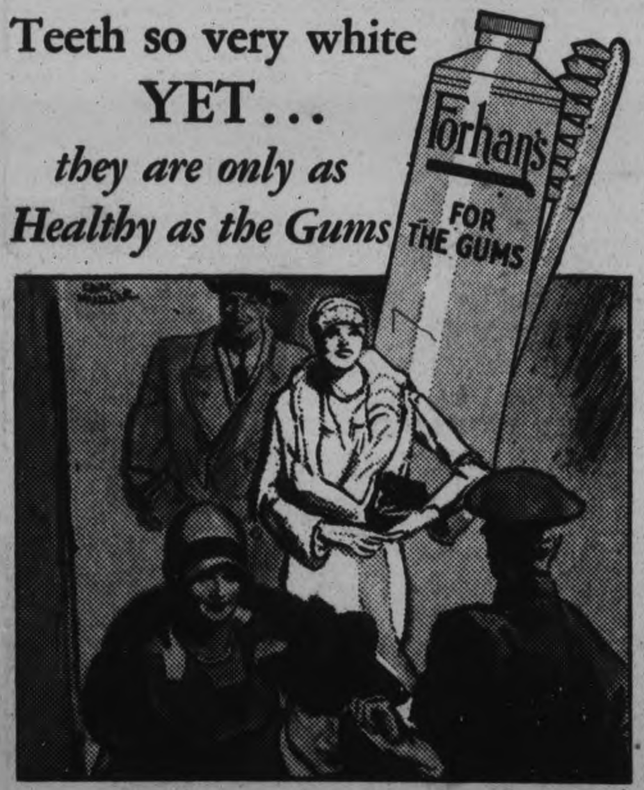
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

So Eleanor of Aquitaine divorced her husband that she might marry Henry. Everybody wanted her wealth, and as she sailed southward down the Loire from Paris, Henry's older brother planned to kidnap her and marry her. But just before her boat reached his hiding place, she turned down another arm of the river.

One May day, 1152, six weeks after the divorce was signed, Henry Plantagenet and Eleanor were married at Bordeaux, amid great pomp and festivity. For a year they lived in Normandy, a carefree, pleasure-filled life of ease and luxury. Then Henry, with a fleet of thirty-six of Eleanor's ships, left to conquer England.

As soon as he could, after touching English shore, Henry stole away to visit his boyhood love, Rosamond Clifford, and renewed his protestations of undying devotion to her. News did not travel fast in those days, and Rosamond knew nothing of his marriage. Again she promised to wait for his return to England.

With Eleanor's powerful fleet behind him it was an easy matter for Henry to gain the English throne. The following December he and Eleanor were crowned at Westminster Abbey. In the meantime, Henry had established the trusting Rosamond in a house outside the walls of his country palace at Woodstock.



Forhan's FOR THE GUMS

Teeth so very white YET... they are only as Healthy as the Gums

SEEMINGLY safe with teeth so white, 4 out of 5 after forty, and thousands younger, find themselves victims of the disease of neglect—Pyorrhea.

This grim foe of health ignores the teeth and attacks the gums.

So take this precaution: See your dentist every six months and use the dentifrice that does far more than keep teeth clean.

Every morning and every night, brush your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

As a dentifrice alone, you would prefer it. Without the use of harsh abrasives it restores teeth to natural whiteness and protects them against acids which cause decay.

And in addition, if used regularly and in time, it helps gums to resist Pyorrhea by keeping them sound and healthy.

Get a tube of Forhan's. Use this dentifrice morning and night. Teach your children this good habit which will protect their health in years to come. Also massage your gums daily with Forhan's, following directions in booklet that comes with tube. Two sizes—35c and 60c.

LADY IN WHITE SLEEP WALKER

Sudden Appearance Startles Late Pedestrian on Peterbrough Street.

IDENTITY NEVER DISCLOSED.

As tales of supernatural appearances and apparitions are apparently rife at the present time, permit me to relate a little experience along this particular line which, at least, has the merit of being true, and which occurred right here in Peterborough.

Some years ago, my duties called me to work a portion of the night, and I usually returned home betwen two and three o'clock in the morning. While this is undoubtedly an unearthly hour, it would surprise many of our staid citizens if they could see the numbers of people on the streets even at that late (or early) hour. They are usually young couples who have been to dances and parties, but ferequently men who have been imbibing.

One evening, or morning, while on a less-frequented street, I noticed a white-robed figure in the gloom advancing slowly. It had every appearance of being a real ghost, and as I had always desired to see one at close quarters, I hastened my steps so I should arrive at the street intersection about the same time as "it." I am not much troubled with nerves nor am I superstitious but as the object came more fully into the light of a street lamp, my nerves were somewhat shaken. "It" proved to be a young woman, fast asleep, out for a stroll, clad only in her robes of night. I did not speak, as I had heard it was dangerous to wake up a somnambulist while asleep. Nor did I follow her, as I did not wish to be found in an embarrassing position. She walked slowly westward, eyes staring into space, oblivious of myself, and her surroundings. Apparently she returned home in safety, for though I watched the papers carefully for news of any mishap to her, I saw none.

Should the young woman see this, she may now know she had one interested spectator of her sleep-walking propensities. Who she was I never discovered.

FEBRUARY 14, 1915.
Sunday.

FEBRUARY 14, 1916.

Letter tells of passing of 8th C. M.R. as a mounted unit. It has gone to the front as Infantry.

93rd Battalion Orders by Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston: Orderly officer to-day, Lt. G. Matthews.

Taekn on strength: J. Boirk, H. J. Smith, C. E. Breadman, E. G. Burton, D. S. Scott, J. H. Cridland, H. K. Crozier.

Herb Edwards writes thanking Miss Arabette Du Rien for parcel.

Big crowd at recruiting meeting last night, addressed by Professor Wrong, of Toronto.

"Citizen" writes a holler that trained soldiers should go overseas before men who had not been members of the militia. The Examiner points out that the 57th has sent hundreds of men, 90 per cent. of its N.C.O.'s and more than 30 officers. The obvious retort is overlooked by the then Editor. He might have asked why men who took the trouble to train should be expected to sacrifice more than those who were too indolent.

William Thompson joins Belmont Battery, and is presented with a wrist watch by staff of the J. C. Turnbull Co.

A feminine alarmist reports to Armories that she saw an aeroplane hovering over the C.G.E. buildings, but only a star was seen.

FEBRUARY 14, 1917.

Pte. Leslie Howden (93rd Battalion) reported died of wounds.

Pte. Aubrey Elston reported wounded.

247th Battalion Orders by Lt.-Col. C. H. Ackerman: Orderly officer today, Lt. J. F. Strickland.

Pte. G. E. Connors promoted to sergeant.

Pte. W. A. Gunn and Ptes. Oliver and Blewett join 256th Railway Construction Battalion.

Lt. J. A. McNabb is re-admitted to hospital.

Lt. Claude H. Rogers mentioned by Sir Douglas Haig for work with mechanical transport.

Lt.-Col. T. W. H. Young mentioned by Sir Douglas Haig.

G. Adamson, W. J. Belcher, W. Morrow, E. Robinson and J. Wallace have reached Quebec on their return from the front.

FEBRUARY 14, 1918.

Lt. Percy G. Might (93rd) has reached Halifax on his return from the front.

Sgt. Ed Downs writes thanking Police Force for parcel.

Pte. J. W. Carey reported wounded.

First war flour has arrived in the city.

Pte. Percy Clarke has arrived at Halifax on his return from service with Labor Battalion.

Corporal A. Dickson, prisoner of war, writes thanking Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. for parcels.

Much advertised German offensive on west front is due to start to-morrow, German newspapers say.

The Dugout

(By J.R.H.)

Lt.-Col. Tinhat and Sergeant B. I. G. Feet fell into The Dugout just when a coal box lit outside, and they say I've blackened their reputations.

The Colonel belonged to the 256th Underground Artillery and Sgt. Feet started his military career by taking a hat-trimming course at Hythe, with a post-graduate course in the bullring. The only spark of mentality he ever showed was when a First Aid examiner asked him what he would do if a man fainted. "Give him some rum," said the kiss-me sergeant. "And if you couldn't get rum?" "Promise him some."

Now, these two boozes look to me just like Damson and Apple, but they both have the same kick—they think I'm using this Dugout for spreading ridicule of the Army. And this, mind you, in spite of the fact that all I've done is answer guys who kick.

A lot of us helped for years putting Flanders into bags and scrounging around for the odd neglected can of bully beef and chunk of biscuit. Looking back now, it does seem ridiculous, doesn't it? Fancy yourself, Tinhat, digging a hole to fill sandbags—and trying to get the cook to turn his back so you could swipe a dog biscuit! And then reading the newspapers when they told the folk at home, "There is nothing to report!"

Say, if you had fun in that ridiculous life we made it for ourselves, and where we are now we must make our own enjoyment too. If you birds don't like the dugout, stay out there on the firing step—and tell the enemy your number so they can engrave it on a shell.

A soldier's farewell to you!

FLORIDA.

More people would travel, according to W. Fulton, District Passenger Agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway, if they realized how simple it all was. "When a man who has done little travelling gets an idea that he would like to go to Florida, a thousand questions come into his mind which are apt to scare him off, whereas if he just walked into nearest Canadian Pacific office all his problems of rates and routes and reservations might be solved without any worry or trouble."

Why not just do that if you feel the urge at all?

Any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly assist in arranging your trip.

IN POLICE COURT

William Warboy was found guilty of driving a car while intoxicated, by Magistrate Langley, and was sentenced to ten days in the common jail. Warboy collided with another car on the night of Feb. 6 at the corner of McDonnel and Aylmer streets. Three police officers and the plaintiff swore that Warboy was intoxicated at the time of the accident. Two other witnesses were called for the defence. They both saw him in the service station at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune streets before the accident. Neither of them noticed any signs of liquor on the accused then. J. A. O'Brien acted for the accused, and Chief Newhall conducted the case for the wrong.

Peter Sharbot pleaded not guilty to the charge of vagrancy, and was remanded until Friday morning.

PREMIER EIGHT YEARS.

Famous Liberal Leader Rose From Ranks—Fought Vigorously For Home Rule.

SUTTON COURTENAY, Eng., Feb. 15. Canadian Press. — The Earl of Oxforth and Asquith, who as the Right Hon. Herbert H. Asquith, the Prime Minister, was the outstanding figure of the Great War, died here at six-fifty a.m. to-day.

Pulmonary complications brought death to the 75 year old statesman at his country home, in this old world village on the banks of the Upper Thames. He had lived there since his retirement from public life after his resignation from the leadership of the Liberal party in October, 1926.

The Earl of Oxford had been unconscious since Monday afternoon, and his physicians then said that death was only a matter of how long his enfeebled heart could hold out. A week ago the former premier was confined to his room with a severe cold; an acute attack of pharyngitis followed and bronchitis set in. The Earl died in a mullion windowed room overlooking his beloved Thames. At his bedside were the members of his family, the Countess of Oxford Margot Asquith, his two daughters, Princess Bibesco, and Lady Bonham Carter, and his son, Anthony.

Throughout the night a few close friends, and a number of the villagers who knew the Earl of Oxford well, awaited the end, which the physicians said was inevitable because of his advanced age and weak heart.

There was deep mourning in this little village of Sutton Courtenay by the country folk, not so much for the British stateman and famous figure in the war, as for the kindly white-haired old man who until a few weeks ago took long daily strolls through the fields and lanes of Berkshire and along the banks of the Thames.

Between five and six o'clock, it was seen by watchers at the bedside that the Earl would not live until dawn. At 6.30 all the members of the family were summoned, and they were present when the aged statesman died twenty minutes later.

London newspapers to-day generally assumed that the late Earl would be given burial in Westminster Abbey, unless his family had other plans.

The heir to his Earldom is Julian, Viscount Asquith, fourteen-year old son of the former Premier's oldest son, Raymond Asquith, who was an officer in the Crenadier Guards when he was killed in the battle of the Somme.

Outstanding Figure.

Herbert Henry Asquith, Viscount Asquith of Morley and Earl of Oxford and Asquith, who as Prime Minister of Great Britain was at the helm of the British Empire during the early years of the Great War, was probably the greatest outstanding figure of the British Liberal party since the days of William Ewart Gladstone. In 40 years of political life he was confronted with, and overcame probably, more serious problems than any other British statesman faced in the last century. The greatest of these, of course, was the guiding of Great Britain's destinies in the autumn days of 1914, when German armies were sweeping France and Belgium, and threatening even England itself.

Ready to Step Aside.

Through the early months of the war he faced criticism of his Administration with the same steadiness and calm that had characterized his stand on purely domestic problems years before. He stepped aside eventually to let a more vigorous man take over the leadership of thenation, when public opinion swerved from the man who lacked the picturesque personality to his Secretary of War who possessed the personal appeal that he lacked.

He held the Prime Ministership of Great Britain for eight years, a period exceeded in the last century only by Lord Liverpool, and remained at the head of his Liberal Government during the crisis of the struggle with the House of Lords, the Parliament Bill, the Irish troubles and the first half of the Great War.

Asquith was born on September 12, 1852, the son of a Nonconformist Yorkshireman. He was a brilliant scholar, and at Oxford won some renown as an orator. He was admitted to the Bar in 1876, and soon afterward married Helen Melland of Manchester. In 1886 he was elected a member of Parliament from East Fife, a constituency he afterward represented for nearly a generation.

Noted Junior Counsel.

As junior counsel in the famous case of the London Times against Parnell, he came into the public eye and on the Liberal party coming into office in 1892. Mr. Gladstone gave him a seat in his Cabinet as Home Secretary. Mr. Asquith lost his wife the previous year, and in 1894 married Margot, daughter of Sir Charles Tennant, Bt. His second wife was of considerable

Will Operate Cape Breton Collieries

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — The Canadian Press was informed last night by W. P. Delaney, district secretary treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, that at a conference held at Glace Bay yesterday afternoon, attended by President C. B. McNaught and J. H. Gundy, representing the new owners of the British Empire Steel Corporation, this company agreed to work all the Cape Breton collieries at a minimum of three days period week at the reopening of navigation. This, it is announced, will end the distress which has been in evidence throughout the mining districts for a number of weeks. The text of the U. M. W. executive's wire was as follows:

The company agrees minimum three days per week all Cape Breton collieries until opening of navigation with prospect of increasing this if present plans work out. Nothing to report yet on wage negotiations."

TOWN AND COUNTRY COOPERATION URGED BY DR. ALEXANDER KARR

Each Needs the Other, He Declares at Citizens' Mass Meeting.

MAN POWER NEEDED.

Membership, Finance and Service Needed To Make Strong Chamber of Commerce.

The degree of general interest in the "Forward Peterborough Movement," of the Chamber of Commerce was very clearly demonstrated Tuesday evening by the attendance at the meeting at the Canadian Legion Hall.

Despite what was probably the worst night of the year, a wet snow and rain, with slush and slop underfoot, almost two hundred representative citizens of the city attended the meeting That they were interested was indicated by their presence. "Four times as many as I expected to see," was the comment of Dr. Alexander Karr when he faced his audience.

Due to a social engagement unforseen when he accepted the invitation to preside at the meeting, Mayor Roland Denne was unable to be present. President G. A. Gillespie made a very happy presiding officer in his place.

In his opening remarks Mr. Gillespie gave a short history of the Chamber of Commerce movement in Peterborough, the conditions existing at the present time, and an analysis of the necessity for a large and more adequately financed organization. He paid high tribute to the type of men sent here to assist in the re-financing campaign.

Dr. Alexander Karr, in charge of the Educational phase of the movement was the first speaker. Though having spoken thirty seven times in the last ten days, Dr. Karr was in fine form last night, and kept his audience in rare fettle with his humorous stories and wittty epigrams.

"Two things are essential in building a city, a community, or a nation," said Dr. Karr, "Good will and co-operation. Good-will of citizens, as such, Good-will between capital and labor; Good-will between merchant and customer. In addition there must be not only a good feeling but a working together—the thing we call Co-operation.

"The things that bothers us at this point is with folks themselves. Most of us fail to think things through to a definite conclusion and the speed at which we live. We hurry too much."

Dr. Karr's Siamese twins of community building proved to be "Town and Country." Peterborough as a city is in the final analysis dependent upon its trading territory for its very life. Likewise the country is dependent upon the city for a place to buy and sell and in a large measure for leadership. The country though can survive longer without the town than the city can without a prosperous trading area.

The speaker cited many practical illustrations to prove his point.

The closing portion of the address was a re-emphasis of the thought that Mr. Karr has discussed repeatedly here—the value of man power in community growth.

"Four things determines the prosperity of a country" said Dr. Karr: "Money or capital, foreign trade, local trade, and man power. Canada has the first three in increasing volume. She has been losing too much of her man power to the States."

He then quoted from the answers given by the students of the city in

IN POST OFFICE FOR 25 YEARS

Charles Lacheur, Postmaster Here, Entered Civil Service in 1903.

RECALLS PROGRESS.

Charles Lacheur, Peterborough's genial postmaster, completed 25 years of service in the Post Office Department of the Dominion of Canada on February 1. Mr. Lacheur's quarter-century of Civil Service work has been in the local office, commencing there in 1903 when the late Col. H. C. Rogers was the postmaster. He started as junior clerk, and has worked up step by step to the highest office in the Peterborough Postal Department. He has served under four postmasters, Colonel H. C. Rogers, A. H. Stratton, James Edgar, and John Corkery. Mr. Corkery was the assistant postmaster when Mr. Lacheur joined the staff, but those were the days of the patronage system, and when the Government went out the postmaster went with it. Mr. Corkery was retired November 1, 1924, and Mr. Lacheur took up his present duties.

When Mr. Lacheur entered the service there were no letter carriers and only seven clerks were employed in the office. Citizens went to the local office to get their mail several times a day.

In these 25 years years, he saw the local letter-carrier system inaugurated in September, 1907, with seven men acting as carriers, and the rural routes were started in 1911 with six leaving the office. Today there are twenty-one clerks in the office, twenty-three letter carriers, and eleven rural routes.

Mr. Lacheur has always been noted for giving everybody kind and courteous hearing, and he will put himself to all kinds of trouble to serve those who make inquiries.

The members of the inside staff presented Mr. Lacheur with a very handsome fountain pen desk set, as a slight token of the esteem in which they hold him. The following address was also read:

"Dear Mr. Lacheur: The fact of your having attained a quarter of a century of post office service has recently been drawn to our attention, and we feel that we cannot permit such an exceptional occasion to pass without conveying to you some expression of our high appreciation of

MANY ATTEND ANNUAL CONCERT OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH CHOIR

Present Interesting and Varied Program at Musical Evening.

IN PARISH HALL.

Warden W. A. Stevenson Expresses Thanks To Choir Members For Work Done.

Inclement weather conditions failed to have any appreciable effect on either attendance or general excellence of the annual concert put on in the Parish Hall by the choir of St. John's Church last evening. In the life of the church, this was the musical night of the year, and those who have appreciated the work of the choir throughout the year turned out in encouraging numbers—and returned to their homes satisfied that under the direction of Frederick G. Mann, A. Mus, the choir members have achieved new heights in their concerted efforts. The program which they presented was of sufficient length yet varied to a pleasing degree, and from the opening number to the closing rendition of the National Anthem, there was little indication of a single poorly handled part. The choir of St. John's triumphed! Its personnel was as follows:

Treble—M. Comstock, V. Coleman, E. Davis, R. Darcy, W. Howell, D. McPherson, S. Patte, J. Patterson, A. Pink, R. Pitchford, F. Simmons, and W. Wheeler. W. Coleman (alto).

Soprano—Mesdames H. Burrows, L. Groombridge, and W. S. McWilliams. The Misses E. Bennett, M. Bacon, M. Copperthwaite, G. Caddy, B. Massey-Cooke, K. Edgar, L. Groombridge, M. Guthrie, A. Grimm, C. Iverson, P. M. Mann, A. Rutter, and R. Quartermaine.

Contralto—Mesdames D. J. Eldred and G. A. Wesley. The Misses H. Evans, F. Hutchinson, W. Melton, and A. Price.

Tenor—Messrs. C. H. Crowe, W. Elston, W. Gray, A. J. Hayter, W. Lloyd, R. Moore, and R. E. Selby.

Baritone—E. Massey-Cooke, J. Gore, W. H. Lacey, A. Pammett and H. Spencer.

Bass—Messrs. J. Emmett, D. G. H. Melton, B. Pitchford, H. Rush and S. Roberts.

To the choir boys fell the honor of contributing the first number, Slater's "Glorious Land," being their choice, and it was accorded unstinted applause. The following other numbers comprised the remainder of the program:

Gloria in Excelsis (Mass in F) (Concone)—the Choir.

When Other Lips (Bohemian Girl) (Balfe)—A. Pink and R. Pitchford.

Hopeful Senate Will Accept Naval Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—President Coolidge was represented yesterday by Britten of Illinois, ranking Republican on House Naval Committee, as hopeful that the Administration's $740,000,000 warship construction program would be accepted by Congress without material change.

The Illinois member, who called at the White House during the day, said that he was in harmony with the program as submitted and would support it both in the committee and on the House floor.

"The President said that the program was not a large one and that he hoped it would be accepted by Congress, without substantial amendment," Britten declared in a statement issued later at his office.

He added that Mr. Coolidge also had said that the country needed the proposed ships to round out the navy, care for replacements and to assure adequate protection to the nation's peaceful existence.

London Rejects Liberal Amendment

LONDON, Feb. 15.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—By a vote of 310 to 140 the House of Commons last night rejected the Liberal amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne and then adopted the address itself. The amendment, which was the second one proposed—a Labor amendment condemning the government's unemployment relief policy was rejected Monday by 293 votes to 137—censured the administration for its "neglect" of social problems, particularly unemployment and the slums problem.

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, declared the government had substantially aided the local authorities by pensions schemes, etc. The rating system to assist unemployment was a great burden on all sections of the community and could not be left in the present anomulous position, he declared.

DR. ROCKWELL BEGINS TALKS ON INSURANCE

The New Salesmanship is Subject of Talk Given This Morning.

TO UNDERWRITERS.

Three Day Educational Conference Begins With Welcome By Mayor Denne.

The Life Underwriters' educational conference opened promptly and harmoniously at the Public Library this morning with a burst of song that would have left the average Rotary or Kiwanis chorus hopelessly envious. Fred Wells of the Sun Life Company Port Hope, was the leader with Prof. Liddle at the piano, a happy combination that inspired the large assembly of insurance men from the city and district with an enthusiasm that resounded to every corner of the library. Presumably many of the chorus are graduates of the service club school of bel canto.

H. B. Matthews president of the Life Underwriters' Association of Peterborough, was chairman. He briefly referred to the educational feature of the congress, greeted the visitors on behalf of the local association, and introduced Mayor Denne, who was warmly received.

Mayor's Greeting

"Gentlemen, on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough, I extend to you a hearty welcome," said Mayor Denne. "You are doing a splendid work in the country, and we are glad to have you with us. In fact, we want you to come here. Insurance today is a necessity, and I'd like to take more than I already have."

His Worship briefly referred to Peterborough as the hub of Central Ontario. "We have one of the best educational systems in the country, with a million dollars invested. It is second to none in the province. A man can educate his children here up to the first year of University work. That is a big advantage for the working man. Our manufacturies are second to none. The C.G.E. company has between 1800 and 2,000 on its payroll, and the city generally is in a good condition. I hope you will enjoy your visit and profit from it, and if any of you would like to see some of our industries, just give your name to the secretary, and I'll be glad to accompany you."

Dr. Rockwell's Address.

Dr. Charles J. Rockwell's address on "The New Salesmanship" was the first lesson in the intensive program which concludes on Friday afternoon. His reception by the expectant aud-

The Weather

By way of variety in weather conditions we had about three inches of wet snow last night. At intervals there was rain. The consequence was the snow was a semi-liquid—a complete saturation. This made walking unpleasant. The temperature was 33 degrees. The highest point yesterday 35 degrees. February this year is so far proving much like that of last year. There were few cold days but the depth of snow on the ground was much greater. A severe storm occurred on the 20th. when about 13 inches of snow fell. There was but one day below zero in March, namely on the first. I was much surprised to notice in the Examiner of last night an article with the heading of "W.P.—An Appreciation." As it came on Feb. 14th, perhaps it was meant as a Valentine; Nevertheless, I thank the writer, and many others, who have expressed similar sentiments, and trust that this particular hobby of mine may prove of real interest and practical use.—W. MINING COURT JUDGE CHOSEN TO PROBE FIRE

Hon. T. E. Godson To Head the Royal Commission Into Hollinger Inquiry.

CHOSEN BY PREMIER.

Mine Workers Adopt Resolution Demanding Representation Upon Investigation Board.

TORONTO, February 15. — T. E. Godson, Judge of the Mining Court of Ontario, has been appointed by Royal Commission to investigate the Hollinger Mine disaster. Premier Ferguson announced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

Judge Godson will be assisted by a competent counsel, whose identity the Government has not yet decided.

The inquiry will open at an early date and will be "as thorough and far-reaching as possible."

In making his announcement to the House, Premier Ferguson stated that the Government had sought someone who could act in a judicial capacity and at the same time someone who had some knowledge of mining conditions. After looking over the field it had decided on Judge Godson.

The latter, the Prime Minister continued, holds a commission under order-in-council of the Dominion Government ,as a justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, his jurisdiction being confined to the mining field, in which he has had long years of experience. For this reason he was well qualified to undertake the present inquiry.

"It is absolutely essential for the lives of the men who are asked to go under ground," Mr. Ferguson continued, "that they should have assurance of every possible protection against accident or disaster. Our hope is that a thorough and exhaustive inquiry will find the cause of the disaster and the means of guarding against its recurrence."

In opening his address on the Speech from the Throne, W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal Leader, complimented the Premier on his promptness in ordering such an investigation. "We hope that the Commission will find some means to avert a similar tragedy from taking place in the years to come," he said.

TIMMINS, Ont., February 15 (Canadian Press). — Demanding that the Provincial Government institute a public inquiry into the Hollinger disaster, and that "we ,the mine workers of the Porcupine district," be represented on the board, a mass meeting of more than 500 people last evening adopted a resolution calling upon the Ontario Administration to conduct a thorough investigation into the cause of the tragedy. The resolution further provided that the representation sought would include one member each from the I.W.W., the O.B.U., and the Mine Workers' Party of Canada, that the investigation should be held in Timmins, and open to the public, and it asked that the parties responsible for dumping inflammable material in the stops where the fire originated should be punished and removed from their present position. The document as read to the meeting blamed the disaster on "the negligence of the officials of the Hollinger Mine and the mining inspector."

Joe Kennedy, chairman of the meeting, intimated that "we want to back up the resolution with action." If the inquiry was not to be granted, he said, "we will have to use our economic power to bring these parasites to hold this investigation." The chairman wanted concerted action to prove the guilty parties, giving this as the reason for calling the meeting, he declared that they must have an investigation carried on in a thorough manner and see that everybody got justice in the case. Six speakers addressed the gathering in five different languages, three of them being employees of the company and a fourth Charles Lester, organizer of the O. B.U. The meeting opened with a minute's silence in token of respect to dead comrades.

Stand Together.

The speakers were: K. Kangas and H. Halen, Finnish; N. D. Thachuk, Ukrainian; Sam Marich, Jugoslav; P. Letiller, French and English; and Lester, who used English. All urged the men employed in the mines of the camp to stand together claiming that without organization their cause would be hopeless, while Thachuk asserted that "all we have here is all sorts of societies to amuse us." The workers' organization in Timmins he considered something to be ashamed of, he said in English. This speaker and the chairman clashed when the latter interrupted the Ukrainian and intimated that the meeting had been called to discuss "the class struggle and the Hollinger disaster," and that he would not permit any speaker to introduce propaganda for any party. He asserted Thachuk had introduced the Workers' Party into his remarks, an allegation the speaker denied, and receiving the corroboration of several men

SAYS HOUSE SHOULD PROHIBIT EXPORT OF ELECTRIC POWER

Stewart Tells Commons During Discussion of Bill To Regulate Exportation.

WOULD AMEND ACT.

Is Too Valuable An Asset To Be Allowed Out of Country.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—In the opinion of the Government, the export of electric power should be prohibited. Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, stated in the House of Commons last evening. It was too valuable an asset to allow to go out of the country, the minister declared. He made this statement during the discussion of a bill to regulate the exportation of electric power which was introduced by H. A. Stewart (Cons., Leeds). Both the mover of the bill and the minister suggested that it be sent to the Committee on Railways, and the House agreed to this.

The mover of the bill, in his explanation stated that his object was to amend the Electricity and Fluid Export Act. Under the Act the export of electric energy was controlled by order in council. The purpose of the bill was to make the export of electric power subject to an Act of Parliament. Mr. Stewart made it clear that his bill did not go to the length of prohibiting the export of power. He also said that the bill he introduced preserved the rights of provinces. It had been suggested that his ill did not make provision for the supply of power in case of emergencies. This objection could be overcome easily by an amendment. He had drafted such an amendment which he would be prepared to submit when the bill was in committee.

Hon. Charles Stewart stated that the government was not objecting to the bill in any way.

FEARS CONTEST FOR OWN STATE

Former Governor Lowden Takes Up Cudgels Against Hoover.

OPPOSITION ON WARPATH.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. — The Hoover opposition was on the warpath to-day.

Senator Willis, who was displeased that the secretary of commerce is protesting his avowed "favorite son right" to the Ohio delegation arranged for a meeting of the senate commerce committee this forenoon to consider calling Hoover to discuss flood control. If Hoover is called, his opinion would be asked on President Coolidge's plan to make the states pay a portion of the flood protection costs. Hoover's friends claim that this is a deliberate attempt to embarrass him.

Further Opposition.

Simultaneously the United Press was informed by North Dakota congressional sources that another Hooper opponent, former Governor Lowden of Illinois, has made conclusive arrangements with State Republican leaders to guarantee the North Dakota delegation at the Republican national convention to Lowden.

Work was started at the same time among the three senatorial candidates—Willis, Curtis and Watson—for an alliance which could hold out to the last against the Hoover movement.

California Child Slayer To Stand Trial On Second Murder Charge To-Day

LOS ANGELES Calif., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—A criminal career, starting with petty robberies after graduation from High School, brought William Edward Hickman into the shadow of the gallows yesterday for the kidnapping and slaying of Marian Parker, Los Angeles school girl.

Hickman was sentenced in Superior Court by Judge J. J. Trabucco to be hanged Friday, April 27, for the heinous offense that culminated his search after "easy money."

Today, the youth who graduated from Central High School in Kansas City in 1926 with a brilliant scholastic record ,is scheduled to go to trial for another murder, the slaying of C. Ivy Thoms, druggist, in the State's effort to make doubly sure he will not escape the noose.

An appeal which counsel for Hickman have announced will be filed is expected to delay carrying out of the death sentence pronounced yesterday. Attorneys said it might be six months before a decision is handed down by the State Supreme Court. The case may reach the United States Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, the State will ask the death penalty in the trial for the Thomas killing and District Attorney Asa Keyes said there was a possibility Hickman would be executed for that offense, before a final decision is rendered in the Parker slaying.

Welby Hunt, 16, formerly of Kansas City, will be called to trial today with Hickman, but his attorney announced a plea of guilty would be entered with a request for mercy. Under the law, Hunt is too young to be hanged.

God Save the King.

Accompanist—Miss Muriel Bridge.

To attempt description, or more particularly, to attempt comparison of any of the selections would be folly, for each seemed to possess and add to the enjoyment of the evening, its own particular charm. Perhaps the choir was heard to most advantage in "Old King Cole," "Sweet and Low," by Barnby, and "Good Night, Beloved" (Pinsuti), but the individual work of some of the choristers or of the assisting artists was quite striking in other parts of the program.

The accompanist of the evening, Miss Muriel Bridge, was a factor in the choir's success, for she supplied an accompanying lead to the director's baton that was most satisfactory. Mrs. M. B. Hoyland and Miss Taylor, violinists, are also deserving of commendation for their work during the evening, and last but not least, the young singers, Miss M. Elston and Masters A. Pink and R. Pitchford, were called upon for encores to their special numbers, and are to be congratulated on their splendid showing.

Warden Stevenson.

During the intermission between Parts 1 and 2, Warden A. W. Stevenson took occasion to express on behalf of the vicar, appreciation of the splendid attendance at the concert, and of the work which the choir was doing in the church. He also made mention of the assisting artists, thanking them.

None more than the members of the choir themselves could appreciate the ability of Mr. Mann, the choir leader, and to that gentleman the success of the concert must have been a source of keen satisfaction. He and St. John's have every right to be proud of this organization.

Wedding Bells

WHITTON—DONALD

CAMPBELLFOD, Feb. 15.—A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. James Donald, Centre Street, at eleven o'clock this morning, when her daughter, Janet, became the bride of Robert Neill Whitton, Brighton. The Rev. James Grier officiated at the ceremony. The bride, who was charmingly gowned in a dress of silk canton crepe, sand shade, with shoes and hose to match, was given away by her uncle, Mr. A. T. Donald, Burnbrae. She was otherwise unattended as was also the groom. After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served in the dining room to the guests, members of the immediate families, to the number of fourteen.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitton left on the one-thirty train for a honeymoon in Western Ontario. For travelling, Mrs. Whitton wore a Hudson seal coat trimmed with sable, the gift of the groom, with a cloche hat of sand and rose shades. Upon their return, they will reside in Brighton.

BRITAIN IS NOT SATISFIED WITH FORM OF PACT

Regarded As One-Sided, Measure Gives U. S. An Advantage.

CARRY ON NEGOTIATIONS.

Replica of Bryon Agreement is Sought By British Government.

LONDON, Feb. 15. — The British government does not at present regard with favor the signing of a treaty with the United States similar to the Franco-American treaty, the British United Press learns. The British objection is that the United states under such a treaty would retain the power of veto over the exercise of arbitration in any given case while the British on the other hand would be held by a binding commitment.

One-Sided Affair.

For this reason such a treaty is regarded as a one sided one. Meanwhile the British are now turning their attention as recently hinted by Sir Austin Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, to the possible development of a treaty which was signed in September, 1924 between the late Sir Cecil Spring Rice, the British ambassador in Washington at that time, and W. J. Bryan, the United States secretary of state.

This treaty, which was never put into operation, provides for the creation of a permanent international commission which would give an advisory opinion on any disputes arising between the two countries. Under its terms, the commission is allowed one year in which to give its opinion, during which time the signatories may not take any action.

Is Starting Point.

The British are of the opinion that this treaty provides a better starting point for negotiations than the Root treaty, which is due for revision on April 4, but now is regarded as dead owing to the Franco-American treaty. What line of action Britain will take has not yet been decided but all the possibilities along the foregoing lines are being explored.

UTILITIES MANAGER REPORTS GREAT DEAL OF EXPANSION

Many Improvements Have Been Effected in Both Departments.

BILLING IMPROVED.

Lighting System Partly Rebuilt —Ice Interferes With Pumping Plant.

The following report on the activities of the Electric and Waterworks Departments for the year ending December 31, 1927, has been submitted by Ross L. Dobbin:

Electric Department.

Distribution System—

We have completed the reconstruction of the old lines in the western part of the city, which has resulted in increased reliability of service.

We have made plans for the rebuilding of some more of the system that is in poor shape and will have the work finished this spring

For the first time in the history of the department a proper analysis of the system has ben made so that we are now able to allocate the proper costs to each class of service.

Sub-station—

A new 3,000 Kva transformer and the necessary switching was installed to take care of the increased load on the system. It also gives us some spare capacity to take care of any future troubles that might occur with existing transformers.

On April 1, the street railway ceased to operate, and consequently the direct current generator has been shut down. We continue to operate the synchronous motor for power factor correction, but only during the daytime.

One result of this has been that we did not have enough heat to warm the station so we were forced to supply some, which we did, by installing electric heaters of the proper size. These are operated off our peak, so that there is no cost to us for the current used.

that we did not have enoughVt!-z ..

The inauguration of the Kva billing for our power customers has resulted in an improvement in the general system power factor from 83 per cent. to nearly 90 per cent. at the peak. This has resulted in much better regulation and we are enabled to give better service as a consequence.

Meters—

With the inauguration of the Kva billing it was necessary to make changes in the metering of our power consumers, and this work was done, and as an additional check, we arranged with the H.E.P.C. to go over them after our meter department and Government inspector had tested. No error of any kind was found.

Thirteen hundred and eighty-seven meters were changed for Government test during the year, which kept this department very busy.

We now have 6,015 meters on lighting loads and 220 on power loads.

On September 15th, we connected our system to the C.G.E. Company, and are now supplying them with 320 h.p., using two Lincoln graphic meters to measure the load.

Transformers—

We now have a total of 565 distribution transformers, with a total capacity of 9,124 k.w., 4,570 k.w. being for light and 4,554 k.w. for power.

Street Lighting—

All the magnetite arc lamps have been changed to series incandescent and on George Street extra lamps have been installed, so that now we have a lamp on every pole from the C.P.R. to McDonnel Street.

In the western part of the city, we completed a new system, using 300 watt lamps, for the most part suspended in the centre of the street. On Charlotte Street where the street railway was then running, we installed the lamps on short brackets, using a special refractor, which throws almost all the light on the pavement.

We have also installed this system in other parts of the city, and all these lights are now turned off during the day. Consequently, the load does not come on our peak as it did formerly in the case of the 60 watt lamps, burning 24 hours per day.

The new system compares favorably with that installed in any other city of this size in Canada, and the maintenance charges have proved to be much lower.

A comparison of the number of lamps in 1924 and at present will show the progress that has been made:

	1924	1927
Magnetite arcs . . .	104	0
60 watt	1170	600
300 watt	20	194
100 watt	0	372
500 watt	0	1
400 c.p.	0	115
	1294	1280

Total amount paid by city—1924, $16,369.98; 1927, $16,994.82.

Per capital—1924, $0.77; 1927, $0.78.

Interruptions to Service—

We had five complete interruptions to service all of which were caused by troubles outside our control.

We are pleased to report that the 44,000 volt circuit breaker at Auburn which has caused many shut-downs in the past has been replaced.

On December 8, from 8.10 p.m. to 10.30 p.m., so much trouble was experienced from frazile ice at all the power houses on the Central Ontario System, that for a time it was feared that we would be totally without power. However, we were able to carry on, but at a very much reduced voltage for a time.

System Load—

The average monthly peak load for the year was 5,631 h.p., and the maximum was 6,380 h.p. on November 22, at 4.33 p.m. These figures included the rural load which was calculated to be 229 h.p. from January to October, 295 h.p. for November, and 303 h.p. for December.

A comparison of the loads for the last three years is shown below.:

	1925	1926	1927
Max. monthly peak	5,403	5,715	6,380
Date	Dec. 8th	Oct. 18th	Nov. 22nd
Time	4.50 p.m.	11.35 a.m.	4.33 p.m.
Aver. monthly peak h.p.	4,704	4,930	5,631
Total k.w. hours	15,516,000	15,920,000	18,333,000
Aver. daily k.w.h.	42,510	43,500	50,250
Yearly load factor per cent.	50.4	49.0	50.0

Our average daily peak has increased by 700 h.p. over 1926, but as we had a corresponding increase in k.w. hours, our load factor has increased. This shows that while we have had an increased peak, we have made good use of it and the increased number of k.w. hours sold will take care of the increased cost of power.

A study of the connected load of the system shows for 1927 that we are serving a total of 19,882 h.p., 6,547 h.p. is in power loads and 13,335 h.p. in lighting. The diversity factor is therefore about 28 per cent.

Billing and Collecting—

A thorough reorganization of the Accounting Department has been undertaken by the Accountant, Mr. Melton and the results speak for themselves. A system of control by which all the work is continually checked has been instituted and many other improvements made.

The new billing machine is now being used to its capacity and as a result we are getting information that we were not able to get accurately before.

Many mistakes that appeared to be unavoidable under the old system do not occur now, and while this has entailed a great deal more work, yet by re-arranging the duties of the various members of the staff, it has been taken care of.

Consumption—

The total kilowatt hours delivered to the system, as measured at the sub-station was, 18,333,000, and the total as billed was 17,696,500. The difference is 636,500 kilowatt hours or 3½%, which represents the loss in the distribution system, under registration of meters and unaccounted for leaks. This is a very low percentage of loss considering the size of the system.

The figures for the various classes of consumers are as follows:

	No. of Consumers	K.W. Hr. Consumption
Domestic	5096	3,515,896
Commercial	845	2,542,724
Power	154	7,869,683
Rural	636	537,457
Street Lighting..		2,110,000
Flat Rate Water Heaters	201	926,387
Flat Rate Signs		194,320
		17,696,467

The average yearly consumption per domestic consumer both rural and city, was 708 kilowatt hours as compared with 792 in 1926. This decrease is probably a reflection of the increased rates put into effect in Feb. 1926.

The average cost per killowat hour for domestic consumers has been 2.19 cents as compared with 2.2 cents in 1926, which shows that while the new rates were apparently an increase, yet actually, the average consumer is paying less than he did before. This is principally due to the change in the service charge from the area basis to a flat rate per consumer.

There has been a considerable falling off in the average commercial consumption, due probably to the increase in the rate which has been greater in proportion than the increase in the domestic rate. The consumption per consumers in 1926 was 3876 k.w. hours, as compared with 3009 in 1927. This result is however, affected by the fact, that some of the large factories which were previously billed separately for the lighting at commercial rates have made changes in their wiring and are now billed for both power and light at power rates, and the killowat hours consumed appear in the total for power. The average cost for commercial lighting in 1927, was 2.44 cents per k.w. hours, and in 1926 it was 1.6 cents.

The average demand for power consumers was 4,710 h.p. in 1927, as compared with 4,045 h.p. in 1926. The average cost per h.p. was $19,000, or 1.14 cents per k.w. hour in 1927, as against $15,81 per h.p. or 1.08 cents per k.w. hour in 1926.

In connection with the average cost per k.w. hour for domestic consumption it is interesting to note, that in the United States, the cost is in excess of 7 cents, as shown by the survey of the Electrical World, for 1927.

The Rural District—

On Jan. 1st. 1927, the Peterborough Rural District was formed, and all our lines and meters outside the city limits were purchased by the Hydro Electric Power Commission. Since then the district has been operated by us, under the direction of the latter, and we are being paid for any work we do in operating the district.

We are collecting the rates as formerly and forwarding the money to the head office. Until the rural district grows to such proportions as to necessitate a separate office, it appears that it is advantageous for us to continue doing so.

Since the district was formed several extensions have been made. This construction work has been done by our staff, as well as considerable work in re-arranging the circuits, so that graphic meters might be installed to measure the rural load. As all of this load passes through our substation and through the meters on which we are charged for power, it is necessary that the load be accurately metered so that the proper deduction can be made.

General—

The re-building campaign of the Commission has progressed until about 60 per cent of the system has been modernized, but much remains to be done. There are many of our circuits that are in poor condition, conductors too small, poles rotten at the base, etc. and as funds are available this work should be proceeded with.

Our commercial consumers are now almost wholly billed on connected load. Unless almost continuous inspection is carried out, this results in inaccuracy, which is unfair both to the consumer and ourselves. A new demand meter has been developed, which can be economically installed on this class of service and we would recommend that some of these be placed on the larger consumers; and this work be continued as we can afford it. The installation of these meters would make it unnecessary for inspection to determine the connected load.

The improvement in the street lighting of the city is quite noticeable, but there is a considerable portion of the city not yet served with the new system, and this work should be continued. We would point out that the 60 watt lamps at present burning 24 hours per day cost us nearly $1,200.00 per year for power alone which would all be saved if the lamps were turned off in the daytime.

In addition to this figure we would also save considerable in lamps due to the fewer number of burning hours per day.

It is evident from our experience, since we have instituted the present method of power billing, that we should install graphic meters on the larger power consumers. This would give us record of their operations and prevent disputes.

Waterworks Department.

Distribution System—

There were not many extensions to the system, the main item being a 6-inch extension of the main on Euclid Ave., from Erskine to Cameron street. There were 82 new services laid.

On account of paving 108 services were relaid and the existing 5-inch main on Water street from Dublin to Antrim Street, was changed to 8-inch.

Main Pumping Station—

During the winter, an ice shove, damaged a section of the racks, and these were repaired in the summer.

In view of the fact that the only portion of the discharge main from the pumps, that was not in duplicate, was the part immediately at the pump house, it was decided to duplicate this part. Accordingly, a connection was made to the 18-inch force main, outside the pump house, and a 16-inch pipe carried inside the wall. This work will be completed inside the pump house during the winter, and we will then have continuous duplicate supply from the pumps to the city.

We have had considerable trouble from Frazile ice during the fall. On December 8th the steam auxiliary was started at 6.00 p.m. and ran for 18½ hours. It was started again on the 9th, and ran for twenty-one and a half hours. Again on the 18th, it was used for 6½ hours. On January 2nd, 1928, at midnight, the steam pump was started and ran until January 5th for a total of 60 hours.

During these times the steam pump was the only source of supply, as the hydraulic turbines were plugged with frazile ice.

Pumpage—

The year has seen a further decrease in pumpage, the total amount was 811,970,000 gallons, or 2,224,000 gallons per day. The figures for 1926 were, 834,730,000 gallons per year, or 2,285,000 gallons per day.

Filter Plant—

Nothing other than the ordinary routine has taken place at the filter plant and it has operated efficiently. It has been operated an average of 9.2 hours per day and the amount of alum used has been 1.0 grains per gallon. Chlorine used has averaged 4 lbs. per million gallons.

General—

In view of the fact, brought home rather strongly to us this year, that when we have ice troubles, we are dependent on only one pump, and also, that during most of the time we were running the steam pump, electric power would have been available, we have come to the conclusion that an electrically driven pump would be an excellent addition to the pump-house.

In most of the cases when our hydraulically driven pumps were shut down, we would be able to run the electric pump and still have the steam pump to take care of cases when the power was off.

It would cost between $7,000.00 and $8,000.00 to install an electrically driven centrifugal pump of 6 million gallons per day capacity, and we would recommend its installation if our finances will permit.

The chlorinator in the pump house has been giving us trouble all year, and it is about time that it was replaced. It was installed in 1921 and has given good service. We are getting an estimate of the cost of repairing or installing a new one, and these figures will be available soon. The chlorinator is a very important part of our purification system, and we cannot afford to have it in such shape that it will be unreliable.

Having severed my connection with The J. A. McNabb Co., Limited, Chain of Ladies' Wear Stores, I wish to say that I fully appreciate the patronage extended to the Peterborough store, while the chain organization was under my management. I feel satisfied that in a great measure the patronage of the Peterborough store came as a personal tribute from my many friends, who depended on me to see that every garment offered was one hundred per cent. honest value.

I have taken over the local store from the chain organization in my own name, and have newly stocked it with a most carefully selected line of New Spring Coats and Dresses that are right up to the minute in design, color and material.

Come and inspect the new models whether intending to buy or not. You will not be made uncomfortable by pressing salesmanship and it will be our pleasure to extend the courtesy due to invited guests.

RESEARCH WORK.

The practical unanimity with which all parties in the Federal House have endorsed the establishment of a national research institute is gratifying to those who for years have been lamenting the backward attitude of Canadians toward this most important matter.

While individual Canadians have done wonderful things in the field of research, there does not seem much doubt that as a whole we have not accomplished as much as we could have accomplished toward the solution of problems affecting industry and agriculture had a national institute been available.

There are possibilities on every hand for discoveries as the result of scientific research that will add millions of dollars to the national wealth, and it is not too optimistic to visualize the national research institute earning fabulous dividends.

THE BUS SERVICE.

Improvement in the local bus service is confidently expected to follow the conference between Frank J. Mitchell of the Border Transit Company and the City Council.

The company proposes to put larger buses in commission here and to inaugurate a pay-as-you-enter system, which is counted on to save time at transfer points and to protect the company against dishonest practices on the part of some patrons of the system.

More commodious buses would seem to be the logical solution of the problem, as they would relieve most of the congestion at rush hours, while the addition of extra buses, while satisfactory when the traffic is at the peak, would represent a dead loss at other periods in the day.

Since June 1 the Transit Company has succeeded in breaking even, and Mr. Mitchell's statement of confidence in the ability of the company to make the system pay during the four and a half years remaining of the agreement will be received with satisfaction.

It is of great importance to the community that the bus lines should pay.

On the whole the company has given good service, and the city would have been in a very bad way for transportation facilities had this organization not come to the rescue.

With larger buses the rush-hour accommodation should be greatly improved, and thus the chief complaint heard in regard to the service will have been eliminated.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Federal Minister of Finance, has already filed his main estimates for the next fiscal year, and tomorrow will bring down his Budget, a very early stage in the session for this vitally important business to make his appearance.

In the Ontario House it is predicted that a new record will be established by the introduction by Hon. J. D. Monteith of the Provincial Budget in the next few days, the quickest appearance of the Budget in the history of the Legislature.

The celerity shown both at Ottawa and at Toronto in getting down to the real business of the session will be welcomed as the dawn of a more businesslike era in public affairs.

It will afford more time for consideration of the Budget proposals, and almost equally important, it should permit of a closer study of the estimates, and that is decidedly in the public interest.

In the Dominion Parliament, for example, the Government in its main estimates is asking for nearly eight million dollars more than was spent last year, and having regard to the decreased interest charges on the public debt next year and to the fact that the supplementary estimates are likely to be fairly large, it may eventually develop that the expenditure for actual government services will be increased by a figure not much short of twenty millions.

It is possible that every expenditure provided for by the appropriations can be justified, and that no curtailment is possible, but surely it is of great importance to the people of Canada that the estimates should be closely scrutinized—something that has not always been possible because of the time wasted at the beginning of the session.

MEETING THE TEST.

The test of faith men have in their community is measured by the money and time they are willing to give to it. This has been shown time after time in Peterborough. It should be demonstrated again in the campaign to re-finance the Chamber of Commerce. As in former years promptly, energetically it is being done by a representative group of men from every walk of life.

The subscriptions should come from the humble home of the day laborer, the artisan, labor groups, retired capitalists, business houses, financial institutions and corporations. Each giving according to their several ability. Never perhaps has investment in a community enterprise meant more than this particular year. It is not easy, but it is necessary. Too much at stake to be piker or a slacker now. The community must go on steadily to hold all and retain the momentum for additional steps forward. Peterborough is not complete yet. Work unfinished, plans as yet unrealized.

The thinking citizens realize this, that is why they are making liberal investments for another year. They know the responsibility is theirs, so they cheerfully assume the obligation.

As never before, the average citizen should realize the value and need of this non-partisan, non-sectarian civic-commercial organization. It is an insurance against failure, an inspiration to additional effort. There are times when the day-by-day accomplishments may seem small, but the cumulative results over the year are an astounding record of achievement that can only be appreciated when listed in a report. These can be seen and known, but the real value of the work is in the intangibles that never appear in reports, such as meeting and locating visitors, keeping a continuous line of publicity, planning for the numerous amusements, recreations and improvements, working out details for fairs, exposition, conferences and conventions, heading off wild schemes and investigating possible industrial activities, protecting local industry, merchants and citizens from imposition and imposters. The grind of every-day detail of the staff that takes energy, time and patience. The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has made good. The people know this and are ready to back it with money and service as in the past.

This year each one should do something. The laborer, artisan, merchant, professional group, realtor, property owner, investor, public service corporations, banker, hotels, industrialist, wholesaler—every one doing their best will help.

Supporting the Chamber of Commerce is enlightened selfishness. If the committee misses you, hunt them up. It is your institution, your town, your interest in which it works. Only as the material side of the community is successful and prosperous can the cultural, educational and religious be developed and enjoyed to the fullest extent. Only by team-work can the greatest satisfactions in life come.

THE DIVORCE SITUATION.

The Hon. N. A. Belcourt's opposition to the attempt that is being made to institute a divorce court in Ontario, will have much sympathy from various classes of the population. At present, all Ontario and Quebec divorce applications are handled by a committee of the Senate. In the other Provinces, the same duty is carried out by the courts. The complaint is now made, however, that the number of cases annually is far too great for the Senators to dispose of. In 20 years, it is said, the applications to the Senate have grown from 10 to 230.

Canadians as a whole do not like divorce. This is well reflected in the stringency of our laws, the very limited grounds upon which the marriage tie can be legally cut. Senator Belcourt is unable to find any demand for the establishment of an Ontario divorce court. The Star has heard of none. The discussion now arising seems to be based largely on the desire of the Senators to shift the burden. Probably the average Canadian viewpoint is that the institution of divorce, if it is to be continued, should be left to the Senate. Certainly it is desirable to do everything possible to discourage divorce and to make it as difficult as possible. In countries where divorce is easy, the hymeneal bond has come to mean very little. It would be unfortunate if Canada were ever to allow herself to drift into the easy-marriage-easy-divorce state of mind that obtains in so many parts of the world.—Border Cities Star.

THE O.A.C. GRADUATE AS PRACTICAL FARMER.

It is a common criticism that men who have been trained in the agricultural colleges, while successful in directing agricultural efforts, are often a failure when they themselves engage in practical farming and, particularly among old farmers, there is a great disposition to sneer at the agricultural college graduate who has returned from his studies to till the soil, and to discount the approved methods which he generally brings to bear upon his labors.

But a Western Ontario man, himself in all probability a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, has just prepared an imposing list of technically-trained agriculturists who have made a great success of their farming. He starts this list with the names of several O.A.C. men who have made a name for themselves as livestock breeders—D. A. McPhee, of Vankleek Hill; Norman Martin, of Springfield, who has produced two Canadian champion Holsteins; T. H. Dent, of Woodstock, who has bred and developed a cow which holds the long-term world's record; D. Z. Gibson, of Caledonia, whose herd of Shorthorns took eight firsts, one championship and five reserve championships, at the Royal Winter Fair; Shields Brothers, of Caistor Centre, breeders of sheep; Colonel McEwen & Sons, of London, (the "Sons" being O.A.C. graduates), leading prize-winners in sheep classes.

Similarly, William Wallace, of Woodslee, another agricultural college graduate, took first place in the yellow dent corn class at the Royal; R. R. Moore, of Norwich, is one of the outstanding producers of vegetable, flower and root seeds in the Province; and so on.

If any vindication of the agricultural college graduate who re-enters farming at the close of his course be required, this list, which might be added to almost indefinitely, must furnish it. The truth is that, as a result of the knowledge which the student in attendance at an agricultural college gains, he is in a much better position to make a success of farming than the man who remains at home. The standing of technically-trained agriculturists at the different winter fairs and similar exhibitions is perhaps the best answer that might be made to the criticism so often heard.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make way there for Hon. J. A. Robb and his new Budget!

1928 models of automobiles have monopolized most of the space lately, but the 1928 model Robb Budget will crowd into the headlines tomorrow.

Sir Henry Thornton's advice to the various economic groups in Canada to work hand-in-hand and be considerate of each other's interest was excellent. Real progress in this country depends upon tolerance among such groups.

The Banking Committee of the House of Commons is to consider improvements in Canada's banking system. Unfortunately, however, for a lot of us that does not necessarily mean easier money.

The Border Transit Company in effect promises that when better buses are run here they'll run them, at least for another four and a half years.

Perhaps those seventeen cushions missing from the city buses stuck to the backs of some of the customers.

In the interest of harmony, it is well that Hon. Charles Marcil's resolution on the Mexican situation has been withdrawn.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, February 15 (Canadian Press). — There was an improved demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain here yesterday, and sales of a few car loads were made.

A feature of the local grain trade was the further strength that developed for Argentine corn and prices were marked up another two cents per bushel. This was attributed to the increased scarcity of supplies on spot and the steady demand. Sales of car lots were made at $1.096 per bushel, ex-store. There was also some demand from local buyers for oats and sales of car lots of tough No. 1 feed were made at 56½c to 57c per bushel, and No. 2 feed at 54½c per bushel, ex-track, Fort William, and for last week February shipment. Spot prices were unchanged.

The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was slow, but values were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of millfeed were well maintained under a fairly good inquiry. An unsettled feeling developed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, but values showed no change.

Owing to the liberal supplies of fresh eggs coming forward for the period of the year and the accumulation on stocks on spot a weaker feeling developed in the market, and prices for extras declined two cents per dozen, pullet extras one cent, and seconds four cents. Storage eggs were also reduced one cent per dozen. The demand was fair. The receipts were 918 cases.

The undertone to the potato market was firm, with a moderate demand.

The tone of the market for imported beans was steady and the volume of business was fair. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $3.00 per bushel, ex-track, and broken lots sold at $3.20 per bushel, ex-store.

Little business was done in butter, but values ruled unchanged. The receipts were 20 packages.

The cheese market was dull and featureless. The receipts were 391 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 15 (Canadian Press). — Soaring prices in the corn market yesterday went as high as $1.00 a bushel. Number 2 yellow corn for immediate delivery touched that quotation, the topmost established since last September. Widespread wet weather interfering with the movement of corn brought about buying on a big scale yesterday, and the consequent jump in values.

Corn closed unsettled, 1 cent to 1½ cents net higher, with wheat ⅛c off to ⅛c up, oats at a shade decline to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22 cents.

Houses with eastern and western connections were especially conspicuous yesterday in the general rush to buy corn. The ensuing upward swing of the market carried May delivery prices 7 cents above the minimum prices current last week, and lifted the July corn delivery to the highest level yet this season. Aside from wet weather, an advance of ½c to 1½c in the cash corn trading basis here was a bullish influence, and so too was the fact that corn receipts in Chicago yesterday were only 411 cars, a total far below what was looked for.

Reports were at hand that excessive moisture in parts of the corn belt had put rural waggon roads in the worst condition witnessed in years. It was also asserted that under such circumstances farmers were unable to deliver much corn, even if willing to sell at existing prices. On the other hand, upturns in the corn market led to heavy profit-taking sales on the part of holders of future delivery contracts and a material reaction from the day's best prices ensued. Nevertheless the market undertone remained firm from start to finish, despite announcement of 5,633,000 bushels increase of the corn visible supply.

Wheat was inclined to weakness, except for strength borrowed from corn. Rain and snow where needed for winter and domestic wheat, tended to ease down values, and so did 6,536,000 bushels increase of amount of wheat on ocean passage. Oats sympathized with corn most of the time, but receded toward the last.

Provisions reflected the action of corn as well as improvement of the consumer demand for lard.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, February 15 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as:

Demand—$4.87¾ to $4.88.

Cables—$4.88⅛ to $4.88 7-16.

A NEW BIRD

153 Rutherford Avenue.

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir. — A new arrival among the bird life of our city has appeared this winter, constituting a first appearance of the European Starling, (Sturnus Vulgaris), so far as I am aware, in the neighborhood of Patterson Street. On Monday, Jan. 30, I saw one feeding along with a house sparrow near Heart Ave. On Feb. 11, six in Patterson Street; Sunday, Feb. 12, twelve in Sherbrooke Street. Introduced into New York City in the year 1890, they have spread rapidly, and have been reported from various cities in Ontario, and I believe this to be the first appearance in our city of the Starling. Should like to hear from others who may have seen them. I remain,

Yours very truly,
ERNEST J. JULIAN.

RURAL MAIL CHANGES

To the Editor,
The Examiner,
Peterborough:

Dear Sir.—Would you be good enough to give me space in your paper to reply to a letter which appeared in your issue of February 7th, signed "One Interested," re the proposed change in the mail service on Routes 1 and 2, Ida, and No. 1 Cavan?

The first part of the writer's letter must be granted to be correct. It has created much interest, as evidenced by the fact that from 90 to 95 per cent of the patrons on both routes have signed a petition protesting against the proposed change.

The second part of the letter I will dispute. The proposed change is not an improvement on the present service. If the writer will read carefully Section 5 of "Rural Mail Delivery in Canada," which says that in planning rural mail routes every effort must be made to serve directly—mark the word directly—as many householders as possible, he will have to admit that this is exactly what the present service does. The mail is now taken off the C.P.R. train at Cavan and goes directly—again mark the word directly—to the chief centres of population where the routes previously referred to start from—namely, Cavan, Ida and Mount Pleasant. This would not be possible if the proposed change were made.

The writer also says that a request is being forwarded to the Postmaster General to have the outgoing mail forwarded by either the 5.30 or 9 p.m. C.N.R. trains. The first is impossible and the second of very doubtful advantage.

The most important feature of a rural mail service, is to have, as the regulations require, the incoming mail delivered as quickly as possible. No regulations could or would compel a courier to wait while a patron read and answered a letter delivered; but if the mailing facilities are convenient as they are at present an answer to an important letter can be started on its journey with very little inconvenience to any one. This is proven by the fact that the letter of "One Interested," although written at "Springville"—the farthest point east on Route 1, Ida, on Feb. 7th, appeared in your issue of the same day.

In conclusion, I would point out that at present the offices of Ida and Cavan are in the very centre of the rural area, where mail can either be posted or received conveniently when by reason of stormy weather the roads might not be in condition for a courier to make the whole route.

CAUGHT BAD COLD WHILE OUT PLAYING NOT PROPERLY DRESSED

Mrs. L. Mantie, Millet, Alta., writes: —"My youngest child had a very bad cold which she got by going out playing in a strong, cold wind not properly dressed.

"She got so hoarse she could hardly speak, and her throat and chest were very sore.

"I used everything available, but she received no relief until, finally, I secured a bottle of

A Thought

PERSONAL PREJUDICE

In the narrow mind there is always that lurking personal prejudice. When the small man takes a dislike toward the frank and truthful writer nothing that the writer can put on paper will please the man of personal prejudice.

Any line of logic or any reasoning thought that the writer may produce is sure to displease the reader who is governed by personal prejudice.

And so it is all through the activities of life. If we do not like a man that man's name is mud, for personal prejudice warps our opinion of him or whatever he may say.

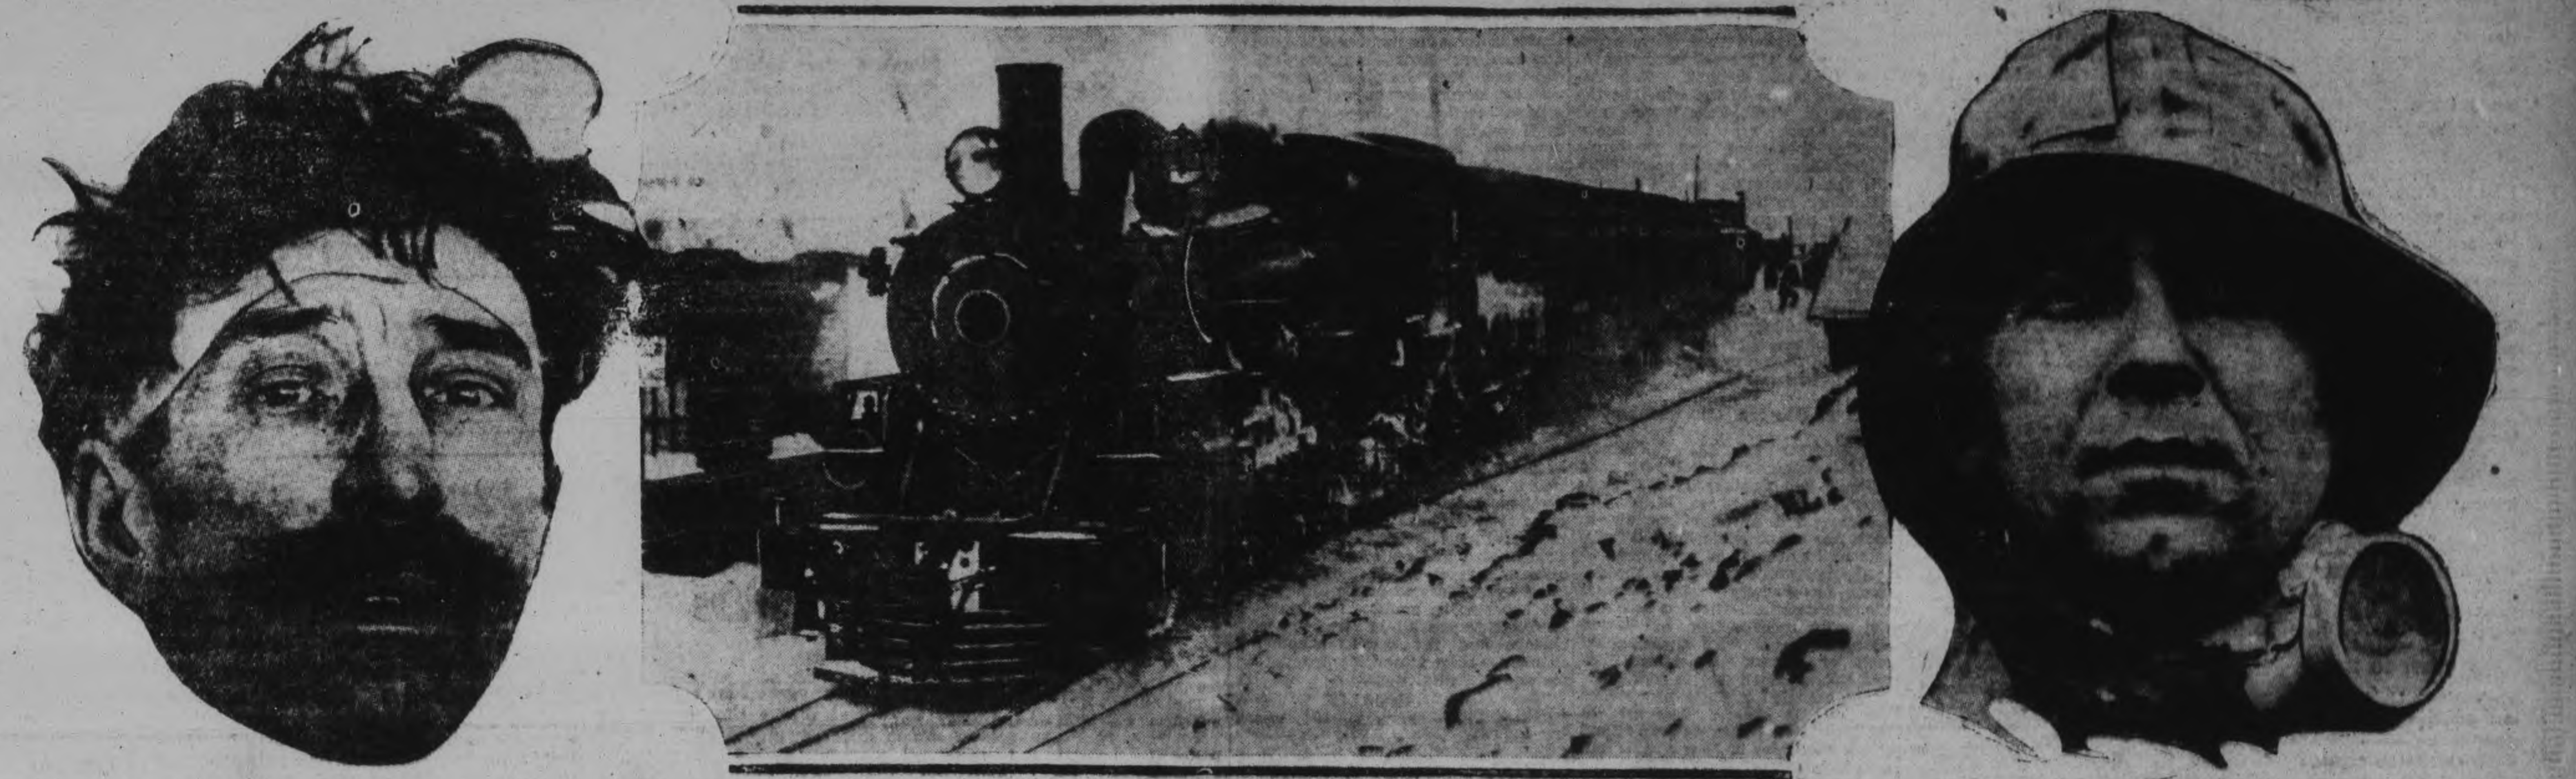
Last minute convulsive efforts and tenacious presence of mind saved the life of Captain Pond, No. 1, above. Pond is a shift captain, and was at sixth level when he began to grow drowsy with the insidious fumes that had begun to circulate in the mine passage. With faltering steps he reached the hoist, and gave the signal. The cage came whizzing down, but he was sprawled unconscious on the rock floor by the time the hoistman reached him. At the surface, however, he was revived by oxygen. The second picture shows rescuers with their precious burden, a man still revivable, or a man who has already passed the portals of death—they cannot tell until they have exhausted every effort. Third picture shows the shaft head, No. 11, the first picture taken of the smoke that rose in a beacon for all the countryside to see and wonder and fear it. At the right, No. 4, is seen workers equipped with the oxygen masks, without which approach to the region of the fire, and indeed any approach into the mine, is a deadly task.—All photographs copyrighted by The Toronto Star.



If any man can be singled out for effective heroism in the Hollinger mine fire among the many who risked lives time and again, that one is George Zolob, Jugo-Slav, shown at the left of the above layout. He crept and crawled nine hundred feet through paths where death might lurk around any corner, and was the means of saving eleven lives beside his own. Father of nine children, a man of fifty-four, he determined to attempt a break through the barrage of smoke and gas. He made his way to the hoist, gave the signal and was drawn to the surface. He gave news of those who remained behind and the rescuers, spurred to new efforts by the knowledge that these men remained behind, redoubled their efforts, bringing, by little groups, his companions to safety. The Toronto rescue train, which played an important part in the rescue, is seen in the centre just as it pulled into Timmins station. At the right is one of the rescue party, armed against monoxide gas with the oxygen mask without which the fight was futile

BALLOT PAPERS ARE PRODUCED IN LEGISLATURE

Sinclair Demands Inquiry Into Possible Corrupt Practices.

FOUND IN OTTAWA STREET.

Premier Promises Full Investigation Into Presence of Papers in Illegal Place.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—An allegation of corrupt practices in connection with the provincial election of 1926 in Ottawa South was sprung as the surprise feature of the Liberal leader's speech in the Legislature yesterday, and called forth a prompt answer from Premier Ferguson that the matter would be investigated immediately, and that an inquiry of the widest scope woud be instituted either before the Privileges and Elections Committee or before some other tribunal.

Mr. Sinclair's statement, which as the Prime Minister indicated, was the first that either he or any other member of the House had heard of such a situation, came with no warning. The Liberal leader broke away suddenly from a sharp criticism of the administration of the Liquor Control Act to announce that he held in his hand a ballot bearing the name of Thomas M. Birkett and Robert B. Sparks, and marked on the back "D. R.O., electoral district of Ottawa South, December 1, 1926.

Picked Up in Street.

"Mr. Speaker," he continued, "You may wish to know how these were picked up on the streets of Ottawa during the Fall of 1927. Nineteen such ballots were found, all regular in size and form. For the information of this Legislature, I propose to read the Election Act, dealing wtih the care to be taken of ballot papers, because I consider and I believe this House considers the ballot paper to be a sacred thing."

Following the reading of these passages from the statutes, the Liberal leader then went on: "There has been a good deal of blowing about this government being carried into office on the wave of popular opinion, but when 19 ballots were found on the street one wonders how they came to be there."

Mr. Ferguson: "When did you say they were picked up?"

Mr. Sinclair: "Some time in October of this last year. They were found on the street with no trace of where they came from available or where the offence could be charged. Also the Election Act provides that a protest can be made within 45 days of the election and these ballots were not found until the Fall."

Forwarded to Government.

"The ballots," he continued, "had at once been forwarded to the Government, and he assumed that they were being retained." The Attorney-General assured him that the Clerk of the Crown had been instructed to preserve them, pending any action which the Liberal leader might wish to take.

"There is no provision in the Act," Mr. Sinclair went on, to provide for this emergency, but the Legislature is supreme. It is greater than the Election Act. It can take any action which it sees fit to stop such corrupt practices. It is a matter for the investigation of every square inch of paper in the Government printing office here, tracing where each went to and how much is now locked up in the Government vaults.

"There has been a crime perpetrated, a crime in some form, because these ballots seem to be regular in every respect. I am asking in the good name of the Province that as early as possible the opportunity may be given to follow this further."

Premier Replies.

"This comes entirely as a surprise to me," said Premier Ferguson. The Government, he continued, would see to it that so far as the powers of the Legislature lay, they would be used to purge election methods of any corrupt or improper practice. No matter who might be at fault, the whole force and machinery of the law would be put in motion to reveal the truth. "I will be very glad indeed," he added, "to confer with my friend and arrange that an investigation of the fullest and widest scope will take place, either before the Privileges and Elections Committee or some other tribunal, and that promptly."

"I will give my best effort to assist in clearing up this matter," replied Mr. Sinclair, "because in my opinion it is most important it should be dealt with promptly and thoroughly, for the good name of the Province of Ontario."

T. M. Birkett, M.P.P., Ottawa South, issued a statement before the evening session, pointing out that the ballot incident was unknown to him up to the time Mr. Sinclair mentioned it in the House.

"It is absolutely the first I have heard of anything like that," he said. "There was no word of it from either organization, Liberal or Conservative. I want to help in any way possible to bring about the most thorough investigation."

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE LUNNY SNOWBALL

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"Did you see that, Unkie Wig?" mewed Kittie Kat, perched up on the rabbit gentleman's back.

"Do you mean that snowball which is rolling along without any one pushing it, as far as I can observe?" inquired Mr. Longears, giving his pink nose another shiver. "Do you mean do I see the snowball, Kittie Kat, my dear?"

"That's what I mean," purred the pussy girl.

"Well, I see it," answered Mr. Longears. "But did you hear anything, Kittie?"

"I hear somebody growl that they were going to have fun just as I said the same thing when I broke off this red drum stick," said Kittie, waving over her head the sumach branch with the big cluster of hard, red berries on it. "Is that the noise you meant?"

"That's the noise," answered Uncle Wiggily. "We have two puzzles here, Kittie, the rolling snowball and the noise."

"Oh, what fun!" purred Kittie, and she clapped her paws, perched as she was on Uncle Wiggily's shoulders. But in clapping her paws Kittie dropped the red sumach drum stick. Down it fell, banging the bunny uncle on his nose and he cried:

"Ouchie!"

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" mewed Kittie. "That isn't the kind of fun I meant I was going to have. I didn't mean to drum on you, Unkie Wig!"

"I'll forgive you," answered the rabbit gentleman, stooping to pick up the sumach drum stick. But as he leaned down and stooped over Kittie Kat slid off his shoulders, over his head and plop she went right in a snow bank.

"Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho!" suddenly laughed the big snowball that was slowly rolling along the woodland path.

Uncle Wiggily was so surprised at hearing a snowball speak and laugh that for a moment he forgot about picking Kittie out of the big, white bank of snow. And there the little pussy girl was stuck, head first. She couldn't even mew for help. She could only make funny noises and wiggle her tail very hard, which she did.

"Well, of all the strange happenings!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily as he heard the rolling snowball talk and saw Kittie's tail waving like a flag. "I wonder if I'm in Fairyland?"

But his pink nose began to feel very cold, and as the rabbit gentleman knew it was always summer in Fairyland he thought he couldn't be there. And he knew Kittie Kat couldn't be in Fairyland because she was most unhappy, stuck head first in a snowbank, and nobody is ever unhappy in Fairyland. So Uncle Wiggily took hold of Kittie's hind legs and pulled her out of the snowbank just in time, for she was coughing hard.

"Dear me!" purred Kittie when she could get her breath. "What's it all about?"

"I'm sure I don't know," answered Mr. Longears and just then the big rolling snowball began to laugh again. Then, all of a sudden it cracked wide open and out rolled Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Jackie. "Oh, how funny you looked, Kittie, when you slid over Uncle Wiggily's head into the snow. And how funny Uncle Wiggily looked when you dropped the red sumach drum stick on his nose! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

"It may have been funny for you," said Uncle Wiggily rubbing his nose, "but you looked funny to us, coming out of that snowball just now. And was it you who said you were going to have fun?"

"Yes," barked Jackie, "it was I. But I've had so much fun now I don't need any more. You see," he went on, "I came out here to the woods and rolled myself in the sticky snow to make myself look big. And then so much snow stuck to me I turned into a regular snowball and I rolled along until I saw you. And I heard you say you were going to have some fun, Kittie, when you picked up the red drum-stick, so I said I was going to have some fun, too. And I did!"

"Yes, I guess we all did!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Only at first, Jackie, I thought the voice from inside the snowball came from the Fuzzy Fox who was going to nibble my ears. I'm glad he didn't."

"So we are!" said Kittie and Jackie. Then the bunny uncle took Kittie up on his back again and, with Jackie running on ahead, hopped to his hollow stump bungalow just in time for tea. So everything came out all right.

SUN LIFE PAYS HIGH DIVIDEND

Announcement Made at Annual Meeting of Shareholders Yesterday.

ASSETS INCREASED.

There was good news for the policyholders of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada in the report submitted at the annual meeting on the 14th, a copy of which appears in another column. President Macaulay announced that for the eighth successive year the scale of dividends to be paid to policyholders would be increased, while the interest rate on dividends left with the Company will be maintained at 5½ per cent per annum.

This was not the only noteworthy factor in connection with the annual meeting. It was found that although the general increase of new business in companies operating in North America last year was very little in excess of new business in 1926, the Sun Life was able to report an increase in new business of twenty-three per cent.

T. B. MACAULAY,
President Sun Life of Canada.

The total amount of assurances with the Company is now $1,487,990,000—an increase during the year of $231,500,000. The total net income exceeded $100,000,000—over $23,810,000 in excess of the previous year.

The surplus earned during the year amounted to $38,500,000. The Company has followed its usual conservative policy with respect to the surplus. The sum of $5,000,000 has been deducted from the market value of its securities to provide against possible future fluctuations, increasing the amount so set aside to $10,000,000. $1,500,000 has been added to the account to provide for unforseen contingencies, which now stands at $12,500,000. Over $11,000,000 has been paid or allotted as profits to policyholders during the year, and $6,200,000 contingently allotted to deferred dividend policies issued prior to 1911 and to five-year distribution policies to provide for profits accrued but not yet payable.

ARTHUR B. WOOD,
Vice-President and Actuary Sun Life of Canada.

After making these and various other deductions and allocations, $11,269,330 was added to the undivided surplus, bringing the total over all liabilities, contingent accounts and capital stock to $45,280,896.

The assets of the Company were increased by over $56,000,000, bringing the total up to over $400,000,000.

Over $42,000,000 was paid out during the year to policyholders and beneficiaries with respect to death claims, matured endowments, profits, etc. The Company has paid out since its organization under this heading over $300,000,000.

Plane Passengers Got Out And Pushed

TORONTO, Feb. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—A vivid account of the Reindeer Lake trips undertaken by Capt. Frederick Stevenson, of Winnipeg, for which with other airplane exploits he has been posthumously awarded the Harmon Trophy for 1927, was given to-day by Richard Buss of Thorold, a geologist, who is now on his way to Cobalt.

Buss flew frequently with Stevenson and was with him on a trip from The Pas to Reindeer Lake last December. The plane used was equipped with skis and Buss told of the difficulties met in the take-offs after numerous landings to stake claims. Buss and two other companions of Stevenson would push the plane off to start and then jump aboard, because with a foot of snow over the ice of the numerous lakes in Northern Manitoba, the plane was hard to get under way.

Toronto Shares Weak In Light Trading

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—The whole market turned softer on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, and numerous losses, mostly slight, were shown in very light trading. International Nickel and Walkers, the leaders, were both weak. Nickel lost ¾ at 92¾, after touching 91¼, while Walkers lost 1¼ at 60½. Losses of one to two points were shown in Brompton at 63, Massey Harris at 40¾, Page Hersey at 87½, Seagram at 23¾, and Goodyear at 162. The oils were fratcionally lower, British American selling at 35½. Canadian Oil was the weakest of these with a three-point slump at 60. A firm spot was Kelvinator up 1¾ at 11.

Mining Market Firm But Quiet This Morning

Press). — Pend O'Reille and Sudbury Press)'. — Pend O'Reidle and Sudbury Basin were the bullish features on the Standard Mining Exchange. Sudbury soared to 16.50, a gain of 2.15 a share over yesterday's close. Pend O'Reille closed at noon at 16.00, representing an advance of 1.70 a share since yesterday. The market generally was firm, though a number of recessions were shown in the lighter trading. Hollinger and McIntyre held steadily at 17.25 and 27.00, but the third of the Porcupines, Dome, softened thirty cents at 12.50. The Kirkland Lake issues for the most part were unchanged.

Selling Of Corn Causes Recessions

CHICAGO, February 15 (Canadian Press).—Lively profit-taking on the part of recent buyers of corn did a good deal to make corn prices turn downward early to-day. Wheat also went lower, influenced by the fact that Liverpool quotations showed an unexpected decline, with prospects of large shipments from Argentine. Opening unchanged to 3-8 cent off, corn underwent a moderate set-back all around. Wheat started unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, and subsequently showed a general drop. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were: Wheat, March 130 5-8; May, 130¼. Corn, March 94; May, 97. Oats, March 55; May 55½.

Specialty Trading Features At New York

NEW YORK, February 15 (Canadian Press). — Trading in to-day's stock market was largely a specialty affair, with the standard industrials and rails moving within rather narrow and irregular limits. Pools succeeded in marking up about a dozen issues to new high records, and a few soft spots were uncovered by bear traders. Trading was in moderate volume, although a few large blocks of stocks changed hands in the early part of the session.

The renewal of call money at 4½ per cent. tended to check bullish operations, although there was little calling of bank loans. Trade developments were largely favorable, the chief item being reports of a further increase in steel mill operations and a stiffening price tendency in the iron and steel market.

TECK HUGHES.

(From a Northern Correspondent, Through Stobie, Furlong & Co.)

A personal visit finds the mill operating exceedingly well in all departments. The combined tonnage is now approximately 850 tons per day, for a production of around $400,000 per month.

Underground, development of the lower levels, together with the cutting out and equipment of ore passes, is continuing. On the 19th level decidedly high grade ore is being obtained. The width of one section of the ore zone here is averaging around 12 feet. Values are over $40.00 per ton, with some extremely high-grade spots being encountered that will run several hundred dollars per ton. This ore is on what appears now to be the south section of the ore zone. It is evident that there is a second ore section lying a short distance to the north. This is to be opened up immediately and will prove to be decidedly important. The occurrence of two sections of ore in the ore zone, which sections parallel each other on the lower levels, is, we think being overlooked. It means exceedingly high tonnage and economical mining, and it indicates that greater depths will yield more extensive ore deposition than that found so far in the upper levels.

We gave you the first intimation some time ago that Teck had important possibilities of locating ore in the north section of the property, on what is known as the North Break. This section is now being diamond drilled and has an excellent chance of yielding an entirely new and important ore source for the property. To show the importance of this drilling, and the possibilities of the north section, it is only necessary to point out the extensive work that is being carried on in the easterly section of the district in the hopes of picking up important ore. On the property of the Federal Kirkland, for example, lying north-east of Teck, shaft sinking is under way to a depth of 700 feet to explore this north break. Former drilling done by the Vindicator, which lies between the north section of Teck and the Federal, showed a strong break which carried significant gold values. As this break approaches Kirkland Lake waters it appears to be the most important in regard to gold content. This importance is due to the fact that the section on which Teck Hughes and Lake Shore are working shows greater movement and fracturing which allows for greater accessibility for the permeation by ore bearing solutions. In the east section of the district potential mines are being developed on breaks which do not at present appear to have the importance of the, as yet, unexplored north break on Teck Hughes, so that, in addition to the extensive known ore deposits in the southern part of Teck Hughes, they have also possibilities in the north of developing an entirely new mine.

F. G. Oke and Co., wire as follows:

TORONTO Feb. 15. — Features of this morning's market were Pend O'Reille and Sudbury Basin. Sudbury Basin opened at 14.70 this morning and advanced rapidly to 15.50 per share, while Pend O'Reille sold as high as 15.50 per share.

Apparently the reason for the demand for Sudbury Basin shares is the announcement that the assets of the company consisting of 900,000 shares of no par value of the capital stock of Sudbury Basin Mines Limited will be distributed to shareholders in a ration of three new shares for one old share. The original Sudbury Basin Mines was capitalized at 300,000 shares of $1 par value and thus with such a small capitalization the present price of the stock appears more justified. Later it was decided that a new company called Sudbury Basin Mines Limited, capitalized at 2,000,000 shares of no par value, should take over the assets and liabilities of the first company for the consideration of 900,000 shares of the stock.

These are the shares to be distributed three for one among the shareholders of the first Sudbury Basin mines, the stock of which is selling about 16.50 per share. It appears as though the public is of the opinion that on this split, shares of Sudbury Basin will have further appreciation in value, and hence the strong demand.

Among other reasons for the sharp advance in Pend O'Reille are reports that Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company have a major interest in this company, and the floating supply of the stock would therefore of a necessity be comparatively small. Consequently any demand for shares in this company could be expected to result in a quick tightening up of offerings.

The rest of the market looks quite promising and prices of market leaders appear quite firm. With only a few shares coming out, Area advanced two points this morning, which may possibly be an indication that some favorable news is available regarding the results of the deep diamond drill hole being put down on the Area property to try to locate extensions of Amulet's ore bodies.

DON'T USE EITHER SIDE OF ARMOUR'S HILL

Both East and West Side of the Hill Are Planted With Trees —Would Be Destroyed.

In an item in last evening's Examiner referring to the Memorial Park on Armour's Hill, it stated that skiers could use the east side of the hill. This was a mistake as last year the Woman's Patriotic League transplanted about 500 trees on the east side, and these would be utterly destroyed if the east side of the hill was used for skiing or tobogganing.

Mine Shares Recover From Recent Set-backs

Mining share prices have snapped back quickly and a substantial proportion of the recent heavy losses have been made up. Whether the market has touched bottom and the recent recovery is to hold, remains to be seen. It is generally believed that the period of switching, which helped to materially weaken the market in high priced issues, is over and also that the majority of weak margin accounts have been taken care of. This dries up two heavy sources of the recent selling. On the other hand there is ample evidence that there has been a considerable amount of good buying in the last seven days. This undoubtedly means that many believe that the market is at bottom and that it is now on its way back. A number of brokers are known to hold this view and have been passing on such advice to their clients.

However, the mines have not been providing any startling news. No camp seems to stand out at the moments, though there is a tremendous amount of interest in Northern Manitoba operations and if they continue to provide a sufficient amount of good news, it is certain that operations in this centre are going to remain in the forefront for a considerable time. The same may be said about British Columbia. It is believed that the boom in shares in B. C. Mines, which was so strong a couple of weeks ago, is again gaining strength. Profit taking, which was to be expected when so many issues piled up advances averaging close to $1 per share, halted the advance and there has been considerable good buying and a fair amount of good news coming out since.

Brokers in both Winnipeg and Vancouver are setting the stage for a continuance of the speculation in shares in their respective fields. Both centres have stock exchanges. In Vancouver the present exchange is securing larger quarters and plans to expand sufficiently to handle the large volume of business that has developed. Now there is talk of organizing a new exchange and a similar announcement comes from Winnipeg. The one exchange in Winnipeg, like that of Vancouver, has been handling all stocks, but in Winnipeg the bulk of the trading has been in industrials and other issues.

Quite a number of new issues have made their appearance of late and the latest, strange to say, comes from the extreme east end of the continent, Newfoundland. For some years Guggenheim interests of New York have been developing the Buchans property which was owned by the Anglo-Newfoundland Company, of London, England. The ore body opened was a huge shallow deposit, rich in base metals and with a fair precious metal content. Recently other interests have come to a realization of the possibilities that the field offered and quite a number of organizations have taken up holdings. Some well sponsored public offerings are about to be made. Newfoundland groups are all of tremendous acreage and the coming summer should see some interesting prospecting and geological work.

There is much talk going on in regard to the possibilities of the mining industry. Dr. Charles Camsell, deputy Minister of Mines, Ottawa, one of the closet students of mining in Canada, has just made a statement setting forth his views. They are important inasmuch as he sees a continued big development, and this means much to the business life of the country. The important part of this remarks may be summarized in in the following:

"Of great importance to the Dominion as a whole is the fact that mining is spreading over a vastly greater territory than formerly, and that nearly every province is now sharing strongly in mineral production, or in the earlier stages of new mining development. This expansion has probably been the most potent factor among those that have contributed in lifting the industry to its new level of importance, as it has demonstrated the wide extent of Canada's mineralized regions and has revised the whole estimate of the value of the country's northerly areas. Most significant, perhaps, of all, it has created throughout the Dominion an active, well-informed interest in mining, and has commanded for mining and metallurgical enterprise a breadth and strength of support quite beyond anything possible a few years ago.

"In addition to the extent of Canada's physical field for further mineral development, which in itself furnishes a reasonable basis for confidence in the growth of Canadian mining, there are a number of other factors that have a vital bearing upon the outlook. Great technical advances have been made in prospecting methods and in mining and metallurgical practice, and Canada is now better equipped in personnel for advancing in mining development. Railway companies, banks, and other business interests have become deeply impressed with the importance of mining and are giving it a measure of attention already great and likely to increase as development continues. It may, therefore, be said, that behind the Canadian mining industry a strength of support which leaves little likelihood that the industry will fail to advance through any lack of competent business or technical backing."

More Liquor Stores For Eastern Ontario

TORONTO, Feb. 15. Canadian Press. — More liquor stores and brewery warehouses will probably be opened by the Ontario Liquor Comm'ssion in Eastern Ontario, and especially on the Quebec border it is understood. Stewart McClenaghan, Ottawa, a member of the Liquor Control Board, finds that the law is being well observed in his section. The board by spring will open altogether a hundred more liquor stores in various parts of the province, according to the forecasts.

GENERAL CONTEST RULES

How to Enter

1. The contest is open to everyone except:
   (a) Employees of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd., or their immediate family.
   (b) Prize-winners in any similar contest who have won any of the major prizes.

2. Additional puzzle-charts may be obtained free by writing to the Contest Department or by calling at The Examiner Office.

3. Every figure in the puzzle is complete and entirely free from tricks or illusions. If any contestant is in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with the figures marked and the Contest Department will gladly give a ruling on the figure.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, fill in completely the solution blank, which must be accompanied by a remittance for at least a six months' subscription at the regular rates to The Evening Examiner. (See subscription rates.) See also the prize-list and note how the value of your prize is increased by paying for a year's subscription and by getting subscriptions from your friends. Renewal subscriptions, or subscriptions in arrears, if paid during contest period, count the same as new subscriptions and will be extended from the present expiry date, but not more than $15.00 will be received on any one solution or subscription.

5. In order that subscribers who pay carrier boys weekly may participate in this contest, books of tickets containing 22 weekly tickets for $3.00, or 44 for $6.00, will be sold. These remittances must be made direct to the Contest Department with your solution. Otherwise it cannot be registered. Each ticket is valued at 15c and will be redeemed from the carrier boy at that price.

6. Readers who give their subscription to some other contestant and later want to send in an answer themselves, may do so providing they fill in the coupon, giving the name of the person they paid their subscription to and the amount paid. No further payment is necessary.

7. The contest will close on March 15, 1928, but send in your solution as soon as possible as we are offering special prizes for the first correct solutions. (See full details under "Special Prizes.") There is nothing gained by holding back your answer once you have solved the puzzle, as a contestant may make several remittances on any answer sent in while the contest lasts up to a total amount of $15.00.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

9. Everyone has an equal chance. You can win the first prize and extra cash for only a six months' subscription, but note how the value of the first five prizes increases if you send in more money. Aim to win the maximum Grand Prize. The Evening Examiner is now recognized as the leading daily in Peterborough district and surrounding counties and no difficulty should be found in getting your friends or neighbors to subscribe for it.

10. Contestants who remit by mail or pay at the office should see that these remittances and answers are made on a proper contest coupon to ensure them reaching the Contest Department.

11. If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. In the event of a tie a second puzzle will be presented which will be as practicable and solvable as the first. Only those tieing will be permitted to solve the second puzzle. Should two or more persons be tied in the second puzzle the prizes will be divided equally among those tieing. No cash will be accepted on the second puzzle.

12. In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Contest Department reserve the right to alter and amend its rules if necessary for the protection of contestants or The Peterborough Examiner. It also reserves the right to refund any subscriptions and to disqualify any contestants whom they consider should not be in the contest. Contestants are assured of the same impartial treatment which characterizes The Examiner in all its dealings.

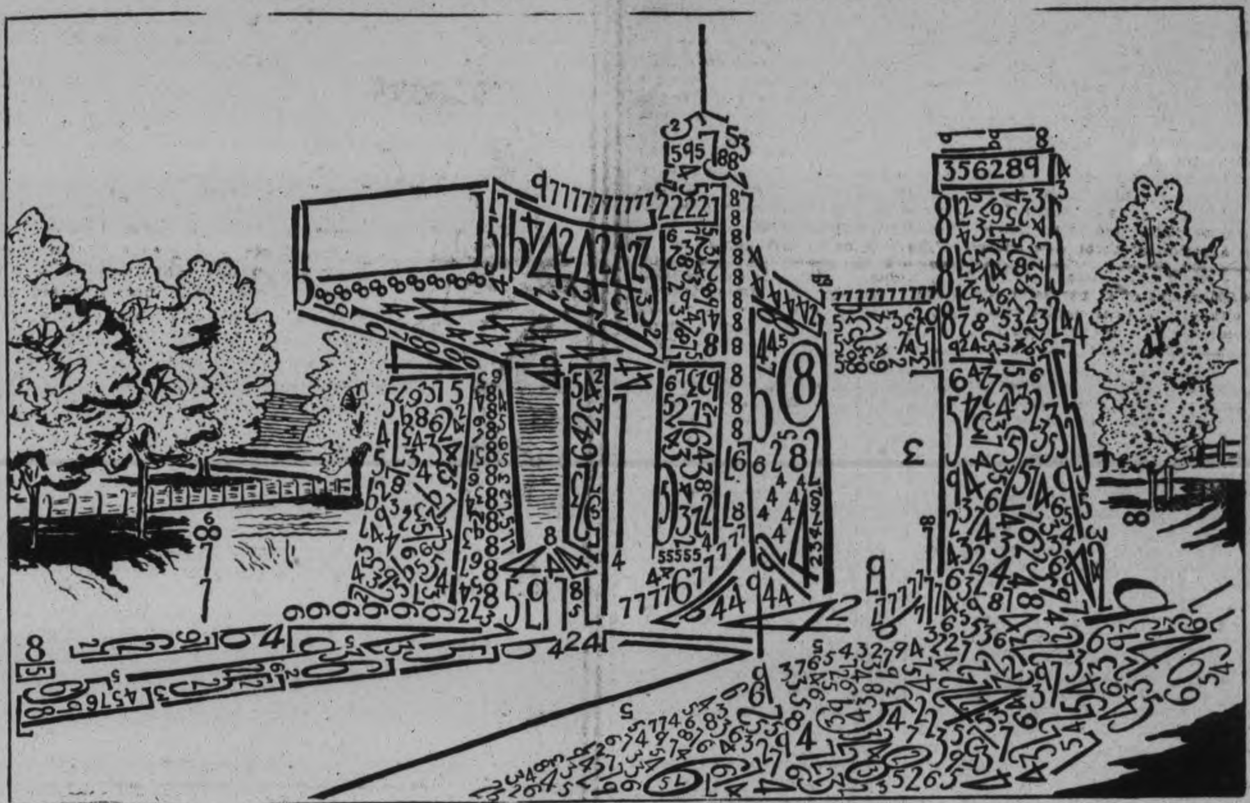
HOW MANY TONS DOES THE LIFT LOCK WEIGH?



THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

MISSING FOR WEEK.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, February 15 (Canadian Press). — Two youths, captured after an exchange of shots in the woods near here, were held today by the authorities, who believed they might be John Burns and Samuel Baxter, who disappeared while being taken to Pendleton, Ind., Reformatory. Burns and Baxter escaped from Deputy-Sheriffs John Grove and Wallace McClure on February 7, and neither of the two officers have been seen since. It is believed that the aged deputies, who were taking the boys to the reformatory to serve terms of five to twenty years for robbery, may have been slain.

COUNCIL APPROVES COMMUNITY SHED

Will Take No Further Steps, However, Until Jurisdiction Determined.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 15.—Millbrook Village Council, at a recent meeting, made the usual grant of $20 to the Agricultural Society, in response to the request of a deputation consisting of J. N. McGill, J. H. Paul and J. L. McCamus. At the same meeting the tax collector's roll was extended one month, there being still $237.51 in taxes outstanding from 1927, C. W. Richards reported.

T. H. Aiken and James L. McCamus addressed the Council regarding erection of a community shed, asking a grant and tax exemption. This proposal was favorably received by the members of the Council, who acknowledged its need, and consideration of the request was promised. W. E. Bell was given permission to erect a sign at his business premises, he assuming all responsibility.

A Toronto contractor will be communicated with if his services in connection with levels are required in connection with the paving program.

The following accounts were passed for payment: G. E. Burnham, $1.40; W. G. Russell and Sons, $15.75; S. Donnelly, $3; H. The audtors' report was received, and 100 copies will be printed.

Members of the St. George's Branch Entertain Old People There.

A pleasant evening was spent at the Protestant Home last night, when the members of St. George's A.Y.P.A., with the Rector and Mrs. Hughes, entertained the inmates with a program of varied items.

The hymn, "Sun of My Soul," was sung as an opening by the party, and was followed by vocal solos by Miss I. Parkes and Rev. J. L. Huges, a recitation by Mrs. Hughes, pianoforte solo by Miss K. Robertson, a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Hughes, and violin selections by Mr. A. Robertson and Mrs. Goodfellow.

Mr. S. Robertson caused much merriment in his rendition of two humorous songs, two verses in the first being of original composition, and very appropriate for the occasion. Choruses were also sung by the party.

At the request of some of the old people other items were given, these being another sacred duet by Rev. and Mrs. Hughes, the song "Sailing" by Rev. J. L. Hughes and some Scotch airs played on the violin by Mr. A. Robertson.

Cigars, cigarettes and chocolates were distributed to the old people during the evening, this adding to the enjoyment.

Miss Lancaster thanked Rev. J. L. Hughes and party for the pleasant evening and expressed a hope that a similar one may be spent before long. The hymn, "Now the Day Is Over," sung by the party, and the National Anthem brought a happy evening to a close.

SUPPORT IS GIVEN C. OF C. CAMPAIGN

Manager of De Laval Plant and Teco Store Write Encouragingly.

The attitude of the Teco Stores, Limited, toward The Forward Peterborough Movement of the Chamber of Commerce was clearly expressed this morning in a letter received by Secretary Stinson, extracts from which are quoted below.

"I have much pleasure in enclosing my personal fee and would be pleased to be accepted a member of your organization.

"I am forwarding your letter to the executive office and will endeavor to bring pressure to bear to have our organization link up with the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce in a manner that I am sure will assist in developing a bigger city.

"Very truly yours,

"W. T. BUTCHER, Manager."

Before leaving the city for the south yesterday, W. R. Breyfogle, manager of The De Laval Company, called up President Gillespie and expressed his regrets that for business and health reasons he must be out of the city for a short time. In closing, he said: "You know how I feel about this matter and you can count on The De Laval Company to do its full share in supporting the organization. We are greatly interested. It means much, not only to our business but to the city and community."

THAW CAUSES TROUBLE.

PARIS, February 15 (Canadian Press). — The Seine was washing over the wharves of Paris to-day and rising to a threatening height. This is a day set apart as a world's day of prayer for missionary work and the program suggested by the general committee will be followed as closely as possible. It is hoped that all women of the community will make a special effort and attend.

JURY INSPECTS HOLLINGER PIT

Will Then Be Dismissed, Awaiting Preparation of Plans of Mine.

MINE STILL CLOSED.

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—The jury empanelled to enquire into the deaths of thirty-nine miners of the Hollinger Company will descend the mine today on a tour of inspection. Following this, the jurors will be dismissed to reassemble some time next week, when the probe may get down to business in real earnest. The cause of the long adjournment is due to plans and charts of the mine required for study by the jury not yet being ready.

There are no developments in the situation today. The funerals of victims are proceeding and the last of them will probably be interred today.

What action, if any, the Government may take on the resolution passed last night by a mass meeting of miners here, which demanded representation on the commission of investigation for the One Big Union, the I.W.W., and the Mine Workers' Union, is not known. The meeting was characterized by some bitter speaking in various languages.

Men Get Full Pay

The Hollinger Mine will resume operations tomorrow morning, and the men will be paid in full for lost time. Notice to this effect, signed by A. F. Brigham, general manager, and authorized by Noah A. Timmins, president of the company, was issued this afternoon.

GROUP ONE GIVES AUXILIARY PROGRAM

St. James' Church Mission Workers Hold Regular Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of St. James' Auxiliary was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlor, with a large representation of the members present. The president, Mrs. E. L. Woodley, presided and the meeting opened with singing and prayer.

The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted and the details of business were then dealt with and reports heard. The Strangers' Secretary, Visiting and Flower Committee, Mrs. H. Davidson, convenor, reported fourteen calls, five sick visits and flowers sent to two W.M.S. members, Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Rowe.

Group No. 1, with Mrs. T. E. Curvin leader, then took charge and presented the following splendid program: A season of sentence prayers, one for each mission field, was led by Mrs. Buckler, Mrs. Dudgeon, Mrs. Kidd, Mrs. Woodley, and Mrs. Curvin.

The Bible lesson was chosen from St. Matthew's Gospel, V., 14-48, read by Mrs. Bannon, was in keeping with the theme of prayer, "Send out the light."

A beautiful duet, "Sweetly as the Years Go By," was sung by Mrs. Curvin and Mrs. Bonney.

The Heralds reporting from the Watch Tower were: For China, Mrs. Bromwell; India, Mrs. H. Fry; Trinidad, Mrs. Wagar and Mrs. Young; Ruthenians, Mrs. Plunkett.

A very interesting feature of the program was the questionaire on the Blue Book, dealing with different departments of W.M.S. work, taken by the following ladies. Organization, Mrs. Armstrong; Finance, Mrs. Plunkett; Periodicals, Mrs. Rose; Supply, Mrs. Woodley for Mrs. Payne; Literature, Mrs. Buckler; Candidate, Mrs. Elliott. A vast amount of information was gleaned from the responses to this questionaire.

The study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes," was in charge of Mrs. H. A. Bonney, who presented, in a very capable manner, the industrial problems of the East, comparing conditions there with those existing in Canada and the United States.

A devotional leaflet entitled "Sharing the unsearchable riches," was given by Mrs. McAdam. The meeting closed with the Benediction.

FIREMEN GET CHECK.

Lock Company Directors Contribute $50 To Pension Fund.

Fire Chief Gimblett this morning made appreciative reference to a letter received by him from F. H. Jobbitt, secretary of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, Limited. Acting on instruction from the board of directors of that firm, Mr. Jobbitt had enclosed a cheque for the sum of $50.00 to be placed to the credit of the Firemen's Pension Fund or Relief Fund.

This is in appreciation of the splendid efforts put forth by the Chief and his men during the fire which destroyed a portion of the company plant on Sunday, January 29, 1928.

$100,000 LOSS IN TORONTO FIRE

Seventeen Clothing Firms Lose Heavily Through Water Damage.

200 OUT OF WORK.

TORONTO, February 15 (Canadian Press). — Damage of more than one hundred thousand dollars was caused when a fire broke out on the seventh floor of the Reading Building, Spadina Avenue, to-day, and was not brought under control until the premises and stocks of seventeen firms mostly clothing and cloak manufacturers, had been damaged. Most of the damage was caused by water from the sprinkler system and fire hose. The damage by fire was comparatively small. Delicate silks and materials were ruined by water, and the loss was large because the firms had large stocks on hand at this season. Two hundred employees of the different firms will be temporarily out of work. No one was injured.

MISSION CIRCLE HEARS REPORT

Study Book Also Taken Up By St. James' Church Branch.

The February meeting of the X.L. Mission Circle was held at the home of Mrs. D'Arcy Foster, 577 Patterson Street, on Monday evening, with a large number of girls present.

An interesting program was prepared and the report of the delegates, Misses Marjorie Dudgeon and Aileen Rose, of the annual meeting of the Lindsay Presbyterial of the W.M.S., held in St. Andrew's Church on January 18 and 19, was presented in a very interesting manner by Miss Aileen Rose.

The chapter of the study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes," was given by Miss Mabel Dulmage, and was a comprehensive and instructive study of the industrial conditions in other lands.

A social half-hour and dainty refreshments, in keeping with St. Valentine, were in charge of the hostesses, Mrs. D'Arcy Foster and Miss Mabel Dulmage.

EXTRACTS FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

Substantial advances have been made in all departments during the year. . . .

The total net income for the year exceeded one hundred million dollars . . .

The strength and resources of the Company have been further enhanced . . .

The high earning power of the Company's investments has been again demonstrated. The net rate of interest earned on the mean invested assets, after fully providing for investment expenses, was 6.47 per cent. This gratifying result has been made possible by dividend increases, bonuses and stock privileges accruing on many of the Company's holdings.

The wisdom of the investment policy which has been consistently followed in past years, in favouring long term bonds and the stocks of outstanding and very carefully selected corporations, has been once more emphasized. The appraisal of our securities shows that the excess of market values over cost increased during the year by $19,235,889.99. In addition, a net profit of $5,028,033.20 accrued from the redemption or sale of securities which had risen to high premiums.

The quality of the investments listed in the assets is testified by the fact that on both bonds and preferred stocks not one dollar, due either as interest or dividend, is in arrear for even one day, while the dividends accruing to common stocks are greatly in excess of the dividends payable on the same stocks at the time of purchase.

The surplus earned during the year amounted to $38,511,029.67 from which the following appropriations have been made:

$5,000,000 has been deducted from the market value of our securities as a further provision against possible future fluctuations, increasing the amount so set aside to $10,000,000.

$1,500,000 has been added to the account to provide for unforeseen contingencies, which now stands at $12,500,000.

$1,000,000 has been written off the Company's Head Office building and other properties.

$500,000 has been set aside to provide for the greater longevity of annuitants, bringing the total provision under this heading to $2,000,000.

$50,000 has been set aside to provide for claims in respect of total disability as yet unreported.

$11,090,056.61 has been paid or allotted as profits to policyholders during the year. In addition, $6,205,573.00 has been contingently allotted to deferred dividend policies issued prior to 1911, and to five year distribution policies, to provide for profits accrued but not yet payable.

After making these deductions and allocations, $11,269,330.89 has been added to the undivided surplus, bringing the total over all liabilities, contingency account and capital stock to $45,280,896.14.

Your Directors are gratified to announce, for the eighth successive year, a substantial increase in the scale of profits to be distributed to participating policyholders during the ensuing year.

BIG CARNIVAL AT LAKEFIELD

"Jim Hooper and Barney Quinn" Seem Popular Couple.

MANY IN COSTUME.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 15.—The annual fancy dress skating carnival was held in Lakefield Rink on Friday night, with a crowd in attendance and ideal weather conditions. The crowd of spectators was very good considering the record attendance at the entire series of O.H.A. games. The number in costume was considerably larger than last year with a good proportion of outstanding costumes. It was a gala night with a large assortment of pierrettes and pierrots, gypsies, Indians, tramps and niggers to be seen. The fact that China is in the eyes of the world at present accounted for the proportion of Chinese costumes. Local events were reflected in the fact that two couples of hockey players appeared labelled "Barney Quinn' and "Jim Hooper"; such is fame. The first to appear were pocket editions of these famous Havelock gentlemen, the second couple were larger and more complete in the details of these costumes. Probably the most original costume was the representation of the fire cracker with the fuse coming out of the top with a tiny electric light attached which flashed on and off. The Chinese lady in correct Chinese attire and wearing a genuine Chinese coat had an outstanding costume.

A dainty demure Bo-Peep complete even to the crook with which to gather in the wandering flock was one of the daintiest costumes on the ice. "Peter Pan" was an attractive representation and well represented. A negro mammy who, when asked her name, responded "Aunt Jemima," was among the notable ladies' and girls' costumes.

Mr. Yale was outstanding in the men's class as a nigger minstrel with a banjo slung over his shoulder and wearing a stove-pipe hat. A most patriotic representation was that of the man who, clad in draperies with the Union Jack prominently displayed, carried a shield bearing in large letters, "Buy British Empire Goods," this was a costume with a mission which it announced in plain terms and which one hopes with bear abundant fruit. A Hebrew gentleman in a butter-nut outfit accupied a class by himself. A representation of an icicle was exceedingly clever and very pretty and attracted a great deal of attention, an exceedingly lively baby who carried his refreshment in the conventional bottle, a natty little Mexican, a dignified Indian, who answered to the roll call as "Natawa" and a diminutive edition of "Jeff" were among the most notable male characters.

The judges were: Miss M. Hampton and Messrs. J. W. Ridpath, P. Spence, A. B. Burns and J. H. Charlton. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Lady's Fancy Costume—Miss Mary Mackenzie as Peter Pan.

Girls' Fancy Costume (16 years and under).—Miss Annie Crawford as a Peacock.

Boys' Fancy Costume (16 years and under).—Gray Kemp as an Icicle.

Gentlemen's Fancy Costume.—Mr. W. W. Yale as a Nigger Minstrel.

Girl's Comic Costume.—Miss Lillian Mason as "Aunt Jemima."

Ladies' Comic Costume.—Mrs. Gillman as a Fire Cracker.

Boy's Comic Costume — Ralph Mason as Jeff.

Gentlemen's Comic Costume—Mr. William Hendren as a Jew.

Best Boy or Girl (10 and under) in Comic Costume—Gerald Dunford as a Baby.

The following is a list of those in costume: Mrs. W. H. Stabler, Gipsy; Mrs. Yale, Chinese Lady; Mrs. M. Dever, Skating Girl; Mrs. Alan Hunter, Winter Girl; Mrs. Gillman, Fire Cracker; Mrs. Louis Sabatino, Jim Hooper; Mrs. William Millage, Barney Quinn; The Misses Mae Dever, Indian Maid; Mary Webdale, Crazy Patchwork; Eva Hendren, Ballet; Ina Pearson, Gypsy; Annie Crawford, Peacock; Ethyldra Hunter, Japanese; Dorothy Sutton, Indian Maiden; Bernice Abrams, Pierrot; Phyllis Lake, Pierrot; Jean Blewett, Little Bo Peep; Colleen Junkin, Gypsy; Phyllis Charlton, Milkmaid; Madeline Junkin, Bat; Janet Charlton, Jack Tar; Gladys Blewett, "Bill from the Country"; Ethel Lake, Pierrot; Mae Mahood, Naval Officer; Mary Davis, Sailor Boy; Eileen Brown, Pierrot; Mary Dever, Marigold; Eva Huggins, Jack Frost; Lula Smith, Gypsy; Helen Porter, Miss Hallowe'en; Viola Murphy, Red, White and Blue; Mila Bogue, An Old Timer; Mary Mackenzie, Old Fashioned Woman; Lileon Stuart, Page; Little Mason, Aunt Jemima. CAMPBELLFORD BEATS TRENTON IN EXHIBITION

Home Team Comes From Behind To Win Out 7 to 6.

HAD BEEN FOUR DOWN.

Double Forward Line System of Visitors Keeps Them in the Race.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 15. — The smallest crowd yet to witness a game in the new Arena turned out to see the exhibition game with Trenton last night, which the homesters won, 7-6. The weather was very unfavorable for the national winter sport, and the fans were greatly surprised to see that the ice was in good condition. Toward the end of the game, water began to form on the north side, but as a whole the ice was in good condition, and fairly hard. The pouring rain did not act as an added inducement to the fans either. The Trenton team and their supporters made the trip by motor bus, and reported the roads in a very dangerous and generally bad condition.

From the outset, it looked like a hopeless struggle, and the local officials were far from certain of victory. The visitors skated rings round the local players, and at one time had a four-goal lead. In fact, this was the case at the end of the second period, and there didn't seem to be a ghost of a chance. Then the orange and black came charging up from behind and won out on the long end of the seven to six score. On the whole, Campbellford had the largest number of shots on the goal. Bowen for Trenton was called on to do his stuff fifty-nine times, and he did it fifty-two. Fox for Campbellford only had thirty-three attempts made on his net, and he saved twenty-seven. In the last period the puck struck him about two inches below the left eye, and for two minutes the game was suspended while ne was brought around. Both goal tenders added laurels to their crowns during the game.

Of the six goals scored for Trenton two go to G. Bowen, two to Fillion, one to Johnston, and the other to Weiss. The Campbellford honors in that line are awarded to Cowell, Horkins, and Ingram, with the count set at four, two and one respectively. Although Cowell gets the largest count, Ingram was the man who scored the first goal for the local team.

Roy Heeney, Trenton, refereed the game and saw more than any referee who has appeared on the local ice this season. Few kicks, offsides, trips or other offences, if any, escaped his notice. Nor was he inclined to appear overbearingly officious. He simply made his decisions without the slightest change of expression, or uttering a word. There remains no doubt in the minds of the majority of fans but that Heeney understands his business thoroughly.

First Period.

In the first period, Trenton had a decided edge on the play. They took to the ice like ducks to water and skated like flashes of lightning. If it were possible to magnetise rubber, it would probably have been said that they had the puck charged. Somehow in the trend of events, McArthur, Campbellford, tripped one of the visitors and got sent off for a rest. Johnston, Trenton, drew first blood when he scored on a rebound from Bowen. Trenton sent out their three subs, Fillian, Weiss and Blakely, to relieve the forward line, Johnston, Bowen and Allore. This was the method of subbing followed by the visitors during the entire game. Horkins drew three minutes in the penalty box for slugging and a few minutes later, Anderson, Trenton, was found guilty of the same offence and penalized. Fillian scored for Trenton on a close-in shot and Campbellford still remained with the original duck egg. Trenton exchanged their forward line and a moment later Ingram went down all alone and sneaked one into the Trenton net from close range. The next item of interest was Horkins' second penalty for slugging. Shortly after the time gong sounded, leaving the score 2-1 in the visitors' favour.

Second Period.

In the second session, Campbellford counted twenty-nine shots on the Trenton goal without managing to fool Bowen. The Trenton players only got eleven tries at Fox and three of them went past. Bowen (Goerge) scored the first goal of the period about three minutes after it began. Trenton once more exchanged the forward line and five minutes later Norman Weiss scored another goal for the visitors on a pass from Blakely. This was a signal for another change of the Trenton front line men. Blue and Johnston went out to relieve Cowell and Horkins for Campbellford. Fox, the Campbellford goal tender, was struck with the puck, about two inches below the left eye. First aid came at once from members of both teams, and though only two minutes were lost, it seemed for a moment that he might not be able to continue the game. Trenton exchanged their three forward men again. Fillion scored the next goal on a pass from Blakely. The score was five to one for the visitors and the period ended without any change in the count. It was a matter of note that though there were numerous hesitations for kicking the puck, there were remarkably few offsides during the period.

Third Period

The final spasm was well worth the price of admission for any Campbellford enthusiast. Miles behind in the score, the chance of victory seemed nil. The small crowd of supporters moved silently about from one place to another during the intermission, murmuring in undertones which could only mean one thing, that the chances were "all shot."

But the sun seemed to pierce the clouds when the Campbellford players took the ice and also seemed to get the bit in their teeth. This was the best hockey of the game and most of it was played well away from the goals. There were an even fifteen shots on the Trenton goal and nine on the local net. Horkins was the man who broke the ice and let the home team get into the swim. On a lone rush he managed to fool the Trenton goalie and reduced the visitors' lead to three goals instead of four. Cowell followed suit shortly after when he scored on a pass from McArthur. With the score 5-3 and the local team playing like finished professionals, the home supporters began to sit up and take notice. Then Ibey took a shot, but it was blocked and Cowell scored on the rebound. Things began to look interesting and Trenton changed their forward line again for the three fresh men on the sub. bench. Johnson and Blue subbed Horkins and Cowell for the local team. Shoniker drew a penalty for a trip and a moment later Horkins secured the fifth goal for Campbellford on a pass from Blue, and the crowd went wild. Eight minutes before, at the beginning of the period, such a thing had seemed impossible. Trenton changed their forward line as before, and Cowell and Ibey went out to relieve Blue and Johnston. Shoniker and Horkins disagreed about some little thing, and Shoniker drew the penalty.

Eight minutes to go, and Cowell scored the sixth and leading goal for Campbellford on a pass from Horkins. A moment later Cowell was sent off for tripping. G. Bowen evened the score at six all with only five minutes to go. Campbellford was playing with one man on the bench and when Horkins got the puck following the face-off, he shot it into the crowd. Cowell was back on before the play was really started again and a moment later Shoniker did something or other which displeased the referee, and he was sent off. Six men on both sides again and the game going a "mile a minute." With the fans shouting advice from all quarters and for both sides, there came an attack on the Trenton goal. The mob scene formed off to one side of the net and the goalie was included in the personnel. Cowell stook back and waited till the puck appeared and then slammed it into the vacant net for the winning goal.

It certainly was a piece of brain work, and should be recognized as such. Neither team scored again, and it is almost certain that there would have been overtime or a tied score, and perhaps both, had not Cowell used his head to such excellent advantage. As Horkins was skating back to his own territory, and with his back turned to the play, the puck was shot at the Campbellford net and was intercepted by the calf of Horkins' leg. He had to be relieved for the remainder of the game. With barely one minute to go, Trenton made a last attempt to change the color of things by changing their forward line again. Ibey got a rest for bodying a Trenton player into the boards, and the game ended with the score six to seven in favor of the home team.

On account of the heavy schedule billed for the Trenton Arena, the date for the return game has not yet been set, but it is understood that it will not be during the next ten days. The Campbellford team is scheduled to meet Tweed in Tweed in the re-play of the original game there in the Trent Valley League, and there is still a game with Madoc to be played in the same league. There may be some difficulties in arranging a date suitable to both teams. On acount of the condition of the roads, the Trenton team was late in arriving at the rink, and Riendeau's power speaker installed above the upper dressing rooms, did splendid service in filling the gap, just as, later, the team came through for a garrison finish that could hardly be believed possible unless actually witnessed.

The teams:

N. Johnston	Centre.	Cowell

in the hall who said they understood the language used.

Letiller declared the Hollinger had "murdered" his fellow-workers, and he urged that they stand as one in their demand to prevent further "murder by the master class for profit." The speaker considered that the mine inspector in this great gold district knew that inflammable material and old rejects of the mine had been thrown into the stopes and that there was bound to be an explosion later. Lives had been sacrificed for greed of gold in his opinion and in order that dividends could be paid "to the shareholders of Wall Street." It was up to the Provincial authorities to see "that the stuff was taken out of the mine."

Lester maintained that high officials of the company were passing the buck as regards responsibility and disclaiming knowledge of the material in the stopes, although he said this was known the world over by the relatives and friends of the miners. The mining inspector knew of the practice, he declared, and either warned the officials or shirked his duty, "and the miners were crucified between the two of them."

EARL OF OXFORD

help to him in the early days of his career, but caused him much embarrassment in later years by her frank revelations and candid expressions of opinions in several books she had published.

In 1906, when Sir Henry Campbell - Bannerman became Prime Minister. Mr. Asquith was appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer and while holding that office was responsible for the Old Age Pensions Act. Sixteen months later, on the death of his leader, he became Prime Minister.

At the general election in 1910, his position as Prime Minister was confirmed, but during the ensuing Parliamentary sessions he put off questioners as to the policy of the Ministry by the answer, "Wait and see," a phrase which during the years of the war was frequently referred to by his critics as describing what they called the procrastinating attitude of the Prime Minister and his Government.

Struggle on Home Rule.

In 1912, 1913 and the early part of 1914, he fought vigorously for the passage of the Irish Home Rule Bill and the Welsh Disestablishment Bill, and when General Seely, the War Minister, resigned in 1913, when the differences between the south of Ireland and Ulster became particularly acute, the Prime Minister took over the portfolio of Minister of War himself.

The Irish question was relegated to the background in August, 1914, when the Great War broke out. In response to a public demand he prevailed on Earl Kitchener to become Secretary of War, and for a time, though the conduct of the war remained ultimately in the hands of the Cabinet, the day-to-day direction was carried on by Mr. Asquith, Earl Kitchener, and Winston Churchill.

Famous Guildhall Speech.

At the Guildhall, on the Lord Mayor's Day, he made his famous speech in which he said "that the war would be a long-drawn-out struggle, but that Britain would not sheathe the sword until Belgium had recovered all that she had sacrificed, until France was adequately secured against the menace of aggression, until the rights of smaller nationalities were placed on an unassailable foundation, and until the military domination of Germany was fully and finally destroyed."

Many troublesome questions embarrassed Mr. Asquith and his Government. There was the anxious problem of the Dardanelles fiasco, the question of conscription, so hateful to the Liberal party, the liquor traffic and industrial disputes.

The fight waged against the House of Lords and his conduct of the Irish Home Rule Bill in themselves were sufficient to tire him out.

Shell Scandal of 1915.

At any rate, the high point of leadership which he attained during the first few months of the war waned and fell low when the shell scandal burst in 1915, and the Coalition Government received favor with the country. Asquith remained at the head of affairs, but the confidence of the country in him apparently dwindled as the star of Lloyd George arose. In December, 1916, there came a distinct break in the relationships between the two men, with Lloyd George hurling accusations at his late leader Asquith resigned and Lloyd George succeeded him

The victory elections which followed after the Armistice carried Lloyd George back into power, while it left Asquith without even a seat in the House

In the by-elections in 1920 Asquith came triumphantly through with a large majority over the Labor and Coalition candidates. It was stated that his election was one of the greatest blows that the Coalition government had suffered. At this time it was rumored that there was a possibility of Asquith and George coming together.

Howeevr they never did in a real manner. After the fall of Lloyd George there were further public bickerings and public exchange of letters. But eventually Asquith in Oct. 1926 retired from the leadership. He then had been transferred to the House of Lords.

Mr. Asquith was elevated to the Peerage in 1925 when he took the title Lord Oxford and Asquith. In the same year he became a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He was Liberal member of the House of Commons for East Fife, Scotland, from 1886 to 1918 and member for Paisley, Scotland from 1920 to 1924 .

Received Borden.

Lord Oxford's personal connection with Canada was only indirect, but in 1912, as Premier, he received Sir Robert Borden, then premier of the Dominion, and practically the whole of Sir Robert's cabinet. On that occasion the question of naval contribution was discussed, the outcome being a proposal by Sir Robert that Canada should contribute $35,000,000 for the construction and equipment of three first classbattleships, to be under the control of the British Admiralty, as part of the Royal Navy, subject to their being at the disposal of the Dominion government if ever a separate Canadian Navy were established.

This proposal, in the form of a bill was afterwards carried in the House of Commons at Ottawa, but was killed in the Senate.

Again in 1915 Sir Robert Borden visited England. The shadows of the war were deep over Europe then, and a few days after his arrival in London, Mr. Asquith extended on invitation to the Canadian Premier to attend a meeting of the British Cabinet. This was the first time on record for an overseas Minister of the Crown to receive such a summons, but as the war progressed Premiers of other Dominions were also invited to attend Cabinet meeting here.

Annuity Planned.

With reference to the fund raised by friends of Lord Oxford last July in recognition of his long services to the country, it was intended to provide an annuity of £2500 for him and also a cash gift of £20,000.

Lord Oxford acted as arbitrator between the British and Canadian Governments in the difficult matter of the payment to Canada of an amount totalling more than $100,000,000 for various war services, the British government maintaining that the whole liability should be recognized as pounds sterling.

The disputation between the Treasuries of the two countries lasted four years, then Lord Oxford was called in.

Possibly his award was like most awards, in that it failed to please both parties, nevertheless both entirely accepted his decision without the slightest reserve.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother who died Feb. 1, 1927.

Yes, dear mother, how we miss you,
But you are gone to happy rest,
Where the angels throng around you,
And they will crown you with the blest.

You have gone to be with loved ones,
Who have gone on long before;
They are waiting, watching for you
Over on that golden shore.

Though your place on earth is vacant
And you will come to us no more,
Yet we hope again to meet you
When our time on earth is o'er.

And in that land of song and beauty
Parting hands are clasped no more;
When we meet again, dear mother,
'Twill be where parting all is o'er.

All your days of pain and sorrow,
All your weary nights are past;
All earth's toils for you are ended,
You are safe in heaven at last.

Perrin spoke on the second chapter of the study book, dealing with industrial life in China. She told of children who serve long hours in factories, and of mothers who must take very young children with them to their day's work. All are paid a mere pittance, she said, and consequently the living conditions of the poorer classes are on a very low plane.

Lunch was served by the committee, Mrs. Byers, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. White, and Mrs. J. G. Matchett, the hostess. Group A will arrange the March meeting and lunch.

"Pot-luck" linners will be given by Mrs. C. Carr and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy. Mrs. Carr will be assisted by Mrs. A. Byers, Mrs. W. Widdess, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Mrs. Pethrick, Mrs. H. Tinney, Mrs. A. School nurse says all girls should know this TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Not Like Medicine

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine. Perfected by the famous Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle.

A very successful and jolly Valentine party was held at the Downyflake last night, when members of the Kiwanis Club were entertained by their ladies. The event was planned in the nature of a surprise with the ladies appearing in fancy dress, but several of the men stole a march on the hostesses and appeared in costume also, the various outfits, with the wide range of inventive genius and artistic taste displayed in their make-up, making the evening a hilarious and colorful event. Cards and dancing, with plenty of fun, and the service of refreshments, made up the program.

The guests were received by President John and Mrs. John, the latter wearing a very effective Queen of Hearts costume. The hall was decorated with red and white streamers and Valentine novelties in red. Music for dancing was played by Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mrs. C. Lapp and Mr. Carl McLean. The costume Valentine dance and card party held at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening, under the auspices of the choir of St. Peter's Cathedral, was a very successful affair, and the attendance, considering the inclement weather, was very satisfactory. Arrangements were in the hands of a capable committee headed by Miss Hurley, organist and choir leader. Miss Annie Simons acted as treasurer, assisted by Miss Florence Murray, and Miss Marita Collins and Miss Loretto Murray distributed the favors for the novelty dances which formed a portion of the programme. Miss Katie Masterson had charge of the card room, where eleven tables of cards were played and prizes were won at the bridge tables by Miss Teresa McNamara and Mr. Douglas McDonald, and at euchre by Mrs. L. Riley and Mr. H. Legrow. Decorations were carried out very attractively with Valentine hearts and novelties and excellent music for dancing was supplied by Ferdie Mowry's four-piece orchestra. About one hundred and twenty-five people were present for the dance. Judges for the costumes were Mrs. E. J. McCarthy, Miss K. McAuley, Mr. V. J. McElderry and Mr. T. McGovern. Prizes were won by Miss Claire MacPherson, as a Turkish lady, Miss Rose Noonan as a Rose, Miss Blanche Crough as a Pierrette, Mr. Wm. P. MacPherson in Highland costume, Mr. Joseph Sharpe as a courtier, and Mr. W. LeBarr as "Bill from Belleville." Among those donating prizes for the costumes were Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, Miss Mary O'Keefe, Miss Mamie McCarthy, Mr. Neil Tobin, Mr. J. Maher, Mr. P. J. Kenny, Mr. T. H. Hooper, Mr. V. J. McElderry, and Messrs. Riley and Hickey. Members of the choir assisted in looking after the guests and in serving refreshments, and Mrs. T. J. Lane also kindly assisted with the service of refreshments.

SUCCESS AND EARLY DEATHS

It might be well for all of us to occasionally make a check up of our habits of living. An analysis of these habits may startle us!

We can perhaps classify our habits into those which are GOOD, those NOT SO GOOD, and those NOT GOOD; or, as some would have it, GOOD, TOLERABLE and BAD. We will be surprised to find how many of our daily practices actually belong in the "bad" class.

All habits, whether good or bad, rapidly gain in strength when often repeated. Habits which are at first as easily broken as a spider's web will, if persisted in, finally bind us as with chains of steel. It may seem more difficult to cultivate good habits, but when they are once developed they are just as hard to change and really as difficult to break as bad habits.

Good or bad habits of eating are usually developed haphazardly, and we too easily get into the rut of eating what we are used to, or what the chef finds profitable to serve.

Do not suffer from the delusion that a thing is good because you have practiced it from your youth; others have tasted death too quickly because of the same misapprehension. NOW is a NEW time—with new possibilities and new problems which must be met in a new way!

A haphazard diet might have seemed sufficient for your grandparents, but you are living in a new time—a scientific age—when your diet must be as scientific as the new evolutions in commerce and invention.

If you would show the PEP and EFFICIENCY necessary to excel today you must not burden yourself with excesses of food, or with the use of any kind of food unsuited to man's present evolutionary development. If you use an over-abundance of even the best kind of food, you will be speedily out-distanced by the one living on a more frugal diet.

Successful men are often sluggish with disease caused by indiscretions in eating and drinking, but you will always find that their success came before the chains of bad habits bound them down to gluttony. Physical and financial ruin is waiting just around the corner for them unless they right-about-face and live in the same abstemious manner in which they lived while gaining success.

As I think back over the past year of 1927 I recall the deaths of more than a dozen of my social friends. These men had at least a degree of success in the business or professional world and yet, at between forty-five to fifty-five years of age—at the height of their maturity—they reaped early deaths from what they had sown in bad habits, such as indiscretions in eating, and lack of physical exercise. The lessons of their lives should mean something to us.

It is ridiculous for any of us to consider ourselves wholly successful if we have not succeeded in mastering ourselves!

It is up to us, as captains of our ships, to so steer our course that we may come to the port of a successful and, at the same time, a healthy maturity.

Questions and Answers.

Question: B.N.A. asks: "Will you kindly answer through the Question and Answer column the best course to follow for a tubercular hip?"

Answer: The treatment for a tubercular hip would depend upon the exact condition of the tubercular change which has taken place. A diet treatment is always essential to a cure, through sometimes various physiotherapy treatments will prove effective in bringing about a cure. Complete rest is cometimes necessary, but only in advanced cases.

Question: Mrs. K. W. asks: "Will you please state how to cook coddled eggs and French Omelette?"

Answer: CODDLED EGGS: To each two whole eggs pour over one quart of boiling water and allow to stand from 5 to 10 minutes. There should be no fire underneath the pan, and when the eggs are broken open they should have a jelly-like consistency but should, at the same time, be so well cooked from standing in the hot water that there is no transparent albumen. Eggs cooked in this manner have an entirely different flavor from soft boiled eggs.

FRENCH OMELETTE: To two ounces of milk add one egg. Put into a dry frying pan over a slow fire and beat the milk and egg together. Stir and beat constantly so that it doesn't stick to the pan, and continue this until the mixture assumes a jelly-like consistency. Do not fail to keep on stirring the mixture even after it has been taken from the fire, as the frying pan will retain a good deal of heat which will continue to cook the egg. Serve in sauce dishes or egg cups. You will find that one egg prepared with two ounces of milk in this way will serve one person, and exactly fill the large end of an egg cup.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1928.

Kindly stars dominate today, according to astrology, which reads in the skies promise of many benefits to the inhabitants of the Earth.

It is a day most encouraging to those of constructive ideas and presages success in building operations of every sort.

The seers foretell for 1928 the erection of tremendous hotels and apartment houses that will necessitate new schemes for interior transportation since halls are to be as long as streets.

Under ground cars will become common inside buildings and will be horizontal lifts as necessary as the vertical lifts called elevators, astrologers foretell.

Surgeons and dentists now come under a sway making for increase of work and access of knowledge.

This is read as a favorable rule for beginning journeys and they who sail under this day's aspects should be assured of pleasant voyaging.

The configuration presages excitement over new discoveries of oil and many discussions of fuel problems.

This is an auspicious day for all who exercise authority, whether it be in business or government affairs.

Governors, mayors and other officials are supposed to be well directed at this time which is supposed to encourage many reforms.

For months astrologers have prognosticated surprises in federal matters, especially where the choice of a President is concerned.

The stars are read as indicating increased agitation regarding religious affiliations and much secret propaganda that will affect candidates of all parties.

The aspects appear to forecast much wrong-thinking, envy and jealousy where public remarks of any sort are concerned.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect a year of prosperity in which unexpected good luck will be experienced.

Children born on this day probably will be ingenious and remarkably original. The subjects of this sign are likely to have a penchant for travel.

Hints on Etiquette

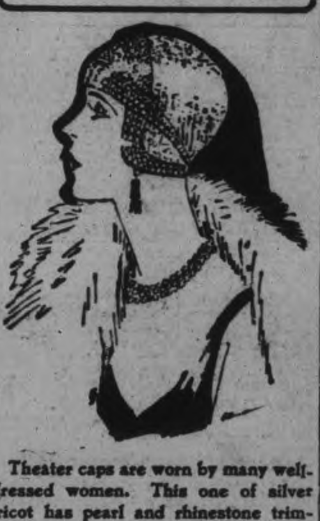
1. Is it proper to thank a girl's mother as well as herself when one has enjoyed hospitality in a home?
2. In writing "bread and butter" notes, to whom should you address them, to your girl friend or her mother?
3. In polite circles, who issues invitations, a girl or her mother?

The Answers.

1. Certainly.
2. Both.
3. The mother, until the girl is of age. Even then the mother deserves consideration on all occasions when thanks, regrets and so on are sent.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



Theater caps are worn by many well-dressed women. This one of silver tricot has pearl and rhinestone trimming.

If you have any misgivings about the back view of your evening coiffure you may still your anxious thoughts by wearing one of the new theater caps. I believe they were first contrived for the women who were letting their hair grow.

From the point of view of milliner and coiffeur these women of the hair-growing sort are a species of themselves. Usually they consider their plight as a rather interesting one. They expect sympathy—but they always resent the suggestion to end their difficulties by having their hair cut again.

A simple bandeau may successfully take care of the uneven ends of growing hair for evening dress, but the theater cap adds even greater security. And these theater caps are no longer in the experimental stage. Women are wearing them more and more and there is no reason why they should not come to be a very usual type of evening headdress.

A correspondent in Paris describes diamond evening headdresses worn by smart Parisians as "looking almost like divers' helmets in shape." They are made of silver strands to make a network upon which the diamonds are strung at regular intervals.

Jeweled combs are enjoying a tremendous vogue in Paris just now and to an ever-increasing extent in this country as well. They may be taken as an indication of the fact that fashionable women are no longer satisfied with a masculine severity of hair arrangement. Even when the hair is not being allowed to grow these combs are often used to keep the locks in order and to add a more feminine touch to the hair than would otherwise be possible. Besides the combs there are small slides made of tortoise shell and set with diamonds—or rhinestones—and these are often used in the evening to keep the hair waves in position.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

A FEW GOOD THINGS

A room may have a dozen chairs,
Where maybe six would do,
There may be statues on the stairs,
And lamps, and ormolu.
Yet beauty sounds no loud alarm,
And taste no tocsin rings;
The touch that gives a house its charm
Is just a few good things.

Oh, better have one cheery print
Upon a simple wall
Than paper of so bright a tint
It overshadows all.
The pleasure that we get from gold,
The joy that money brings,
Is not how much a house can hold,
But just a few good things.

A few belongings give me, Lord,
No hundred odds and ends,
A few good things I can afford,
And then a few good friends.
Enough is right, too much is rude,
For cottagers or kings,
For better than a multitude
Are just a few good things.

Expansion of Hockey League Planned for Next Season

CLEVELAND AND PHILADELPHIA MAY GET PLACI

Americans Due For Shake-u, at End of This Season.

TWO MAJOR LEAGUES.

Present Year Has Surpassed All Records For Gate Receipts.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Enlargement of the big league hockey circuit from ten to twelve clubs, the possible rearrangement of teams by which the New York Americans and Rangers will be in the same group, and a general shakeup in the personnel of the Americans are the predictions that are now being made where officials of the ice game gather. he season, which is now about to enter the final quarter of its schedule, has been by far the most successful that hackey has known since it was introduced as a professional sport, and they are planning for next year.

To Invade Philadelphia

The proposed enlargement of the circuit will bring in Philadelphia and Cleveland, with possibly one other city. This depends on whether Pittsburgh is to remain. Philadelphia appears to be a certainty, either through the transfer of the Pirates, or with a new team if the Pittsburgh owners decide to stick. Cleveland would make the twelfth club, under the latter arrangement, and each division would have six teams instead of five, as at present.

If the Pirates are transferred to Philadelphia, another city will be needed before any expansion can occur. This would be to pair off with Cleveland. With the game booming through the country from the Eastern seaboard to the Pacific Coast, there will be no difficulty in getting the extra city. This will be but a step toward the day when there will be two eight-club major circuits, as in baseball.

Some of the clubs would prefer a rearrangement of groups, but whether this can be accomplished this year is a problem. Any move to bring about a change is certain to result in a fight by some club official against the plan.

New York is having its biggest year in hockey, and no longer are there any doubts about the sport being a sure hit here. The average attendance this year has been far above the figures of previous years, and this in spite of the failure of the Americans to perform up to the expectations of their followers.

Shake-Up Needed

While the Rangers continue to gallop along in first place in the American group, the star-spangled players are mired in the bottom notch of the International division. It is probably true that the going is more difficult in the second, which includes all the Canadian teams, but this does not cover up the fact that the Americans, as they stand today, are not a winning aggregation. The players as a group have failed and the only remedy is a shake-up which is sure to come.

It is safe to say now that five or six of the men who have been wearing the star-spangled jerseys this year will not be back for the season of 1928-29. That much has been settled by the men who pay the bills. The players have not been delivering, and only new men can help.

Five or six of the players have been operating here on long-term contracts which did not contain the release clause. These contracts expire with the close of the current season, and it is certain that some of the long-termers will pass out of New York hockey at the conclusion of their contracts. There is enough talent in the American squad for the nucleus of a winning team, and about four or five of the players now here will be retained.

Helpless on Attack

Weakness in the front part of the team has been apparent all season. The team has no scoring punch, which puts a heavier burden on the defence. Burch was out a great part of the season with a knee injury and is not likely to touch his 1926-27 form this year, if ever again. With wings who could score a fair amount of goals, the team would be much higher in the standing, but it is a helpless group on the attack.

Tommy Gorman, Newsy Lalonde and Shorty Green have tried in turn to make the team a winner, and the men behind it have spent money lavishly to get players and pay high salaries.

It is generally agreed now that the only answer is a shakeup. How many will escape depends on the new talent now under observation, but officials of the club admit that it is bound to come. From the outside, it seems a safe guess that Himes, Conacher, Reise and McKinnon will stick. Perhaps some more will survive, but at least five or six of the star-spangled boys are surely going away from here.

Tennis Players May Glare At Officials

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The privilege of glaring at officials, whether it be in hockey, baseball, boxing, or tennis, was saved to the tennis players of the United States, it was learned, by "Big Bill" Tilden, when this right was on trial at the Lawn Tennis Association meeting here. Advocates of the English code offered a regulation forbidding players glaring at the officials. Tilden rose with some choice remarks and some very impressive glaring and the rule against dirty looks was voted down.

NEW YORKER IS CROWNED SPEED SKATING CHAMPION

Irving Jaffe Given 10,000 Metres Skating Honors in Olympic Games.

RACE CALLED OFF.

Action Came After U. S. Representative Protested Cancellation of Event.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 15 (Associated Press).—A day of bickering and dispute ended last night with the crowning of a champion of the 1928 Olympic games.

That honor fell to Irving Jaffee, of New York, who was officially recognized as 10,000 metres speed skating champion by the executive commission of the International Olympic Committee.

The commission's action came after Augustus T. Kirby, official representative of the United States, had protested cancellation of the race because of the soggy condition of the ice at a time when six of the contestants already had completed their heats.

The future over the 10,000 metres event came after Clas Thunberg of Finland had captured the 1,500 metres race, the only other event on the skating program yesterday.

Jaffee, by covering the longer distance in 18 minutes 36 5-10 seconds, was leading the field and was considered an almost certain winner when the race was called off by an official of the International Skating Confederation.

Kirby and P. J. Mulqueen, Canadian representative, immediately protested. Kirby pointed out that Eddie Murphy of Chicago, had been forced to compete in the 500 metres event Monday in a blinding snowstorm. Both Kirby and Mulqueen were agreeable to a postponement but vigorously complained against cancellation.

Failing to obtain a re-consideration from the Federation official, Kirby took his case to the International Committee.

"We don't want to raise a row," said Kirby. "We prefer to win the races on the ice, not in committee, but this action does not seem fair to us."

After due consideration, the Executive Commission approved a proposal, advanced by the Marquis de Polignac, of France, that Jaffee be recognized as champion in the event, but that another competition should be held before the close of the winter sports program.

Jaffee, competing in the first heat, was favored by the fact that he drew as a competitor the crack Norwegian, Bernt Evensen. The Norwegian extended Jaffee to the limit and was only one-tenth of a second behind the flying American, who broke the tape in front by virtue of a sensational last minute spurt.

Trailing Jaffee and Evensen were Otto Polacsek, Austria; Rudolf Riedla, Austria; Armand Carlsen, Norway, and Valentine Bialis, of Lake Placid.

Thunberg's time in winning the 1,500 metres event was 2 minutes 21 1-0 seconds. Trailing him in order were three Norwegians, and then the four members of the American team. Their times: Bernt Evensen, Norway, 2.21 9-10; Ivar Ballengrud, Norway, 2.22 6-10; Roald Larsen, Norway, 2.25 6-10; Eddie Murphy, United States, 2.25 9-10; Valentine Bialis, United States, 2.26 3-10; Irving Jaffee, United States, 2.26 7-10; O'Neil Farrell, United States, 2.26 8-10. Charley Gorman, Canadian ace, was twelfth.

The only other event on the day's program—the skiing marathon—was a walkaway for Sweden. Sweden took the first three places and Norway fourth and fifth. The United States was not entered.

CHAMPS TO RISK TITLES AT CHICAGO

Walker and Mandell To Defend Crowns in the Windy City.

CHICAGO, February 15 (Canadian Press).—Two boxing champions — Mickey Walker and Sammy Mandell —facing suspension by the National Boxing Association because of refusal to fight outstanding challengers, yesterday decided to risk their titles in Chicago during the summer season.

After signing Mandell to defend his world's lightweight championship against Jimmy McLarnin, Promoter Jim Mullen announced he had come to terms with Walker, the middleweight title-holder, for a championship contest in July.

Mullen set June 21 as the date for the Mandell-McLarnin fight. It will be ten rounds at the lightweight limit of 135 pounds. It will be held in the White Sox Ball Park, scene of Mandell's triumph over Rooky Kansas for the title a year ago last July.

Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, agreed to have the middleweight ruler meet Ace Hudkins, Joe Anderson or any other outstanding challenger in a title contest in the White Sox Park July 26.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission, meeting yesterday, approved the Mandell-McLarnin battle.

MILLBROOK HOLDS CURLING TROPHY

Defeats Cobourg 20-18 in Hard Fought Game For Carew Cup.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 15.—The Carew Cup stays in Millbrook until the next play-off for the trophy, at least. The challenge game against a rink composed of four tankard skips from Cobourg took place on local ice on Monday night, with a resulting score of 20—18, favor of the defending team.

At half time, in the sixteen-end game, the score stood 12—4, with Millbrook leading, but shortly afterward the visitors pulled up nine shots in two ends, leaving the score 16—15, and it looked as if the cup would go to the county town. Within the next three ends Millbrook stood 20, the visitors adding three in the last end, making their total of 18 as the game closed.

Stouffville is the next in line in the list of challengers a rink from this town won the Carew Trophy from Millbrook some few years ago when it had been brought here for the first time. The ice on Monday night was in fine condition, and the game was a splendid exhibition of good curling throughout. The teams playing were:

Cobourg:	Millbrook:
J Spragg	T H Collins
D Spragg	W E Ball
W Titford	Ross Edmunds
W Potts	G W Sayles
Skip........18	Skip........20

After the game, adjournment was made to Councillor Sayles' residence when an oyster supper was served, the guests including, besides the rinks who had been playing, F. P. Stinson, president of the local club; Dr. N. H. Young, J. A. Vance, and Mr. Wood, of Cobourg. Mrs. Sayles, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, and Mrs. W. E. Ball were hostesses for the occasion, and were heartily thanked when the pleasant social time, with its many reminiscences in connection with bonspiels in Peterborough and other towns was finally brought to a close.

CANADA WANTS 1932 OLYMPIC WINTER SPORT

Makes Official Bid To United States' Committee Sponsoring Los Angeles Games.

GORMAN TWELFTH.

Clas Thunberg Wins the 1,500 Metre Race To-day—10,000 Metre Race Called Off.

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Canada is making an official bid for the winter sports of the 1932 Olympics. P. J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee, requested G. T. Kirby, of the United States Committee, to forward a proposal of the committee sponsoring Los Angeles for the 1932 games. Mr. Mulqueen said if the request were granted the games would be staged in Montreal.

Clas Thunberg, Finland, yesterday won the fifteen hundred metre skating event. He covered the distance in two minutes, 21 1-10 seconds. Bernt Evenson, Norway, was second in two minutes, 21 9-10 seconds. Charles Gorman, St. John, N.B., was twelfth.

Ten thousand metres race was called off yesterday afternoon because of the soggy state of the rink which resulted from a thaw. The race will be run off later in the week.

Race Eliminated.

The ten thousand metre race was eliminated from the Olympic winter speed skating program by the Swiss Olympic committee this afternoon after G. T. Kirby, representing the United States, had protested against the calling off of the event until later in the week. At the time that the race was called off, Irving Jaffee, of the United States, was leading with a time of 18 minutes, 36 5-10 seconds. The decision to call the race off because of soggy weather "deprived the United States of a well-earned victory," Mr. Kirby said.

Swedes Win Ski Marathon.

Sweden monopolized the first three places in the skiing marathon. Pete Hedlund covered the 31 miles in four hours, 52 minutes, 27 seconds. Ole Tonson was second and Volger Anderson third. Norway took fourth and fifth places.

JUNIOR TEAMS WILL CLASH FOR THREE BATTLES

Lebarr Crew and Saints To Meet For the Local Championship.

GAME FRIDAY.

Keen Rivalry Between Teams Ensures a Lively Contest.

There have been many arguments as to the relative merits of Peterborough's two Junior O.H.A. teams, and these will now be settled in the only feasible way, by a series between Lew LeBarr's Peterborough Juniors and the St. John's Junior O.H.A. outfit.

The clash has been under discussion for some time, but the managements have finally got together and have arranged a three-game series; the team getting the largest total of goals winning the argument.

The first game will be played at Brock Street Rink on Friday night, and the remaining two fixtures will be staged next week.

Friday's battle should be a lively tussle. So far as it has been possible to compare them, the two outfits seem to be well matched, and it is anticipated that the series will be hard-fought and full of excitement. With the City Junior championship at stake and both teams backed by a good following, there should be many thrilling moments before the issue is finally decided.

The turn-out for Intermediate games here shows the fans are hungry for hockey. The two Junior outfits will provide them with plenty in the next ten days, and there is enough rivalry between the two crews to guarantee a lively argument.

Popular prices will prevail for the series.

N.H.L. AND C.A.H.L. TO HOLD CONFERENCE

Important Move To Unify the Hockey Rules For Both Amateurs and Pros.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.— "I consider that the National Hockey League has been paid one of the finest compliments it would be possible to pay our body," remarked Frank Calder, president of N.H.L. and the high commissioner of professional hockey, as he revealed the fact that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had requested the N.H.L. to name a committee to meet the C.A.H.A. at its annual meeting and to arrive at an understanding regarding the signing of amateur stars in Ottawa in March to discuss the unification of hockey rules for Canada.

"The very fact that the C.A.H.A. has invited us to name a committee for such a conference convinces the governors of the N.H.L. that the government of amateur hockey in Canada has finally arrived at the conclusion that there is something good in our rules, and that the professional hockey promoters are not the scoundrels some of those interested in hockey wold have the general public believe. The board of governors yesterday named Leo Dandurand of the Montreal Canadiens, Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs, Charles F. Adams of the Boston hockey club and myself as a committee to meet the C.A.H.A. and discuss the matters suggested. This is certainly a great step forward."

Though Mr. Calder did not say so in as many words he has on former occasions expressed his conviction that one of the best things that could happen hockey would be for both amateurs and pros. to agree upon a uniform set of playing rules with only the slight modifications regarding the number of substitutes allowed, and over-time, necessary to adapt the game to the grind of the long schedule which prevails in the professional leagues.

A discussion of the problem which crops up because the N.H.L. has arbitrarily agreed upon a reserve list of star amateurs for each club with which the other clubs may not tamper will do much to relieve a situation which is at the present moment causing no little heated discussion among oficers of amateur organizations, who cannot see why any professional, who or organization should be allowed to tie up certain amateur players without their consent and in some cases without their knowledge.

President Calder was in Toronto as chairman of a meeting of N.H.L. governors held at King Edward hotel, at which various other matters were discussed. The question of the proposed transfer of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club of the N.H.L. to Philadelphia or Cleveland, was discussed. The Pittsburgh delegate, R. S. Townsend, who was accompanied by the clubs solicitor, J. F. Callaghan, said that I. M. Weiner of Philadelphia had an option on the club. A committee consisting of President Frank Calder, James Strachan of Montreal Maroons and Leo Dandurand of Montreal Canadiens, was appointed to investigate the deal.

"The Pittsburgh franchise will certainly be operated in Pittsburgh for the rest of this season," said Mr. Calder. "What will become of it next season depends upon the report of our committee."

The application of Atlantic City for the transfer of one of the N.H.L. games to that city for the opening of the new rink there was tabled and will be taken up when the schedule is drawn up next season. The new rink at Atlantic City will not be ready until then.

During the meeting the pro rules came up for discussion. Several of the governors had suggestions to make for changes in the code, but it was decided that at this stage it would be extremely unwise to make any changes. The question of overtime games was taken up but there was no action.

"The outcome of our discussion on overtime games will likely be the elimination of overtime altogether," remarked Mr. Calder. "That may be taken as an expression of my own personal opinion and not a matter of fact."

Those at the meeting were:

Toronto Maple Leafs— Conny Smythe.

Montreal Canadiens—Leo Dandurand.

Ottawa Senators—Dave Gill.

New York Americans—W. C. Anderson.

Chicago Black Hawks—Major Frederick McLaughlin.

Boston Bruins—Charles F. Adams.

Montreal Maroons, New York Rangers and Detroit Cougars were not represented.

Dr. J. E. Sullivan, crack goalkeeper, now at St. Moritz with the Varsity Grads, competing for world hockey honors.

Here are a couple of Canadians who are well able to give a good account of Canadian girls' prowess in basketball. Miss Athol Wesley, a Toronto defence player, has the ball and Miss Innes Bramley, the tall centre player, is about to receive the ball. Miss Wesley, besides being a smart basketball player is also a star softball shortstop. Miss Bramley is a noted high jumper.

WILL BILL TILDEN ABANDON AMATEURS

Tennis Star Must First Be Convinced He Cannot Beat Frenchmen.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

Don't be astounded if Bill Tilden departs from the amateur ranks of tennis this summer and enters a tournament at Forest Hills to determine the world's professional champion.

In discussing his ideas about professional and amateur tennis Tilden never has denied that he was beyond temptation, but when chances came for him in the past to openly approach the pay window and draw his envelope he was a champion whose prestige was of much more monetary value in other fields.

Tilden is no longer the American champion and neither is he the first ranking player of the world nor first in the hearts of those countrymen who guide the destinies of the tennis association from their tower on lower Broadway.

He still has to be convinced that there is not left in him enough of his old-time stuff to beat Rene Lacoste and those young Frenchmen who have stolen his aces and he is going back to Europe this summer to make another earnest effort to come back.

If he fails again to play the tennis that the world expects of a Tilden and if those Frenchmen put him to rout again look out! The chances are mighty that he will jump into the professional field where he and many other competent critics think he could get another championship title.

We did not know until recently when we had a talk with one of the most prominent players in the game that Tilden was the first of all the players to discuss the possibility of making money at their art as professionals.

Way back, according to the story, when Hilden was bringing Vinnie Richards along as the boy wonder, he talked to other players about forming a professional troupe and barnstorming the country. He said at the time that he was willing to captain and manage the troupe, that Vinnie would go along with him and that Bill Johnston might be talked into it.

Professional promoters such as Tex Rickard and Charley Pyle were not so prominent at that time and the other players, while they had no moral repulsion against the idea of professionalizing themselves, had doubts about the capacity as Tilden as a manager.

Tilden then, as is characteristic of him, picked up and followed fad after fad and whim after whim until he was a Broadway actor and producer, but he still kept talking from time to time during the interim about the professional troupe.

When Pyle finally found himself in possession of the services of Mlle. Lenglen, although he had intended to exploit her for an entirely different purpose, he approached Tilden indirectly about joining the company for a professional tour.

Tilden, at that time, according to the story, would have accepted but for two reasons—he said he never could get along with Mlle. Lenglen and he wanted to be the manager and the boss. Pyle, of course, could not remove his biggest star from the cast and eat the contract and he didn't want to delegate the management of the tour to anyone but a member of the Pyle firm.

The players talk among each other and write to each other oftener than the men up in the Equitable Building tower may know of, and these players feel sure that there either will be a professional championship staged at Forest Hills this year under the auspices of the tennis association and that there even may be an open championship.

The players right now are trying to find out what the other ones are going to do and they don't know which way to jump. It is quite certain, however, that Mrs. Molla Mallory will not turn professional because she said recently to one of her friends:

"Maybe I'll be the amateur champion again by eliminations."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

CHANEY'S NEWEST CONTAINS THRILLS.

"London After Midnight" a Weird and Creepy Detective Story

Uncanny, creepy, weirdly mysterious, "London After Midnight", one of the greatest mystery dramas Lon Chaney has ever appeared in, will be shown at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, written and directed by Tod Browning, responsible for those other Chaney successes, "The Unholy Three", "The Road to Mandalay" and "The Unknown."

Fascinating with its theme of hypnotism, its delving into the supernatural and the spirits world, this film employs enough mystery to chill the blood of the spectator and yet rivet the eye and attention in a breathless interest. The story is one of a baffling murder which draws the attention of Scotland Yard. Chaney takes the part of a master detective. In solving the mystery he discovers that the murderer is guilty of a former crime, a five-year-old death that had been pronounced a suicide. How he makes the criminal confess and how he discovers that both murders were love crimes, committed because of the passion of an old man for a young and beautiful girl, supply enough thrills for several rattling good dramas.

Chaney is supported by Marceline Day, Conrad Nagel, Henry B. Walthrall, Polly Moran and Claude King.

"Why Doesn't the Canadian Legion Give Up Its Big Murray Street Hall And Save the Cost of Upkeep?"

This question is asked by returned soldiers as well as by civilians, and it is asked with the best intentions in the world. It is not understood why a handful of veterans should maintain this large building, with all the overhead involved. Yet the explanation is simple.

The small sum paid by members in dues does not cover any more than running expenses, and would not be sufficient to pay for the relief of two bad cases of distress. The money for relief must come from some source, and the Legion prefers to earn it by renting its hall and by giving citizens value in entertainment, instead of begging.

Is that a worth-while standard?

And this relief work is not confined to Legion members—in fact, only a very small percentage of relief goes to members of the organization. Every applicant for pension investigation or relief is given the same willing help—the only condition being that he is an ex-service man.

It is to meet this need that the Legion Hall is kept in operation.

It is a Fact that most pensionable cases have been cleared up through the good work of the Great War Veterans' Association and the Canadian Legion.

But it is equally true that every day men are finding in themselves the pains and ailments brought on by war service—for which no pension is now procurable.

Mud and wet and hardship have left their mark, and when a man is knocked out now by their effects there is no Government agency to care for him. It is up to the Canadian Legion.

Those who join the Legion now do not do so with the idea of getting anything for themselves, but TO HELP OUT THE OTHER FELLOW.

The Legion could carry on as an association for returned soldiers without this hall. Monthly meetings could be held and socials enjoyed just as now—in rented premises.

But in that event the Legion would not be fulfiling its mission—the relief of needy and suffering ex-service men. It must have funds—it does not wish to beg—so it rents its hall and provides entertainment for which the public is glad to pay a small price.

No, the Legion cannot tell the details of this relief work; that would hold up veterans to public gaze in a way that is not in keeping with the spirit of the organization. But hundreds of men and women and children in Peterborough know what has been done for them—and the Legion is carrying on.

Join Up -- And Help the Legion Carry On!

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE ST?RY THUS FAR

Because Skeel's finger prints were found in the "Canary's" apartment, Markham believes Skeel was Margaret Odell's murderer. But Vance thinks Skeel had been hiding in a clothes closet, his presence unsuspected, while the murderer did his work. He is led to this belief because of a jewel case that had been opened with a steel chisel after having been pried with a poker; and because he holds that the crime was the work of a man with superior intellect. Markham ridicules the theory and Vance, investigating on his own, traces a picture found in the Odell apartment to Alys La Fosse.

CHAPTER XXVII.

As we walked across town Vance explained.

"That first morning, when we were inspecting the Canary's rooms, I was convinced that the murder would never be solved by the usual elephantine police methods.

"It was a subtle and well-planned crime, despite its obvious appearances. No routine investigation would suffice. Intimate information was needed. Therefore, when I saw this photograph of the xanthous Alys half hidden under the litter of papers on the escritoire, I reflected: 'Ah! A girl friend of the departed Margaret's. She may know just the things that are needed.' So, when the sergeant's broad back was turned, I put the picture in my pocket.

"There was no other photograph about the place, and this one bore the usual sentimental inscription, 'Ever thine,' and signed 'Alys.' I concluded, therefore, that Alys had played Anactoria to the Canary's Sappho. Of course I erased the inscription before presenting the picture to the penetrating sibyl at Browne's. . . . And here we are at the Belafield, hopin' for a bit of enlightenment."

The Belafield was a small, expensive apartment-hotel in the East Thirties, which, to judge from the guests to be seen in the Americanized Queen Anne lobby, catered to the well-off sporting set.

Vance sent his card up to Miss La Fosse, and received the message that she would see him in a few minutes. The few minutes, however, developed into three-quarters of an hour, and it was nearly noon when a resplendent bell-boy came to escort us to the lady's apartment.

Nature had endowed Miss La Fosse with many of its arts, and those that nature had omitted, Miss La Fosse herself had supplied. She was slender and blonde. Her large blue eyes were heavily lashed, but though she looked at one with a wide-eyed stare, she was unable to disguise their sophistication. Her toilet had been made with elaborate care; and as I looked at her, I could not help thinking what an excellent model she would have been for Cheret's pastel posters.

"So you are Mr. Vance," she cooed. "I've often seen your name in Town Topics."

Vance gave a shudder.

"And this is Mr. Van Dine," he said sweetly, "—a mere attorney, who, thus far, has been denied the pages of that fashionable weekly."

"Won't you sit down?" (I am sure Miss La Fosse had spoken the line in a play: she made of the invitation an impressive ceremonial.) "I really don't know why I should have received you. But I suppose you called on business. Perhaps you wish me to appear at a society bazaar, or something of the kind. But I'm so busy, Mr. Vance. You simply can't imagine how occupied I am with my work. . . . I just love my work," she added, with an ecstatic sigh.

"And I'm sure there are many thousands of others who love it, too," returned Vance, in his best drawing-room manner. "But unfortunately I have no bazaar to be graced by your charming presence. I have come on a much more serious matter. . . . You were a very close friend of Miss Margaret Odell's——"

The mention of the Canary's name brought Miss La Fosse suddenly to her feet. Her ingratiating air of affected elegance had quickly disappeared. Her eyes flashed, and their lids drooped harshly. A sneer distorted the lines of her cupid's-bow mouth, and she tossed her head angrily.

"Say, listen! Who do you think you are? I don't know nothing, and I got nothing to say. So run along—you and your lawyer."

But Vance made no move to obey. He took out his cigaret-case and carefully selected a Regie.

"Do you mind if I smoke?—And won't you have one? I import them direct from my agent in Constantinople. They're exquisitely blended."

The girl snorted, and gave him a look of cold disdain. The dollbaby had become a virago.

"Get yourself outa my apartment, or I'll call the house detective." She turned to the telephone on the wall at her side.

Vance waited until she had lifted the receiver.

"If you do that, Miss La Fosse, I'll order you taken to the district attorney's office for questioning," he told her indifferently, lighting his cigaret and leaning back in his chair.

Slowly she replaced the receiver and turned.

"What's your game anyway? . . . Suppose I did know Margy—then what? And where do you fit into the picture?"

"Alas! I don't fit in at all." Vance smiled pleasantly. "But, for that matter, nobody seems to fit in. The truth is they're about to arrest a poor blighter for killing your friend, who wasn't in the tableau, either. I happen to be a friend of the district attorney's; and I know exactly what's being done. The police are scouting round in a perfect frenzy of activity, and it's hard to say what trail they'll strike next.

"I thought, don't y' know, I might save you a lot of unpleasantness by a friendly little chat. . . . Of course," he added, "if you prefer to have me give your name to the police, I'll do so, and let them hold the audition in their own inimitable but cruel fashion. I might say, however, that, as yet, they are blissfully unaware of your relationship with Miss Odell, and that, if you are reasonable, I see no reason why they should be informed of it."

The girl had stood, one hand on the telephone, studying Vance intently. He had spoken carelessly and with a genial inflection; and she at length resumed her seat.

"Now, won't you have one of my cigarets?" he asked, in a tone of gracious reconciliation.

Mechanically she accepted his offer, keeping her eyes on him all the time, as if attempting to determine how far he was to be trusted.

"Who are they thinking of arresting?" She asked the question with scarcely a movement of her features.

"A johnny named Skeel.—Silly idea, isn't it?"

"Him!" Her tone was one of mingled contempt and disgust. "That cheap crook? He hasn't got nerve enough to strangle a cat."

"Precisely. But that's no reason for sending him to the electric chair, what?"

Vance leaned forward and smiled engagingly. "Miss La Fosse, if you will talk to me for five minutes, and forget I'm a stranger, I'll give you my word of honor not to let the police or the district attorney know anything about you. I'm not connected with the authorities, but somehow I dislike the idea of seeing the wrong man punished. And I'll promise to forget the source of any information you will be kind enough to give me. If you will trust me, it will be infinitely easier for you in the end."

The girl made no answer for several minutes. She was, I could see, trying to estimate Vance; and evidently she decided that, in any case, she had nothing to lose—now that her friendship with the Canary had been discovered—by talking to this man who had promised her immunity from further annoyance.

"I guess you're all right," she said, with a reservation of dubiety; "but I don't know why I should think so." She paused. "But, look here: I was told to keep out of this. And if I don't keep out of it, I'm apt to be back hoofing it in the chorus again. And that's no life for a sweet young thing like me with extravagant tastes—believe me, my friend!"

"That calamity will never befall you through any lack of discretion on my part," Vance assured her, with good-natured earnestness. . . . "Who told you to keep out of it?"

"My—fiance." She spoke somewhat coquettishly. "He's very well known and he's afraid there might be scandal if I got mixed up in the case as a witness or anything like that."

"I can readily understand his feelings." Vance nodded sympathetically. "And who by the bye, is this luckiest of men?"

"Say! You're good." She complimented him with a coy moue. "But I'm not announcing my engagement yet."

"Don't be horrid," begged Vance. "You know perfectly well that I could find out his name by making a few inquiries. And if you drove me to learn the facts elsewhere, then my promise to keep your name a secret would no longer bind me."

Miss La Fosse considered this point.

"I guess you could find out, all right . . . so I might as well tell you—only I'm trusting to your word to protect me." She opened her eyes wide and gave Vance a melting look. "I know you wouldn't let me down."

"My dear Miss La Fosse!" His tone was one of pained surprise.

"Well, my fiance is Mr. Mannix, and he's the head of a big fur importing house. . . . You see"—she became—clingingly confidential—"Louey—that is, Mr. Mannix—used to go round with Margy. That's why he didn't want me to get mixed up in the affair. He said the police might bother him with questions, and his name might get into the papers. And that would hurt his commercial standing."

"I quite understand," murmured Vance. "And do you happen to know where Mr. Mannix was Monday night?"

The girl looked startled.

"Of course I know. He was right here with me from half past ten until two in the morning. We were discussing a new musical show he was interested in; and he wanted me to take the leading role."

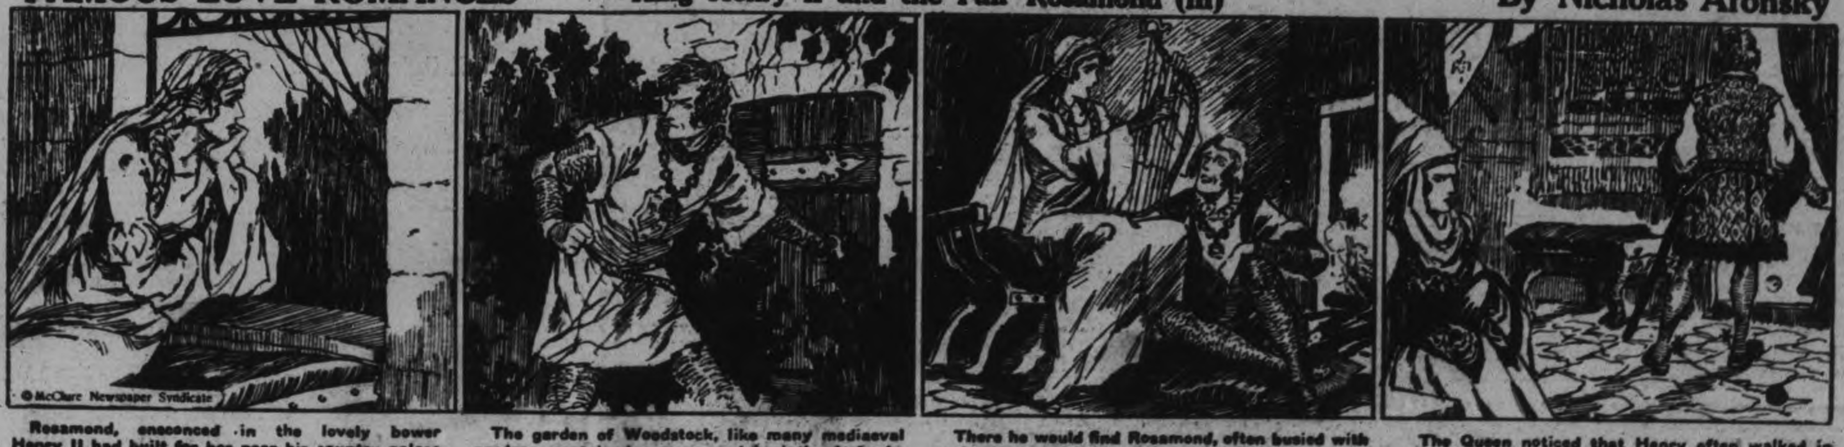
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES King Henry II and the Fair Rosamond (III) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Rosamond, ensconced in the lovely bower Henry II had built for her near his country palace at Woodstock, lived a willing prisoner, ignorant of the fact that Henry was married, and that his wife, Queen Eleanor, spent much of her time at Woodstock. Rosamond patiently waited for the time when Henry would acknowledge her.

The garden of Woodstock, like many mediaeval gardens, contained a maze or labyrinth of shrubs and trees. The King alone knew the secret of this maze, and by its winding paths used to go to a door in the wall surrounding the castle. Beyond this door was the forest containing the lovely little house of Rosamond.

There he would find Rosamond, often busied with embroidery, happy and adoring. She had grown into a very beautiful woman, and Henry was sincerely attached to her. He grew more and more tired of his Queen, ten years his senior, who by this time was herself losing interest in the neglectful Henry.

The Queen noticed that Henry often walked in the lovely gardens of Woodstock. One day she saw a ball of colored silk caught on his spur. Filled with curiosity, she quietly picked it up. The King walked on, and the loosened ball, one end still caught on his spur, unwound as he walked unconsciously away.

The Dugout

(By J.R.H.)

All officers below the rank of batman are requested to withdraw from the dugout while we discuss the remarks of "Disgusted," who cusses me out on several counts. This tinhat asks: "Are you fresh from the country, or are you Irish?"

That's three insults. It's an insult to the farming community to even suggest that my lowly talents originated there; it's an insult to Ireland to suggest that the Green Isle has failed to mark me sufficiently with recognizable characteristics; and finally, it's an insult to me to have "Disgusted" doubt my nationality.

And, anyhow, what business is it of yours where I came from. The Dugout has got your goat, "Disgusted."

Which reminds me of Albert of Moha. Albert had a castle and a golden goat. His brother-in-law didn't like him (human nature was always the same), and came with an army to capture the castle. In spite of molten metal, boiling water, and big stones heaved down on his pikemen, he was soon battering at the inner door of Albert's castle. Then Albert rose to the greatest heights of his career. "You may get my castle," he shouted at the invaded, "but you can't get my goat,"—and he chucked it down the well.

Disgusted, you can't get my goat; but after hearing your remarks, I came to the conclusion that the Boche must be glad he's only a Hun.

WEAK DEFENCE DEFEATS LEAFS

Toronto Team Beaten 4-2 By Pirates on Home Ice.

CANADIENS LOSE.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.— A weak defence, which at times looked almost pathetic in the feeble attempts to poke the rubber away from the fast travelling Pittsburgh Pirates, was the main cause of the Maple Leafs taking a 4 to 2 defeat from the Corsairs last night and as a result the locals remained stationary in fourth place in the Canadian group standing, while the winners moved past the Detroit Cougars into third place in the American group. The Leafs' forwards did not look any too good in the early part of the game, there being few attempts at combination, although they did give Worters more shots to handle than had Roach. In the second period the margin between the two teams was even greater and the Pirates deserved their two-goal margin entering the third period and perhaps a couple of more counters. The Corsairs had been allowed to ramble in on Raoch and with his defence backing up on him the local goalie was lucky to make three or four of the saves credited to him.

CANADIENS BEATEN.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Shorty Green's battling New York Americans scored a 1 to 0 victory over the pace-setting Canadiens here last night. It was a strenuous struggle with the lone goal of the encounter coming in the second period when Reise fooled Hainsworth on a long, fast drive from the blue line.

Canadiens looked better on the night's offensive play, but a stubborn American defensive system backed by fine goal-tending by "Jumping Jake" Forbes, kept the Yankees in the fight thoughout. Forbes gave a splendid display. Many times Canuck attacks got right through to the opposing goaler but the latter was always in the way.

The Canucks scored two goals, according to the goal umpires, but both were overruled by the officials on the ice.

BRUINS WIN OUT.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 15.—The Boston Bruins nosed out the Chicago Black Hawks by 1 to 0 in a lightning fast National Hockey League game here last night. The Hawks, at the bottom of the American section of the league, gave the Bruins a terrific argument until they tired in the final period.

TO RAISE CHARGE BECAUSE OF DEATH

Wounded Man Dies in Brockville Hospital—Assailant in Jail.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., February 15 (Canadian Press). — Following the death in Smith's Falls Hospital last night of Frank Auger, wounded in a shooting affray at Burritt's Rapids on Sunday, the charge against Walter Percival, 75, of the same place, now held in the County Jail here for attempting to do bodily harm, will probably be changed. County Attorney Brown said to-day that no additional charge against Percival would be laid until the conclusion of the coroner's inquest, which is being opened at Burritt's Rapids to-day, and which will be adjourned until Tuesday next.

the questionairies. It was revealed that an unusual number of these young people wanted to remain here, due to home ties and love of town, but feared that due to lack of opportunity here they might be compelled to seek employment somewhere else.

The speaker closed his address with a strong appeal to make Peterborough big enough to care for this coming generation of its citizens. "Peterborough to-morrow will reflect the character of its citizenship to-day. What it does now will determine the city of the future," he declared.

Chairman Gillespie then introduced Harry R. McKeen, director of the "Forward Peterborough Movement." Mr. McKeen's subject was "Your Community in Revolution." He is a rapid fire speaker and with words flowing from his lips at the rate of over two hundred words a minute, he presented the practical side of community development, showing illustrations of numerous American cities, how the work had been done, and the material results that ensued. He re-emphasized the town and country problem, treating it from the city standpoint rather than from the rural.

"The time has come," said Mr. McKeen, "when the merchant must take his eyes off his ledger look beyond his store doors and give some attention to his trading territory. He may not be able to do this personally but he can join his fellow business men in doing this through the Chamber of Commerce."

Mr. McKeen cited illustrations to show how other communities had increased their business millions of dollars by this method.

He analyzed the industrial needs of Peterborough , discussed the type of publicity needed to attract visitors, tourists, and investors, outlined a program of recreations both summer and winter, and closed his address in an appeal for the three-fold necessities in a Chamber of Commerce: representative membership, adequate finance, and personal service; each investing in the organizations according to interest in the community and ability to support it.

Following Mr. McKeen's address, Chairman Gillespie introduced J. J. Hartley, as one of the old war horses of Peterborough, who made a happy address and moved a vote of appreciation for the splendid and practical addresses given.

"Wonderful meeting considering weather conditions," was the comment of James Dutton. "The house would not have held the crowd had the weather been propitious."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

ience of life underwriters was a recognition of his fame and high standing in the world of life insurance and a hearty tribute to his appealing personality. His address this morning was mainly an introduction to the series of eight which he will deliver to the congress. His manner of address is somewhat tutorial, but Dr. Rockwell deprecated any opinion that his discourses were to be academic. His message to insurance men, he said, was based on his own experience as an insurance salesman. His lecture sparkled with bright epigrams, the first of which was "an attribute of a great teacher is his willingness to be forgotten." The new salesmanship in life insurance relates to the adapting of new ways to old purposes. Life insurance, Dr. Rockwell said, is used to conserve the existing values of tangible properties, to maintain them from one generation to another. As an illustration, Dr. Rockwell imagined a man rolling a ball up an incline, holding it at or near the top for a time and then letting go. It rolls to the bottom and is taken up by a succeeding man who labors through the same difficulty. The problem passes from one generation to the next.

Life insurance will hold these values up, will peg them at the higher position so that each generation may begin where the previous one left off, and not have to stop and shoulder the same old burdens. Thus, existing values of real properties may be conserved. Men realize that they can hold that value through the medium of insurance.

Consolidate Intangibles.

Another use is the consolidation of intangibles of life. To-day many men are specialists. By study and research they acquire great skill and knowledge in one thing, but he can't bequeath that possession. By insurance, however, because of his large earning power he can give tangible form to the fruits of his specialized ability.

Salesmanship, in its practical application Dr. Rockwell continued, is the whole process of first building a permanent business and making that business progressively profitable. He analyzed this definition in detail, clause by clause, and he remarked that if an insurance man failed to sell more in 1927 than in 1926 he was was not practicing his calling correctly. Progressively profitable work can be achieved by "extending your capacity to render a continuously valuable service to an increasing number of people."

Service Paramount.

The idea of service to society was the overtone of Dr. Rockwell's counsel. Service begot good will and good wishes, and good will in turn won co-operation. The insurance salesman by the co-operation of his clientele extended his capacity to render valuable service to an increasing number of people.

"So that when a man thinks of insurance he thinks of Rockwell. Isn't that it?" he suggested.

A sale is an agreement to accept a proposal. The first step is the adequate planning of the proposal. It must appeal as an advantage to the man to whom it is made. To gain success the insurance salesman's basic problem is to discern instances, social or financial that would be accentuated by the loss of a certain life. For such instances solutions are necessary, and it is by the aid of life insurance that such solutions can be accomplished.

Dr. Rockwell dwelt on the personal aspect of this equation, requirements in the character of the salesmen, knowledge, interesting presentation, these and other fundamentals were discussed and emphasized with simple, lucent examples.

"Some insurance man might say 'Rockwell that's all very well for New York or Toronto, but it wouldn't go here.' Why not? How many times did you try it. Five or six perhaps. Thomas Edison made 2,400 experiments in a certain research but had no success at all. Some one told him that was a great waste of time and effort. He answered that he at least knew 2,400 ways that thing would not work out."

"You can't make my ideas exactly fit your practice. I have my personality and you have yours; but you can take my ideas and mould them to your own personality, make them fit your capacity.' '

THAW HOLDS UP WINTER SPORTS

Entire Cancellation of Olympic Events May Become Necessary.

RACE THROWN OUT.

ST. MORITZ, February 15 (Canadian Press). — A general thaw, accompanied by a warm rain and extremely high temperature, brought postponement of the entire program of the Olympic winter games scheduled for to-day. The committee has under consideration the rearrangement of the schedule which must be made in order to finish the games on Sunday. Old residents of St. Moritz say the games may have to be abandoned altogether, as the mild weather usually continues for several days, and it is impossible for many countries to maintain their athletes here at great cost awaiting the coming of frost.

The executive committee to-day decided to throw out the ten thousand meter race, held yesterday, from the Olympic records, cancelling the results thus far obtained, and to re-run if the weather grows colder. Despite the decision of the committee to cancel the race, the Norwegian skaters called upon the United States contingent to-day and congratulated Irving Jaffe of New York as the ten-thousand meter speed champion, saying they considered him winner of the event.

A Cold may come upon you without any apparent reason, but you can be sure that there is an accumulation of poisons within your body or you would not catch cold.

Exposure to a draft is often an exciting factor in the development of a cold, but if you are in proper tone a draft will not effect you. If your body is free of poisons you are immune to colds. If your spine is in normal alignment, the spinal nerves free of pressure, and you live rationally, poisons will not accumulate in your system.

CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS will aid you in overcoming a cold, and also in establishing immunity to colds and other ailments which are so prevalent at this time of year.

HOLLINGER MINE TO RESUME OPERATIONS ON THURSDAY; PRESS MEN VISIT WORKINGS

Allowed To Make Personal Inspection of Scene of Disaster.

INQUEST ADJOURNED.

Will Re-open Tuesday, When Plans of Mine Have Been Completed.

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 16.— (Canadian Press.)— With the official announcement yesterday that work at the Hollinger mine would be resumed here to-day and that all those who had been idle due to the tragedy which took a toll of 39 lives would receive full pay for the days on which they were workless, the disaster which befell this northern mining community last Friday and extended well into the present week was passing into history. The work of clearing the mine of smoke and gas is now finished, and only the process of cooling the rock in the neighborhood of the stope where the blast had its origin is being continued. It is understood that full shift will operate to-day and beyond the sorrowing gaps that have been created in the ranks of the miners general conditions will have, at least, the surface aspect of restoration to normal.

Inquest Adjourned.

There remains several enquiries to be made. The inquest has opened, but beyond the empanelling of the jury and a visit by the jurors to the under-workings of the Hollinger, little has been done. Nor will the inquest get under way in all actuality until next Tuesday when the plans of the mine, required by the coroner, have been completed.

Funerals continued to-day with eight Finlanders and four Croats interred here.

A commission will investigate the disaster at the behest of the Ontario government, while the Hollinger Company itself is undertaking an enquiry into the cause of the fire. So far there has been no repercussion from the vehement meeting here last night when the miners gathered in mass and denounced the company, urged the taking over of the "means of production," and passed a resolution demanding representation of the Industrial Unions on the committee of enquiry. The resolution was sent to Premier G. Howard Ferguson.

Yesterday the newspapermen here were taken down to the scene of the disaster and allowed to inspect the workings for themselves. They were given every facility for making a complete survey and detailed explanations were made of all points of enquiry. The press men spent about an hour underground.

Pressmen view Workings.

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 16. — Newspaper men assigned to the duty of covering the Hollinger mine disaster were given an opportunity yesterday afternoon of surveying for themselves the conditions under which the fire broke out, the reasons why no extensive underground blaze could be anticipated and the efforts put forward to subdue the fire and rid the mine of its smoke and gas.

Of the hundred miles or so of subterranean tunnels, the group conducted by John Knox, assistant general manager, and C. G. Williams, mine supt., explored approximately one mile, the trip taking them to 35A stope on the 550 level, and embracing a circuit of the immediate vicinity. It was at this stope No. 12 crosscut between the fifth and sixth levels, that the fire broke out.

Stepping out of the cage on the fifth level the party proceeded through the passage hewn out of the solid rock and timbered at intervals, to M4 one of the principal tunnels. While both width and

Now You Tell One

This little episode would not be worth relating were it not for the political prominence of the lady to whom it refers.

At a local news stand yesterday, Mrs. Howard Fallis, whose staunch hundred per cent. Toryism precludes the slightest shadow of suspicion or reproach, asked for the Mail and Empire.

"We have only Globes left," the young man behind the counter replied pointing to the remnant of the morning's supply and to the empty place the M. and E. had occupied.

Mrs. Fallis silently pondered the dilemna for a moment. For the high priestess of the Conservative party in Canada to be discovered with a reputedly Liberal newspaper in her possession might appear to any person unaware of the circumstances to be an overt act of political disloyalty.

"I suppose it can't do any harm," she said, smiling at the clerk.

"It might do some good," he replied in the same vein. Evidently he knew the identity of his customer.

"O, well, I'll have to take it," Mrs. Fallis decided, with a slight emphasis on the "have."

Some hard shell Grit might be inclined to reassure Mrs. Fallis that she hadn't strayed far from Conservative sentiment in her necessarily

Adjourn Parliament Tribute To Asquith

LONDON, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—Premier Stanley Baldwin and the Marquess of Salisbury gave notice in the House of Commons and Lords respectively yesterday that they would move resolutions to-day adjourning Parliament on account of the death of Lord Oxford and Asquith.

The Lords yesterday debated disarmament and arbitration, while the Commons was occupied with private members' motions relating to road traffic and the effects of Socialism in local government. In the Upper House Lord Cushandin, the former Ronald McNeill, referred to the unparalleled complexity of the problems facing all British nations in considering the questions of arbitration and disarmament. He declared that Great Britain practically had covered the field of international arbitration by individual agreements and it would be unwise to go beyond the system by signing optional clauses which had no real bearing on the peace question.

Introduces Resolution Advocating Changes In Basis Of Wheat Grading

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—A resolution advocating changes in the basis of wheat grading was introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by John Millar (Liberal-Progressive, Qu'Appelle). If the resolution was adopted it would mean a very great thing for Western Canada, said Mr. Millar, and it would affect the producers of 400,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The resolution was not designed to increase the number of grades, but to place grading on a different basis. Instead of having weight per bushel and color as a basis, color would be eliminated from grading, as it did not indicate the true milling value of wheat. Protein quantity should be substituted for color.

Mr. Millar proceeded to explain the effect of discoloration which could occur within a few hours and yet not materially change the milling value of the wheat. Grading at present was on a basis which did not indicate true values. Authorities to support this statement were quoted.

There was a world-wide demand on the part of millers, the member for Qu'Appelle continued, for information as to the protein content of the wheat they bought. In the United States, millers paid a premium on wheat that had a high percentage of protein, while in Canada the different buyers picked this class of wheat without paying anything. Mr. Millar had not concluded his speech when his forty minutes were up.

M. N. Campbell (U.F.A., Mackenzie) declared that the whole question was one which had agitated Western farmers for some years. He believed that the resolution should be referred to the Agriculture Committee for study.

Mr. Campbell's speech was interrupted by the adjournment of the House at 6 o'clock.

SCOUT LEADERS IN CONFERENCE THIS AFTERNOON

Ninety Delegates Present For Opening, With More Expected To-day.

WELCOMED TO CITY.

District Commissioner J. J. Turner Gives Address—Boys Billeted With Citizens.

The Ontario Scout Leaders' Conference convened this afternoon in the Canadian Legion Hall with ninety Boy Scout leaders present, and more expected on the afternoon trains.

Scouts are present from Owen Sound and Chatham in the West and Ottawa in the East. For the first time in the history of the Boy Scout movement in Ontario has the annual conference been held east of Toronto, and this year Peterborough was honored above all the other cities in Eastern Ontario.

This morning the Scouts registered and those present were taken through the De Laval, Quaker Oats, and Peterborough Canoe plants. In each of these plants the boys were split up into small sections, and taken through by guides.

The afternoon session opened with a sing-song, and everyone sang as only Boy Scouts can. Then came the singing of the National Anthem and Invocation by Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints' Anglican Church. Prayers were offered for the King and the success of the conference.

J. J. Turner, District Scout Commissioner, welcomed the leaders on behalf of the Peterborough Boy Scouts an dthe local Scout Executive. He wished them a happy sojourn in the city and hoped that great benefits would be dereived from the conference.

"Although the committee in charge would rather have had the convention at some other time of the year when the delegates could see this city at its best, we are glad to be honored with the conference and hope you will have a happy stay here.

"His Worship the Mayor will give you a civic welcome to-night at the banquet, so I welcome you to this city on behalf of the Peterborough Scouts movement.

"This morning many Scouts went through some of our factories and any who were not here and wish the privilege will be furnished transportation and taken through to-morrow," said Mr. Turner.

Judge H. S. Mott, of the Juvenile Court, Toronto, and Dr. George J. Fisher, Deputy Chief Scout Executive, will be the special speakers at the banquet.

Around the City

Bank clearings for the week amounted to $765,499.

ENDOWMENT INSURANCE URGED AS PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

George Parker Explains Features of Longer Termed Policies.

PROSPECT DEFINED.

Wednesday afternoon's session of the conference of the city and district life insurance staffs was devoted largely to the discussion of futures—the futures of men and women, all of whom will grow old or will die in the midyears, and most of whom will not make adequate provision for the days of their own decline and for the needs and comfort of their dependents.

Farmers, dentists, doctors, teachers, nurses, working men of all occupations, may not pause to give serious thought to the productive periods destiny will allot to them, and equally serious thought to the hazards of this age in which the pace of living is accelerating without compensating safeguards of security. These somewhat unpleasant and perturbing but inescapable subjects usually predominate in the program of any conference of life insurance men, and the present educational congress is no exception.

Endowment as Investment.

The advantages of endowment insurance both as investment and protection were discussed yesterday afternoon by George Parker, actuary with the Imperial Life Company, Toronto. Some of the points he brought out were the security of the principal; insurance companies in Canada are pre-eminent in that respect; stability of income as demonstrated in the financial panic of 1907 and the lean year of 1920 when the insurance companies granted immediate loans on policies.

Mr. Parker also mentioned the element of exemption from care. A man whose investment is an endowment policy never looks anxiously at the financial page of his paper to see whether his investment is going up or down. Another condition is that there is no potential appreciation and inversely there is no danger of depreciation. If a man buys stocks that may go up, he should be prepared to expect them to go down.

Caught In the Market.

Mr. Parker stressed the investment feature of an endowment policy, declaring that many men and women, too, in this province had recently learned a severe and costly lesson in a stock market that was highly speculative. Averaging the dividend yield of five Canadian insurance companies, Mr. Parker showed that a 35-year endowment policy issued to a man of twenty-five years for an amount of $10,000 would cost $278.50 as premium. The dividend accumulating at the average rate of 5% would be $8,464. This man at sixty years would realize the $10,000 plus $8,464 accumulated profits, making a total of $18,464.

Another example Mr. Parker quoted was a thiryt-year endowment taked was a thirty-year endowment takpremium of $335, for the sum of $10,000, and materializing in a total of $16,598. These policies are quoted at the convenient principal of $10,000, and apply proportionately for smaller amounts.

Pension For Farmers.

"Many farmers are dragging along on farms who should be retired with their boys doing the active work", said Mr. Parker. "I was brought up on a farm and I know something about it. The father directs what is to be sowed in this field and that, how many stock are to be wintered and so on. The son may be thirty years old, but he has little or nothing to say and he is not getting the chance he ought to have. If we can sell something of the pension form of insurance to anticipate such cases we will be doing a worth while work in the rural community."

Mr. Parker quoted other instances and in other occupations.

"We should impress the protection side of the endowment form of insurance", he concluded, "convincing a man that it provides protection for his home and also a fund for his old age at a rate of interest he can't get in any other form of investment."

What is a Prospect.

Dr. Rockwell in his afternoon address defined a prospect for life insurance as any person who is in danger of passing a responsibility on to some one else. His address turned up many topics arising out of practical work which he dealt with in detail. What are a man's needs, what is his chief interest in life? What are his problems and what type of life insurance service will solve his problems.

"A man isn't interested in the beneficence of life insurance nor in the magnificence of your company; he's interested in his own needs". Dr. Rockwell said. "You have a complete prospect when you know what he needs, what he wants and his buying power."

L. W. Scott was chairman.

20,800 Insulin Units Given Out In January

Records at the local branch laboratory show a total distribution of 20,800 units of insulin during the month of January. This total, distributed to some twenty patients, is slightly lower than usual, and is 800 less than in the same month of 1927.

PASSES AWAY.

After more than 40 years of public life, during which he was successively member of the British House of Commons, Prime Minister and member of the House of Lords, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith passed away yesterday. Asquith was 75 and had been in uncertain health for several years.

FORMING TEAMS FOR FINAL DRIVE

Each of Three Group Leaders Reports On Captains Secured.

The team organization for the intensive membership campaign and investment in the activities fund to finance the local Chamber of Commerce comparable to that of other cities of similar population to Peterborough is coming on apace now.

Father Paul Costello, major in charge of Division No. 2, reported his captains as follows: Dr. J. J. Craig, Doug. Loomis, A. J. Reynolds, John Crane, and Jack Primeau.

At the same time Charles Lacheur, major of Division No. 3, reported the following captains: J. A. McKone, H. L. Beal, W. L. Ferguson, W. H. Merrill, and D. C. Grant.

Chris. Graham, as major of Division No. 1, had reported Andrew Brown, Ross Dobbin, James Juby, C. H. Rogers and J. H. Seels as his captains.

To-day these captains are having a friendly rivalry in an attempt to enlist as many leaders as possible to aid them as lieutenants. Each captain is to select five helpers.

In commenting upon Peterborough before he left for Chicago this morning, Dr. Alexander Karr, who has been in close touch with the situation, said to Secretary Frank Stinson: "There is just one thing for Peterborough men to do now. Enlist a sales group large enough and enthusiastic enough to see every prospect and the thing is done. Of course folks must look on this as an investment and not as a charity.

"As for your budget, it is very small compared with other towns the size of yours. In fact your are only asking one-fourth as much as towns of like population in the States.

"Word from my friend Henry Clark, who is aiding in organizing a new Chamber of Commerce at Oshawa, says they are asking for as much money as Peterborough."

In the school questionaire replies, one lad created a ripple in the office, when he answered the query, "What can the Chamber of Commerce do for Peterborough?" by answering, "Beat Oshawa."

The interest in the results of the campaign among business and professional men generally is shown by the fact that letters have been sent out on the personal stationery of R. J. Kidd, Thomas Barrie, W. A. Richardson and F. D. Kerr, K.C. In addition, appeals have been made officially by President G. A. Gillespie, J. J. Turner, general chairman, James Dutton, chairman of the Activities Committee, and J. Wells Fraser, colonel of teams.

When they assemble for the hop off at the early bird breakfast at the Empress Hotel next Tuesday morning the sales group will number more than 100 leading citizens of the community intent on taking the first step in pushing Peterborough forward economically to the place her natural resources justify.

Debate On Budget Begins On Monday

OTTAWA, Ont., February 16 (Canadian Press). — Premier W. L. Mackenzie King announced in the House late yesterday afternoon that the debate on the Budget would begin on Monday afternoon. As soon as the Minister of Finance (Hon. J. A. Robb) completed his Budget speech this afternoon, the Prime Minister stated that resolutions of private members would occupy the rest of the day. As Thursday is private members' day, Premier King stated that the time lost to discussion of private members' resolutions to-day would be given at a later date in the session.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF LORD ASQUITH

All Leaders Speak of Distinguished Career of British Statesman.

JOIN IN SYMPATHY.

Was Great Britain's Premier at Beginning of World War.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—The Prime Minister at the opening of the House of Commons yesterday afternoon rose to suggest that the House should pause in the midst of its duties to pay a tribute to the memory of Lord Oxford and Asquith. The Prime Minister quoted from J. A. Spender's book, "The Public Life," in which the author had said that the Great War cut like a watershed across history and the men who took part in the life of the nations during that period would have to be considered a part. Mr. King reminded the House that Lord Oxford's career extended over the greater part of half a century and that he held the post of prime minister continuously for a longer period than any who had ever held that office.

As to his part in the war, Premier King quoted further from Mr. Spender's book, pointing out the burden of responsibility which weighed so heavily on the men of the time. This undoubtedly affected the constitution of the former prime minister of Great Britain and hastened his death. It was fitting that members of the Canadian Commons should join with the members of Westminster in extending sympathy to the people of Great Britain for the great void that had been created.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition, said that it fell to the leader of the House, the Prime Minister, to extend the sympathy of the people. On behalf of those who sat in Opposition he desired to join in the sympathy that had been expressed. Mr. Asquith had come into public life with none of the advantages which so often assist young men in Britain towards their career. He had been the architect of his own fortunes. He had developed his own natural ability by study and chosen the law as his profession. While still in the early thirties he had been elected to parliament from a Scottish constituency, which he had represented for nearly 30 years.

Will Engage in Similar Work in West Chicago Now.

DELIGHTED WITH CITY.

Dr. Alexander Karr, who has been in Peterborough the past ten days, speaking in connection with the Forward Peterborough Movement under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, left this morning for Chicago, where he begins a similar campaign for the West Chicago Association of Commerce. While here Dr. Karr spoke 39 times to groups ranging from small sales groups, clubs, lodges, schools, churches, to mass meetings. He was delighted with Peterborough, and plans coming back here next summer with his family to spend his holidays.

Later refreshments were served and an enjoyable social half hour spent.

Tax Reductions of $19,000,000 in 1928 Budget

Mr. Robb Comments On Prosperity of Country as He Announces Financial Plans For Coming Fiscal Year in the House of Commons.

NATIONAL DEBT GREATLY REDUCED IN PAST FEW YEARS, HE POINTS OUT

Yearly Reduction in Taxation Equally Important, Minister Declares — Thrift Necessary To Improve Condition of Country Further.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—Announcing a reduction in taxation estimated at nineteen millions, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, today presented his eagerly expected budget. It was a document of hopefulness and optimism. "A spirit of hopefulness has been developed," said Mr. Robb, as he announced his financial proposals to the House, "and as we entered the present calendar year one could not help but note that the leaders of industry and finance emphasized that the present prosperous conditions sprang from the solid growth and solvency of the basic industries of Canada.

With revenues now buoyant, there is a tendency to have the Dominion embark on many new ventures, as well as a tendency toward indiscriminate private speculation. We should not, however, forget our national debt. Work and thrift are the only sure roads to success. The generation that spent the money should not shirk its responsibilities. Further taxation reductions will become possible as Canada progresses, but national progress is dependent on the wholesome goodwill we practice towards one another."

Surplus for Year $54,000,000

Mr. Robb announced for the fiscal year ending March 31 next:

Estimated revenue $419,480,000.
Estimated expenditure $364,665,000.
Estimated surplus $54,815,000.

Deducting from this estimated surplus sixteen millions for the writing down of Soldier Land Settlement loans and other items, the net debt reduction for 1927-28 is estimated at $38,815,000. And during the five-year period ending March 31, 1928, Mr. Robb added, the net debt has been reduced $144,700,000.

Touching on the question of sinking funds, Mr. Robb declared he would welcome any workable plan that would ensure retirement of our national debt, but until Canada is nearer the pre-war rate of taxation, an annual reduction of taxes was as important as a reduction of the debt. "Our policy," he emphasized, "is to reduce both."

Trade Well Maintained

Canada's international trade was well maintained. The decrease in exports and the increase in imports he attributed principally to greater doestid demand. He had an important announcement to make in regard to Empire trade. Imports to secure the advantage of British preferential tariff must now be 25 per cent Empire labor and materials. Mr. Robb proposes to double this percentage. There will be similar increases in the percentages required on goods entering under the treaty rates and the intermediate tariff.

"In the budget speech of February 17, 1927, it was estimated that the net debt would be reduced by some $31,366,000. The public accounts recently tabled show that the net debt was actually reduced by $41,896,729.23, or some $10,500,000 more than estimated. This was due to the practice which has always been followed when estimating the revenues and expenditures.

"There should be no uncertainty as to the correctness of the public accounts of this Dominion, I recommended to the Treasury Board that an independent audit be made of the balance sheet of the public accounts as of March 31, 1924-25-26-27. The report of the auditors confirms the accuracy of the public accounts as submitted to Parliament and certified that the reduction in the net debt during the period in question was $105,942,498.65.

The Figures.

The outstanding feature of the Customs tariff amendments in the budget, it is officially announced, is the revision of the textile group. This entire group, comprising schedules relating to various textiles, has been re-classified and re-arranged. The basic raw materials have been made the basis of the new structure, with the result that the textile group now includes separate schedules covering cotton, wool, silk, and artificial silk, with separate schedules embracing flax, hemp, jute and similar products.

An almost identical arrangement of items is followed in all five sections, tending to greater simplicity, more logical structure, and more distinct divisions for statistical purposes.

Items of a general character but relating directly or indirectly to textiles have been brought in with the textile group and many obsolete phrases and words have been dropped from the verbiage of the schedules.

TAX REDUCTIONS.

Income tax, 10 per cent. reduction in personal income tax. Tax rate on corporations cut to 8 per cent. Sales tax, 25 per cent. reduction, i.e., rate cut from four to three per cent.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS.

Cottons, material reduction in a large range of household cottons.

Rates lowered on yarns. British preference widened.

Woollens duty reduction on mitts and all but more expensive lines of underwear, socks, sockings. Yarns for weaving free.

Preferential duty reduced on woollen goods imported in gray for dyeing and finishing.

Linen, British preference rates on finer grades reduced.

Re-classification of linens and of flax and jute products.

Textile machinery, on large part of importations, British preference duty reduced from ten to free, intermediate from ten to five.

Reduction in duty on press blankets, flake calcium chloride for road treating, non alcoholic.

Preparations for disinfecting, etc., and crude petroleum for refining, free till July 1, 1931. Rates on parts for fishing boat engines reduced. Nickel chromium for making electric resistance wire free.

HILDA PHILLIPS PRIZE ORATOR

Wins Contest Held By Queen Alexandra Home and School Association.

INTERESTING PROGRAM.

The announcement of an oratorical contest attracted an unusually large audience to the Queen Alexandra school last evening, when the kindergarten room, gay with valentine decorations proved far too small to accommodate the record crowd.

M. H. Park, principal, in welcoming those present, emphasized the fact that every teacher and almost all the pupils had contributed in some way, whether directly or indirectly, to the success of the concert.

The artistic program, done in water colors, were the mark of pupils under the supervision of Miss E. Eagleson.

The Home and School Association were responsible for an attractive table of home-made candy, which found a ready sale. Those in charge of the candy table were Mrs. Deyell, Mrs. Vance and Mrs. Kingdon, while little Ruth Deyell and Ruth Parnell sold sweets to the audience during the evening.

The senior chorus, directed by Mr. Park, and composed of thirty girls and boys from the higher grades, came first on the program, with three songs, "Oh Breathe Not His Name," "The Curfew Bells Are Ringing" and "Sweet and Low." The singing of these pupils was remarkable for distinct enunciation, fine shading and clarity of tone, the unaccompanied selections, sung in harmony, being especially good.

Then came the first part of the oratorical contest, the first speaker, Marion Wray, having chosen for her subject "Marco Polo."

Lloyd Parnell folowed with "Canada and the War," rather a big subject for a small boy, but Lloyd was equal to the occasion, as subsequent events proved.

An instrumental trio, "Grand Opera Selections," by Mrs. Westbye, Miss Mary Westbye and Eric Westbye, was well received, the audience insisting on an encore which was responded to with a medley of Irish Airs.

Little Annie Fletcher's recitation was a tremendously popular number, three recalls being accorded this versatile entertainer, who was obliged to secure the assistance of her sister to help her out with the encores.

The junior chorus, all girls, provided several delightful numbers, am-

MOTION ADVOCATING CONVERSION OF CANADIAN COAL INTO OIL IS GIVEN APPROVAL BY COMMONS

T. Kaiser Urges Government To Have Coal Sent To England For Test Purposes.

SOLVE FUEL PROBLEM.

Would Have Young Canadians Sent Abroad To Study This Work.

OTTAWA, Ont., February 16 (Canadian Press) — "The House of Commons to-day called upon the Government to consider the conversion of Canadian lignite and bituminous coal into crude oil. A motion of T. E. Kaiser (Conservative, Ontario) advocating steps with this end in view, was approved after brief debate."

Dr. Kaiser had started this discussion on Monday night when his speech was cut short by the adjournment. He urged the Government to have coal from Canada sent to Birmingham, England, and there tested as to its adaptability for the processes being used to convert coal into oil. He also wanted young Canadians to be sent abroad to study the latest developments in this work.

Speaking of scientific effort, Dr. Kaiser suggested that at the gateway of the Prairies a monument should be erected to Dr. Saunders for his work in wheat to show the world that there were victories of peace greater than conquests of war.

He believed that Canada was on the verge of a solution for the fuel problem by the conversion of lignite and bituminous coal.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) said that many things could be done in chemistry, but not always economically. He criticized the "mandatory character" of the resolution, as it would involve the Government in very dangerous expenditures.

H. C. Hocken (Conservative, Toronto West Centre) said the resolution only called for a reasonable investigation. It was well worth trying. If Germany had similar deposits of coal it would not hesitate to find out their complete value.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre) spoke briefly supporting the resolution, and believed it was the right direction in which to look for a solution to the coal question.

Made Investigation.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, declared he had the privilege of making an investigation and study of the whole subject matter of the resolution while in Europe last summer. In one plant alone over 1,200 chemists were busily engaged at the time of his visit. There were great possibilities in at least three or four experiments now under way in Europe. It was his desire, said Mr. Stewart, to learn what actually could be done in the way of experiments and what could be done in a commercial way. He would be pleased to have an appropriation provided in the estimates which would be used for the purpose of sending students abroad to make a scientific study of the treatment of coal. "I want to see every avenue of research explored," commented Mr. Stewart, "but believe we should exercise some care that we do not have any overlapping."

The information being obtained in England and Germany through the experiments now under way in those countries, would, he declared, be made available for the use of this country under a promise which he had received. It was possible to get the public of Canada "to back me up" in the necessary training of men whose work would be directed towards discovering processes other than those discovered in Europe, so that the common knowledge would be of benefit to all countries. For his part, he was willing to have ton weights of Canadian coal sent abroad for experimental purposes at the expense of the Federal Government.

Urges Development.

David Spence (Conservative, Parkdale) urged that an active program by the Government in the development of the coal resources of the country be adopted.

"It is all a question of the cost of crude oil from the wells," said Col. Thomas Cantley (Conservative, Pictou). With the present price so low, $1.50 a barrel on the Atlantic coast, it was not economically feasible to produce crude oil from shale, carbonite, or coal. He took exception to the suggestion that the coal companies in Canada were not keeping abreast with other countries in the development of methods for the regaining of oil from shale. For many years they had been doing this with the shale of his county, and as soon as the oil from the wells reached ten cents a gallon, millions of tons of shale in this country would be treated.

H. E. Spencer (U.F.A., Battle River) explained the difficulty of securing a market for the great amount of gas which is developed by the process of recovering oil from coal.

Mr. Kaiser's notice of motion was finally accepted by the House, with the change that instead of calling on the Government to immediately initiate steps to utilize coal for crude oil production, it called upon the administration to consider such an undertaking.

DEFENSE OPENS SECOND TRIAL

Counsel Determined To Save Hickman From Second Conviction.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—A stubborn fight to save William Edward Hickman from a second death sentence was begun by defense attorneys in Superior Court here yesterday, with the selection of a jury to try the youth and his former pal, Welby Hunt, 16, for the murder of C. Ivy Thoms, druggist, in an attempted hold-up.

Hickman went to trial 24 hours after he had been sentenced to death for the kidnapping and slaying of Marian Parker.

Determination of Hickman's counsel, headed by Jerome Walsh, young Kansas City attorney, to contest every step of the way, which District Attorney Asa Keyes declared will lead Hickman to the gallows, was evidenced in the examination of prospective jurors and an attempt to delay the trial which proved unsuccessful. Fixed opinions expressed by several talesmen caused their dismissal.

Richard Cantillon, associate of Walsh, declared a jury would not be accepted by the defense until all that side's peremptory challenges had been exhausted.

Judge Elliott Craig ruled that the jury chosen will sit in the two trials which probably will be necessitated by Hickman's double-barreled plea of "not guilty," and "not guilty by reason of insanity."

If found guilty of murder on the first plea, Hickman will be tried again to determine his sanity.

Hunt, who is represented by A. Gray Gilmer, Oklahoma City attorney, faced trial with the knowledge that the death penalty cannot be exacted in his case because of his youth. It had been indicated he might change his plea to guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the court, but his attorney apparently decided to take his chances with a jury.

Amery Honored at "Welcome Home" Dinner On His Return From Tour of Dominions

LONDON, February 16 (Canadian Press Cable). — Members of all parties united under Right Hon. J. H. Whitley, Speaker of the House of Commons here last night at a "welcome home" dinner to Right Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, who has just recently returned from a lengthy tour of the Dominions.

Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, former Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, in the Labor Government, in proposing a toast to the guest, divertingly recounted how when his party for an all too brief period, ruled but did not govern, he set out himself to visit the Dominions. He went to South Africa, but on the way back all his pleasure was dissolved by the news that the Government was punctured. Mr. Amery on the other hand had returned to find the results of by-elections not so bad after all.

Responding in the same humorous spirit, Mr. Amery described himself as a dove returning with olive branches to find his colleagues had kept the ark well pitched and floating high. He said the whole problem of Imperial economic development had taken a new and immensely hopeful aspect which he believed would continue on less of a party basis than in pre-war times.

Touching momentarily on foreign relations, Mr. Amery said that if any of the Dominions found it desirable in particular circumstances to establish their own machinery for conducting affairs with particular foreign powers, then the rest of the British Empire could trust that Dominion to exercise no less a sense of responsibility to the Empire as a whole than the British Government itself had always exercised.

WAR VETERANS HONOR LATE GENERAL HAIG

Legion Members and Others Attend Memorial Service at Lakefield.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

Rev. W. J. Creighton Recalls Distinguished Career of Great British Soldier.

LAKEFIELD, February 16. — A memorial service to the late Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in Frances, Field-Marshal Haig, was held in St. John's Church on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Just before the hour a little group of returned men representing the Canadian Legion's Lakefield Branch, marched to the church, with the president, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, at the head. The burial service of the church was read by the rector, Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., who also gave an address.

Mr. Creighton spoke of how modern methods had robbed war of much of the glamor and romance which formerly were associated with it, and recalled Lord Lytton's "The Last of the Barons," where one man and his son, after all their army had been slain, stood all day back to back fighting the King's army. There is a tremendous appeal in this conflict of mediaeval days. Modern warfare is very different, and none of us desire a return of war, but the nation and the church would be infinitely poorer if men did not willingly go to the defence of the right.

Continued Work.

Earl Haig, a gallant British general, a Christian, and a patriot, did not, when peace came, lay down his arms and feel his duty done, but in the years since the Armistice he had labored unceasingly for the betterment of the condition of the returned men, disabled and fit. The British Empire Service League, of which the Canadian Legion is a part, is due to his work. He has fought a good fight, he has finished the course, he has kept the faith, and God will give to him a crown of life.

During the service the choir sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the favorite hymn of the late Field-Marshal, and also "Unto the hills around" and "The Saints on earth in concert sing," with the Nunc Dimittis as a recessional.

The service was impressive in its very simplicity, it was not in any sense a display, but merely a tribute paid to one who always upheld the highest traditions of the Empire, by those who had served under his command, who honored him as a brave general and who loved him as a friend.

The Municipal Council was represented by Councillors Doidge, Harrison, and Lillecrap, and there were also present a number of citizens who wished to honor a man whose citizenship to his country was in service and whose body rests under the open sky of his beloved Scotland.

DELAY REFUSED.

WELLAND, Ont., Feb. 15. Canadian Press. — W. M. German, counsel for Guiseppe Italionno, charged with blackmail and extortion, asked for a postponement of the case shortly after it had been opened at the assizes before Mr. Justice McAvoy to-day. The request came because a letter had been read in court threatening the prisoner that "they would get him and make it worse for him if he told anything about their society, or admitted that they had forced him to extort blackmail" from Fred Mange, the Niagara Falls shoemaker. The letter which was sent from Buffalo, declared the accused to have been a fool for being nabbed.

His Lordship did not consider that any harm was done or that sufficient reason had arisen for a postponement of the case.

Mount Pleasant

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 16. — Elmer Henry, of Orange Corners, last week slipped on the ice at the pump stand and struck his head against the pump with such force as to cause concussion.

It was not until he had driven with his sister, Mrs. Herbert Parker, to Mount Pleasant, that he found his injury painful. Dr. Earle, of Omemee, attended the injured man.

CHICAGO TO GET NEVILLE FIRST

Additional Charges From Several Cities Lodged Against Former Canadian.

BAIL IS RAISED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16.—John H. G. N. Neville is still being held in jail here on charges in connection with alleged fraudulent stock deals.

On word received from Canadian immigration authorities, Neville's bail was raised from $500 to $5,000.

Detectives from Chicago arrived in Sacramento to arrange extradition for Neville. He is wanted in Chicago on a $25,000 larceny charge and as a fugitive from justice.

Despatches were received from New York, containing pictures and fingerprints.

Benjamin Edwards, music teacher of Los Gaios, who furnished police with information regarding Neville, appeared in police court yesterday when Neville's case was called.

The case was put over until today, pending arrival of the Chicago officers.

MAY OPERATE IN DOMINION

Reported U. S. Steel Corporation To Employ Thousands in Canadian Operations.

BUILD NEW FACTORIES.

MONTEAL, Que., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—The Montreal Star in a front page story yesterday, says: "The president of the United States Steel corporation is given as the authority for the announcement that this huge company has resolved to locate in Canada and build branch factories for that Canadian market and for export. The schedule, it is said, will cover all lines made by the companies operating now in the Dominion. The payroll, it is claimed, will cover some thousands of employees.

"Associates close to the president state that this move has long been contemplated and has been kept in abeyance in the expectation that the Canadian tariff would be amended with a view to better protection, but they are going to take the plunge as it is. Preliminary operations will be undertaken immediately. The location is at Ojibway, near Windsor, Ontario, where a plant has been erected and a townsite laid out for some years, although it has never been operated. It is now planned to extend and operate this plant—with branches elsewhere."

MINES.

F. G. Oke & Company wire as follows:

TORONTO, February 16. — Features of the mining market this morning were again those of Pend O'Reille and Sudbury Basin, which continued their rapid advance to materially higher levels. The manner in which stock is being purchased seems to indicate that much higher levels will eventually be recorded for these stocks.

We are informed that Diamond drilling on Amulet is still progressing in a most satisfactory manner and that indicated ore reserves are steadily increasing as exploration proceeds. It would not be surprising at any time to hear of some estimates of indicated ore reserves, and we are of the opinion that when such an estimate is given, and appreciable advance will be recorded in the stock.

Some reports are current regarding the preponderance of massive zinc deposits at the Abana mine which seemed a little disappointing to those who have previously imagined that copper gold ore was the predominating factor on the mine.

However, we are very reliably informed that the copper gold ore deposits of Abana are regarded quite as important if not more so than the zinc deposition on the 300-foot level. The company is driving a drift on the 300-foot level to cut the diabase dyke which is believed to fork at a point about 400 feet from the shaft, one limb going in a south-easterly direction and the other switching off very nearly to the south.

As a result of this fork in the diabase it is supposed that the copper gold continues with the intrustive going to the south while the zinc continues in a straight south-easterly direction from present workings. Exploratory results and diamond drilling have indicated very strongly that this is the case. Of course, the diabase dyke itself is not expected to be productive of ore, but once drifting has passed through, further cross cutting will be done to again pick up the ore bodies both of zinc and copper gold. Also we are informed that the 550 horse-power Deisel engine which is to furnish power for the property pro tem will soon be operating. This will undoubtedly permit a much larger campaign of exploration and development and also increase the speed of this work very materially.

Much material has been shipped to the property for the construction of the concentrator which is expected to be in operation some time during 1928. We are firmly of the opinion that Abana constitutes a most promising speculation at current prices, particularly in view of the large amount of high-grade ore being blocked out, and assuring the property of many years of production. Also the Abana property is regarded by mining engineers and others in a position to appreciate the splendid development in this new mining area, as only scratched, and that the possibilities are enormous.

Wheat and Corn Advance Sharply

CHICAGO, Feb. 16. Canadian Press. — Sharp advances and active buying both in wheat and corn took place early to-day with wheat affected by a surprise upturn in the Liverpool quotations. Unfavorable weather for the corn crop movement continued and July corn jumped to above $1, the first time since October for any future delivery. Opening 7-8 cents to 2 1-8c, up, wheat held near to the initial figures. Corn started 3-8c to 1 1-2c higher and displayed persistent strength. The opening prices were: Wheat, March 132 1-3; May 131 7-8; corn, March 95½; May 98¾; oats, March 54¾, May 55¾.

Toronto Trade Quiet; Prices Move Lower

TORONTO, February 16 (Canadian Press). — Trading continued very quiet with an easier price tendency on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Steel of Canada was the weakest spot in an easy list with a loss of three at 191. Canadian Oil softened to 59½, Page Hersey to 87, Massey-Harris to 40½, Seagram to 23¼, and British-American Oil to 35. Walkers eased a quarter at 60. International Nickel was a steady feature around 92.

Pend O'Reille Continues Its Sensational Advance

TORONTO, Feb. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Pend O'Reille continued its sensational advance on the standard mining exchange to-day, selling another $2.70 higher in the morning session to touch 20.00. The movement was steadily upward. Sudbury Basin, which acompanied it for a while, was outdistanced, gaining only 75 cents more to 18.75. The Porcupine and Kirkland issues were fairly steady, though Wright Hargreaves sagged 14 at 4.51. The rest of the list was generally steady with San Antonio, Sylvanite and the cheaper issues firm. Noranda was a weak spot with a half dollar recession at 19.40.

Recession Is General In New York Market

NEW YORK, February 16 (Canadian Press). — The stock market, following a brief upturn after the opening to-day, began to head downward and various oils, motor, rubber, and miscellaneous shares retreated into new low ground for the year. Early strength was based on the buying of Public Utilities on the Senate's rejection of the Walsh proposal of a Senatorial investigation of superpower projects.

Pools which had been successful recently in pushing up their favorites, appeared to be backing away from offerings as a number of closely controlled issues showed recessions of three to five points. The general retreat was orderly, however, and confined to a point or so in most of the high-grade industrials, such as United States Steel and General Motors.

A drop of nine points was recorded by Midland Steel Products Preferred, and the weakness involved some of the dividend paying railroads. Nickel Plate lost more than three points. A few of the earlier strong public utilities were able to retain their gains when selling gathered force in other sections of the list.

MEMBER ASKS ABOUT CONTROL

W. G. Medd Wants Number of Convictions in First Period.

TORONTO, February 16 (Canadian Press).—Further questions concerning Government control of liquor sale appear on the order paper of the Ontario Legislature to-day. W. G. Medd (Progressive, Huron South) asks how many convictions for illegal sale were recorded from the inception of the Act last June up to October 31 last, and how many seizures of liquor were made in this period and also what proportion of the seized liquor was from the Government stores.

APPEAL BOARD HEARS SOLDIERS

Nine Cases From This District Come Before the Commissioners.

BUSY SESSIONS.

In the Council Chamber of the City Buildings, there was held this morning a Court of Appeal on Soldiers' Pensions by three members of the Federal Appeal Board, sent here from Ottawa for the purpose.

The Commissioners — Col. C. W. Belton, C. B. Reilly, and Dr. H. A. Bowie—were quite busy all morning, and there will be another session tomorrow morning. Before them today, the cases were presented by two men, namely, J. V. Conroy, of Toronto, who is the official Soldiers' advisor ,and Harry Bray, also of Toronto, who is of the Soldiers' Aid Commission of Ontario.

From Peterborough and vicinity, there were nine cases slated for presentation when the court opened, and also an appeal by an ex-member of the Imperial forces against a decision of the British Ministry of Pensions. It is interesting to note that this Commission holds sessions in forty-five or fifty centres throughout the Dominion, during the year when a sufficient number of cases are docketed to warrant the holding of such a court.

FEW CONTAGIOUS DISEASES IN CITY

That Peterborough is one of the healthiest, if not the healthiest city of its size in the Province, is the opinion of Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, voiced in conversation with The Examiner this morning. "At the present time," said he, "we have but three cases of chickenpox on record, there is only one case of smallpox in the local Isolation Hospital, and that case is from Norwood, while but two of the three cases of scarlet fever are city cases. The other is from Buckhorn."

HILDA PHILLIPS

ong which were "Flag Of Our Nation" and "Sunny Sue nad Doleful Lou."

The second part of the contest followed. Hilda Phillips spoke on "All For Three Cents," telling in an interesting and concise manner how newspapers are produced.

Jean Stewart's topic, "Laura Secord," was also well handled.

A recitation, "Long Ago," was given in charming style by Joy Walker. Elizabeth Harrison's two vocal numbers, "Maggie, the Cows Are in the Corn" and "Ma Curly-Headed Babby"; also Robert White's recitation, "The Incentive to Cleanliness," received well-merited applause.

An outstanding feature of the program was the physical drill given by twelve boys, trained by Mr. Dearborn. The precision and steadiness displayed in these exercises were undoubtedly the result of hard work on the part of the boys and their trainer.

The concluding number, a group of three songs, "A Mother's Song," "The Shepherd's Song" and "Old King Cole,' 'were sung by the senior chorus, after which the decision of the judges of the contest was given and prizes awarded.

Acting as judges were C. H. Edwards and A. Macdonald of the Normal College, and L. J. Pettit of the Collegiate Institute. To Mr. Macdonald fell the task of announcing the winners and presenting the prizes—Miss Hilda Phillips first, and Lloyd Parnell second.

A very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem. Ice cream and cake were served later by the ladies of the Home and School Association, with Mrs. Staunton and Mrs. Hales in charge of the refreshments.

PROVISION FOR CHILD TRAINING BY INSURANCE

Dr. Rockwell Tells of Selling Policies To Provide Funds For Education.

UNDERWRITERS' MEETING.

Address Deals With Many Phases of What To Tell Prospect.

One theme in Dr. Rockwell's address to the life underwriters' conference this morning on the subject "What to tell your Prospect," should have been of special interest to the father who is ambitious for his boy's education and eventual success The topic was that of selling a man an educational policy for his boy.

"Call his attention to the trend of the times," Dr. Rockwell advised. "Point out the inceasing opportunities for young men who are able to handle money. The schools of business and commerce have more applicants than they can begin to accommodate. That condition is typical of to-day, just as tallow candles were typical of the days when our fathers were boys. It is a trend the thoughtful father will realize when it is indicated to him. There is not one of you men here, I think who hasn't a better education than your father had. Point that fact out as a reason for providing the boy with a better education than the father himself received.

If the man is inclined to be materialistic show him that education has profits and that profits are a direct reflection of a man's education."

What Engineers Learned.

Dr. Rockwell quoted from the finding of a research made by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers the outcome of a large number of young men who were given various terms of education. The first group were those with a common school education, who then went out and got a job; the second had high school experience, and then went into a shop and learned a trade; the third had manual high school training in certain trades, and the fourth had technical collegiate training.

Of group one, two per cent. got good jobs, but seventeen per cent. were always out of work; industrial unrest was more or less common in this group, and they had a gloomy outlook on life.

Group two soon reached a level of earnings. They received so much an hour and their wage scale remained at that level. The wage scale of the third group was a little higher, but group four never reached a fixed level. These findings apply to the entire body as a whole in each group and not to individuals.

The Period of Employment.

The duration of the earning period was affected. When the labor capacity of group one was reached they were turned out. The second group worked a little later in life, and their usefulness then ceased; the third group averaged $2200 a year, with a tapering off in their working period, and the fourth group never tapered off. There was no arbitrary limit to their period of productiveness.

A life insurance policy would best provide for the education of a boy, because it would meet the home conditions when the family was grown up when its standard of living was perhaps higher, and when the earning power of the father might be beginning to decline.

Why should a man pay the whole cost, say $5000 of a boy's education, in virtually a lump sum out of the family treasury, when he could by an insurance policy pay at the rate of four per cent. on the major cost, and without interest, over a period of years.

"In regard to the education of a boy, the father must be ready when the boy is ready," said Dr. Rockwell. Otherwise there is the temptation of immediate earning.

A Contract by the Father.

"The father who takes out a policy to provide for his son's education can tell his boy: "I have a contract here by which I'll be ready to pay for your education when you are ready to begin." That boy is not likely to waste time picking daisies along the path of life; he will have an objective, and an incentive ahead of him, a goal to shoot at."

Dr. Rockwell derided the father who would permit his eighteen year old son to make unaided his own decisions as to his future. "What does the boy of 18 know about life?" he remarked. "A boy of that age has only likes and prejudices. He has no judgment. The boy of that age needs friendly guidance."

I. P. MacNab of the Dominion Life conducted the morning's closing "case discussion." William Boulton was the chairman of the morning session, and J. F. H. Wallace presided this afternoon The community singing was just as good as ever this morning. It improves with repetition, and Dr. Fricker of the Mendelssohn choir, Toronto, whose concerts are being held this week, might find excellent base and tenor material among the eighty or more insurance men who open their sessions in choral mood.

THOSE WANDERING BALLOTS.

There may be little or there may be much in the ballot sensation sprung in the Legislature by W. E. N. Sinclair, the Liberal leader, but at least there is enough in the mystery of why ballots intended for use in the Provincial election of 1926 should be found on an Ottawa street nearly a year after to justify an inquiry.

Rightly our election laws are very rigid in regard to the necessity for accounting for ballot papers; they should be, as Mr. Sinclair remarked, regarded as sacred, and it is advisable to endeavor to find out how ballots printed for a general Provincial election could be so carelessly handled that nineteen of them were found on the street months after.

THE HOLLINGER PROBE.

With the desire of the miners of the Porcupine district that the investigation into the Hollinger disaster shall be an open one with the workers given representation there will be every sympathy.

The appointment of T. Ernest Godson, K.C., Judge of the Mining Court, as a Royal Commissioner to inquire into the tragedy will doubtless be satisfactory to the miners as well as to the public generally, especially in view of the Premier's promise that the investigation will be as thorough and far-reaching as possible.

It is to be hoped that the probe will be carried on in public, as the mine-workers wish, and that every opportunity will be given to those with any useful information to impart to present their facts before the Commissioner.

The immunity from serious accidents enjoyed by Ontario mines has been shattered by the Hollinger disaster, and the sense of security heretofore felt by the men who go underground has been replaced by a feeling that steps must be taken to make such a tragedy impossible.

The inquiry will fail if it does not reveal the cause of the disaster, and the steps that must be taken to prevent a repetition.

KEEPING THEM AT HOME.

Do you know that it costs $10,500 to raise a boy or girl to the age of 21 years just for food, clothing and shelter?

That the figures recently given out by the Department of Immigration to the effect that 274,000 Canadians had gone to the United States in three years represented an investment of $2,877,000,000 on the part of Canadian parents?

That in addition to the cost of raising children to be 21, that the community has invested an average of $700 in the education of this group, or an additional $191,800,000, making a total of $3,026,800,000, that has been put into developing citizens for the States?

Suppose, to be fair, we admit that one-half of them come back to Canada, which is doubtful, that leaves the figures at the astounding sum of $1,008,000,000 a year, or a dead loss to Canada of $504,000,000 in money alone.

This sum, if made available through the Chamber of Commerce, would pay the Canadian war debt in 20 years. This hegira costs each Canadian $100 per annum. Add to this children and children's children and see where it ends.

Securing this annual crop of Canadian citizens to the States is fine business for them.

Youth with a common language, common ideals, similar education, all secured ready for citizenship, without a single worry about training, education or morals.

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has all this in mind when it is conducting a campaign to make it a more effective institution, through adequate finance first, that it may more effectively grapple with this problem of keeping Canadian men and money at home.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT.

The Citizens' Research Institute, which for many years has been issuing a cost of municipal government report dealing with the larger cities in Canada, has decided to prepare a similar report covering smaller Canadian cities, and the first of these reports gives some interesting information in regard to Peterborough as well as to other cities of around the same size.

The average expenditure in 1926 from local revenue of all the centres considered, which included a Western, an Ontario and a Quebec and Eastern group, was $42.70 per capita, while the average for the smaller cities of Ontario alone was $43.24 per capita.

Peterborough's per capita expenditure stood well below this figure, being $36.02.

The per capita municipal expenditure classified under the head of main activities show that Peterborough spent in 1926 $14.36 per capita on education, standing seventh lowest out of 21 Ontario cities in this respect. Belleville, with $10.08 per capita, was the lowest in the Province and Walkerville, with $22.92, the highest.

So far as the protection of personal property was concerned Peterborough was one of the most expensive smaller cities in the Province for the year under review. Fifteen Ontario cities paid less for this service than we did.

The per capita expenditure under this head in Peterborough was $4.99, a figure only surpassed by Fort William, Port Arthur, Sarnia, St. Catharines and Walkerville.

On health and sanitation we were again high, Brantford, Guelph, Kitchener, Oshawa and St. Catharines alone out of the group of 21 cities showing a higher per capita expenditure than that in this city, $2.71 per capita.

When it came to providing recreation facilities, however, Peterborough saved money—in fact, spent less per capita in this department than all but four of the cities studied.

We paid only 36 cents per head of population on recreation, and Belleville with 22 cents, Chatham with 20 cents, Ford City with 5 cents, Kingston with 32 cents and Sault Ste. Marie with 11 cents per capita were the only cities to pay less.

Brantford, Fort William, Galt, Guelph, Niagara Falls and Walkerville all spent over $1.00 per capita in providing their citizens with means for healthful exercise and enjoyment, Walkerville being the highest with $1.53 per capita.

SAFETY, NOT MORE SPEED.

Yesterday The Times-Journal published a cut of the new British "Wonder Car," built to defend the speed record now held by Captain Seagrave and challenged by United States contestants. The announcement, made by Sir Charles Wakefield, the other day, that he is prepared to donate substantial prizes to the driver who betters the Seagrave time of 203 miles an hour, made at Daytona, will doubtless stimulate both the attack and defence, if any additional stimulant is required. Seagrave drove his famous car at a rate that would land a St. Thomas passenger in London in little over five minutes, or in Toronto in about forty minutes.

This leads The Stratford Beacon-Herald to remark that from a purely mechanical or sporting angle, it may be interesting to see whether it is possible to travel any faster than Seagrave and do so without overturning the car. But, apart from that consideration, it does appear that Sir Charles Wakefield is looking at the question from the wrong angle. The great need today is for the development and perfecting of contrivances that will cut down the casualty list that automobiles are leaving in their wake. Looking over the announcements of the 1928 models, one reads in many cases that the engine has been re-designed so that it will develop greater power; other changes have been made which result in a much faster "pick-up," and so on. More power, more pick-up, more everything else—all these things put together mean more speed. They mean that they will cover the distance between the car and the pedestrian with greater alacrity; they mean that when they strike anything they are going to have more striking power.

If all these mechanical possibilities are going to be placed at the disposal of hundreds of thousands of drivers all over the country, a situation is being created that calls for well-directed effort toward conserving life and limb. It seems to us that the whole attention of designers should be directed toward greater safety, better driving, more perfect braking, and the creation of a state of mind that regards an accident and the taking of a human life more as a crime than an accident. Not how fast can they travel, but how safely can they go. The figures in the casualty list have been mounting steadily as the number of cars increases. If there are to be further prizes offered, they should not be for the glorification of speed.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

OUR TRADE WITH UNCLE SAM.

The census bureau has estimated that there will be nearly 124,000,000 Americans in 1930. The census never gets 'em all, either in the count or the estimate, as some of us have long suspected; and as the experience of the second conscription in 1918 indicated, but the American population will have grown in this decade by a number almost equal to twice the population of Canada.

The Canadians bought from us last year $835,878,000 worth of goods, or two-thirds as much as all the 900,000,000 of Asiatics purchased. One Canadian customer is worth 60 Orientals. The 6,000,000 Australians bought about as much from us as the 400,000,000 or 600,000,000 Chinese. The 9,000,000 Canadians bought only $5,000,000 less than the 40,000,000 people of Britain.

The nearer any people are to ourselves in type and stage of social and economic development the more they buy, apparently. This in itself suggests how much more important to American industrialists is an 18,000,000 population gain in the home market than any possible gain in exports. And the 18,000,000 addition to the home market from 1920 to 1930 represents a greater proportion of people already adjusted to American living and buying standards, and sending a smaller proportional amount of money abroad in immigrants' remittances, than our population gain in any recent decade.

There is another thing to be deduced from the foreign trade figures. In course of time Canada and Australia will become industrialized like ourselves. On the other hand, Europe is reverting from over-industrialization, as our diminished exports of meat products to the old countries demonstrate.

It is inevitable that as time goes on the relative importance of our trade with old Europe and with younger Europes, like Canada, Australia and South Africa, will grow less, even in the face of absolute increases in the interchange of goods. Our foreign trade will include a greater relative amount of exchange of our finished goods for the raw stuffs of the tropics and the Orient, countries of vast resources and great trade potentialities, truly, but limited now, and probably to be limited for many centuries, by low individual purchasing power and low productivity of human labor.

Our financial advances to such countries, and they have been great and are growing, bring no problem of repayment in their train, because as a rule their balance of trade is against us now and will remain so for a long time.

Our population needs their raw products more than their people need our finished goods, many of which they must be educated to use.

Our financial advances to Europe—extended back over a trade route which is of declining relative importance in the sum total of world trade—do bring problems of repayment. Will we ever be repaid, or will we continue indefinitely to acquire more or less tenuous liens upon and property titles to the capital assets of our debtors?

If America, Europe and the whole world continue to increase their sums of wealth and income—if this rate of wealth and income increase is speeded up as it can be by the intelligent capitalism of the respective countries—we will be repaid, for the reason that the amount of the debts will become so small relative to the income of both Europe and America that repayment will bring no disturbance to the economic machinery on either side. —Chicago Tribune.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Where did the wandering ballots come from?" is a question that may be added to the list of unsolved mysteries.

Crossing a street in Peterborough yesterday was more difficult than Lindbergh found it in crossing the Atlantic.

Now that the party leaders have had their say, the debate on the Speech from the Throne in the Legislature should be allowed to collapse.

One by one the great figures of the World War are passing from the stage. The death of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, closely following that of Earl Haig, removes another of Britain's war-time heroes.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, February 16 (Canadian Press). — There was some demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba No. 4 wheat here yesterday, and a small business was done, but apart from this the trade was slow. Argentine corn prices were firm at $1.09 per bushel, ex-store. Canadian Western oats ruled steady.

A feature of the flour trade was the weaker feeling that developed for spring wheat grades, and prices were reduced ten cents per barrel. The demand was confined to small lots. The undertone to the winter wheat situation was easy, but there was no change in prices.

The millfeed trade was fairly active, and the undertone was steady. A moderate business was done in standard grades of rolled oats, and prices were steady.

The weakness that developed in the market for fresh eggs on Thursday was again the feature of the trade yesterday, and prices scored a further decline of one to two cents per dozen. This was attributed to the mild weather prevailing and the prospects for increased receipts in the near future. The demand was fair. The only change in prices for storage eggs was a further reduction of two cents per dozen for firsts. The receipts were 608 cases.

The demand for all grades of potatoes continued good and prices were unchanged.

The market for imported beans was without any new feature to note, prices being firmly maintained under a fairly good inquiry. Sales of odd cars of choice white hand-picked were made at $3.00 per bushel, ex-track, and the smaller quantities at $3.20 per bushel, ex-store.

A feature of the butter trade is the fact that Eastern townships' pasteurized creamery butter is now commanding a premium of fully ¼c per pound over New Zealand butter. The tone of the local market was stronger yesterday, and prices scored a further advance of ¼c to ½c per pound. The demand was steady. The receipts were nine packages.

The cheese trade continued inactive, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 85 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 16 (Canadian Press). — Brisk new upturns in the corn market yesterday lifted values in some cases to the highest price level yet this season. Only 84 cars of corn were received in Chicago, and country offerings were small, whereas demand here was persistent for corn to be delivered at once.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, ⅝c to 1⅛c higher, wheat ¼c to ½c off, oats at a shade decline to ⅛c to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 10 cents setback to an equal gain.

Activity formed the rule in the corn market throughout the day, but profit-taking on the part of recent buyers kept prices tending downward until near the finish. Increased speculative buying then set in, and the close was at the topmost figures reached.

Evidence that the corn market is looked upon by many traders as by no means a one-sided affair was shown in the attention given at times to the fact that corn prices are about 17 cents a bushel higher than a year ago, notwithstanding estimates that the crop is one hundred million bushels larger. Notice was also taken of indications that hogs are being fed at a loss, and that corn has risen to within 33 cents of the price of wheat.

Wheat prices tended to sag most of the time yesterday, influenced by an unexpected decline in Liverpool quotations and by prospects of large shipments from Argentina, as well as rain or snow over domestic winter wheat territory. Besides, the world's available wheat supply increased 7,275,000 bushels for the week. The oats market swayed with corn.

For the most part, provisions were easier on account of selling induced by large receipts of hogs and by 10,000,000 pounds February increase of the Chicago stock of lard.

REMEMBER THE FLOOD

Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—How many of you good people waded through the slush Tuesday evening? Wasn't it grand? And aren't you glad the city fathers stopped the people from cleaning off their sidewalks?

Don't give up hope, folks, because you're going to get plenty of it between now and Summer, and you can either walk on the sidewalk, road or people's lawns; please yourself, 'cause nobody cares, anyway.

If you find yourself getting beyond your depth, just yell out and they may send you the snow plough to plough you out.

In case we don't have any Summer this year, and the slush remains, it might be as well to have the odd botttle of cough medicine on hand and a pair of rubber boots.

Remember the Johnstown flood, and think, it MIGHT be worse.

—L.T.P.

Editor, The Examiner:

Mr. Burnham, the writer of the recent article in your columns entitled, "Present Day Montreal" has replied to my letter in your issue of Feb. 11th. He has no explanation to offer, however, for the 50 per cent. increase in arrests for drunkenness in 1927 compared with 1926. Neither does he deny that dives, blind pigs, and rum joints are flourishing in Montreal, and that they are being frequented by young girls of good families. Instead, he says: "It is a matter of common talk amongst men that women and girls of all classes, everywhere, etc., etc." I wonder what the women say to that? But lo and behold, he does not blame liquor for the conditions, but the women themselves. Same old story, blame Eve for everything.

Will Mr. Burnham say that women would sell themselves body and soul in such places if no booze was in existence? Perhaps he will say that illicit liquor is responsible for the existence of such dives. If that is the case, whether it is illicitly manufactured or trafficed in, bang goes the argument that Government control can wipe out bootlegging. If on the other hand it is Government liquor that is being bootlegged, what becomes of the argument that Government control controls?

I shall not write again, so Mr. Burnham may have the last word if he wishes, but he will have difficulty convincing the thinking public.

INSTITUTE HOLDS RE-UNION SOCIAL

Madoc People Enjoy Pleasant Evening in Music, Games and Dancing.

MADOC, Feb. 16.—The annual re-union and Valentine social of the Madoc Women's Institute was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Caskey. The guests arrived in truly old-fashioned style, by the sleigh load, and were warmly welcomed by the genial host and hostess.

The first hour was devoted to Institute business, and the monthly meeting of February was held, Mrs. E. West presiding, in the absence of the president. A very much enjoyed sing-song formed the first number of the program. Reports of committees followed, and the ladies' orchestra contributed several numbers to the great enjoyment of all. Roll call was responded to by "Where I first met my husband,' and was very generally adhered to, causing much amusement to all present.

Miss H. E. Foster was then called on for a talk on "Canadian Men of Note." Miss Foster gave a most interesting review of men of note, including among others, Banting, Bennett, Mulock, Canon Scott, Patrick Burns, Sir Robert Holt, Lampman, Bliss Carman, G. D. Roberts, Ralph Connor, Robert Service, and McCrae, finishing up with that most interesting naturalist, Jack Miner. As each one mentioned formed the theme for a note on the birthplace, education, and interesting facts of the life and history, a most instructive and enjoyable half hour was spent.

At the close of the paper, several members spoke in hearty appreciation and on motion of Mrs. C. N. Whytock, seconded by Mrs. Duncan Brown, a very very hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Miss Foster for her very interesting talk.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the host and hostess, also to the musicians and all contributing to the success of the evening.

Progressive euchre and dancing was the order of the evening after the meeting was over, and all present joined in these or in other forms of amusement. The old time dances were thoroughly enjoyed by one group, while in another room dancing in its more modern form was equally enjoyed by the younger crowd.

A Valentine exchange was a source of much interest and amusement. Flinch, checkers and puzzles kept others busy, and the music furnished by the piano, violins, and especially that of the Orthophonic Victrola, which was kindly loaned by A. L. Cononr, added zest to the gay evening.

WEDDING BELLS

CLELAND—WHITE.

A very happy wedding took place at the Parsonage at Fraserville on Wednesday, Feb. 15, the Rev. H. W. Foley officiating, when Miss Thirza White of Otonabee became the wife of Mr Benson Cleland of Halcourt, in the Peace River district of Alberta. Mrs Ivan Romanoff of Fraserville, sister of the bride, served a dainty luncheon to the wedding party and guests. Mr. and Mrs. Cleland will spend a short time visiting with friends in Toronto, Peterborough and Ottawa before starting for their home at the end of the steel in the Peace River Country, where Mr. Cleland is a large farmer. He is a neighbor of Hermon Trelle of Wembly, the world's champion wheat and oat grower.

height of the passages varied considerably, these appeared to be approximately seven feet between the walls and about the same from floor to roof. In the centre of the floor is the narrow gauge trolley line, leading to all parts of the workings, while overhead are the compressed air lines, the wires for the electric lighting system and for operating the trolley. Hollinger is a wet mine and this was amply disclosed in the streamlets that flowed along the sides of the light railway, and dripped down the rock walls. It was not until No. 11 cross cut was reached, that evidence of the fire began to be be revealed. The smell of burnt wood was strong although there were no signs of charred timber. But in No. 12 cross cut a few hundred feet further on, the full extent of the blaze was exposed.

Walls Covered with Soot.

The roof of the tunnel rose higher, and on all sides the walls were thick with soot, a deep coating stretching everywhere. No. 55A stope is about 60 feet or so up from M54. It is a yawning cavernous opening in the rock which extends inward for about 40 feet and downward to the next level about one hundred feet below. The stope is excavated from the solid rock as the miners follow the ore body, the rock being dragged back upward to the level. Originally however the opening into the stope was no more than a small hole. Arthur Brigham, the general manager, had told the newspapermen on Monday, that a mine inspector could pass and repass it continually without detecting the contents below.

The work of cooling the rock was in process. The miners were operating hoses and tons of water were being poured in. The air in the vicinity of the stope was somewhat warmer than in other parts of the mine, but there was no indication that the fire was yet alive. Further into the working beyond 55A stope there had been no trouble with the smoke, it was explained. All of the casualties there were due to the carbon monoxide gas. Here and there the spots where the victims bodies were found were pointed out, and in one place there was mute and tragic evidence of the fate that had fallen upon the men. A few lunch tins some of which were closed and some open, with their contents untouched, or partly gone, lay scattered on the ground, not unlike the debris to be found in abandoned trenches of some Flanders battlefield.

Rescue Crew.

The operations of the special rescue crew showed themselves everywhere. Their work had been progressive. Men equipped with special masks had gone forward erecting or canvas screens in the main tunnel. As they put up these the compressed air was blown through that section until the particular part in rear of them was clear of both gas and smoke. At the same time the air was shot beyond the brattices until its infusion into the tunnel had created an area almost clear of the gaseous elements. Proceeding forward the crew erected another screen, continuing this work until the fresh air had obtained a predominence over the gas which reduced the noxious element below the danger point. On each side of the tunnel the entrances of the cross cuts were similarly screened off in order to prevent the gas from circulating round through the other parts of the workings and overtaking the special crew in the rear.

Carbon monoxide gas, it was explained, was deadly when its proportion in relation to fresh air reached four-tenths of one per cent. On Sunday when the Pittsburgh crew began operations they found by scientific test that the presence of gas was one and three-quarters per cent, a condition which gave a man only three minutes of life. The immediate effect of carbon monoxide was a thickening of the blood. This could be diminished to some extent by transfusion but the time required for an operation of that nature made such a remedy impossible.

the influence of liquor two.

Recommendations

I would recommend the following for your consideration:

A bungalow fire station for the south end.

One thousand feet 3½-in. hose to keep the supply up to the standard and replace hose worn out and discarded.

Four fire alarm boxes be added to the system; a ten-foot suction hose for the pumper, a three-way Siamese connection, a Foamite machine for oil fires.

I have recommended some of these before, but no action has been taken as yet.

That the Council take ways and means of establishing a pension fund similar to what they have in other cities.

There is 9,200 feet of 2½-in. hose in the department; 4,650 feet in first class, 4,550 feet in second class, and 850 feet chemical hose in good condition.

Improvements

"During the year there was added to the department a 1,000 U.S. gallon LaFrance triple-pumper, a LeFrance double-bank ladder truck, 1,000 feet 2½-in. hose, and three nozzles.

The horses were disposed of and the stalls taken out.

In closing this, my sixth annual report, I desire to thank His Worship the Mayor, the City Council, and the chairman and members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee for the co-operation and support in the discharge of my duties as chief officer of the Fire Department. Also the City Clerk and other City officials, the Police Department, and the Press for the impartial manner in which they reported the workings of the department.

I wish to thank the members of the department for their co-operation and loyalty during the year

I hope, gentlemen, these recommendations will have your serious consideration, and that you may be able to grant same.

EIGHT-YEAR TERM WITH 20 LASHES

Frank Turner, Colored, of Chatham, To Receive Twenty Lashes.

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Eight years in Portsmouth penitentiary and twenty lashes was the sentence imposed by Justice Fisher to-day on Frank Turner, colored, who at a late hour last night was found guilty by a jury on two counts of robbery with violence and assault and bodily harm. The victim of the attack was Willa Arnold, fifteen year old Chatham girl, and the assault took place on Christmas eve when Turner accosted the girl on the street and offered to drive her home. He drove past Miss Arnold's home and when she protested silenced her with blows on the head. She was lying on the road with her right leg broken in two places when she recovered consciousness.

Changes its own Records

Plays twelve records without attention.—Runs itself for a whole hour. No operating effort on your part.—Just listen.

WHEN you turn on the current, the turntable starts to revolve; a mechanical "hand" takes the first record from the group of twelve and places it on the turntable; the tone-arm moves into position; the sound-box is lowered and the music begins. At the end of the selection, the mechanical "hand" removes the record from the turntable, slides it gently into a felt-lined concealed drawer, and "picks off" the next record from the magazine arm. These operations are repeated until the last record is played, then the mechanism stops automatically.

So magnificent an instrument demands an exterior of exceptional beauty. Victor craftsmen have designed a distinguished cabinet for the Automatic Orthophonic Victrola, in which every luxurious touch that ingenuity can devise has been incorporated.

The price of the automatic Orthophonic Victrola is $775. Other models of the Orthophonic Victrola Instruments are obtainable at prices ranging from $1400 down to $115. an Unsweetened Milk

Pure Country Milk Evaporated to Double Richness
-and the name "Borden" guarantees its quality

BORDEN'S St. Charles is carefully selected country milk with some of the water removed. It's the same as bottled milk only much richer, creamier--unsweetened, of course. Most women use it just as it pours from the tin because, being doubly rich milk, it improves every recipe. Others add an equal quantity of water and use it as ordinary bottled milk. Since it keeps perfectly in the unopened tin we suggest that you buy three tins of Tall Size, four of Small, at a time, and use it freely in all cooking.

Insist upon getting Borden's St. Charles Brand at your grocers. It's the tin with the Gold Cow on it

UNION HEARS LETTER FROM MISSIONARY

Rev. Wesley Morton Tells of Trip Up River to Interior of China.

OMEMEE, Feb. 16.— The topic of the weekly meeting of the Y.P.U. of Trinity church was most interesting, being an open letter from Rev. Wesley Morgan of China, which was read by Mrs. Rowland. The letter was written while travelling up the Yangtze river with a party, to resume work at Szechesan. Before concluding the letter their destination had been reached in safety although at times all was not pleasure as their lives were endangered.

Committees were appointed to obtain community song sheets. Plans were made for presenting a play in Janetville and for a toboggan party to be held soon.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

"Are We Really Honest?' 'was the title of the missionary evening of the A.Y.P.A. Miss Dickson gave a paper on "Britons Before Christianity," which showed the deplorable conditions of those people at that early stage. Miss Ada Atwell also gave a paper on Canada, before the white men came. Mr. Bent spoke for a few minutes on the manner in which we ought to consider the lot of other people which we sometimes think are not as good as we are.

DISPOSAL SALE OF PURE BRED STOCK

J. A. Walsh, of Otonabee, To Sell Fine Herd of Holsteins.

An auction sale of pure bred cattle, probably one of the most important that has been held in this district, is to take place on the premises of Mr. J. A. Walsh, Lot 25, Concession 11, Otonabee, on Monday, February 20th, when his herd of pure-bred Holstein cattle is to be offered for sale by public auction, by Mr. Harry F. Redmond, auctioneer.

Mr. Walsh has gathered together a herd of cattle of the Holstein strain second to none in the district, and it is expected that buyers from a considerable distance will be present on this occasion.

The strain of the cattle offered for sale runs back to Riverdale Rose, a cow that was sold for $6,000.00 and every one of the cows being offered for sale has a record of better than 10,000 lbs. in 305 days and one of them running up to 18,000 lbs. of milk in this time.

EVE KNEW IT, TOO!

The woman who starts a man talking about himself knows intuitively one of the secrets of salesmanship; and any flapper is as wise as the lady of the Nile.

Something to that effect said Dr. Rockwell to the insurance men yesterday.

"Charming, sympathetic young lady, that" you tell yourself after an evening in her company, and you discover that she kept the conversation directed to yourself. The whole topic of it was you. That's true men isn't it."

Snow Clogs Works Of Market Clock

The market clock, that time piece of the city of Peterborough which has been noted this winter more for the time it failed to keep than for that which it kept, went out of commission again last night at 8.20. C. S. McClelland, the caretaker of the clock, attributes the way it has been operating to the bad weather conditions this winter. The dial is not protected and with storms like last night the snow drifts in and stops the hands, and the clock will not start until the sun comes out and melts the snow and ice. Mr. McClelland also claims that the clock needs a thorough overhauling before it will ever be in good working condition.

GAVE LIFE FOR COMRADES

The discovery of William Lindsay's body brought to light one of the unselfish acts of daring exhibited in the course of the Hollinger fire. "Bill," as he was called by his comrades, was a sampler, working with two other men on 53 sub-level, isolated in one of the branches of a cross-cut, when the fire alarm sounded. The position of his samples showed that he had gone to the top of the raise in the ordinary routine of his work, had seen the smoke, and instead of rushing off to safety himself, had turned back to warn his companions. Photo above is of Lindsay.

"Fruit-a-tives gives" perfect Health

MR. E. LEMAY.

Montreal, Que.—"I was always constipated, bilious and weary until one day I met a traveller who recommended 'Fruit-a-tives.' I procured some. You would not know me for the same person. I am in perfect health, always energetic. I am happy to congratulate you on your medicine. I recommended it on every occasion." —Mr. Emery Lemay.

"Fruit-a-tives" overcome constipation in nature's surest way. The intensified juices of ripe, fresh fruit, combined with health-building tonics, gently and surely restore natural intestinal action. Be well with "Fruit-a-tives". Try a box—25c and 50c at all druggists.

So the Doctor Says.

Excerpts from Dr. Rockwell's address to the insurance men Wednesday:

A woman is not dressed until she has powdered her nose.

Have your magazines addressd to your home. You'll read a lot of them waiting for your wife to get ready to go out.

The greatest physician I know takes every five years off and returns to college usually with the undergraduates to keep up with his profession.

A man's interests are: (1) What he has done; (2) What he is doing; (3) What he is going to do.

Men do not give their confidence to every predatory canvasser that comes down the street.

Some life insurance men are too busy to be here today. They are afraid to sacrifice one case or call for something that would sell ten.

Man acts according to his feelings. He will even do what his judgment tells him he ought not do. His judgment backs up what his feelings tell him to do.

We shall never depart from the old standards that caused life insurance to come into existence 200 years ago, that is for the protection of the home and dependents.

Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16.—Tuesday evening last was Gentlemen's night at the A.Y.P.A. and a committee of the men entertained the ladies. The attendance was exceedingly good considering the condition of the walks, everywhere ice and yet more ice, with a fine rain falling to make even more. Following the business court whist was played, the prizes being won by Mr. and Mrs. Chappell. The gentlemen served refreshments.

The ice storm on Tuesday and Wednesday last recalled the previous storm on November 28, when people were thankful to get home, even if the process entailed travelling on their hands and knees. The streets in the centre of the village were sanded during the morning of Wednesday and the outlying districts on the east side received their share late in the afternoon. Residents in "Kentucky" report no sand at all and terrible conditions.

Mrs. S. T. Wood and Miss Perry entertained at bridge on Tuesday afternoon at "The Grove." Prizes were won by Mrs. May and Miss Creighton.

Twelve tables were played at the weekly A.Y.P.A. euchre on Thirsday evening last, the prizes were won by Mrs. Chappell and Mr. P. Towns. The consolation prizes were won by Mrs. Stenner and Mr. M. Hampton.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dunford on Thursday evening last to extend hearty good wishes to them an the eve of their departure for Lakefield, where they will take up residence. Mr. Dunford purchased a house on Chippewa street from Mr. J. R. Robinson.

Twelve tables were played at the euchre given on Friday evening by the ladies of St. Paul's church. Prizes were won by Mrs. Walter Chappell and Mr. Walter Graham, the consolation prizes were won by Miss Pearl Charlton and Mr. John Allen.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

DISTRICT CHURCHES.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL.

In the Gilmour Memorial church on Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. W. S. Edgar, preached from the following text, 2nd Tim. 2-3: "A good soldier of Jesus Christ." After his introduction Mr. Edgar went on to apply these words to the late Earl Haig, who he said was not only a good soldier of the king, but a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

"The whole country received something like a shock when it was learned that the great war general, Field Marshal Earl Haig, was dead. His death came with startling suddenness, he was preparing for bed when he was seized with heart failure, and died almost immediately. His doctors say that he had a weak heart brought about by the terrible strain of the great war, and his other campaigns in different parts of the world.

"Earl Haig was born in Fife, Scotland, sixty-six years ago, of an ancient and honorable Scottish family. He was destined for a military career from his earliest years, and after his college course, he attended military schools and was later gazetted as a cavalry officer. He steadily rose until he became commander of a cavalry squadron, and in this capacity he rendered good service under Lord Kitchener, at the battle of Omdurman, and the capture of Kartoum.

"He also gave a good account of himself at the Boer War under Lord Roberts. For his services here he was knighted by King Edward.

"In the great war he was given command of the first army under Lord French, and at the battle of the Marne he specially distinguished himself, his army playing a great part in that notable victory. When Lord French relinquished the supreme command of the British Armies, Sir Douglas Haig was the unanimous choice as his successor. He thus became commander-in-chief of the British armies in France, which position he held till the end of the war, when victory crowned the efforts of the Allies.

"For his great services the British Government gave him a grant of half a million pounds, and the king made him and earl. In addition to this the nation raised a large sum, and purchased the estate of Bermersyde, the ancient home of the Haigs, and presented it to him as a gift. Bemersyde is near the village of St. Boswells in Scotland, quite close to the border. He took his title from there, Earl Haig of Bemersyde.

"He was a goold soldier of the king, and I believe he was also a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

"Now, what are the qualities of a good soldier?

"Courage. This is a quality a good soldier must have. It is absolutely indispensible to his profession. Earl Haig showed his courage and fearlessness on many an occasion when his duty took him into dangerous positions and perilous situations. There are two kinds of courage. There is a kind of animal courage, the courage of the bulldog. Some men seem to possess this courage. They evidently know no fear.

"There is a higher form of courage, which realizes the danger, and is conscious of fear, but which keeps its place, and does its duty notwithstanding. Two soldiers were once fighting side by side on a battlefield. One of them seemed altogether devoid of fear, and was in his element in the midst of the strife. Turning to his companion, whose fact was deathly pale, and who was trembling in every limb, he said: 'Are you afraid?' His companion replied, 'Yes I am afraid, and if you were half as afraid as I am, you would run?' The first possessed this lower form of courage, a blind unreasoning fearlessness. The second man had a higher form of courage which kept him at his post of duty, although he was afraid. Earl Haig has this higher form of courage.

His generalship. He proved himself a skilful general executing many a clever manoeuvre which took his enemy by surprise, throwing him into confusion, and then defeating him decisively. The wise general knows when to retire from before the enemy as well as when to attack. It was Haig's hammer blows which materially hastened the end of the great war, according to the statement of Marshal Foch himself. Earl Haig is considered by many authorities to be Britain's greatest military genius, since Wellington.

"Think of his humility. For a while the allied armies lacked proper co-ordination and concentration owing to having no one in supreme command, and when the question of having one supreme commander of the allied forces in France came up, Haig fell in heartily with the idea, and he was the one who nominated Marshal Foch, and Foch himself has said that Haig was absolutely loyal to him in every possible way. This is a splendid trait of character and proclaims the truly great man.

"Think also of his humility in desiring to be buried among his own people at Bemersyde, rather than lie among the immortals in St. Paul's Cathedral, or Westminster Abbey. Yet he is lying beside an immortal, the great Sir Walter Scott, at Dryburgh Abbey.

"Then think of his sympathy. Since the close of the war Earl Haig has labored unceasingly on behalf of the ex-service men. He has travelled thousands of miles and addressed hundreds of meetings and been the means of raising millions of dollars all for this cause. I believe he will be remembered by posterity, for his work along this line, more than for his skill and courage on the field of battle, or his magnetism as a leader of men.

Earl Haig was a true Christian, and a faithful member of a Presbyterian church in London, where his body lay in state. When at home at Bemersyde he attended the Presbyterian church in the village of St. Boswells. During the war he was a constant attender at the parade service, and whenever he could find time he used to turn up at little weekly prayer service held somewhere behind the lines. His chaplain says he was a great believer in prayer, and was a sincere and humble Christian, a truly devout soul.

"So you see he was not only a good soldier of the king, but he was also a good soldier of Jesus Christ

These then are a number of things in the life of this great man, whom our nation mourns to-day, and these are the things that made him great, courage, skill, humility, sympathy and true christianity. We also need these things if we are to make a success of life, and triumphantly fight the battle of the Lord."

Welcome to the Boy Scout Convention

BOY SCOUTS HAVE PROSPERED IN PETERBOROUGH SINCE 1910 WHEN BEAVER PATROL STARTED

Local Boys Have Been Honored in Toronto Several Times.

FOUR TROOPS NOW.

Interesting Story Told of First Organization in This District.

The Boy Scout movement in Peterborough has had a remarkable growth since its inception in 1910. In the life of every organization there are years when interest may lag and when the appeal of that organization's most worthy principles is all that carries it over till the tide of interest has returned. And so it has been with the Scoup corps of the city which has been backed by men with an eye to the many advantages that it offers the youth of Peterborough. That support, coupled with the efforts of the boys themselves in working out Scout principles has kept the organization "on its feet" so that to-day it is one of which all may be proud. In fact, so well has Peterborough become known as a "Scout" town that for the first time the annual Provincial Scout Conference is being held east of Toronto—in this city on Thursday and Friday of this week. Timely, therefore, is a resume of the brighter marks on the corps calendar, begun almost eighteen years ago, appeared in The Examiner soon after organization took place. It explains itself:

Mostly everybody knows of the Boy Scouts' movement, but perhaps it is not generally known that a patrol of the British Boy Scouts has been organized in Peterborough and is in flourishing condition at the present time. The Peterborough Patrol is very active, and each Saturday the members can be seen starting out on a tramp to some point in the township adjacent to the city.

The Peterborough Patrol is made up of the following boys:

Scoutmaster—F. Austin.

Captain—Reg. Stratton.

Lieutenant—Herb. McClelland.

Privates—R. Neill, A. Fortye, A. Austin, S. Mills, G. MacFarlane, and Greg. O'Connell.

Lieut.-General Baden-Powell, C.B. has given a great deal of time and study toward the promotion of the Boy Scout movement, and he has succeeded in having patrols established throughout the British Dominion. The Peterborough Patrol is in immediate touch with headquarters in the Old Country, and each week a report is forwarded to headquarters, where the names of the boys forming the local patrol are on record.

A feature of interest in connection with the Boy Scouts' movement is the proposed visit of a number of Scouts from the Old Country to Canada this summer. They are being brought to do scouting and to see the Indians of this country. An effort is being made to have the representatives of the British Boy Scouts from England visit Peterborough. They can see all the Indians they care to within a short distance of Peterborough, there being two reserves in the reserves in this county. The visit of the Scouts from across the water therefore, could be made more interesting here.

Lieut.-General Baden-Powell has published a most interesting book which all boys should read. It is entitled, "Scouting for Boys." Some very interesting stories relative to the duties of Boy Scouts are narrated. Altogether, the movement is most commendable, and it is to be hoped that the people of Peterborough will assist in the movement and encourage the young Scouts of this city.

Each patrol has a distinctive emblem, the name of the local organization being "Beaver Patrol," and the emblem being the Beaver.

INSPECTED BY BADEN-POWELL.

One of the truly red letter events in the history of the local Boy Scouts' Asociation was their visit, twenty-four strong, to Toronto on August 30, 1910, after a thorough training by D. Oscar Warring. The lads turned out mighty early that morning—their train left at 5.26 a.m.—but their reward was a place among the 2,100 boys who were inspected by Sir Robert Baden-Powell at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Given Honored Place.

In 1911 local Scouts to the number of 65, again visited the Exhibition, this time to be inspected by Earl Grey. Unusual consideration was accorded them during their three three days' encampment, and in the march past they reflected genuine credit upon their leaders. Forty-two hundred boys were in that line and when it was over, a display of Scout work was given by various troops. Peterborough Troop, No. 3, gave an exhibition of first-aid, for which they were complimented by Earl Grey himself.

On this trip the boys were in charge of Assistant Scoutmaster Moss, Scoutmasters W. J. Miller and Rev. F. J. Sawers.

Third Visit Enjoyed.

In command of Rev. F. J. Sawers, nearly one hundred Scouts visited Toronto for a third time in August, 1912, where Canada's Chief Scout, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught inspected Scout troops from all over Ontario. As on former occasions, they compared favorably with representatives of other towns and cities, and at the conclusion of a two-day visit returned, tired but happy.

Past President

REV. FATHER PAUL COSTELLO who was President of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association last year.

WAR CO-OPERATION.

The story of Scout activities locally during the years of the Great War is ones which, generally speaking, is known to everyone.

Co-operation with other organizations in raising money for overseas relief was the aim of every Scout, and invaluable assistance was given by them—but that is a story in itself, and the reader may be more interested in comparing their peace-time efforts with their war work. He will find the comparison a favorable one. The benefits that the Scout movement offers the youth of the city have ben shown, and taken advantage of and in this helping to develop the men of to-morrow, the Scout leaders will be found as energetic and efficient as was the thoroughness of their war-time work.

In the present Boy Scout system, the churches have assisted, and at present there are no fewer than four troops in the "Association," as it is known. This association has an executive council of representative citizens; its 1928 president is J. John, well known as president of Kiwanis Club, who has taken to the Scout movement as one takes to a pet hobby. He, assisted by the executive, is responsible for the carrying on of Boy Scout activities in the city, raising necessary funds, etc., while appointed by this executive during past years have ben a commissioner and a district scoutmaster. J. J. Turner has held and still retains the former office, while the removal of Dr. G. Murray Fraser has left the corps without a district master, Fred Roy is the Assistant Scout Commissioner, and the following are the troops:

No. 3 Group, commanded by Frank Taylor.

No. 4 Group, in charge of Clarence Corbett.

No. 5 Group (meeting at All Saints' Church), in command of George Gimblett, Jr.

No. 6 Group under Scoutmaster E. Wolff.

Besides these various groups, there is a pack of Wolf Cubs with A. Hope as Cubmaster. All these groups meet once a week, carry on various activities, and usually a hike is taken once a week to some place into the country.

Peterborough, as mentioned above, is a local association, and a local association exists for the following purposes:

To supervise and encourage the movement within its area with the least possible amount of interference with the independence and initiative of the troops, packs, patrols or sizes; also to work in co-operation with other recognized organizations for boys.

To recommend troops, packs, patrols, and officers up to the rank of District Scoutmaster for registration and warrants.

To suspend any troop, pack, patrol, officer, scout or wolf cub in its area. In case of any refusal to recommend, or of any suspension an appeal lies to the Provincial Commissioner.

To appoint badge committee of independent ladies and gentlemen to examine candidates for the proficiency badges, and be responsible for the granting of all scout or wolf cub badges and awards under its jurisdiction.

There are other rules that the association must follow, such as encouraging the formation of camps, and submitting to the Provincial Council an annual report, including a duly audited financial statement.

A meeting of the executive is held once a month, and a meeting of all the troops and the executive is held once a year.

JOHN A. McKONE this year Third Vice-President of the local Boy Scout Association

Origin and Growth Of the Movement

The Boys Scouts' Association was organized in Great Britain in 1908, under the patronage of His Majesty the King, and under the leadership of Lieut.-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, and grew out of the ready acceptance in the United Kingdom of a plan which had previously been launched by Sir Robert Baden-Powell for the training of boys for citizenship. In the ensuing years the Scout Movement has spread throughout the civilized world, and has won for itself a great membership of lads of all nationalities, creeds, and colors, commanding wherever it is known the support alike of parents and boys and all of those interested in the welfare of boys.

Incorporation was granted to the Association by Royal Charter in 1913.

SMALLER BOYS FIND WOLF CUB PLAN PLEASING

Enjoy Pack Meetings, Where Games Are Played and Lessons Learned.

LOCAL PACK FLOURISHING.

Thirty-two Boys Enrolled, With Efficient and Interested Leader in Albert Hope.

The Wolf Cub movement, a less known part of the Boy Scout program of boy development, was the outgrowth of many demands for some share in the movement by boys under twelve, and is represented in Peterborough by one pack, the Fifth, associated with the Fifth Peterborough Troop at All Saints' Church.

The general plans for the Cubs were made by Sir Robert Baden-Powell in 1912 to meet the need for a scheme of recreational education that would teach the small boy lessons of loyalty to the right, self-control, respect for authority, and kindness to others, which are further developed in the Scout troops, and are the foundations of good citizenship.

Membership in the Wolf Cub pack is open to boys from eight to twelve years old, and the training is fitted to the needs of these boys. Much more stress is laid on teaching through games than in the Scout troop, and the little chaps are given every opportunity to indulge in their flair for mimicry and make-believe.

The boy joining a Wolf Cub pack promises:

"To be loyal to God, to the King, and to the Law of the Wolf Cub Pack.

"To do a good turn every day."

In keeping these he learns the virtues which it is the purpose of the movement to inculcate.

There are twelve subjects of study for the boys, and they are grouped under four heads, Character, Handicratf, Service, and Physical Health. Proficiency badges may be won for these subjects, three coming under each head. Character badges are issued to the Collector, the Observer, and the Signaller. Handicraft badges go to the Artist, the Weaver, and the Woodworker. Service badges are for the First-Aider, the Guide, and the House Orderly. Physical Health badges are awarded the Athlete, the Swimmer, and the Team Player.

Advancement in the Pack comes in three stages. The boy is invested first as a Tenderpad. When he has learned the composition of the flag, the tying of knots, and certain other subjects, he becomes a First Star Cub. Signalling, the compass, neatness, and elementary first-aid are among the subjects understood by a Second Star Cub.

The head of the Pack is the Cubmaster, or Old Wolf. This position may be held by any man or woman who understands and is interested in boys of this age. The leader of the local Pack is Albert Hope, whose interests are entirely bound up with boys as he is manual training instructor in the Public Schools, superintendent of the Senior Boys' Department of All Saints' Sunday School, and has five boys of his own. Mr. Hope has given a great deal of time to the work and has attended the camp course at Brantford.

Garry Johnston, a Patrol Leader of the Fifth Troop, acts as Senior Sixer of the local Pack. The cubs are divided into groups known as Sixes, each headed by a Sixer. There are thirty-two boys connected with the pack and four Sixes are at present organized, with Earl Hope, Bill McPherson, Fred Williams, and Lloyd Livingstone as Sixers.

The Scout Law

1—A SCOUT'S HONOR IS TO BE TRUSTED.

If a Scout says "On my honor it is so," that means that it is so; just as if he had taken a most solemn oath.

Similarly, if a Scout officer says to a Scout: "I trust you on your honor to do this," the Scout is bound to carry out the order to the very best of his ability, and to let nothing interfere with his doing so.

If a Scout were to break his honor by telling a lie, or by not carrying out an order exactly when trusted on his honor to do so, he may be directed to hand over his Scout badge, and never to wear it again. He may also be directed to cease to be a Scout.

2—A SCOUT IS LOYAL to the King, and to his officers, and to his parents, his country, his employers, or to his employees and his comrades. He must stick to them through thick and thin against anyone who is their enemy or who ever talks badly of them.

3.—A SCOUT'S DUTY IS TO BE USEFUL AND TO HELP OTHERS.

And he is to do his duty before anything else even though he gives up his own pleasure, or comfort, or safety to do it. When in difficulty to know which of two things to do, he must ask himself, "Which is my duty?" that is, "Which is best for other people?"—and do that one. He must Be Prepared at any time to save life, or to help injured persons. And he must try his best to do at least one good turn to somebody every day.

4.—A SCOUT IS A FRIEND TO ALL, AND A BROTHER TO EVERY OTHER SCOUT. Thus if a Scout meets another Scout, even though a stranger to him, he must speak to him, and help him in any way that he can; either to carry out the duty he is then doing, or by giving him food, or, as far as possible anything that he may be in want of.

A Scout must never be a SNOB. A snob is one who looks down upon another because he is poorer or who is poor and resents another because he is rich. A Scout accepts the other man as he finds him, and makes the best of him.

"Kim," the boy Scout, was called by the Indian, "Little friend of all the world," and that is the name that every Scout should earn for himself.

5.—A SCOUT IS COURTEOUS: That is, he is polite to all—but especially to women and children, and old people and invalids, cripples, etc. And he must not take any reward for being helpful or courteous.

6.—A SCOUT IS A FRIEND TO ANIMALS. He should save them as far as possible from pain, and should not kill any animal unnecessarily, for it is one of God's Creatures. Killing an animal for food or an animal which is harmful is allowable.

7.—A SCOUT OBEYS ORDERS of his parents, patrol leader, or Scoutmaster without question.

Even if he gets an order he does not like he must do as soldiers and sailors do, and as he would do for his captain in a football team; he must carry it out all the same because it is his duty; and after he has done it he can come and state any reasons against it; but he must carry out the order at once. That is discipline.

8.—A SCOUT SMILES AND WHISTLES under difficulties. When he gets an order he should obey it cheerily and readily; not in a slow, hang-dog sort of way.

Scouts never grumble at hardships, nor whine at each other, nor swear when put out, but go on whistling and smiling.

When you just miss a train, or someone treads on your favorite corn—not that a Scout ought to have such things as corns—or under any annoying circumstances, you should force yourself to smile at once, and then whistle a tune, and you will be all right.

The punishment for swearing or using bad language is for each offence a mug of cold water to be poured down the offender's sleeve by the other Scouts. It was the punishment invented by th old British Scout, Captain John Smith, three hundred years ago.

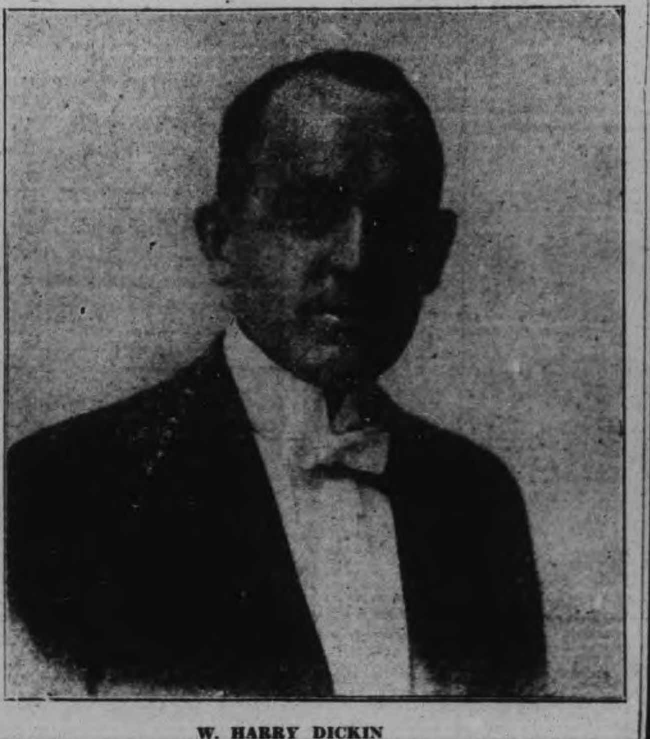
9.—A SCOUT IS THRIFTY, that is, he saves every penny he can, and puts it into the bank, so that he may have money to keep himself when out of work, and thus not make himself a burden to others; or that he may have money to give away to others when they need it.

10.—A SCOUT IS CLEAN IN THOUGHT, WORD AND DEED; that is, he looks down upon a silly youth who talks dirt, and he does not let himself give way to temptations either to talk it or to think, or to do anything dirty.

A Scout is pure and clean-minded and manly.

The Cub uniform consists of a green cap with yellow cords, green jersey, blue shorts, and dark stockings. The Wolf Cub badge is worn on the cap, with the stars, as earned, on either side of it. The Sixer is distinguished by two yellow stripes around his arm.

1st Vice President



W. HARRY DICKIN this year First Vice-President of the local Boy Scout Association.

Basis Of Organizotion

The basis of organization in Canada corresponds to the divisions of the country. The Canadian General Council, incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1914, which assists the Chief Scout for Canada in promoting generally the objects of the movement in this country, is representative of the work in all of the nine Provinces and maintains a headquarters office in Ottawa. The Canadian General Council serves also as a link between the British Headquarters and the work in the several Canadian Provinces. Councils have been formed in each of the the Provinces to promote the welfare of the movement in their respective areas.

Local Associations are in turn responsible to the Provincial Councils for the efficient carrying on of the work in their various districts.

The Law of The Wolf Pack

"1.—The Cub gives in to the Old Wolf.

"In the woods or the jungle the old wolf is the one who knows all about hunting, so every cub obeys him, and obeys him right away. The cub doesn't say: 'Just wait a minute until I finish this game of catching grass-hoppers.' No; he runs immediately to do what the old wolf wishes. Even when the old wolf is out of sight, the cub always does what the old wolf wishes him to do.

"And so in our Wolf Cub Pack, the Cub obeys the orders of his father and mother, and his Cubmaster; and whether they are there to see him or not. The smallest Cub can always be counted upon to try his very best to do what they wish him to do.

"2.—The Cub does not give in to himself.

"What does that mean? Well, sometimes when a young wolf is hunting a rabbit for dinner for his pack, he will begin to get very tired. He will wish he did not have to run so fast. He would like to stop, and let some other cub chase the rabbit for their dinner. Perhaps he would rather go and play with some of the other cubs. But if he is the right sort, he will not give in to what he wants to do, but will keep right on going. So a Wolf Cub does not give in to himself when he wants to play, and his father or mother, or the Cubmaster, asks him to do something else. He does what they wish him to do, just as long as they wish him to do it. And he never gets cross about it, and sulks, but does it cheerfully, and smiles, and whistles.

Boys Advance From Class To Class On Passing Their Tests.

MANY BADGES.

Whole Vocational Training Is Included in Scout Program.

The whole plan of training of the Boy Scouts' Association is progressive and has been so worked out that boys may be advanced from one class to another on passing certain tests, thus finding new and more complex interests as their training proceeds, by which their character is formed along lines both of knowledge and of service for manhood and citizenship.

A boy joining the Scouts is enrolled as a Tenderfoot, after passing the prescribed tests and taking the Scout's three-fold promise. The badge of the Tenderfoot Scout is worn in the buttonhole, and is in the form of the fleur-de-lis which shows the north on a map or compass. It is the badge of the scout in the army, because he shows the way; so, too, a peace scout shows the way in doing his duty and helping others.

After having learned sufficient to pass the tests one may go on from the Tenderfoot stage, to win the badges of Second Class Scout and First Class Scout. That of the Second Class Scout is a scroll, being turned up at the ends like a Scout's mouth because he does his duty with a smile and willingly. On the scroll is inscribed the motto, "Be Prepared," which means that a Scout must always be prepared at any moment to do his duty and to face danger and emergency in order to help his fellow men. A knot is tied to the scroll to remind the Scout to do a good turn to someone daily. The badge of the First Class Scout consists of an arrowhead and scroll.

When a boy has become a First Class Scout he may also qualify for and wear various proficiency badges as follows: Ambulance; Airman, Artist; Basket Worker; Bee-Keeper; Blacksmith; Boatman; Bugler; Camper, Carpenter Badge; Citizen; Clerk; Cook; Cyclist; Dairyman; Electrician; Engineer; Entertainer; Farmer; Fireman; Fisherman; Forestry; Friend to Animals; Gardener; Handyman; Healthy Man; Horseman; Interpreter; Laundryman; Leatherworker; Marksman; Master-at-Arms; Mason; Metal Worker; Miner; Missioner; Musician; Naturalist; Pathfinder; Photographer; Pilot; Pioneer; Piper; Plumber; Poultry Farmer; Printer; Prospector; Public Health Man; Rescuer; Signaller; Stalker; Starman; Stockman; Swimmer; Surveyor; Tailor; Telegraphist Textile Worker; Watchman; Woodman.

Second Class Scouts may also qualify and wear any of these proficiency badges up to the number of six.

Then, there is the badge of the King's Scout for the boy who is qualified to take his part, if need be, in the country's service by being able to guide a party as pathfinder anywhere within a five-mile radius of his own headquarters by day or night, and to give general directions to districts or towns within a twenty-five mile radius, to find food, forage, horses and motors and to carry a message, either in his head, or on paper on foot, on bicycle or on horseback. The King's Scout must be trained moreover, in marksmanship, signalling, rescuing, first aid, and other things beside for which he is permitted to wear a badge in the form of a crown on his left arm.

"Kruschen is a splendid tonic"

Read this Letter

"I think Kruschen Salts are a splendid tonic. After my husband's death in December last I became very rundown in health. Had terrible fits of depression and was unable to eat or sleep much. I was also troubled with rheumatism. I decided to take Kruschen Salts and have now been taking the little daily dose for nearly two months, during which time my health has greatly improved. The rheumatism has completely left me. I am much brighter in spirits and both eat and sleep better.

INSANITY AND TOXEMIA

It seems reasonable to assume that insanity is caused by some kind of a mental kink.

Many types of mental instability, accompanied by illusions and hallucinations, have been shown by psychoanalysts to be due to mental repressions and in-co-ordination of thought. Besides these mental complexes there are other causes of a distinctly material nature, such as brain injuries from poisons, traumatic injuries, surgical shocks, and venereal diseases.

A great deal of private and institutional work has been done both by the psychoanalyst, who is looking for mental causes, and the surgeon, who is only concerned with injuries to the brain, itself.

Too little thought has been given by psychoanalysts to the causes of insanity which might come from a general toxicosis of the whole body. I have never observed a case of any form of insanity where this toxic cause did not exist—at least as one of the causes—and in most cases it seems to me that auto-toxemia is really the primary cause of most mental disorders.

In my practise I never waste time looking for mental causes until after the patient's body has been thoroughly cleansed of all toxic wastes. Then, if the patient's thought processes have not adjusted themselves to the normal, it is possible to do very effective work through such methods as psychotherapy or psychoanalysis.

A great majority of those of unsound mind may be placed in the dementia praecox class. One of the main causes of this trouble must be considered as the result of congestion in the pelvis, either in the uterus or prostate. Displacement of abdominal organs and constipation are contributory causes to the congestion caused by functional inactivity and negative emotional desires.

One of the best methods of quickly removing toxic wastes is by the use of the enema. This also temporarily relieves constipation and helps to produce a more healthful tone through all the pelvic organs.

Every case of dementia praecox should be given a few days' fruit fast in order to assist in the blood-cleansing processes and also to relieve pelvic pressure which has been due to prolapsus of the stomach and intestines. When the prolapsed digestive organs are comparatively free from food there is, of course, much less pressure upon the generative organs and nerve-plexuses of the lower abdomen. The relief from the usual pressure caused by prolapsus and the elimination of bodily toxins will do a great deal to help a cure of any form of insanity, providing it is not caused by structural changes in the brain.

Ninety-five per cent of all cases of insanity could be greatly helped if given the treatment with enemas and fasting, followed by a careful diet. And my experience has shown that over fifty per cent of the cases found in institutions can be helped by this method of treatment, supplemented by psychoanalysis and phychotherapy.

Questions and Answers.

Question Q.S.I.C. writes "I am fourteen years of age and have been troubled with catarrh for over a year. It never leaves me and is worse in the winter than in summer, especially in the morning upon arising."

Answer Change your diet so as to exclude all starches, sugars and fats. Follow the weekly menus published in this column, substituting some kind of fruit wherever I advise a starchy meal.

Question Mrs. J. L. asks "Is there a fruit called the cloud-berry and where is it to be found?"

Answer The cloudberry is a fruit native of the Arctic regions, and sometimes found as far south as the extreme northern portions of the New England states. It is of high antiscorbutic value, both fresh and canned, but I have never been able to find where it is commercially handled in the United States.

Question B. G. M. asks "Will you please tell me what to do about an enlarged place on a child's lip where it has been cut with glass? Has a whitish center. Many thanks, I enjoy and profit by your articles in the paper."

Answer The scar on your child's lip can be removed through plastic surgery. There is no hurry about having this done as it usually causes some pain, but it might be well to wait until the child is older, when he will not be so affected by the scare created by the surgical cut or burn.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

No tone is so recessive as black or—to borrow a word used by those who make clothes for the "stylish stouts"—no tone is so slenderizing as black. And no sort of black is so "slenderizing" as black with a dull surface. It is no wonder then that black is much in favor in this year of grace when not only those who are overweight want to look as lithe as possible but these who are actually underweight want to appear even leaner than they are. It would be hard to find a woman or at least a young woman who really thinks herself too thin.

This desire to appear as slim as possible has doubtless had much to do with the present vogue of dull surfaced black—of black velvet and black suede. And the new velvets are so thin and flat that they give scarcely more substance to one's frock than georgette or crepe de chine.

If that isn't the explanation—at least the fact remains that black velvet is tremendously well liked this season. And as a complement to this somber hue nothing is chosen more often or more successfully than gold—preferably gold of a rich yellow cast. To go with the evening frock of black one may wear diamonds—if one has them—or pearls or rubies or emeralds or sapphires. Black evening gowns are considered excellent foils for the glitter of precious stones. But for daytime wear gold—soft old yellow gold—is more appropriate, and certainly newer.

Quite recently small gold necklaces made of flat rather primitive looking segments have come into enormous favor and they are more often worn with the black ensemble than the once ubiquitous pearls. These yellow gold necklaces also go well with the brown ensemble, which still retains its favor.

You cannot go far wrong in choosing black and gold for amsrt afternoon wear—a black transparent velvet frock with a gold necklace and bracelets—earrings too of plain flat gold design if you like. Shoes of black suede worn with very sheer black stockings or gun-metal or even flesh tones if you like. To cap the ensemble a hat of felt or velvet—closely draped and very neat—trimmed with a simple gold ornament.

And with this ensemble a black velvet or black suede purse. I have recently seen necklace and purse sets—flat envelope shapes of black velvet trimmed with gold, with gold necklace of the same design.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1928.

The morning of this day should be propitious for most important matters, astrologers declare, but later the planetary influences are not benefic.

It is well to push all constructive activities under this sway. Railway building and equipment is especially well directed.

Training of the hands as well as the brain should be stressed at this time when inventive genius will be more than ordinarily prevalent.

Under this direction of the stars deception may be easily practiced, it is believed, and for this reason the utmost caution in business should be exercised.

Again storms at sea are foretold and it is wise to avoid ocean journeys.

This is not an auspicious rule for promoting any sort of project. Those who have political axes to grind should delay effort.

In this new year Saturn and the eclipses are believed to affect Washington, D.C., unfavorably. Changes of supreme importance are foretold in government affairs.

International affairs will not be fortunate for the United States, foreign seers foretell, France and Russia as well as Great Britain may be seriously hostile.

Uranus is in an aspect in the horoscope of the President, which may cause him to be fixed in views that antagonize certain members of his party, cause him to be fixed in views that antagonize the seers declare.

Neptune is in an aspect supposed to be menacing to those who desire to change the Constitution of the United States.

It is well to guard the material possessions as well as the thought processes at this time.

While thieves will steal wrong ideas will be disseminated and much foolish prejudice will be harbored by persons of all classes, astrologers predict.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid speculation in the coming year which may bring many quick-rich temptations.

Children born on this day probably will be practical and methodical, but too sympathetic for their own good.

HOW DELICATE GIRLS ARE MADE STRONG

Rich, Red Blood Needed To Keep Up Their Vitality.

It should be borne in mind that pale, bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep and regular out-of-doors exercise. But a lack of appetite and tired, aching limbs tend to hinder progress. To save the weak, thin-blooded sufferer, she must have new, rich blood, and nothing meets a case of this kind so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills not only enrich and increase the blood supply, they help the appetite and aid digestion, relieve the weary back and limbs, thus bringing new health and strength and transforming anaemic girls and women into cheerful, happy people.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the case of anaemic girls is proved by the case of Miss Lucy Stoddart, Margaretville, N.S., who says: "From the age of 12 to 15, I was in an anaemic condition. I was very thin and nervous, had no appetite and had no desire to take part in the doings of those of my age. My mother got tonic after tonic for me, but they did me very little good. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and almost from the first they seemed to be just what was needed to restore my strength. After taking the pills for a time I felt an altogether different girl. I got up in the morning feeling bright and active, and ready for work or play. Since then I have always taken a couple of boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the spring as a tonic and have thus kept in the best of condition."

Every weak girl should promptly follow the example of Miss Stoddart, feeling sure that the pills will renew her health. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ALARM CLOCK CRICKET

"Did you hear that noise?" whispered Uncle Wiggily of the cricket who had snuggled himself in an empty nutshell and was rolling along to some land where there was no snow or ice. "Did you hear it?"

"Hear what?" chirped the black insect, sticking his head half way out of the hole in the side of the nutshell.

"That rustling in the bushes," went on the rabbit gentleman. He was standing beside the snow path where he had been listening to the cricket's story.

"No, I didn't hear anything except the cold wind blowing over the icy snow," answered the cricket with a little shiver. "I want to roll away from this kind of weather, but I don't seem to get very far. You were going to tell me what to do to keep warm, when, all at once, you stopped talking."

"And for a very good reason," said the rabbit. "I heard a rustling noise in the bushes and I was afraid."

"Afraid of what?" chirped the black cricket, sticking his head a little farther out of the hole in the shell.

"I was afraid the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozie Wolf or even the Bob Cat might be hiding behind that bush to make it rustle," went on the rabbit. "But I guess it isn't any of the bad chaps. I'm all right and I will tell you how you can keep warm until summer comes again."

Then, all of a sudden, out from behind the bush stepped a jolly old man, wearing a red suit trimmed with fur. He had long white whiskers.

"Why, San—" began Uncle Wiggily, suddenly.

"Hush! Not a sound! Don't mention my name!" cried the old gentleman, who could speak rabbit talk. "I'm a little ahead of time and I don't want the children to know I have come down from my North Pole toy shop so soon. If they knew I was here they would tease to know what I have in my pack for them. So not a word, if you please!"

Slinging a big bag over his shoulder, the jolly old gentleman tramped off over the snow from where he had been hiding behind the bush. It was he who had made the rustling noise.

"I know what his name is," chirped the cricket.

"So do I," said Uncle Wiggily. "But we are not supposed to tell. On December 25 it will not matter how often he is seen. But until then—silence, my friend," and the bunny held his paw over his lips.

"Silence is right!" echoed the cricket. "But now, since you need no longer fear the noise in the bushes, will you not tell me how I can quickly get to the warm South so I can crawl out of this nutshell?"

"I fear you will never be able to jiggle yourself inside that shell and so roll along into warm weather," said the rabbit. "But what I was going to say was this I will take you to W—warm bungalow. There you may stay all winter until summer comes again. You will be like an alarm clock for me. Snuggled between the bricks in the warm hearth of my fireplace, you will chirp cheerily and awaken me every morning. Come and be my alarm clock."

"I will!" joyfully chirped the cricket. So Uncle Wiggily picked up the nut-e shell, cricket and all, putting them in his warm pocket, and soon he was at home with them. The cricket was put in a snug corner of the fireplace where he at once went to sleep.

Now in the middle of the night the Bob Cat, thinking he could catch Uncle Wiggily, softly raised the window of the bungalow and crept in. But the cricket, having sharp ears, heard the bad chap, and, loudly chirping the cricket asked:

"Who is there?"

"I am!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Well, you had better go out the way you came in!" went on the cricket "If you do not I will bite all your fur off and you will freeze. Jump out of that window before I bite you!" And, not seeing who it was, but thinking, from the bold chirp, that it was a large, savage bear, the Bob Cat jumped out of the window and ran away, so he didn't get Uncle Wiggily after all.

Then the cricket went to sleep until it was time for him to be an alarm clock when he awakened the rabbit with his jolly call, and everybody in the hollow stump bungalow was happy. So the cricket lived in peace and happiness until warm summer came again. But meanwhile something else happened.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

FATHER USES THE CAR

What do you know about Dad!
What do you think he's done?
Nothing so awfully bad,
But rather annoying to one.
You can't ask a girl to walk,
(Why, even a block's too far),
And how all the gang will talk—
But Father has taken the car!

He gener'ly just comes in,
From somewhere he works downtown,
And gives us a friendly grin,
And usu'ly just sits down.
Well, here I am ready to go
(You know how these parties are),
Here I'm all ready to blow—
And Father is using the car!

I never imagined, when
He took it, he'd really stay,
Or else I'd have told him then
I needed it right away.
Of course, we could walk, it's true,
But you know how these flappers are.
Now what in the deuce'll I do?—
For Father has taken the car!

United States Loses Olympic Speed Skating Victory

RULED 10,000 METRE EVENT MUST BE RE-RUN

International Skating Federation Overrules Commission's Decision Proclaiming Jaffe Champion.

MAY BE CANCELLED.

Feared Unfavorable Weather May Necessitate Calling Off Entire Program.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The United States yesterday lost in committee the Olympic victory it was virtually conceded Tuesday by executive decision in the 10,000 metres speed skating event.

Twelve hours after the executive commission of the International Olympic Committee had proclaimed Irving Jaffe, of New York, the 10,000 metres champion, the International Skating Federation overturned the commission's decision, wiped Tuesday's competition off the books and ruled that the race must be re-run. The fact that most of the skaters already have left St. Moritz apparently precludes any satisfactory attempt to re-run the race, leaving cancellation as the probable eventual course.

The federation's action, generally regarded as final, added one more chapter to a short but vigorous dispute which began Tuesday when an official of the Skating Federation cancelled the 10,000 metres event because of unfavorable weather conditions after six of the contestants had completed their heats. Jaffe had made the best time and was regarded as virtually certain to win first place. Cancellation of the race brought forth strenuous objections from Gustavus T. Kirby, official representative of the United States, and J. P. Mulqueen representing Canada.

An appeal to the executive commission of the international committee ended unsuccessfully for the United States when Jaffe was recognized as the champion. His reign was short-lived, however, for the federation quickly over-ruled the commission and declared the race off.

The Federation's decision was taken on technical grounds, it was revealed last night, the American protest having reached the Federation more than three hours after the race was cancelled.

Enters Protest

Kirby, however, has not accepted the Federation's decision as final. Propped up in bed, Kirby, who is suffering from a heavy cold, dictated a letter last night to Doctor Otto Messerli, general secretary of the Swiss Olympic Committee, demanding that the Federation be overruled and Jaffe allowed to retain the championship.

"You may call this letter a real protest," Kirby told the Associated Press. "Tuesday's complaint was merely a friendly suggestion."

Kirby informed the Swiss committee that the Americans were prepared to re-run the event, but "it would be a travesty, with the best competitors away."

Henning Olsen, of Norway, who was responsible for the Federation's action, said: "It was all according to the rules and regulations of Olympic competition. I have nothing further to say."

Although Kirby's letter was taken under consideration by the Swiss commitee, members of that body said they were powerless to act since the skating federation was supreme in the action taken on technical grounds.

Jaffe, who was present when Kirby's letter was transmitted, was asked whether he would race again.

"This is a tough break," he replied, "but I will race them again, on skates, skis or at foot-running."

Pending a decision on the latest American protest, the American skaters planned to remain in St. Moritz.

Although apparently doomed to lose his Olympic crown, Jaffe had the satisfaction yesterday of being hailed as the champion by his cloest competitors, the Norweigian skaters, who called at his hotel to congratulate him.

Holds Up Games

Even should arrangements be made for re-running the race, the weather might have the final say. Unfavorable since the opening of the Winter sports competition last Saturday, the weather was worse than ever last night. It was raining hard and there were indications that the entire Winter sports meeting might have to be called off.

Canada is scheduled to meet Sweden in the first of the hockey finals today, but the condition of the rinks made it extremely doubtful whether this program could be adhered to. The ski run and bobsleigh course have been badly damaged by the unseasonably warm weather.

Final decision on what is to be done probably will come at a meeting of the Swiss Olympic Committee to-night.

Walkerton To Meet Paisley.

WALKERTON, Ont., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—Walkerton will meet Paisley in the second round of the Senior Northern Hockey League, the first game to be played here on Friday night, Feb. 17. Walkerton O.H.A. intermediates will probably meet the winner of the Guelph-Kitchener series in the third round.

The Guelph-Kitchener game is scheduled for to-night, and it is expected that the winner will play Walkerton, with the first game here on Monday night, February 20, and the return game in Guelph or Kitchener on Wednesday night, February 22.

News of a tricathlon event added to the women's Olympic program which is made in order for Miss Catherwood, was made public by M. M. HOCKEY TROUBLE LOOMS IN WEST

Vancouver Monarchs Face Suspension If They Play in New International League.

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 16. — War clouds are hanging low over the western hockey horizon and are threatening to disrupt the reign of peace that has prevailed between the Dominion Amateur Hockey Association and at least one provincial body.

This situation has been caused by the organization of an international hockey league embracing Vancouver, Victoria and Portland, made up of amateur players, insofar as the Canadian side at least is concerned, and the fact that the Vancouver entry in this new so-called simon-pure collection is supposed to represent that city in the Allan Cup playdowns.

Dr. J. E. Sandercock of Calgary, president of the Dominion Amateur Hockey Association, stated definitely that he would use his authority and would suspend the Vancouver Monarchs if that team carries on in the new International League and crosses to Portland to play in that city. This official was very definite in that pronouncement.

The situation has even greater posabilities. The British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, which is affiliated with the Dominion body, has put its stamp of approval on the new International league and should the Vancouver Monarchs play in Portland not only will the members of that team be suspended, but the British Columbia branch of the Amateur Hockey Association may find itself in exactly the same position.

GUNTHER WINS FIRST HONORS

Captures Opening Event of Adirondack Amateur Speed Skating Tournament.

ON SOFT ICE.

SARANAC LAKE, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—Skating over ice that was little better than slush, Lloyd Gunther of the Cadillac Club, Detroit, yesterday took honors in the first event of the Adirondack Gold Cup amateur speed skating tournament here. Gunther fought his way to the front in the 440 yard dash, barely beating out the youthful Eddie Jacobson of Chicago. Third place was taken by a Detroit skater, Perry Johnson. The winner's time was 49 4-5 seconds.

The mile race, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed until today because of the soft ice, although the ice at sundown Tuesday night was as hard as steel, a thaw beginning at midnight softened it badly for yesterday's card. Rain and a south wind added to the troubles of the skaters.

Today's schedule contains races of one-sixth mile, five miles and yesterday's postponed mile event.

The summaries:

Senior 440-yard dash.—Lloyd Gunthem, Detroit, first; Eddie Jacobson, Chicago, second; Perry Johnson, Detroit, third. Time 49 4-5 seconds.

Senior point summery: Gunther, 30; Jacobson, 10.

Intermediate Half Mile. — Alex Hurd, Hamilton, Ont., first; Edwin Schroder, Chicago, second; Ray Darmastda, third. Time 2 minues 6 2-5 second.

Boys under 16, 220 yards.—Howard Malone, Saranac Lake, first; Edwin Stundl, Chicago, seconds; George Downey, New York, third. Time 24 4-5 seconds.

Boys under 14, 440 yards.—Stanley Beginski, Chicago, first; Wilbur Marks, Chicago, second; George Moore, Chicago, third. Time 1 minutes, 1 2-5 seconds.

Boys under 12, 220 yards.—James Barry, Lake Placid, first; Archie van Northwick, Saranac Lake, second; Donald Boaney, Lake Placid, third. Time 33 4-5 seconds.

VICTORIA CLUB WINS IN FINALS

Ousts Brookline in Holt Renfrew Curling Competition at Quebec.

LOSE EARLY LEAD.

QUEBEC, Feb. 16. — Canadian Press. — The Brookline Country Club Curling Team of Brookline, Mass., skipped by J. I. Wylde, went down to defeat in the final of the Holt Renfrew competition, one of the featue events of the Quebec bonspiel, at the hands of the Victoria club, of Quebec, skipped by S. C. Newton, here yesterday afternoon.

The United States skip assumed an early lead but was caught at the tenth end and the match was squared. Then three successive ends of two left the Brookline club the almost hopeless task of getting a seven to tie, and a perfect end to win.

Newton laid guard to prevent this and finished the last end with another shot to his credit. The final score was 13-5.

SPORT BITS

Walker Suspended.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, was indefinitely suspended yesterday by the National Boxing Association, ruling body in 26 states and Canada, for "not having shown any inclination to defend his title though the six months' grace allowed him has expired and proper warning had been issued to him."

Delaney In Training.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Jack Delaney will start active training for his bout with Tom Heeney of New Zealand in Madison Square Garden March 1, at his gym here this afternoon, his manager, Joe Jacobs, announced yesterday. Delaney returned from Rochester late Tuesday afternoon and yesterday worked out lightly.

The rapier of the North weighs 185 pounds at the present time, but hopes to tip the beam at slightly less than 180 pounds for his bout with Heeney.

MARMORA WINS HOME GAME 5-2

Deloro Defeated in Return Game Played on Monday Last.

GOOD HOCKEY.

MARMORA, Feb. 16.—The return game between Marmora Junior and Deloro Juniors was played on the former's rink on Monday evening, resulting in Marmora's favor, the score being 5-2. Play was very even in the first period, neither team being able to register. In the second period, Marmora scored thrice, Shannon obtaining two and Burns adding one. Clemens, playing a strong game at centre for the miners, beat Melville in the homesters' goal. In the final period, two goals by Shannon raised his contribution to four. Clemens netted again for Deloro, there being no further scoring. The game was handled by Ralph Neal, while J. Maloney and A. Burns acted as goal umpires. A moderate crowd lined the enclosure.

McGill Hockey Pilot Taken Seriously Ill

MONTREAL, Feb. 16. — Canadian Press. — Ralph St. Germain, pilot of the McGill senior hockey squad, who was carried off the ice on Monday night with a temperature of 103, has developed scarlet fever according to reports at the university.

In the tilt with the University of Montreal when the red and white's chances for a play-off with Varsity were definitely obliterated, St. Germain went through the entire three periods, tieing the count on three different occasions, and for the first time in his career had to be assited from the ice before play had concluded.

Phil Scott Returns For Second Invasion

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Vowing that if he loses one fight in America, he'll never box there again, Phil Scott, British heavyweight, sailed aboard the Olympic yesterday for his second invasion of the United States.

His first objective, he said, would be a bout at New York with Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, to whom Scott lost a dicision during his first invasion last year.

After suffering a one-round knockout at the hands of Knute Hansen, the "Durable Dane," in his first bout in America, Scott showed a striking reversal of form, knocking out Monte Munn and extending Risko to the limit in his final appearance, at Cleveland.

Hooley Smith Will Play For Maroons

MONTREAL, Feb. 16. — Canadian Press. — Hooley Smith is an uncertain quantity as centre for the Maroons in to-night's game here with the Detroit Cougars. After recovering from a hip injury, Smith received a crack in the shoulder in the last minutes of the game at Pittsburgh. Examination revealed nothing beyond a severe and painful bruise, though it was discovered that there had been a slight break there previously about which Smith had apparently said nothing. It is possible that Smith will be in uniform, but given little work.

Fred Brown, the flashy left wing player from Stratford, joined the Maroon camp yesterday and was out for the practice session.

JESS DOYLE FOR LEAFS

Stalwart Right-hander, Along With Bayne, Will Be On Job.

HAVE STRONG STAFF.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Although not definitely decided upon it is more than likely that the Toronto club will train at Albany, Ga., according to Manager O'Hara. Inducements of an extraordinary nature have been offered the Leafs by the Chamber of Commerce of that enterprising Georgia city, and if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the Albany club regarding the joint use of the playing field Albany will be given the preference over Augusta and Anderson, S.S. respectively.

It is planned to send the battery men to the training camp a week or so before the other players. Fred Burchell will be on hand to meet them and the erstwhile southpaw star of the Birds and ex-manager of the Bears who is slated to be O'Hara's chief assistant, should turn out some winners. He knows his Spaldings.

The Leaf's chieftain has every hope of getting Jess Doyle back from the Giants and also of securing Billy Bayne's release from Cleveland. The latter is the southpaw whom the Toronto club purchased from the Greenville club of the Sally league last fall only to have the Indians draft him. The local club profited to the extent of $1,500 on the transaction but would give that amount and a little more to have the pitcher returned. Bayne was the leading twirler both in victories and in effectiveness in the South Atlantic loop last season. He won 32 games and allowed a fraction under two runs per game. No twirler in baseball had a better record. He is no youngling, having had a trial with the St. Louis Brown several years ago.

With Bayne, Doyle, Hankins, Collins, Prudhomme and Fisher available O'Hara is sanguine that he will have the best pitching staff in the International. Don. Songer, the southpaw, secured from the Giants, may round into a consistent performer. He had a bad arm when he reported last fall and his effectiveness suffered as a result. He was a good pitcher when he was with Pittsburgh and is anything but a veteran now. Fraser, the Portland recruit, is said to be another Prudhomme, while Billy Martin, the semi-pro left-hander from Pittsburgh is credited with being a sure fire prospect. Lucas, the local sand lotter, is also being counted upon to make a strong bid for a permanent berth. He was a most improved performer last fall after his experience in the Blue Ridge league.

There is little chance that the proposed trade of Jacobson for Johnny Conlan of the Bears will be put through. Newark fans made such an uproar when the deal was mooted that Walter Johnson called off negotiations in a hurry. Conlan is a hustler, which is more than be said of some of the others on the Newark staff. Burdine, the college outfielder turned over to the Leafs by Detroit, is likely to make it interesting for all comers. President Navin of the Tigers predicts that he will be as big a sensation as he was in the Boston City league. Erwin Sexton, the youngster who batted .375 in the ten games that he played with the Leafs in the closing stage of the season, is another bright prospect. He is an outfielder.

With the chance that both the New York Giants and the Detroit Americans will tranfer several athletes of parts to the Leafs before the season opens, the Toronto club should be well fortified when the International campaign gets under way on April 18.

Maybe they need more air. Two or three pounds under pressure will take miles off the life of a tire. Maybe there's a nail or a flint just waiting to work through and make trouble. Maybe they're O.K. and you can drive away in comfort.

Ten minutes!

But isn't it worth it to feel sure of your tires?

JOE DWYER GOES TO HAMILTON TEAM

Veteran Goalkeepr Wanted as Coach and Reserve Player.

HAMILTON, Feb. 16.—Now that the Canadian Professional Hockey League race has turned into the home stretch, gossipy bits of news have started to filter through from the various camps. Hamilton's victory over Windsor, practically cinching a berth in the play-off series for the Yellow and Black, has turned attention again to several players on the line-up of the local club, and bidding has started anew for "Roter" Roth, star centre; Gordie Brydson, right wing, and "Gamey" Lederman, probably the handiest man in the league.

Roth and Brydson, the latter a Toronto boy, are popular, and now, on top of all previous offers that have been made by various clubs, the Detroit Cougars, of the National League, have shown an inclination to take this pair, with Lederman, too, if he can be secured. Detroit, it is suspected, would like very much to take this trio right away, but Hamilton cannot possibly part with any of them until the Canadian League closes. Other clubs are waiting patiently for Manager Thompson to put a price on one or all of them, and Chicago stands ready to take Lederman at any time.

Hams Sign Joe Dwyer

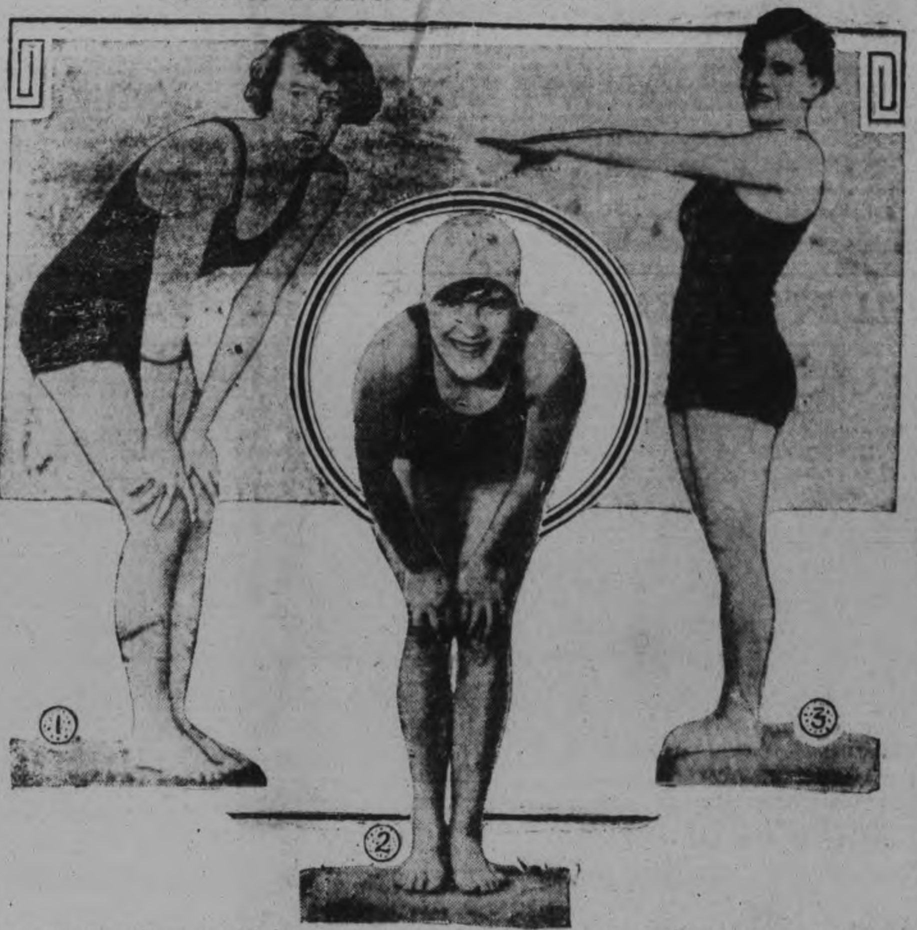
The Hamilton club has strengthened for the stretch run by securing Joe Dwyer, veteran goaler, from the Kansas City club of the American Association. The local management bought Dwyer outright, and while he may not be used in the nets as a regular, it is thought that he will be of considerable value from a coaching standpoint. Dwyer played for the Peterborough Senior O.H.A. team for years before turning to the professional ranks with others of the Lift Lock City team.

Bill Taugher, Hamilton's regular goaler, has been under a physician's care for several weeks, and if he has not been able to give his best efforts, it has been because of an ailing constitution which prevented him from showing at top form.

Falcons to Buffalo

It was suggested here yesterday that the Canpro circuit would broaden out considerably next season. Buffalo is seeking a franchise, and it is rumored that the Toronto Falcons may land there, while the Kitchener and Stratford franchises may be transferred to Toledo and Erie, Pa. Cleveland was booked for a berth in the league next Winter, but if this city is granted a franchise in the N.H.L. the Canpro argument will be knocked on the head.

DEFEAT DETROIT SWIMMERS



These three Canadian mermaids from Toronto recently defeated three of Detroit's best in the first international swimming meet ever held for girls' competition. They are: No. 1—Hilda Heustis, several times Canadian champion and present holder of both the indoor and outdoor Canadian records for 100-yard free style. No. 2—Dorothy Prior, who has been a close-up contender in the breast stroke championships for two or three years. No. 3—Grace Mackenzie, the present Canadian diving champion, both outdoor and indoor.

SUDDEN DEATH GAME.

Bishop's and Loyola Meet in Intermediate Inter-Collegiate Championship Play.

MONTREAL Feb. 16. Canadian Press. — Bishop's and Loyola will meet in a sudden death game for the Intermediate Intercollegiate championship of Quebec, at Sherbrooke on Saturday night. This was decided at a meeting of the league here yesterday after Loyola and Bishops had failed to come to terms on arrangements for the play off and the right to meet Royal Military College for the Eastern Intermediate Intercollegiate hockey title.

The first game of the play off series with R.M.C. will in all probability be played at Loyola stadium on Monday. If Loyola wins the championship at Sherbrooke Saturday night, a home and home series will be played and the first game will take place Monday night on Loyola ice. Should Bishop's take the title a sudden death game will be played at Loyola stadium, which is neutral ice for both teams, on Monday. The R.M.C. team will be passing through Montreal on Monday, returning from a trip to the United States, and the date is most convenient to them for a play-off series.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

Racing drivers, sports writers and others connected with the sport of the track have given their endorsement to "Dead Man's Curve," an FBO production now featuring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., at the Regent Theatre as the most realistic drama of automobile racing ever filmed.

When this picture was completed at the studio and ready to be shown a special purview was staged with all those prominent in auto racing about Los Angeles invited to give their criticism. This aggregation of experts was unanimous in its praise of the production and all agreed that the racing scenes, taken at a race held particularly for the camera, were the most vivid and gripping ever filmed One veteran driver stated that he got a bigger thrill watching the little cars tear around on the screen than he did when he was behind the wheel itself.

The story of "Dead Man's Curve" taken from Frank Richardson Pierce's "The Century Championship," deals with the determination of a young driver to overcome the hoodoo of a famous stretch of track known as Dead Man's Curve, and win for his motor and his girl. Many obstacles are thown in his way, but he wins out in the end.

Richard Rosson, who has directed many large pictures for several of the industry's leading producing companies, handled the megaphone on a cast which included in addition to Fairbanks, Arthur Metcalf, Charles Byer, Sally Blane, Kit Guard, Byron Douglas, James Mason and others.

AT THE GRAND.

Encouragement for many persons who think they have a good story for the screen but cannot dispose of it may be found in the experience of John Monk Saunders, youthful author of "Wings," Paramount's aviation special, which will be seen at the Grand Opera House Feb. 24th and 25th.

Mr. Saunders, who relates that the idea of a spectacular film of the war in the air, first came to him in 1918 while he was flying in France.

"Directly after the war," he explained, "war pictures were a drug on the market. Everybody wanted to forget the war, and even to hint of a picture having anything to do with the war made it unsaleable. Then came 'What Price Glory' on the stage and the war was re-discovered as a mine for dramatic material. The picture industry followed with 'The Big Parade,' and then I felt that the tide had definitely turned.

"I met Mr. Jesse L. Lasky in the winter of 1925 at a dinner of the Explorers' Club in New York and we discussed my idea for a war picture. He told me he had an idea of making an aviation picture, and then I told him my idea of a possible story for it.

"Mr. Lasky was interested, so much so that he invited me to his home, and we sat in his library and talked the project over for hours. I had done a little writing for the screen. Two of my stories, 'Too Many Kisses' and 'The Schock Punch,' had been used as vehicles for Richard Dix. When I finished my conference with Mr. Lasky he told me to go ahead and write my story, that he had decided to do the thing on a big scale.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

"Mr. Mannix was with me from half-past ten until two in the morning," Alys La Fosse tells Vance. Vance had traced a picture found in the apartment of the murdered Margaret Odell to Alys. He is trying to prove to Markham that Skeel did not commit the murder, despite the fact Skeel's fingerprints were found in the apartment. Vance believes Skeel was hiding in a closet while the murder was committed. Markham ridicules the theory, but Vance is unshaken. He believes the murder was committed by one of the following four: Mannix, Cleaver, Dr. Lindquist or Spotswoode. He is trying to get some information from Alys La Fosse.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"I'm sure it will be a success," Vance spoke with disarming friendliness. "Were you home alone all Monday evening?"

"Hardly." The idea seemed to amuse her. "I went to the 'Scandals'—but I came home early. I knew Louey—Mr. Mannix—was coming."

"I trust he appreciated your sacrifice." Vance, I believe, was disappointed by this unexpected alibi of Mannix's. It was, indeed, so final that further interrogation concerning it seemed futile. After a momentary pause, he changed the subject.

"Tell me: what do you know about a Mr. Charles Cleaver? He was a friend of Miss Odell's."

"Oh, Pop's all right." The girl was plainly relieved by this turn in the conversation. "A good scout. He was certainly gone on Margy. Even after she threw him over for Mr. Spotswoode, he was faithful, as you might say—always running after her, sending her flowers and presents.

"Some men are like that. Poor old Pop! He even phoned me Monday night to call up Margy for him and try to arrange a party.—Maybe if I'd done it, she wouldn't be dead now. . . . It's a funny world, isn't it?"

"Oh, no end funny." Vance smoked calmly for a minute; I could not help admiring his self-control. "What time did Mr. Cleaver phone you Monday night—do you recall?" From his voice one would have thought the question of no importance.

"Let me see. . . ." She pursed her lips prettily. "It was just ten minutes to twelve. I remember that the little chime clock on the mantel over there was striking midnight, and at first I couldn't hear Pop very well. You see, I always keep my clock ten minutes fast so I'll never be late for an appointment."

Vance compared the clock with his watch.

"Yes, it's ten minutes fast.—And what about the party?"

"Oh, I was too busy talking about the new show, and I had to refuse. Anyway, Mr. Mannix didn't want to have a party that night. . . . It wasn't my fault, was it?"

"Not a bit of it," Vance assured her. "Work comes before pleasure—especially work as important as yours. . . . And now, there is one, other man I want to ask you about and then I won't bother you any more.—What was the situation between Miss Odell and Doctor Lindquist?"

Miss La Fosse became genuinely perturbed.

"I was afraid you were going to ask me about him." There was apprehension in her eyes. "I don't know just what to say. He was wildly in love with Margy: and she led him on, too. But she was sorry for it afterward, because he got jealous—like a crazy person.

"He used to pester the life out of her. And once—do you know!—he threatened to shoot her and then shoot himself. I told Margy to look out for him. But she didn't seem to be afraid. Anyway I think she was taking awful chances. . . . Oh! Do you think it could have been—do you really think ——?"

"And wasn't there any one else" Vance interrupted, "who might have felt the same way?—any one Miss Odell had reason to fear?"

"No." Miss La Fosse shook her head. "Margy didn't know many men intimately. She didn't change often, if you know what I mean. There wasn't anybody else outside of those you've mentioned, except, of course, Mr. Spotswoode. He cut Pop out—several months ago. She went to dinner with him Monday night, too. I wanted her to go to the 'Scandals' with me—that's how I know."

Vance rose and held out his hand.

"You've been very kind. And you have nothing whatever to fear. No one shall ever know of our little visit this morning."

"Who do you think killed Margy?" There was genuine emotion in the girl's voice. "Louey says it was probably some burglar who wanted her jewels."

"I'm too wise to sow discord in this happy menage by even questioning Mr. Mannix's opinion," said Vance half banteringly. "No one knows who's guilty; but the police agree with Mr. Mannix."

For a moment the girl's doubts returned, and she gave Vance a searching look.

"Why are you so interested? You didn't know Margy, did you? She never mentioned you."

Vance laughed.

"My dear child! I only wish I knew why I am so deuced concerned in this affair. 'Pon my word, I can't give you even the sketchiest explanation. . . . No, I never met Miss Odell. But it would offend my sense of proportion if Mr. Skeel were punished and the real culprit went free. Maybe I'm getting sentimental. A sad fate, what?"

"I guess I'm getting soft, too." she nodded her head, still looking Vance squarely in the eyes. "I risked my happy home to tell you what I did, because somehow I believed you. . . . Say, you weren't stringing me, by any chance?"

Vance put his hand on his heart, and became serious.

"My dear Miss La Fosse, when I leave here it will be as though I had never entered. Dismiss me and Mr. Van Dine here from your mind."

Something in his manner banished her misgivings, and she bade us a kittenish farewell.

(Thursday, September 13: afternoon)

"My sleuthing goes better," exulted Vance, when we were again in the street. "Fair Alys was a veritable mine of information—eh, what? Only, you should have controlled yourself better when she mentioned her beloved's name—really, you should, Van, old thing. I saw you jump and heard you heave. Such emotion is most unbecoming in a lawyer."

From a booth in a drug-store near the hotel he telephoned Markham: "I am taking you to lunch. I have numerous confidences I would pour into your ear." A debate ensued, but in the end Vance emerged triumphant; and a moment later a taxicab was driving us down-town.

"Alys is clever—there are brains in that fluffy head," he ruminated. "She's much smarter than Heath; she knew at once that Skeel wasn't guilty. Her characterization of the immaculate Tony was inelegant but how accurate—oh, how accurate! And you noticed, of course, how she trusted me. Touchin,' wasn't it? . . . It's a knotty problem, Van. Something's amiss somewhere."

He was silent, smoking, for several blocks.

"Mannix. . . Curious he should crop up again. And he issued orders to Alys to keep mum. Now, why? Maybe the reason he gave her was the real one. Who knows? —On the other hand, was he with his chere amie from half past ten till early morning? Well, well. Again, who knows? Something queer about that business discussion.

"Then Cleaver. He called up just ten minutes before midnight—oh, yes, he called up. That wasn't a fairy-tale. But how could he telephone from a speeding car? He couldn't. Maybe he really wanted to have a party with his recalcitrant Canary, don't y' know. But then, why the brummagem alibi? Funk? Maybe.

"But why the circuitousness?—why didn't he call his lost love direct? Ah, perhaps he did! Some one certainly called her by phone at twenty minutes to twelve.

"We must look into that, Van. . . . Yes, he may have called her, and then when a man answered—who the deuce was that man, anyway?—he may have appealed to Alys. Quite natural, y' know. Anyway, he wasn't in Boonton.—Poor Markham! How upset he'll be when he finds out.

"But what really worries me is that story of the doctor. Jealous mania: it squares with Ambroise's character perfectly. He's the kind that does go off his head. I knew his confession of paternalism was a red herring. My word! So the doctor was making threats and flourished pistols, eh? Bad, bad. I don't like it. With those ears of his, he wouldn't hesitate to pull the trigger. Paranoia—that's it. Delusions of persecution. Probably thought the girl and Pop—or maybe the girl and Spotswoode—were plotting his misery and laughing at him.

"You can't tell about those chaps. They're deep—and they're dangerous. The canny Alys had him sized up—warned the Canary against him. . . . Taken by and large, it's a devilish tangle. Anyway, I feel rather bucked. We're moving—oh, undoubtedly we're moving—though in what direction I can't even guess. It's beastly annoyin'."

Markham was waiting for us at the Bankers' Club. He greeted Vance irritably.

"What have you got to tell me that's so damned important?"

"Now, don't get ratty." Vance was beaming. "How's your lodestar, Skeel, behaving?"

"So far he's done everything that's pure and refined except join the Christian Endeavor Society."

"Sunday's coming. Give him time. . . . So you're not happy, Markham dear?"

"Was I dragged away from another engagement to report on my state of mind?"

"No need. Your state of mind's execrable. . . . Cheerio! I've brought you something to think about."

"Damn it! I've got too much to think about now."

"Here, have some brioche." Vance gave the order for lunch without consulting either of us. "And now for my revelations. Pop Cleaver wasn't in Boonton last Monday night. He was very much in the midst of our modern Gomorrah, trying to arrange a midnight party."

"Wonderful!" snorted Markham. 'I lave in the font of your wisdom.' His alter ego, I take it, was onn the road Hopatcong. The supernatural leaves me cold."

"You may be as pancosmic as you choose. Cleaver was in New York at midnight, craving excitement."

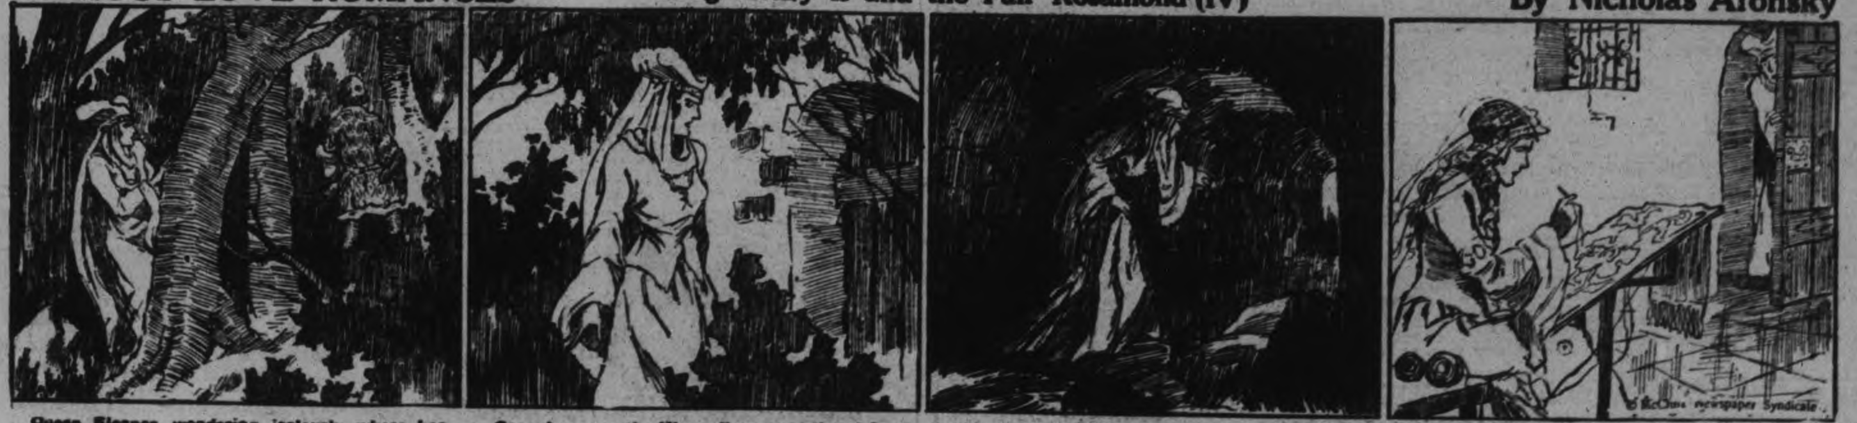
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES King Henry II and the Fair Rosamond (IV) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Queen Eleanor, wondering jealously where her husband, King Henry II, had got a ball of floss that she had seen fastened to his spur, traced the loosened silk to the maze in the park at Woodstock. But with the King at home, she dared not enter the thicket, the secret of which only he knew. So she bided her time.

Soon, however, the King, all unsuspecting, left on a journey which would keep him away for several days. Eleanor hastened to the entrance of the maze to which she had traced the King. Fearsomely but perseveringly she searched through the puzzling thicket until at last she found a door hidden in the palace wall.

Eleanor had the door forced, and she then found herself in a subterranean passage. Sure now that she was nearing the solution of the ball of silken thread, she pressed on through the tunnel and soon found herself in the forest outside the wall. And there, remote from the world, was a lovely little country house.

Queen Eleanor rushed into Rosamond's bower. There she found a very beautiful young woman, seated at her embroidery frame, working with silken floss. No doubt now where the King's telltale ball had come from. At last the Queen had found out the secret he had so zealously and successfully guarded.

KEEN INTEREST IN SERIES OF JUNIOR TEAMS

Young Petes and St. John's Meet To-morrow in First Game.

MANY ARGUMENTS.

Rival Supporters Both Confident of Their Team's Superiority.

There is a good deal of interest in the series between the two local junior O.H.A. teams for the city championships, and supporters of the Peterboro Juniors and of the St. John's Clubs are busily engaged in arguing about the respective merits of the rival squads.

The two teams will clash at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night in the first of a three-game series, goals to count, and the first engagement should provide plenty of exciting hockey. The teams are confined to the players signed for the O.H.A. race which makes the following squad available:

Peterboro Juniors: Mein, Gillespie, Calladine, LeBarr, Cripps, Jones, Kenneally, Allin, White, Hatton, and Shields.

St. John's: Payne, Hutchinson, Johnston, Carroll, Frost, Cuthbertson, Jarvis, T. Hall, J. Hall, Hartley, Dunkerley, Weir.

The game to-morrow night will be called at 8.15 o'clock, and with fast ice expected, should be one of the best exhibitions of the season. Many fans declare that the series will be in doubt until the third game is well under way.

JUDGE O'CONNOR GUEST OF HONOR

Lindsay Friends Hold Banquet and Make Presentations To New Judge.

A signal honor was conferred upon His Honor Judge Lawrence Vincent O'Connor when nearly two hundred fellow citizens, colleagues from his home town, from Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope and other centres and representative citizens of each, gathered at a complimentary banquet in the Hotel Benson, Lindsay, last evening. On this occasion of his elevation to the bench, they came to extend felicitations to one who has been a citizen of genuine worth and more than a credit to the Law Association, and they did it in royal manner. A splendid program of addresses followed the banquet proper, among the speakers being the President of Lindsay Rotary Club, Dr. F. A. Logan; Joseph Wearing, of the Peterborough Law Association; Monsignor W. J. McColl, and C. E. Weeks, and R. F. Downey of the Peterborough Rotary Club. Musical numbers by Kiwanis Male Quartette; vocal solos by Messrs. James Mackey and W. E (Ted) Hick, and presentations by the Lindsay Law Association through A. M. Fulton and by the Lindsay Rotary Club through Walter E. Reesor were also on the evening's program, which was a most enjoyable one.

The Peterborough representative, Joseph J. Wearing spoke as follows:

"Mr. Chairman, Your Honor, Gentlemen:

"It appeared as though another meeting made it impossible for me to attend this banquet, but my personal regard for the guest of honor and my desire to co-operate with the Lindsay Bar whenever possible proved together sufficient impetus to enable me to remove the obstacle of the other meeting and to bring me here, along with my brethren Ozias de LaPlante, J. A. O'Brien, and Emmet Sheehy, with the felicitations of the Peterborough Bar. As you have heard from his letter that only the very serious illness of his wife prevents the attendance of His Honor Judge Huycke and I feel it an honor to act also as his deputy in bringing to the meeting the heartiest goodwill of the Peterborough Bench. Speaking personally, I am more than delighted to be here because for a number of years now I have been a most ardent and sincere admirer of our guest and I have counted it a very great privilege and honor that he has counted me one of his personal friends. They say that the closest friendship springs from attachments formed in adversity, and perhaps this accounts somewhat for the closeness of our friendship, because I first became acquainted with him by having a case against him and I tell you this with the regret that you can imagine, when he got through with me and my client neither one of us had a single feather to fly by. It may be that our friendship springs from the fact that in many respects we are so essentially different. He, of course, is Irish, while I am English. He is a Roman Catholic while I am a Baptist, and you can see we are poles apart there except, I feel sure, in spirit. Then, too, in his youth when that iron gray hair was raven black he was a good deal of an Adonis in personal appearance, while I myself, I assure you, even in my palmiest days have never been accused of anything like that. But in one respect, I rejoice to say, we have been alike—one mind, one heart. We have both been staunch Grits. You notice I use the past tense there. As a matter of fact when I think of my friend Larry politically dead, I have a feeling of sadness and can only sigh and murmur "Requiescat in pace."

But, speaking seriously, gentlemen, it has given me great satisfaction and pleasure to know that my friend has been called to one of the most honorable positions that any man can attain, a seat on the County Court Bench. As you are well aware the County Court Bench is about as ancient as English jurisprudence itself and carries us back both historically and traditionally to the very cradle of British institutions. What a myriad of honored names are forever engraved on the great roll of County and District Judges, stretching from this country across the seas to all parts of the Empire, and down through the long ages of British legal history. Our friend will be in illustrious company. Up to the present he has necessarily been partisan and one sided in his legal battles and in the heat of the conflict he has had the instinctive desire to fight and win. But now he is an arbiter, a holder of the scales, a judge. Like the blind goddess herself he must while holding the scales, discard party, friendship, and even kindred itself, remembering only the maxim which has come from the greatest of all systems of jurisprudence, "Justicia fiat, ruat coelum." A short while ago I was reading Erskine's great speech in defence of Stockdale charged with libel, and it struck me that that great advocate compressed into one pregnant sentence the guilding principle for all judges who would uphold the honor of the British Bench. This was the sentence, "One word, gentlemen, and I have done. Every human tribunal ought to take care to administer justice as we look hereafter to have justice administered to ourselves." I myself think that Micah put it even better: "He hath showed thee Oh man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly before thy God."

Mr. President, because I believe with all my heart that there is no man in the Province of Ontario today more fitted than our friend and guest by experience, character, temperament and tradition to bring to the County Court Bench the qualities to make a judge who will at all times firmly uphold the principles which have made British justice an example and a shining light for all nations; because of this I do personally, and as a member of the Peterborough bar and on behalf of his many friends in and about Peterborough, most heartily congratulate His Honor Judge O'Connor on his appointment, and sincerely wish him many happy and successful years in the higher sphere of labor.
